Furnishing and refurbishing ceremonial swords in preparation for the Coronation kept British sword cutlers busy. The 180-year-old Wilkinson Sword Co., of Acton—the only company doing this work—received orders for 2,000 swords.

An order just completed earlier this year was for swords for the Royal Canadian Navy. The firm executed an order for cavalry swords for the RCMP, and had an order for sword belts for the Royal Canadian Navy.

Ceremonial swords have not been standard equipment for officers in Britain since before the war, but many officers had pre-war swords and had these refurbished—at an average cost of about $15 each. The cost of the new sword was about $40, the exact price depending on the type.

The new swords are of about a dozen types and were being made for the Household Cavalry, the Yeoman of the Guards and others. The longest were those of the Household Cavalry — 38 inches, compared with the average of a little more than 30 inches. Many swords were brought up to date—and bore the Queen's cypher.

The spirit of Coronation year is reflected in the new colors issued for spring and summer of 1953 by the British Color Council. Colors are for knitwear, wool, silk and rayon, cotton and leather. The 33 colors on the wool card have been arranged to give alternative suggestions for harmonizing and contrasting colors. There are 36 colors for silk and rayon, 22 for cotton and 16 for leather.

History Of Regalia And Coronation Jewels Filled With Death And Drama

When the sight-seeing crowds gaze on the Regalia in its dramatic setting behind bars at the Tower of London, do many know the astonishing story and the veritable history of these precious ornaments of royalty? Or do they gaze at the Cullinan Diamond and pass by the ten-inch-long silver-gilt spoon with which kings and queens have been anointed for 700 years since Magna Charta?

Now we will watch these symbols of might as they appear one after another in the service of the enthronization and Coronation of her Majesty. Each crown and orb, sceptre and sword, has a special significance for the might of the Queen. And each has its own history.

Before we watch the Coronation it is well to recall that the Regalia can historically, be divided into two parts by the great dividing line of the Commonwealth and Protectorate. A large part of the Regalia we see today was made to the order of Charles II and his brother, James II, in order to enhance the glory of the monarchy after Restoration. For, in a rather shame-faced way, the Parliament or the army or someone, had pawned some of the Regalia after the regicide of Charles I. A few years before, at the time the Civil War broke out, Parliament ordered an inventory of the Regalia to be taken and then tor it to be locked in the Tower, (not the Abbey, as previously), and retained. But three years later we find a record of the windows of Westminster Abbey being glazed and the charge being put against "Regalia Money". Who ever sold the ancient gold-plate of England did not record the transaction. But there must have been some Loyalists about; after the Restoration a few smaller hidden items of the old regalia were returned and "no questions asked". From these Cavalier treasure-troves we have, fortunately, the ancient spoon with which the Queen will be anointed, the ampulla that the Archbishop blesses, and the ancient sapphires in the Imperial State Crown.

The day before the Queen's Coronation, the Regalia will be brought from the Tower and placed in the charge of the Dean of Westminster. It will be lodged in the Jerusalem Chamber and guarded, through the night, by the Yeomen of the Guard. Of course, only those elements of the Regalia required for Queen Elizabeth's Coronation will be brought from the City. James II had a fine Crown made for his Consort, Mary of Modena, and there is another modern Consort's Crown made for Queen Mary. But these will remain at the Tower.

On the Coronation morning the Regalia goes in procession with the Westminster Choristers and the Scholars of Westminster School, and the Crown of Edward the Confessor is placed on the altar while the remaining insignia are borne to the west end of the Abbey, whence they are carried to the service of the Sovereign by those who have hereditary privileges.

CHANGED CEREMONY

Two centuries ago it was customary to hand St. Edward's Staff to the Hanoverian kings as they entered the Abbey. More recent monarchs have thought it undignified and indicating infirmity to walk with this five-foot-long staff, like a bishop's crozier with its five inch alpenstock spike at the end. Instead it is carried with the rest of the Regalia. But this staff is itself an exceedingly ancient Royal symbol. We can see Edward the Confessor walking with something exactly like it in the needlework drawings of the Bayeux Tapestry. (The present staff is a Restoration replica from a Medieval pattern).

When the anointing is reached in the Coronation service the Dean of Westminster brings the Golden Ampulla, in the shape of an eagle, from the altar. The consecrated oil is poured into the ancient spoon from the beak of the golden bird. There is some doubt about the exact antiquity of the ampulla. Probably it was made for the unlucky and maligned King Richard III for his Coronation in 1483. In the Abbey there is an indenture of that date bearing the rare sign manual of Richard, in which such an "Ampulle" is described. But a weight is given for the gold which does not tally with its present weight so there is some confusion of the evidence. Probably the bird dates from 1483 and was concealed by some Cavalier and then attached to a newly-wrought base after the Restoration.

Of the strange and great antiquity of the spoon there can be no doubt. It was probably made for the coronation of young King Henry III in 1216—the same king who founded Westminster Abbey itself. The previous spoon was probably lost by Henry's father, King John, in his hasty dash through the Fenland and the Wash.

Two ceremonial garments are placed on the Queen after anointment. First is a sleeveless alb of linen;; then a long tunic of cloth of gold, gathered with a sash

There are four swords, each with a special significance, to be seen in the Coronation ceremony. The most important is the great two-handed Sword of State with its crimson scabbard and its "quillion" (or cross-bar) formed with a lion and a unicorn—the "supporters of the Royal Arms. This sword goes before the Sovereign, to Westminster at each session of Parliament; Queen Elizabeth has already travelled with it as a symbol of her power to the opening of Parliament. Then there is "Curtana" the short, pointless sword that symbolizes mercy—the prerogative of pardon that is reserved to the Queen. Two more swords carried in procession represent the Queen's justice to the "temporality"—all her subjects—and to the "spirituality"—her Church. These last three swords have been carried in procession since the time of Richard the Lion Heart—and their traditional significance is at least as old.

The insignia of royalty are brought to the robed Queen. She receives the golden orb which represents sovereign dominion under the cross. This is one of the insignia that have changed through the centuries. In the Middle Ages the orb was more like a sceptre—as old portraits of kings show. The present orb is six inches in diameter—large for so small a hand—and is of gold, ornamented with an amethyst.

The Royal sceptre was made for Charles II but it now has added to it the largest section of the great Cullinan Diamond—nearly two and a half inches long and nearly one and a half inches wide; this great flawless stone is the wonder of the world.

The Dean of Westminster has the privilege of bringing the Crown of St. Edward the Confessor from the altar to the Archbishop, who has the sole right to crown the King since a dispute at the time of Henry I in 1100. The crown itself is called "St. Edward's" but in fact it was made in quite a hurry for King Charles II, and is a replica from memory based on the old pattern. It is a heavy gold crown. The difference between a sovereign's crown and a mere coronet is the arches which arise above the rim and intersect where there is a globe of gold surmounted with a cross. The actual coronation is performed with St. Edward's Crown. But it is soon changed for the lighter, and more valuable, Imperial State Crown, which was made for Queen Victoria.

CAP OF MAINTENANCE

It has become customary to place a Cap of Maintenance inside the crown—it is of purple velvet edged with miniver, so that it forms a kind of lining. But, historically the Cap has nothing to do with the crown, and is part of another ceremony.

For the latter part of the ceremony and for the return to the palace the Imperial State Crown will be worn. It bears a noble collection of historic relics. Prominently it displays the Black Prince's ruby—a drop-shaped stone—given to him by Pedro the Cruel of Aragon. This stone was worn by King Henry V in his helmet at the Battle of Agincourt. The pearl ear-rings of Queen Elizabeth I are said to adorn this crown, and the Stuart sapphire bequeathed by the last Stuart claimant, Henry Cardinal York, has been added to symbolize the unity of the monarchy. A single stone, with the longest history of all, is the sapphire of King Edward—relic of the almost legendary sainted King Edward—which was once in the ring of that pre-Conquest monarch, and is now in the Imperial Crown. Finally, this magnificent crown carries the second portion of South Africa's greatest diamond that we have already noted on the sceptre in the Queen's left hand.

The Regalia is more than a beautiful and glorious collection of the trappings of might. It has been said that it combines perfectly all that is highest in great jewellery—grace, value and permanence.

CROWN JEWELS shown here are the Orb, Sceptre with Dove, King's Sceptre and the Crown of St. Edward the Confessor.

Most Coronations Marked By Very Lavish Spending

By CHARLES KENNEDY

History supports the notion that the coronation of British monarchs and lavish spending go hand in hand. James II, in 1695, appears to have set the fashion for this feast of expenditure. For it is recorded how James, after ordering an estimate to be made of the cost of the coronation procession from the Tower, found that it would amount to about half as much as he proposed to pay for his wife's jewelry.

So he decided to omit the procession altogether and, instead, spent over £100,000 on dresses and trinkets for his Queen.

The historian Sandford's comment on this "folly" deserves quotation in full: "If pageantry be of any use in politics, it is of use as a means of striking the iragination of the multitude. It is surely the height of absurdity to shut out the populace from a show of which the main object is to make an impression on the populace. James would have shown a more judicious munificence and a more judicious parsimony if he had traversed London from east to west with the accustomed pomp, and had ordered the robes of his wife to be somewhat less thickly set with pearls and diamonds. His example was, however, long followed by his successors; and sums which, well employed, woulud have afforded exquisite gratification to a large part of the nation, were squandered on an exhibition to which only three or four thousands privileged persons were admitted."

Happily, times have changed. The Coronation of Elizabeth II will be a more democratic occasion, though hardly less spectacular.

To find a recent precedent for coronation spending, it is necessary to go back only 16 years, to the coronation of King George VI. Conditions in Britain, though, were vastly different then. Income tax was 5s in the £. There were more than a million and a quar' unemployed. The country had not fully recovered from the Great Depression; the rise of German military might had not yet resulted an any effort, on Britain's part, to rearm.

Obviously 1937 was anything but a year of inflation. Yet is has been estimated that £50,000,000 was spent over George VI's coronation. If such a sum could be disbursed in a year when money was "tight" what fantastic heights will spending reach during the celebrations of 1953?

Unemployment today is not the problem it was in 1937. Income tax is 9s 6d. in the £. Nevertheless most working-class people have twice as much money in their pockets as they thad 16 years ago. Against this, though, the £ is worth only half its 1937 value. So if the present Coronation is as popular as the coronation of George VI, something around £100,000,000 will be poured out on celebrations.

Only a fraction of this sum will be accounted for by what might be termed "official" spending. The last coronation cost the taxpayers £689,000. No reliable estimates have yet been published of the cost of the coming Coronation to be met from public funds. But the figure will certainly not be less than £1,000,000.

This includes the cost of official projects such as the construction of an annex to Westminster Abbey (£50,000), the erection of stands along the processional route to seat 100,000 people, and other similar public works.

The Ministry of Works' balance sheet for the last coronation contains such items as the cost of constructing the Abbey annex, £23,000; works at Westminster Abbey, £75,600; decorations along the route, £18,000; other decorations, £23,000, and the erection of stands, £117,000. The total expenditure amounted to nearly £304,000. Part of this was recovered from the sale of seats, £75,000, and the sale of furniture used in the Abbey during the actual coronation ceremony, £16,500. Altogether, receipts amounted to £95,242 10s 9d.

At the 1953 Coronation, this side of the balance sheet should compare more favourably with the amounts spent. For instance, seats on the public stands will be sold at cost price. In 1937, half this cost was borne by the taxpayer, and the loss was over £40,000.

Stands have been erected by the Ministry of Works at many points along the processional route, and these will be sold to the public at £4 and £6 each. A small proportion—4,000—of the seats are being allocated to ticket agencies for sale to overseas visitors at between £10 to £30. The income from this source, including agents' comission, should be in the region of £560,000. But this will barely cover the cost of constructing the stands, and the Ministry will be lucky to break even.

Decorating the streets along the Coronation route represents another big item of official expenditure. The whole route lies within the boundaries of the City of Wesminster ratepayers.

Sir Hugh Casson, of Festival of Britain fame, has been commissioned (at a fee of 100 guineas), to design the decorations, which will cost about £100,000. Half this amount will be paid by the Westminster City Council; the rest will be subscribed by asociations of shopkeepers in fashionable thoroughfares such as Bond Street, Regent Street, Piccadilly, and St. James's Street.

The London County Council also plans to make this a Coronation to remember. Souvenirs for schoolchildren in L.C.C. schools will cost the Council £60,000, illuminations and decorations will absorb another £14,500; the Council's share of the cost of a massive £14,000 fireworks display on the South Bank "Festival of Britain" site, will add another £5,000 to the bill The provision of a children's music and dancing festival and the prize of £150 offered to the composer of the best "Coronation Overture" will bring the Council's total bill to well over £100,000.

No estimate can be made of the amounts which will be paid out in local celebrations up and down the country. The Queen has expressed the wish that these should be as simple as possible and avoid all undue expenditure. But her subjects' strong desire to do justice to the occasion will not be weakened by consideration of money. It is safe to assume that some millions of pounds will be spent on street decoration, floodlighting, children's souvenirs and parties, and other forms of celebration in countless communities.

All this is a magnet for tourists, and the British Travel and Holidays Association expects that 1953 will be a bumper year. 800,000 tourists are expected to arrive, compared with 720,000 last year. The difference represents "Coronation Tourism."

Tourist expenditure forms an important part of Britain's "invisible exports", and thus benefits the balance of payments. For visitors are expected to bring into Britain between £125,000,000 and £130,000,000 in foreign currency during Coronation year — an increase of about £15,000,000 over the previous year's figure. Some £48,000,000 of this, moreover, will be in dollars— £5,000,000 more than was earned from this source last year.

A PRAYER FOR HER MAJESTY

Queen Elizabeth II

MOST merciful and loving Father, we humbly beseech Thy divine blessing on our gracious sovereign, Elizabeth. Grant her strength and health to conduct her manifold duties in the service of Thy kingdom and of her people everywhere. Endue her with wisdom that her reign may bring justice, liberty and peace to her nations and to all nations upon earth.

VOUCHSAFE thy blessing upon her husband and family and let Thy Holy Spirit guide and direct them. Fill our hearts with thankfulness and gladness that we may with her and through her, consecrate our lives to the service of God and country.

AMEN.

GOD SAVE OUR GRACIOUS QUEEN

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA joins with all Canadians in paying homage to Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom, Canada and Her other Realms and Territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith

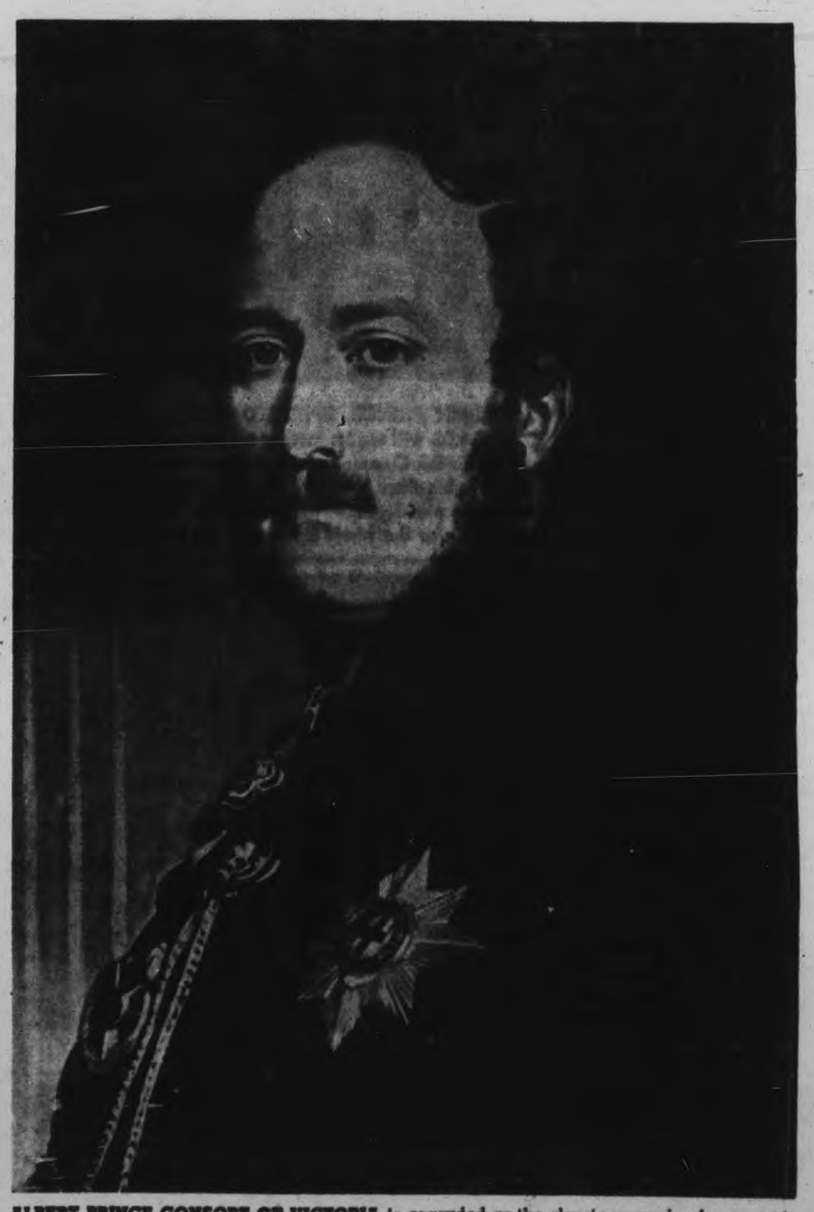
Four Reigning British Queens Had Consorts

EARL OF LEICESTER (1532-1588) was a man of princely tastes. Though he never married Elizabeth I he was regarded as one of two men who were close to her.

SECOND EARL OF ESSEX was other man in stormy life of first Queen Elizabeth of England.

Nearly All Were Strong

FIVE queens reigned in England before the accession of Elizabeth II. All married except Elizabeth I, so should the Duke of Edinburgh seek precedents for the conduct of a consort he has the lives of four predecessors to guide him. With the exception of Queen Anne's husband, Prince George of Denmark, all were men of robust character who left an enduring impression on the age in which they lived. Interesting too, and even inspiring, are the careers of the two men to whom Elizabeth I was most attached — the Earls of Leicester and Essex.



PRINCE GEORGE OF DENMARK (1653-1708) alone of all the consorts failed to leave a lasting impression of his personality behind him. Marriage was happy.

WILLIAM III (1650-1702) was husband of Mary and shared her throne but also was king in his own right. He was invited over from Holland to take throne.

KING PHILIP II OF SPAIN was married to Bloody Mary, later launched the Spanish Armada of 1588.

ALBERT PRINCE CONSORT OF VICTORIA is regarded as the classic example of a consort. He came from the German princely family of Coburg, was handsome,

OF THE CONSORTS of the Queens of England two, at least, have been men of commanding intellect. William the Third was forced from earliest boyhood to make his way among people who were hostile toward him, and he developed early into one of the ablest men in Europe in the political sphere. He was, however, of a coldly cynical disposition, and after he accepted the Crown of England he took no pains to conceal his distaste for the English and their country; to the end of his life he remained a foreigner.

William ruled jointly with his wife Mary from February 13, 1689. She was the daughter of King Charles I, and it was through her that their claim to the Crown was established. He is remembered each July 12 as the King Billy who was victorious at the Battle of the Boyne. This was not, in fact, a particularly important or decisive victory, but it has captured popular fancy.

OF GEORGE OF DENMARK there is little to be said, except that he was an amiable man who married Queen Anne when she was eighteen, and that they were equally devoted to the pleasures of the table and the bottle. So far as is known, he never attempted to influence his wife's political decisions, but he was a comforting partner in their private life. He also felt himself a stranger in England, and never spoke English well.

PRINCE ALBERT of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha was a man who would have made a name for himself either in business or in the academic world if he had not been the husband of Queen Victoria. There was a strain of Jewish blood in him which may have broadened the characteristic outlook of a German prince, for he was a constant and understanding patron of the arts, and he had a taste for commerce and banking, as well. The Great Exhibition of 1851 was perhaps his greatest and most successful plan to encourage and expand British trade. He was a constant and wise advisor of his wife, and it may be said that he wore himself out in the service of the monarchy.

He was never popular in England, and for some years after his marriage there was open hostility toward him. Punch wrote of him in jeering verse as "Little Al, the Royal Pal". Because he reformed the outdated uniforms of some some British troops he was accused of being a tailor or a milliner, rather than a prince. But his influence, direct and through Victoria, was strong and much of the sobriety of tone and seriousness of purpose which we call Victorian would more accurately be called Albertian.

Stamps Issued For Coronation Link All Empire

BY J. A. ATKINSON

Down Empire highways and jungle trails goes the postman with a reminder—that the Empire family spans the world and is one in love and loyalty to the Queen.

The reminder — new stamps, one of the Commonwealth's rare Coronation issues. The only other of its kind in six reigns since postage stamps as we knew them began was the commemorative of King George VI's coronation in 1937.

The new stamps, designed around a photograph of the Queen taken by Dorothy Wilding, are strikingly like a famous colonial issued nearly 100 years ago in Queen Victoria's reign.

These Victorian stamps were taken from a portrait painted by Alfred Chalon, R.A. The Queen was so pleased with it she appointed him her painter in water colors.

SOARED IN VALUE

How these Victorians have soared in value! A New Zealand penny carmine of 1855, used, is priced now up to £180 (according to condition). An unused (or mint) stamp is marked up to £375.

What of the new stamps? Who designed them? A stocky, genial little man whose office window at Wimbleton looks on a flagstaff flying the Union Jack. Name —Ernest James Jackman (yes, a lifetime on the job).

Round the portrait of the Qucen he built a design which Her Majesty chose from 20 submitted by his firm, Bradbury Wilkinson & Co., and its rivals.

The new stamps will be used by millions of Empire citizens living in 61 colonies and territories.

Through these lands the Empire spirit weaves a story of courage and adventure. And the story of some of their stamps belongs to the highest realms of philately.

Let's call on British Guiana, a slice of Empire bounded by South America and the Atlantic. It is a British Guiana one cent black-on-red. It was issued in 1856 and, compared with the vivid British colonials of today, it seems faded, ugly and worn. Yet it is the rarest stamp in the world. This fabulous piece of paper from the gold-and-diamond land sold for $38,025. (then £9,500.) at a Paris auction in the early 1920s and the last time it came on the market in New York, 1940, a secret deal was put through by Macy's, the big department store.

Neither the price nor the buyer was named. But $40,000 (£14,285 at today's exchange rate) is said to have changed hands and the stamp is still in America. When the owner took it to be televised recently he took an armed guard, too. This stamp gem was discovered by a schoolboy, Vernon Vaughan, when rummaging through old family papers in British Guiana. He sold it cheap because he preferred some flashy-looking foreigners. And though he was a collector all his life (he died three years ago) he never found another treasure.

Why is the stamp worth as much money? Because it is the only one of its kind known to exist.

STAMP OF MAURITIUS

Now over to Mauritius, spice island in the Indian Ocean. Some of its stamps are famous and displayed at exhibitions all over the world. In the treasure class are two orange-red penny issues on an envelope. Only 14 of these stamps are believed to be left out of 500 printed so that Lady Gomm, wife of the Governor of Mauritius in 1847, could use them on her invitations to a garden party.

She sent an invitation to a friend in Bombay. Years later, a British stamp collector named Howard bought the envelope in an Indian bazaar for £50. He sold it to a London dealer for £1,600.

The envelope went to a New York collector, Alfred Lichenstein, who is said to have refused £30,000 for it.

Why such an offer? Because it is the only envelope known with two of these used penny stamps on it.

Lichenstein's daughter, Mrs. John Denny Dale, displayed it at a London exhibition. King George was showing part of his collection. So was Carol, the former king of Rumania.

I asked Mrs. Dale if the family would sell the envelope or exchange it. She replied: "Not for all the mink in Mayfair."

So if you have friends in Mauritius, ask them to look through their old family letters. If they fin deven one of these early penny orange-red stamps they will be interested to know the dealer catalogue price is £3,500.

Next stop Bermuda — the island of no income tax where sunshine and flowers make summer out of winter and Postmaster Peret made history in about half a dozen easy movements. He took a hand pressure stamp (like the one they use in the post office to date a postal order) pressed it into the ink pad and then stamped the words "Hamilton, Beruda" and the years "1848".

These were Bermuda's first postage stamps. Today the catalogue prices them at £700.

PAYING OF HOMAGE

While the paying of homage was in progress one of a number of anthems were played—including certainly one by Henry Purcell and another by Orlando Gibbons.

When the homage was completed, drums and trumpets provided the signal for the great triple shout:

"GOD SAVE QUEEN ELIZABETH
LONG LIVE QUEEN ELIZABETH
MAY THE QUEEN LIVE FOR EVER"

And that concluded the real ceremony of the Coronation of our Queen.

The crowned Queen then invested herself of the Crown and the Regalia (the Lord Great Chamberlain holds the Crown) and proceeded to the altar to partake of Holy Communion.

At the offering of sacrament the Sovereign made her Oblation by giving a pall, (or altar cloth). This was delivered by an Officer of the Wardrobe to the Lord Great Chamberlain. Also the Queen added an ingot of one pound weight of gold—which was brought by the Treasurer of the Household.

When the Royal couple, kneeling together, had partaken of the Sacrament, the choir concluded the service with the singing of the Te Deum.

The Queen then made her way out of the Abbey Church of St. Peter. She was accompanied as before, by the Archbishops, Bishops, Royal Dukes, Great officers and their Heralds. She was preceded by Officers bearing the four swords. She descended from the throne, crowned and carrying the sceptre that includes part of the great Cullinan diamond. She passed out of the south door into St. Edward's Chapel. The remainder of the Regalia was delivered up by the Dean of Westminster to the Officers who bore it in procession.

There, in front of the altar the Queen disrobed of the ecclesiastical style of vestments she had worn for the service and there placed on her a robe of purple velvet, and on her head the Imperial State Crown—lighter than the heavy Crown of St. Edward—and in her left hand, the Orb.

The Queen then went in procession to the west door of the Abbey Church.

Origin Traced Of Royal Arms

By SPIKE HUGHES

Dragon in arms—that in the romantic and picturesque language of heraldry, is the description of the Royal Arms.

Those passant guardant, or walking - past - and-looking-at-you lions, for instance, are themselves a heraldic hang-over from the time when they were quartered with the fleur-de-lis of France.

When we lost France and her lilies, the lions remained; with the result that England is represented twice in the Arms to Scotland's and Ireland's once.

(Scottish usage shows the Lion of Scotland in the first and fourth quarters, with the three English lions tucked away in the top right hand corner.)

With my own country represented by a harp or, stringed argent, regardless of whether the usage is Scottish or English or on the front of my passport, I have no complaint. But wthy are the Welsh not included in the Royal Arms?

Unlike the Irish, who are all (we assure ourselves) descended from numberless kings, the Welsh, in common with the English and the Scots, have provided the British Isles with a whole dynasty of monarchs in their time. And the last one, by a happy coincidence, was called Elizabeth.

Bring out that Tudor Dragon again and put it in the fourth quarter of the Royal Arms in place of those repetitive and anachronistic lions.

The Welsh have been willing partners in the United Kingdom much longer than the Scots and the Irish; the first Prince of Wales, title of the Heir Apparent to the Throne, was created 669 years ago; they have a live, virile language.

But that Tudor Dragon is scarcely ever seen outside the Principality, except on national flags at Twickenham, and on the coat of arms of the Pullman Car Company.

Would it be a break with tradition to include the Welsh Dragon in the Royal Arms? No. They are the personal arms of the monarch; they have been changed before, for political family, and geographical reasons. They can be changed again.

The Queen!

Gay old London is the most gorgeous city in the world. Pageantry and splendour have come out of the Past with flourish of trumpets and surge of triumphal music. British reserve has vanished in a fairytale outburst of glitter and colour. Jewelled maharajahs drive in the streets. Princes of Europe and the Orient are there. Dusky African potentates. Persons of topmost importance from far and near. The promise Prescott folds up: the fabulous becomes reality. In a golden coach drawn by eight grey horses, our lovely young Queen Elizabeth II, cloaked in ermine and crimson velvet, rides to Westminster Abbey to be crowned in ancient pomp and sacred ceremony. The multitudes shout their deafening cheers. And EATON'S across Canada joins in the thrill of it... the romance of it... the great historic heritage of it... joins in the echoing cry:

LONG LIVE THE QUEEN

P.M. Pledges Canada's Allegiance

Reaffirms Loyalty Of Citizens To Elizabeth II

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent tonight pledged Canada's allegiance to Elizabeth II as "Queen of Canada." Text of the prime minister's speech on a Commonwealth broadcast:

To me, as a representative of Canada at the Coronation, there has fallen the signal honor of broadcasting on behalf of my fellow-Canadians this message of loyalty and greeting to Her Majesty on the great day of her Coronation.

The message which I bring from my fellow-citizens is a warm and personal one. Her Majesty inspired feelings of devotion and affection in the whole Canadian population during her visit to our country with the Duke of Edinburgh less than two years ago.

GIVEN SPONTANEOUSLY

That expression of affection was spontaneously given to Princess Elizabeth by cheering myriads of both young and older Canadians living along the four thousand mile royal route which stretched from Newfoundland, Canada's newest province and Brjtain's oldest colony, across the whole continent to our cities, mountains and forests of the Pacific Coast.

Today we gladly add to the enthusiastic welcome Canada extended then to her charming princess our firm pledge of allegiance to the crowned Head of the Commonwealth, Her Majesty the Queen of Canada.

Emblems Adorn Queen's Dress

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen wore a glittering white gown, embroidered with the national emblems of the United Kingdom, Canada and other Commonwealth countries, when she was crowned today.

The biggest fashion secret of the Coronation was revealed Monday. The white satin dress is entirely encrusted with seed pearls and golden crystal beads. The embroidering is in silver, green, gold and rose.

The magnificent gown has short sleeves and a fitted bodice which descends to a point in front. The neckline is cut square over the shoulders curving into a centre heart-shape. The skirt is full and flaring, with a slight train.

The bodice, sleeves and bottom hem of the skirt have an embroidered "line" band consisting of a row of thin, tiny gold crystal beads, a row of graduated pearls, another line of gold beads, followed by a row of graduated diamante set in little white "cups," then more gold beads.

Embroidered in the dominating colors of silver, gold and white are:

The maple leaf of Canada in green silk bordered with real gold thread and veined with crystal; the wattle flower of Australia; the New Zealand fern; the protea flower of South Africa; the lotus flower of India; the wheat, cotton and jute of Pakistan, and the lotus flower of Ceylon.

Subjects Cheer Queen Tumultuously As Sovereign Passes After Crowning

LONDON (CP)—The Queen returned to Buckingham Palace late today from her triumphal procession through London streets packed with drenched but cheering millions. The royal coach reached the palace at 4:56 p.m. (11:56 a.m. EDT) after a ride a little more than five miles long. It was just seven hours and 30 minutes after the Queen, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, had started out for Westminster Abbey. As the state coach bearing the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh hove into sight of the palace, their children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, set up a furious tapping on their palace window. Members of the crowd clambered up the walls of the palace itself for a final clear view of the royal pair before they went inside.

The Queen smiled radiantly and the Duke grinned as the historic day neared its close.

The only two fixed events remaining on their program were a Royal Air Force show, delayed and rearranged because of the bad weather, and the Queen's broadcast at 9 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT).

The Queen wore the imperial state crown and carried the orb and sceptre as she stepped through the doors of the abbey after the Coronation ceremony.

Soaking showers that swept out of a grey sky failed to dampen the fervor of the millions who massed along the 5¼-mile processional route.

First to emerge from the abbey were the distinguished guests. Eight brilliant umbrellas held by Boy Scouts sheltered the notables as they moved toward their cars amid pealing of bells.

Weary Sovereign Watches Fly-Past From Balcony

LONDON (CP)—The Queen, still wearing her crown, stepped out on the palace balcony at 5:43 p.m. (12:43 p.m. EDT) with the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Charles, Princess Anne and the six maids of honor, just in time to see the Coronation fly-past. Crowds ran toward the palace for a closer view of the Queen.

The 168 aircraft began roaring overhead at 300 miles an hour at 1,200 feet altitude minutes after the Queen appeared. Included in the fly-past were 144 RAF Meteor jets and 24 RCAF Sabre jets.

Queen Mother Elizabeth joined the party and pointed out the planes to the children, who waved with great enthusiasm.

QUEEN SEEMS EXHAUSTED

The Queen was smiling but seemed exhausted. She could hardly lift her right arm to wave at the crowds.

Her left arm shot out to turn Prince Charles around, however, when he suddenly turned his back to the crowd to talk to somebody inside the palace.

When the first jets roared by the Queen put her arm around her son's shoulder and pointed up at the planes.

Princess Anne waved almost absently as if doing what she had been drilled to do.

DUKE LOOKED POISED

The Duke looked poised and beaming.

As soon as the planes passed—a matter of about five minutes—the Queen went back into the palace with the entire party. The Duke gave an engaging grin and a final wave to the crowd as he disappeared.

First Bomber Reaches Canada

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—The first Canberra jet bomber flying Coronation pictures to Canada landed at Goose Bay, Labrador, at 1:45 p. m., the RCAF announced here.

Transfer of the pictures to RCAF CF100 jet fighters took place immediately and the fighters took off for Montreal minutes later.

The Canberra had left London at 8:30 a. m. EDT. A second Canberra, which left at 10:10 a. m. EDT, turned back an hour and nine minutes after setting out. No reason was given for the return to London.

Police Catch 2 Jailbreakers

TORONTO (CP)—Two jailbreakers described by police as desperate and dangerous were captured Monday without a struggle.

Less than 42 hours after Jack Chance and Vincent Dimario slugged their way out of the Halton county jail at Milton, police acting on a tip from an undisclosed source moved in on a suburban North York township cottage.

Eight officers led by detective Bert Trotter of the North York police, who figured prominently in the capture of the Boyd bank robbery gang last September, advanced with drawn guns.

When Det. Trotter knocked at the front door of the cottage, the 24-year-old fugitives dashed out the back door—and into the arms of the police. The only other persons in the cottage were Chance's wife and two-year-old daughter.

Chance and Dimario, both of Toronto and Ottawa, will appear in court at Milton 20 miles west of here Wednesday to face charges of jailbreaking and of armed robbery in the theft last month of furs valued at $5,000.

72 Canadian Names Drawn In Sweepstakes

MONTREAL (CP)—Three residents of the Toronto area, two of whom use noms de plume, drew Irish sweepstake tickets on Pinza, the favorite of this Saturday's running of the Epsom Derby.

Pinza, to be ridden by Sir Gordon Richards, knighted by the Queen in her Coronation honors list, is quoted at 5-1. Next in line is the Queen's horse, Aureole, quoted at 11-2.

Donald Douglas, Brampton, is the identified holder of a ticket on the favorite. Noms de plume with tickets on Pinza are "Tamary Mum," Toronto, and "Regal," Mimico.

A total of 72 Canadian names were drawn. Two who hold tickets on Bandoola do not have a starter as the horse was scratched shortly after the draw.

Ontario ticket holders outside the Toronto area:

Bermuda Conference Postponed Few Days

PARIS (CP)—The Big Three conference in Bermuda will be postponed from mid-June to later in the month, at Britain's suggestion, the French foreign office said today.

Prime Minister Churchill suggested to French Ambassador Rene Massigli Monday that the conference be put off for a few days. No reason was given.

Elizabeth Crowned In Abbey Amid Ageless Splendor, Gun Salutes Proclaim News

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Elizabeth II was crowned Queen amid ageless splendor in Westminster Abbey today, then rode triumphantly through London streets to the tumultuous cheers of millions. Before the wondering eyes of her son, Prince Charles, 7,500 persons in the abbey and a television audience of millions, Elizabeth formally acceded to the throne, the first woman to rule the Commonwealth since Victoria. The thunder of guns and the pealing of bells proclaimed to millions massed in London's streets the crowning—ceremonial climax to perhaps the biggest Coronation build-up in history.

Crowds massed 25 to 35 deep acclaimed the Queen going from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey, and coming home again.

Cries of "God Save The Queen!" blended into a mighty roar from thousands of throats as the Queen's purple and golden coach left the abbey for the main Coronation procession, five miles and more through the centre of London.

Looks Drawn At Close Of Ritual

The 27-year-old Queen, who had looked drawn near the close of the long abbey ritual—and once near tears—flashed her smile. The Duke of Edinburgh was beside her.

There was a deluge of rain as the main procession got under way.

Wind-blown rain and brilliant sunshine competed with each other for control of the day. But the millions who had gathered to cheer the Queen stood firm in sites some had staked out 48 hours ahead of time.

The sun burst through lowering skies when Elizabeth was presented to the congregation inside the abbey as "your undoubted Queen". A cloudburst drenched the jam-packed capital at the moment of crowning. It rained steadily for 90 minutes, stopping only a few minutes before the consecration service ended. More than 3,000 persons were counted casualties in the crush of crowds, with 25 hurt severely enough to go to hospitals.

Charles Arrives For Crowning

Prince Charles, who is four, was brought to the abbey just before the Archbishop of Canterbury placed the jewel-encrusted crown of St. Edward upon the head of Britain's seventh Queen, symbolically consecrating her to God and to the service of more than 500,000,000 people on a quarter of the earth.

Charles acted like any bright four-year-old. Sucking his thumb, he gazed with awe upon the spectacle centring about his mother. His softly weeping grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, lifted him so his chubby hands could grasp the ledge of the Royal gallery.

The young Queen went through the stately ceremony with great poise and only the faintest outward trace of nervousness. But when it was over, she looked emotionally fatigued—almost as if she might burst into tears after the tiring ordeal. She had only a brief rest before the afternoon's procession.

Queen Mother Elizabeth must have recalled today the crowning of her husband, for she wept softly through part of the ceremony.

Princess Margaret Seems Pensive

Nearby, the ordinarily vivacious Princess Margaret, 22-year-old sister of the Queen, was pensive as she watched the crown being placed on the head of the girl she has always fondly called Lilibet.

In Paris, the Duke of Windsor watched the Coronation on television with his wife, the woman for whom he gave up the throne in 1936.

The ritual was an historic outpouring of the richness of tradition which has made England great in the past and sustained her in modern trials. Elizabeth was a picture of queenliness. Just once, she shook her head, as if to test the fit of the crown. It rested snugly, secure, as if made for her.

Only momentarily, fleetingly, a shy smile flitted across her serious face. But the solemnity of the occasion was awe-inspiring. Watching her every move were the representatives of 74 nations, the members of 30 other royal families.

Prime Minister St. Laurent headed a Canadian delegation of cabinet ministers, provincial premiers and others.

The fleeting moment the world had awaited came at 12:33 p.m. BST (7:33 a.m. EDT) in breathless silence as the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, lifted his arms high and gently placed the jewel-studded crown of St. Edward on the Queen's head.

Queen Has Won Great Devotion Massey Declares

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen personally has won the devotion of Canadians, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general, said Tuesday in a Coronation address on Parliament Hill.

Text of his speech, delivered partly in English and partly in French:

We are assembled here this afternoon to do honor to our sovereign and to join in an act of public rejoicing that she, this day, should have been crowned our Queen.

In the capital city of the nation, it is fitting that there should be gathered together for this common purpose, so great a concourse of persons. A single thought has brought us here, and here it makes us one.

GREAT ROLE OF CROWN

The Coronation brings home to us the great role of the Crown in our country's life. This royal sign tells us of the glories of the past; it lends us ardor for the tasks which lie ahead.

(How precious to us is this heritage of which our queen today is the symbol! How fortunate it is for this great nation to have, in the Crown, an institution towards which each one of us can turn with respect and veneration. It is a blessing which all share.

(But the Crown is more than a symbol. We have a profound affection for the person who wears the royal insignia. And the Queen is the head of a royal house whose devotion to duty and whose family life have won for many years our most sincere admiration.)

QUEEN HAS WON

Athlones Have Rugged Ride

LONDON (CP)—The Earl of Athlone, one-time governor-general of Canada, and the Princess Alice had a bit of a rugged ride in the Coronation procession today.

First their state carriage bogged down in the rain-drenched road at Hyde Park corner. The earl, Canadian governor-general from 1940 to 1945, stuck his head from the window and shouted for aid.

Two husky bobbies put their shoulders to the wheel and soon had the carriage on its way.

But at the turn off Oxford street into stylish Regent street, the team of chestnut horses balked like mules and refused to move.

Police and guardsmen rushed forward and gave the carriage a push, and with the coachmen tugging at their reins, the horses reluctantly moved on.

Queen Looked Close To Tears

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP)—The Queen looked near tears as she left the abbey this afternoon after the tiring ordeal of the crowning.

Her face was white and drawn as she retired to the abbey annex before making the long triumphant ride through the rain-drenched capital to Buckingham Palace.

There was not a glimmer of a smile across her face. The weight of the imperial state crown she was wearing seemed to bear heavily on her slight figure.

The Queen had seemed strained at the outset of the Coronation ceremony. She seemed to tremble slightly as she glided through the gray gold and white doors of the abbey for the crowning.

She had a fleeting smile for the massed ladies of her household as they swept into a deep curtsy, but she gulped nervously at the abbey doors.

First Successful Attempt

British Expedition Reaches Top Of Mount Everest

LONDON (AP) —A Coronation-eve announcement by Buckingham Palace disclosed that a British expedition has planted the Union Jack on 29,002-foot Mount Everest in man's first successful attempt to scale the world's highest mountain

News that two climbers in a party headed by Col. John Hunt had successfully battled their way to the summit of the icy peak in the Himalayas May 29 was relayed to the Queen Monday night, a palace spokesman said. He described the dramatic news as a Coronation "gift."

A message from Hunt relayed to Buckingham Palace said: "All is well."

The final assault on the Central peak on the Nepal-Tibet border, reported to be the third attempt by Hunt's 13-man expedition within the last few weeks, was made by a New Zealand beekeeper, Edward P. Hillary, 34, and a veteran guide of Nepal's Sherpa tribe, 39-year-old Tensing Bhutia.

London newspapers hailed the achievement as the beginning of a new Elizabethan era of British daring. They compared the deed with the triumphs of Captain Cook, Sir Francis Drake and Antarctic explorer Robert Scott.

That a New Zealander and a tribesman from Britain's longtime ally Nepal won the final victory was looked upon here as another symbol, like the Coronation, of Commonwealth unity. It is reported they carried Nepal's flag to the top, along with the Union Jack.

Prime Minister Churchill today wired congratulations to Hunt. The message said: "My congratulations on this memorable British achievement in which the whole world has been interested for so many years."

The victory over Everest was expecially sweet for the Nepalese Tensing Bhutia, who Himalayan experts say has climbed more peaks in the range than anyone else. Last year, with famed Alpinest Raymond Lambert, he climbed to within 800 feet of Everest's top but they were driven back by wind blasts hurling stones and chunks of ice and by lack of oxygen.

Elizabeth's Speech To Her Peoples

Asks Subjects To Guard Freedom And Tolerance

LONDON (AP)—Newly-crowned Queen Elizabeth II tonight called on her 600,000,000 subjects everywhere to guard freedom and the practice of tolerance so "we can go forward together in peace."

In a moving coronation message prepared for broadcast to the nations and territories throughout her globe-girdling Commonwealth and Empire, the Queen pledged "with all my heart" to devote her life to the service of her peoples.

"In this resolve, I have my husband to support me," she said.

Elizabeth gave her people Britain's high creed. She said:

"Parliamentary institutions with their free speech and the respect for the rights of minorities and the inspiration of a broad tolerance in thought and its expression—all this we conceive to be a precious part of our way of life and outlook."

Elizabeth said this message has been sustained and invigorated over centuries by the British family of nations. She said these principles were "as sacred to the crown and monarchy as to its many parliaments and peoples."

"I ask you now to cherish them—and practice them, too," she said. "Then we can go forward together in peace, seeking justice and freedom for all men."

She spoke of the unity in spirit and aim of Britain's many lands and races. She said, "Therefore, I am sure that this, my coronation, is not the symbol of a power and a splendor that are gone but a declaration of our hopes for the future and for the years that I may, by God's grace, be given to reign and serve you as queen."

She bade farewell with these words:

"I thank you from a full heart. God bless you all."

Climbers Receive Royal Congratulations

LONDON (CP)—The Queen led a nation bursting with pride in cheering the conquerors of Everest.

On this, her day of majesty, she took time to send a cable of congratulations to the expedition.

"Please convey to Col. Hunt and all members of the British expedition my warmest congratulations on their great achievement in reaching the summit of Mount Everest. (signed) Elizabeth R" read the telegram to the British minister in Katmandu, Nepal.

Abbey Dazzling Spectacle As Queen Takes Oaths At Her Coronation

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

WESTMINSTER ABBEY —(AP)—Queen Elizabeth II, the long train of her scarlet robe, carried by six maids of honor in white, was the centre of a dazzling spectacle as she entered Westminster Abbey for her Coronation this morning. Trumpets crashed a fanfare. A diadem of many jewels encircled the Queen's brown hair, and they glittered with lights of many colors as she began a slow procession toward the Throne she is to occupy. All of the Abbey's 7,500 spectators, in the nave, transepts and tiers of seats rising to the vaulted ceilings, stood as the Queen made her entrance.

Slowly she advanced over the golden carpet on the Abbey floor, the great choir singing the 122nd Psalm.

The first object to meet the Queen's eye was the empty Throne, standing on a dias. It was on a golden carpet and its wooden arms were painted gold. The Queen passed it and went to sit for a large portion of the ceremony in the Chair of Estate, a scarlet chair on the south side of the "theatre." The maids of honor draped the scarlet train about her, and then ranged themselves behind the Queen.

Then the Queen kneeled at her Faldstool, a small chair placed in front of her, and said a private prayer.

Meanwhile high officers of the state and priests were placing many objects of regalia, including the glittering Crown of St. Edward, on the high altar.

Archbishop Presents Undoubted Queen

Her own prayers finished, the Queen was approached by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, starting the quaint "recognition" portion of the service. He needed, in theory, to satisfy himself that the young woman in the scarlet chair was indeed Queen Elizabeth.

Then the Queen arose and took a position near the Chair of St. Edward. The Archbishop went to the eastern end of the theatre and facing the high altar said in a loud voice:

"Sirs, I here present unto you Queen Elizabeth, your undoubted Queen: wherefore all of you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?"

It was, theoretically, the moment for anyone to challenge the Queen's right to the Crown.

But there was no dissent, instead a great shout of "God Save Queen Elizabeth."

Trumpets Blow Great Fanfare

Trumpets blew a mighty fanfare, and it was a deeply moving and emotion-packed moment.

Slowly the Archbishop went to the other three sides of the theatre and three times more he presented the undoubted Queen, she turning to face the spectators whom he addressed. Three times more there were shouts of "God Save Queen Elizabeth," while the trumpets blew.

Queen Elizabeth had been acclaimed. Fully accepted, she moved back to her Chair of Estate.

Expresses Willingness To Take Oath

The Archbishop then approached the Queen, bowed and said:

"Madam, is Your Majesty willing to take the oath?"

"I am willing," answered Queen Elizabeth, speaking for the first time since she entered the Abbey.

The Archbishop asked a series of questions, to establish that the Queen would use her powers legally, justly and mercifully, and that she would not oppress distant peoples under her rule.

To these questions Elizabeth replied variously, "I will," or "I solemnly promise to do so," or "All this I promise to do."

The Archbishop being satisfied with the replies, the Queen arose, walked to the high altar and kneeled at its steps. The Bible which had been carried in the procession was given to her. She laid her right hand on it. Then in the sight of all the people she signed the oath, and said solemnly:

Queen Makes Sacred Promises

"The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me God."

The Queen now had been acclaimed as the undoubted Sovereign, and by her oath had fitted herself to reign under the law. She was qualified at last to sit in the Chair of St. Edward, but she returned once more to the Chair of Estate.

Then the Archbishop began the communion service, an essential part of the Coronation ceremony. Queen Elizabeth and the spectators kneeled while the archbishop prayed that God:

"Grant unto this Thy servant Elizabeth, our Queen, the spirit of wisdom and government, and that being devoted unto Thee with her whole heart, she may so wisely govern, that in her time Thy church may be in safety, and Christian devotion may continue in peace, that so perserving in good works unto the end, she by Thy mercy come to Thine everlasting kingdom through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God for ever and ever."

But the communion service was interrupted, to be resumed later.

Heart of Coronation Service

The Church proceeded to what it regards the heart of the Coronation service—the anointing, not the crowning.

The choir sang:

"Anoint and cheer our soiled face

"With the abundance of Thy grace."

There was a prayer, and then as the choir resumed singing, the Queen was approached by her mistress of robes, the Duchess of Devonshire, and the lord great chamberlain, Lord Cholmondeley.

The lord great chamberlain untied the cords holding the Queen's scarlet robe, and the garment was removed.

Beneath, the Queen was wearing her Coronation dress of white satin. It had a moulded bodice, cut square across the shoulders but curving to a slightly heart-shaped centre over the bosom. Its design blended the symbols of Commonwealth nations, around the Tudor rose.

She was to put on various symbolic raiment, from time to time, over her basic gown. Now she took off her diadem and the collar of the Order of the Garter, then put on an anointing robe, a simple white garment, with the lord great chamberlain holding one sleeve and the mistress of robes the other.

Escorted to Coronation Chair

The great sword of state carried before her, she was escorted to King Edward's coronation chair and for the first time, she sat in it.

From a corner of the theatre four lords of the Order of the Garter came with an eight-foot canopy of cream and gold cloth, which they held aloft by four poles with silver tips.

The canopy was held over the Queen and the chair so that, from most positions in the abbey, she was completely obscured.

From the high altar the dean of Westminster, Dr. Alan Don, brought the curious container known as the ampulla, a metal receptacle in the form of a young eagle.

From its mouth he poured holy oil into the anointing spoon, the oldest piece of regalia.

The archbishop dipped his fingers into the oil.

Touching both of the Queen's hands he said:

"Be thy hands anointed with holy oil."

Touching her breast he said:

"Be thy breast anointed with holy oil."

Then touching the crown of her head he said:

"Be thy head anointed with holy oil, as kings, priests and prophets were anointed."

The knights of the Garter then took away the canopy.

Presentation of Objects of Regalia

Then followed the presentation of various objects of the sovereign's regalia. They included the spurs, which she touched, and the sword of state, which she held for a moment.

The archbishop told her to use the sword to "do justice, stop the growth of iniquity . . . punish and reform what is remiss."

Back at King Edward's chair the Queen was given the armills, "bracelets of sincerity and wisdom;" the orb, golden ball surmounted by a cross; the ring, of sapphires and a ruby cross which the archbishop placed on the fourth finger of her right hand; the sceptre with the cross and another sceptre which is known as the rod with dove, a glove and an imperial robe.

As she received the imperial robe, the archbishop prayed that "the Lord clothe you with the robe of righteousness, and with the garments of wisdom."

The presentation of the robe was a preliminary to the climactic moment, the actual crowning.

Then the archbishop walked toward the altar as the spectators arose.

The archbishop lifted the gleaming crown of St. Edward, and laid it down again. Then he said:

"O God the crown of the faithful: Bless we beseech Thee this crown, and so sanctify Thy servant Elizabeth upon whose head this day Thou dost place it for a sign of royal majesty, that she may be filled by Thy abundant grace with all princely virtues: through the King Eternal Jesus Christ Our Lord."

Crown Placed On Queen's Head

The dean of Westminster then placed the crown on a cushion which he carried and walked with the archbishop to the Queen.

The archbishop took the crown, raised it high over the Queen, then placed it reverently on her head. He adjusted it tenderly, then stepped back.

Then came a tremendous explosion of emotions.

The Queen sat motionless, holding her sceptres upright. The investment with the insignia of her high estate was complete. Anointed and crowned, she had been moved into her full destiny.

The trumpets blasted a thunderous fanfare. The abbey guests joined in a mighty shout:

"God save the Queen."

Nobles Don Their Coronets

Peers and peeresses, rows of crimson and gold figures in their many-tiered seats, with a simultaneous motion donned their coronets and the great abbey was gay with lights from thousands of jewels.

A signal flashed from the abbey and guns at the Tower of London, Hyde Park and at Windsor Castle fired royal salutes.

As the tumult subsided the archbishop said softly:

"God crown you with a crown of righteousness, that having a right faith and manifold fruit of good works, you may obtain the crown of an everlasting kingdom by the gift of Him whose kingdom endureth forever."

The peers and the great of the land joined in a solemn "amen," and the choir sang:

"Be strong and of good courage: keep the commandments of the Lord, Thy God, and walk in His ways."

Spectators Remain Standing

The spectators remained standing, thousands of eyes on the Queen who sat in majesty.

Elizabeth was escorted to the throne by archbishops, bishops and peers.

It was a slow, solemn procession, and at the end of it the Queen was enthroned.

Once she was seated, the archbishop said to her:

"Stand firm, and hold fast from henceforth the seat and state of royal and imperial dignity."

Then started the homage and for the first time the Duke of Edinburgh, who had come into the abbey ahead of her, began to figure in the ceremony. All the while he had been sitting in a special chair, a few yards from the throne.

Now came the moment of the homage and the faithful archbishop as a lord spiritual, was the first to pledge allegiance to his young Queen.

Archbishop Pays First Homage

A page brought a purple cushion, and on it, in front of the throne, the archbishop kneeled.

The Queen took his hands in hers, and he leaned toward her to tell her:

"I, Geoffrey, Archbishop of Canterbury, will be faithful and true, and faith and truth will bear unto you, our sovereign lady, Queen of this realm and defender of the faith, and unto your heirs and successors according to law. So help me God."

Then he touched the crown, and kissed the Queen's right hand.

Next came the Duke of Edinburgh. He kneeled, the Queen took his hands into hers and he said:

"I, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

Then he touched the crown, and bent down to kiss the Queen on the cheek.

Many Pay Homage To Sovereign

The Dukes of Gloucester and Kent then did their homage in like manner. Later came the lords temporal, the dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts and barons. Representatives of the five degrees of the peerage, each removed his coronet to do homage to his Queen, and as he did so all peers of his rank, throughout the abbey, removed their coronets.

As the homage ended drums were sounded, trumpets blew more fanfares and the great assembly shouted:

"God save Queen Elizabeth.

"Long live Queen Elizabeth.

"May the Queen live forever."

The archbishop left the Queen and went to the altar to complete the communion service.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh knelt on faldstools and partook of communion.

Nearing End Of Ceremony

Communion finished, the Queen and Duke arose. The Queen received again her crown, sceptre with cross and the orb. The Duke put on his coronet and went to his place and the Queen returned to her throne.

It was finished except for the blessings. These having been spoken, the choir sang the Te Deum Laudamus.

As the singing progressed the Queen, crowned and carrying both sceptres and preceded by officers carrying the four swords of state, walked through the theatre and disappeared into St. Edward's Chapel.

The St. Edward's crown and other pieces of the regalia were laid upon the altar in St. Edward's Chapel.

Given Robe of Royal Purple

The mistress of the robes helped her remove the golden robe, and it was replaced by the robe of royal purple, with which she was to make the drive.

Meanwhile the theatre in the main body of the abbey was alive as the procession to leave the abbey was being formed.

Finally the Queen emerged, a queen in purple this time, and wearing the beautiful imperial crown, instead of the crown of St. Edwards. The imperial crown is much lighter, and after Coronation is worn by the sovereign on state occasions. With great dignity the procession moved toward the west doors of the abbey, various groups falling into their allotted places.

Then there was a mighty roll from the organ, and 7,000 voices sang "God Save the Queen." It was the only time the national anthem was heard.

The Queen moved into the annex at the west end of the building, there to rest from the fatigues of a 2½ hour ceremony before starting her drive through the city.

Chinese Hurl Big Attacks Against 11 Points

SEOUL (AP)—More than 4,000 North Korean and Chinese Reds slammed against 11 Allied main line positions and a handful of outposts today as big-scale Communist attacks exploded in eastern and central Korea.

American and South Korean infantrymen smashed 10 of the main line attacks, nine on the bloody eastern front and one on the central front.

Fight for trench-line positions just in front of Luke the Gook's Castle on the eastern front, still raged.

There South Korean troops of the 12th division were counter attacking for a second time against Reds who hammered their way to Allied lines.

On the western front Commonwealth troops marked Coronation Day with an artillery bombardment of red, white and blue smokeshells. At the same time British troops holding the crest of Little Gibraltar jumped out of their trenches, gave three rousing cheers for the Queen and jumped back again before the amazed Chinese had time to fire.

LITTLE GIFT

Earlier the Chinese woke up to find a huge Coronation emblem stuck right in front of their trenches, a Commonwealth division officer said. The sign could be seen for miles. A British patrol carried the sign over during the night.

An 8th army briefing officer said the bitter fighting on the eastern front was the heaviest in that section in more than a year.

Some 2,500 North Koreans overran two small outposts and stormed four main-line positions on or near Anchor Hill. All four attacks were beaten back by troops of the 15th RoK division, the army said.

First 20 Conquer Everest

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—E. P. Hillary, New Zealand beekeeper, who became the first man known to conquer Mount Everest, started his climbing during the Second World War, when he was stationed with the Royal New Zealand Air Force near the New Zealand Kaikoura mountains.

With a 24-hour pass, he often would bicycle miles to 8,260-foot Mount Egmont, climb to the top and return in time to report for duty.

Discharged from the air force after an accident in 1949, he then, in his own words, "took up climbing seriously."

He joined the British Everest reconnaissance party which investigated the southern approaches to the mountain.

Last year, Hillary was asked how he would celebrate at the top of Everest if he ever got there.

He said there would be no celebrating—"I'd be too exhausted."

6 Youths Arrested In Gang War fare

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont. (CP)—Six youths were arrested Monday after what police termed a gang war. They will be charged with creating a disturbance by fighting.

Police at this border point near Buffalo said:

"There will be none of this nonsense here this summer. We are not going to tolerate any gang wars in Crystal Beach."

Arrested were: Carmelo Rossitto, 22, Russell Carlo, 21, Charles Mancuo, 25, Vincent Fina, 24, all of Buffalo, and Mayland Teal and Eugene Harvey, both 19, of Crystal Beach.

Gay and Chipper Crowds Take Up Places Along Curbs

Wait 36 Hours For Procession

By I. NORMAN SMITH (Special to The Examiner)

LONDON—Some informal notes written on Coronation eve. I have just ordered tomorrow's breakfast to my hotel room for five o'clock, plus a ham sandwich which is going to be tucked into the pocket of my tailcoat, despite the Abbey's regulations about no parcels. The waiter said I would be a prune not to, and I think he is right "but no liquids Sir. You might be in your seat twelve hours you know." What a country. Coronation eve Knighthoods to a union weaver, a jockey, an actor and an organist. Everybody's delighted. Last night, Sunday at 11.00 o'clock traffic barely moved in Oxford St., six lanes thick, and it would be the same all along the route. This morning I talked to three people who had taken up curbside positions at 1.00 a.m. and they were gay and chipper. I didn't tell them that at the 1937 Coronation I saw scores of people start to faint off like flies just before the parade came through Admiralty Arch. The excitement on top of 36 or 40 hours vigil was too much.

My abbey seat I get to by entering the Poet's Corner door. These English think of everything. I staged a practice run this morning and found the door all right, and also found peace and quiet in the Dean's yard and in the Little Dean's Yard and also in the Cloisters about Westminster School. Away from the whirlwind of Parliament Square and all so that I was almost able to think. Birds sang. In nearby St. Margaret's Chapel I found a service going on and if I may be excused for saying so, I remained a while to pray for good weather for all those spunky Londoners whose roof will be the sky this next 40 hours, and also for the Queen. Surely she must be the object of all eyes but the envy of none.

PRAYING FOR BRITISH PEOPLE

But in an emotional state it is hard to end a litany and I found myself praying for all the British people and all they mean to the world.

Walking up Whitehall was a young father and mother laden with baskets and blankets and dad carrying his seven year old boy piggyback on his shoulders, the lad steering dad by his ears. This was 11.45 Monday morning. It will be midnight or later Tuesday evening when that lot gets home from their curb edge.

No. 10 Downing Street stood austerely without flags or special raiment. The usual knot of people were standing by quietly and the bobbies letting them go right up the humble door to say they touched Sir Winston's house.

London bobbies! Is there greater patience and humor in the world? They have been at it for days now and the end is a long way off; couldn't we make Canadian Knights of them all, and of the heads of London transport to boot? The latter system is magnificent in face of terrible odds, but just the same everyone hopes that about 7.00 a.m. in Trafalgar Square or Piccadilly Circus they will have to give up again, as they did on VE Day and announce over the walkytalky speakers, "The Circus is yours." But they'll smile doing it.

POSH TOURIST SHIP

The biggest ship ever to come up Thames under Tower Bridge, a Spanish fellow named Guadaloupe of 10,226 tons is laden with posh tourists who will dance to guitars all night tonight and then go ashore at 5.00 a.m. to their route seats. Last night from the windows of Buckingham Palace the Princess Annie appeared in a white night gown, along with the Duke of Cornwall. Wasn't it just a year or so ago when their mother and aunt appeared in the same uniforms?

All geraniums are red. I suppose, but none so red as those in the big window boxes at the Horse Guards in Whitehall. The Home Office, massive and frowning except for its highly polished brass name plate, rather embarassedly is decked out with lovely boxes of blue and white hydrangea. Flowers abound all over Central London, where never grew flower before methinks. "Let's be Elizabethan," seems to be the mood.

They were still sawing boards for outside platforms and clamping steel tubing together in countless areas this morning and on the steps the Queen will use to enter the Abbey annex. Carpet makers were cutting the rich blue material and women in hats and coats were squatting on the floor busy with needle and thread making it all "as lovely as you please," as the woman behind me observed. Seemed a case of a stitch just in time, however.

Meanwhile life goes on. The press and radio are obliged to make clear whether the weather forecast they are giving so regularly, is for the mountain climbers at Mount Everest— they are much in the news— or for the coronation curb-sitters— which isn't good at all —or for the Australian cricketers who are being so rude to the English in various parts of this excited little island.

But at least, the British amateur golf title was won by an Irishman and there's a move on foot to bring them back into the fold just on that account. "In the finals of 1898 the briars was halved in nine, and it looked as though history might repeat itself when Carr drove out of bounds and Ward towards a bush." writes the Times golf correspondent. But they halved it this year in sixes.

A less philosophical approach to life was shown by the Sunday Times theatre critic who found the Damon Runyan play "'Guys and Dolls" premiere last week simply too, too American. A nasty and common prose and really not the kind of thing one likes to see on a stage. All that talk about sinning. The aim of art, he went on. "is to produce desirable states of mind." Poor man. Should I go back to St. Margaret's and pray for him too?

Prime Minister St. Laurent is said to be enjoying it all. He's been at the Palace several times, for lunches and audiences, at several garden parties and has been twice to the abbey for rehearsals of where he is to be in the procession and where he is to sit. One thing about being a prime minister is that you don't have to leave your hotel until 9.15 in the morning and then you ride to the abbey with your wife in a gilded horse-drawn carriage, with four sparking RCMP horsemen around and about.

"They get along well," said someone to me about the Queen and the P. M. Which reminds me of hte lovely anecdtoe I read in a book somewhere of the day Ramsay MacDonald bent low over Princess Elizabeth's small hand and she said in her clear ringing voice, "I saw you in Punch this morning, Mr. MacDonald leading a flock of geese." Sensitive Liberals need write me no letters. I've gone and left no forwarding address).

AT CANADA HOUSE

You should see Canada House. Canadians are climbing the walls in there asking for mail and seats and hotel rooms and heavens knows what else.

Seems some of them have only just learned there's to be a coronation and they are righteously indignant and going to write their member of parliament that nothing can be done. The Canada House crowd is working 18 hours a day and must have taken lessons in manners and good humors from the London policemen. I heard one gentleman fixed up with a seat by great luck at about 10.00 this morning. Of all days and he was annoyed when they told him they could not offer a parking area as well. Believe me, there are two sides to those stories you hear about Canada House. Its decoration and seat stands are among the most tasteful and distinctive in the town.

Now to plunge once again into that side of people. It would be more comfortable to snug it out in this hotel room, reading the Times' letters to the editor. There was one Saturday, learnedly discussing the word escargot which, he said, was the generic term for edible snails and not, as someone else had suggested, the name of a snail. But though 5 a.m. breakfast tomorrow sounds early there is a fierce fascination in London's streets this evening. The people are out in them in carnival. Those same streets Winston knew they would fight in if need be. They were out in them in carnival all Saturday and Sunday too, and they'll be screaming at the celebration fireworks in them tomorrow night. That's the way things are here. Until tomorrow night, then, God bless 'em on the curbsides for its raining now. And its mighty cold. And God Save The Queen.

God Save The Queen

Millions of words have already been written about the great event which is celebrated today, and we have no sanguine hope that we may say anything fresh about it. We may, however, be able to say something about it which has the virtue of honesty. Not that the loyal protestations, the gossip, the pseudo-intimate chitchat which has clogged the presses for weeks has been knowingly dishonest; it has, however, tried to express our twentieth century feelings in terms more appropriate to the nineteenth century; it has tried to turn us all into simple, loyal villagers cheering the squire. That hardly represents our feelings when we take time to analyse them. What we feel about our new Queen is rooted in something much older than the nineteenth century, much older than the British Crown, and yet modern because it persists today, stronger than we usually care to admit.

* * *

We are democrats—political democrats—in our attitude toward government. But we are not, and it is unlikely that we ever will be, social democrats. Our need for a stratified, or hierarchical, society reveals itself in many ways, and in none more plainly than in our concern with the monarchy and the court which surrounds it. Why is this so? Perhaps because such a society reminds us of the security and the rigidity of our childhood world, in which everybody had a place, in which parents were supreme, and where our place, though humble, was a cherished and secure one. The relationship between Kings and Queens and the infinitely powerful Father and Mother of our earliest recollections, has been amply explored by modern psychology.

* * *

In the memory of the Race, as well, there lingers a need for a monarch which no elected governor can quite satisfy. The King as the high priest and mediator between the tribe and the inscrutable powers of Fate; the King as scapegoat and sacrifice when Fate is cruel—these are ideas which pre-date our modern concepts of government, and which flourished in the long, dim dawn of history. We have not shaken them off yet. Who was without any lightening of heart when, during the War, King George VI and his Queen announced their determination to remain in the capital of the Commonwealth, whatever fate might overtake them there? The determination was kingly in a tradition far older than the British Throne.

* * *

The young woman who is crowned today takes upon her the burden of the age-old hopes and fears which we associated with monarchy. She is Mother, Priestess and Totem of the largest and most oddly assorted tribe the world has ever known. We give her the oldest and most primitive feelings that linger in our minds and hearts. Fittingly, with this massive burden, we give her our love. We pray for ourselves as well as for her when we cry GOD SAVE THE QUEEN!

Holiday Mood

The Coronation has spilled festively far beyond the realms of which Her Majesty was crowned Queen today. American magazines have been chock full of imperial majesty. American ears are fastened to radio receivers, eyes to television sets, and hearts to their sisters, uncles and cousins who have gone to London for the Coronation. Rockefeller Centre plaza has a glittering Coronation display.

In France, too, the Coronation is the main focus of popular attention. The few Frenchmen who own television sets sent coveted invitations to their friends to watch the relayed broadcast. French publishers have been buying coronation pictures and articles by the yard. One French feature agency, we hear, almost lost its reputation by trying to sell an unfriendly serial story. The French can be floridly disrespectful towards their own leaders, but are sensitive about the respect and honour due to the young Queen.

Even more than in New York, Paris shops are decorated and festooned for the Coronation. The smartest have cleared their windows altogether to make way for a picture of the Queen and her family against a floral background of red and white roses. The French, of course, love any opportunity for festivity and gilding an occasion. They have no holiday today, but only because, one guesses, they have had so many holidays in the last four weeks.

May Day (May 1st) was a holiday, and since it fell on a Friday, everybody made a weekend of it. Friday, May 8th, was the anniversary of VE day; it was declared a holiday. It also was a Friday and again Frenchmen decided to "faire le pont" over Saturday and Sunday—and Monday. Shops are closed Mondays anyway. Thursday, May 14th was Ascension Day—another holiday—and the celebrations lasted until Ascension Sunday. At the end of the month came the Whitsun holiday when everyone poured out of Paris for the traditional very long weekend.

Today Frenchmen made common festivity with their British cousins, as the Americans are doing, and, indeed, as most of the world is doing. It is spring, the young Queen has been crowned in blazing glory, and the Russians have been behaving with remarkable politeness. So why not celebrate?

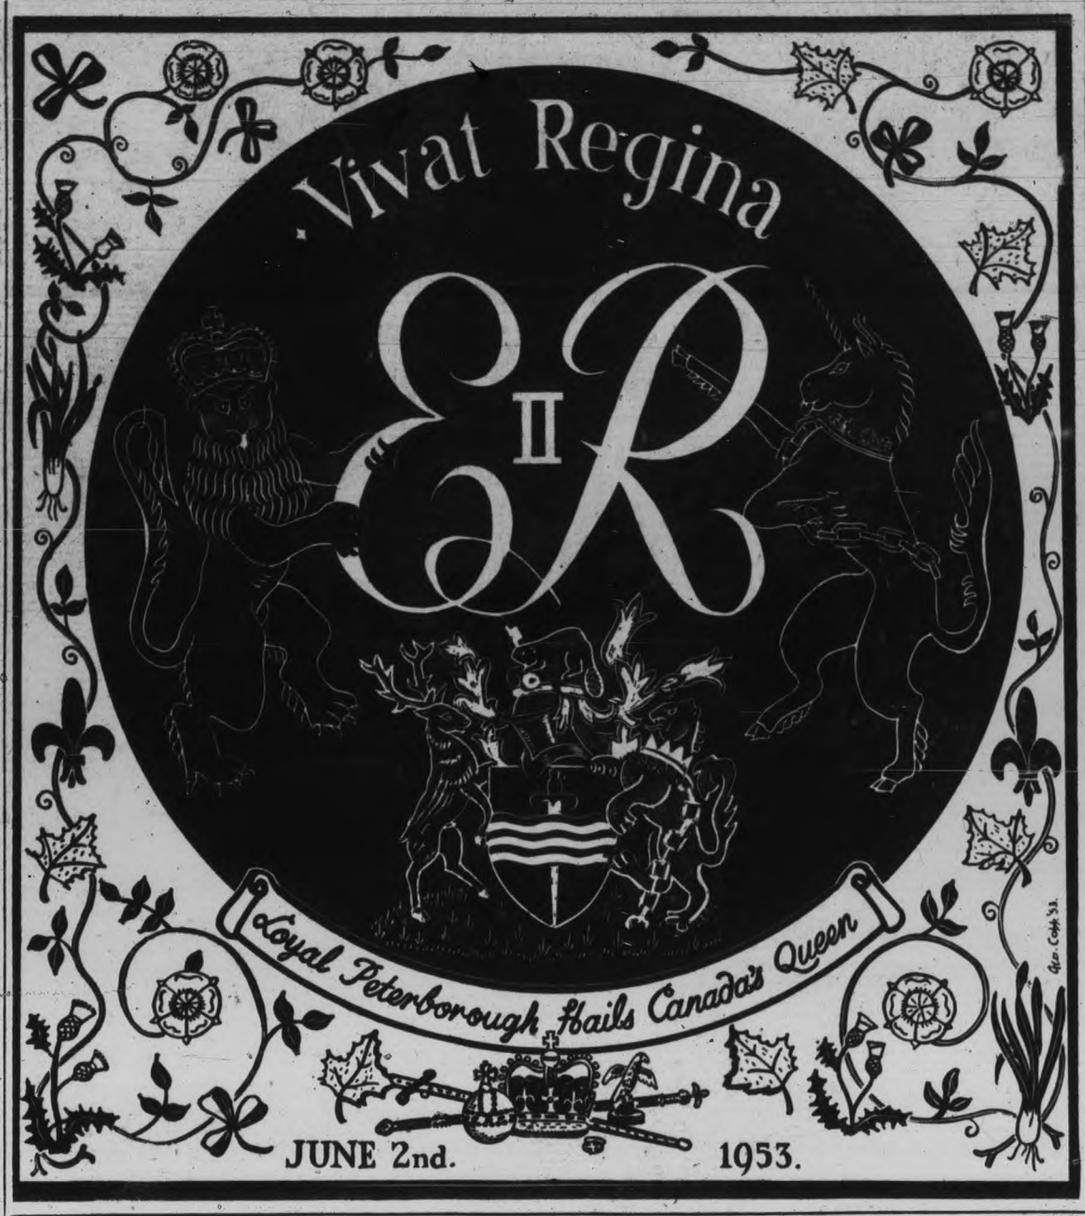
A Half-Baked Attitude

Many Canadians, as they read the Queen's Honours List yesterday must have reflected on Canada's half-baked attitude toward honours and decorations. As a nation we request the Queen not to confer titles upon Canadians, but we are happy to accept any sort of distinction which does not involve a title; indeed, it may be said that in military circles Canadians are avid for medals and distinctions of all sorts.

Like all attempts to eat our cake and have it too, this system does not really work. We have in our country a large number of people who bear distinctions of various kinds, and who bear them proudly because they deserve them. These distinctions are invariably named when those who are so honoured are listed in any sort of publication or are introduced on any important occasion. But because we are a part of the British Commonwealth, and because our distinctions are Commonwealth distinctions, our decorated persons always appear at a disadvantage compared with decorated persons from other parts of the Commonwealth. Any simple Knight who may have received his title for a contribution to party funds, outranks any Canadian C.B.E. who may have devoted years of brilliant service to some Commonwealth cause. If Canada had decided to accept no distinctions from the Crown, our position would be clear: because we have decided to accept some distinctions and reject others our position is muddled and silly. The only sensible choices in such a position are everything or nothing.

There was talk, some years ago, of a Canada Medal for Canadians who had done good work in one way or another. The Medal seems to have been forgotten, and perhaps that is as well. The Sovereign is the Fount of Honour, not whatever government the hazards of party politics may have placed in power at Ottawa, and a Canada Medal would always carry with it the flavour of a provincial Good Conduct badge. Either Canada should accept honours from the Queen, or refuse them utterly; the present arrangement is futile and makes us look silly to the other Commonwealth nations.

Revolutionary Decorations



There are many reasons why it would be a great joy to be in London today, but one of the chief among them is the beauty of the Coronation decorations. They have struck out in a new line, and we hope that they will form a pattern for loyal decoration for many years to come.

Most of us, when we decorate for a state occasion, think in terms of red, white and blue bunting, a handful of flags, and maybe a coat-of-arms or so. The effect is gay, but it is not usually beautiful. The decoration of London has been under the guidance of Sir Hugh Casson, a forty-two-years-old architect who seems to bubble with brilliant ideas. He has decided that the Coronation of a young Queen should be celebrated with decorations which are light and fanciful, and he has shown himself tireless in devising schemes to carry out his idea.

The lamp-posts of London, flanking the route of todays' procession, have been painted lilac, pale blue, and white, and on their tops they carry crowns which are pink or white. Also on the tops of lamp-posts are huge plastic roses which are illuminated from inside, and on corner posts are large wicker cornucopias which appear to be spilling huge roses into the street, the statue of Eros which is the central decoration in Piccadilly Circus is enclosed in a handsome aluminum cage, brilliantly gilded, to protect the statue and to give it added prominence.

Some parts of the processional route are ornamented with gilded palm leaves, long garlands of ping-pong balls, and ribbons made of gilded wire netting. In Whitehall a series of white standards have been erected, on the top of which are hung the full armour of a trooper of the Horse Guards, moulded on a heroic scale.

We like to think of decoration in this mode. There is no reason why imagination and some lightness of heart should not be employed when we want to show our loyalty. Let us hope that Sir Hugh Casson has established a precedent of imagination and originality which will spread through the whole Commonwealth.

For Her Majesty The Queen

Prayers on the Occasion of Her Coronation

(From the order of Divine Service for Trinity Sunday as prescribed by the Church of England)

1. Remember the Presentation of the Bible.

O God, who hast set forth in thy Holy Scriptures the only Rule by which Christians may live and Princes reign: Grant that our Queen ELIZABETH, being devoutly mindful of thy Law and Gospel, may ever find therein revealed true wisdom, the royal Law, and the lively Oracles of God; through Jesus Christ thine only Son our Lord, who with thee and the Holy Spirit liveth and reigneth, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

2. Remember the Anointing of the Queen.

O LORD and heavenly Father the exalter of the humble, the strength of thy chosen, who by anointing with oil didst of old make and consecrate kings, priests, and prophets, to teach and govern thy people Israel: Bless and sanctify thy chosen servant ELIZABETH, at this time to be anointed with oil and consecrated Queen; strengthen her, O Lord, with the Holy Ghost the Comforter; confirm and stablish her with thy free and princely Spirit, the Spirit of wisdom and government, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge and true godliness; and fill her, O Lord, with the Spirit of thy holy fear, now and for ever; through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

3 Remember the Delivery of the Sword.

HEAR our prayers, O Lord, we beseech thee, and so direct and support thy servant Queen ELIZABETH, that she may not bear in vain the sword, brought from the altar of God and delivered to her, but many use it as the minister of God, to do justice, stop the growth of iniquity, protect the holy Church of God, restore the things that are gone to decay, maintain the things that are restored, punish and reform what is amiss, and confirm what is in good order; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

4. Remember the Delivery of the Orb.

ALMIGHTY God, whose beloved son, to redeem the world, did reign from the cross: Grant that thy servant Queen ELIZABETH, receiving the orb set under the cross, may ever be mindful that the whole world is subject to his power and empire, who is the Prince of the kings of the earth, and of whose kingdom there shall be no end. Amen.

5. Remember the Investiture with the Ring.

O CHRIST, the Head of the Church and Prince of the kings of the earth: Look mercifully upon thy servant ELIZABETH, now to receive the ring of kingly dignity, the seal of Catholick Faith; and grant that as she is to be consecrated Head and Prince of her peoples, so she may continue stedfastly the Defender of thy Religion all her days, so that, being rich in faith and blessed in all good works, she may finally be brought to the glory of thine eternal kingdom; where with the Father and the Holy Ghost thou livest and reignest, one God, world without end. Amen.

6. Remember her crowning.

O GOD, the crown of the faithful: Bless, we beseech thee, and sanctify this thy servant ELIZABETH our Queen, upon whose head thou doest at this time set the crown for a sign of royal majesty, that she may be filled by thine abundant grace with all princely virtues; through the King eternal, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

7. Remember her Inthronization.

O God, whose greatness may not be uttered, the author of the world, creator of mankind, governor of empires, and establisher of all kingdoms: Bless, we beseech thee, thy servant, our Sovereign Lady, Queen ELIZABETH, with the richest blessings of thy grace; establish her in the throne of her kingdom by thy mighty aid and protection; be unto her a strong tower of defence in the time of adversity; let her reign be prosperous and her days many; let peace and love and holiness, truth, and all Christian virtues flourish in her time; let her people obey her with all duty and reverence; and let her so duly obey thee here on earth that she may hereafter reign with thee for ever in heaven; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

FOR THE QUEEN.

O THOU who art the Way, the Truth, and the life: Look mercifully upon thy servant ELIZABETH, whom thou hast set to be Queen over this Realm and Commonwealth; provide her with all she may need for her ministry among us, strengthen her to meet every demand which her high office may make upon her, bless her in her home and family; and grant that, being obedient to thine example, attentive to thy word, and responsive to thy grace, she may enjoy true happiness here on earth and in the world to come the vision of thy glory; who with the Father and the Holy Spirit livest and reignest, one God, world without end. Amen.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth . . .

And God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. (Gen. 1:1,31.)

✧ ✧

The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is established, that it cannot be moved. (Ps. 93:1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods. In His hand are the deep places of the earth: the strength of the hills is his also. The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.

O come let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. (Ps. 95:3-7.)

✧ ✧

Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. (Rev. 4:11).

"Coronationitis"

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

Brockvillians who have been visiting across the border recently in Ogdensburg and Watertown report that our American neighbours have a real case of "Coronationitis."

We hear that American stores are featuring even more Coronation souvenir merchandise than are comparable Canadian stores. Undoubtedly Americans, who have a flair and a love for the spectacular, find the Coronation an occasion of high interest.

Too, American interest in the Coronation is indicative of the bond of affection which so strongly unites the peoples of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States; a bond which remains unbreakable despite the stresses and strains imposed by the occasional disagreement on international affairs and on matters of mutual interest.

Disrespect Shown

(May 28 news item from Scarborough, England).

Delegates at a dinner-dance sponsored by the Communist-led Amalgamated Union of Foundry Workers tonight stopped the band from playing "God Save the Queen" and demanded instead "The Red Flag."

The orchestra refused to play the Russian revolutionary song, so the foundrymen — many of them without collars or ties—sang it anyway, without music.

Then staff members of the cafe where the dance was held called on the orchestra to play the National Anthem. They stood to attention for it. But all but one or two of the union diners and dancers turned their backs and kept on talking.

During dinner, the foundrymen also omitted to drink the customary toast of loyalty to the Queen.

Among delegates at the function were representatives from Communist Czechoslovakia.

A TRAVELLERS DREAM OF HOME

"Stop, Elmer, stop! You're dreaming that un-American dream again . . ."

EARLIER AMERICAN VIEWS ON MONARCHY

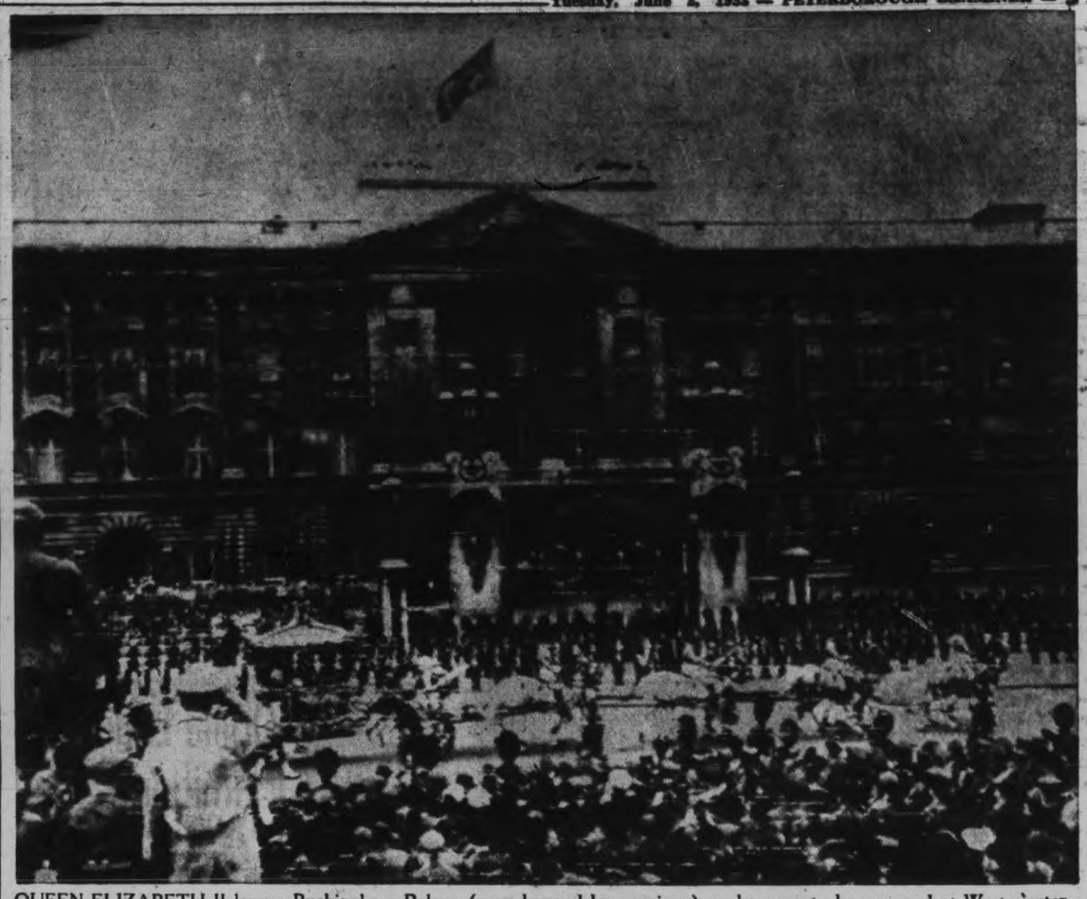
If any of our country men wish for a king, give them Aesop's fable of the frogs who asked for a king; if this does not cure them, send them to Europe. They will come back good republicans.

—Thomas Jefferson.

There is not a crowned head in Europe whose talents or merits would entitle him to be elected a vestryman by the people of any parish in America.

—Thomas Jefferson.

I was an enemy to monarchy before I came to Europe. I am ten thousand times more since I have seen what they are. There is scarcely an evil known in those countries which may be traced to their king as its source, nor a good which is not derived from the small fibres of republicanism existing among them.



—Thomas Jefferson.

A monarchy is the most expensive of all forms of government, the regal state requiring a costly parade, and he who depends on his own power to rule must strengthen that power by bribing the active and enterprising whom he cannot intimidate.

—J. Fenimore Cooper.

Philip Pays Humble Homage

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh averted his eyes, walked slowly to the throne and knelt humbly before his wife and Queen. He promised to serve her in "faith and truth." This was his moment of homage.

As his wife had dedicated herself to her realms, so the Duke promised before God to serve her always.

The Queen leaned forward slightly and clasped his hands between hers. Then the Duke said:

"I, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

This was his knightly vow, similar in form to the oaths taken by the nobles of his realm for the last 900 years.

Arising the Duke touched the crown upon the Queen's head and kissed her left cheek.

He had removed his coronet as he approached the throne. Now he returned to his place and put the coronet back on his head.

As anthems of rejoicing soared from the choir, these words echoed through the ancient abbey:

"I will not leave you comfortless. Alleluia I go away and come again to you. Alleluia. And your heart shall rejoice. Alleluia."

The Archbishop of Canterbury preceded the 31-year-old Duke in the homage. Two other royal dukes —Gloucester and Kent—and the senior peers of each degree followed him.

Only the three royal dukes kissed the Queen's cheek. The Archbishop and the other peers kissed her right hand.

Seven Twosomes Set Out In Cup Matches

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Seven international twosomes set out today in the inaugural of the Canada Cup golf matches, and what sort of game will play most havoc with Beaconsfield's par-72 layout was still open to debate.

Al Escalante of Mexico, who has been shooting around par on practice rounds, said he thought the course called for a short game. Stan Leonard of Vancouver said it's a matter of "let-'em-fly and you probably won't get into much trouble."

Bill Kerr, Beaconsfield pro, and Leonard's partner representing Canada in the seven-country tournament, said both a short and long game are necessary, a short game to get out of difficulty when the power game is too strong. "There are gimme holes over the 6,665-yard distance," said Kerr.

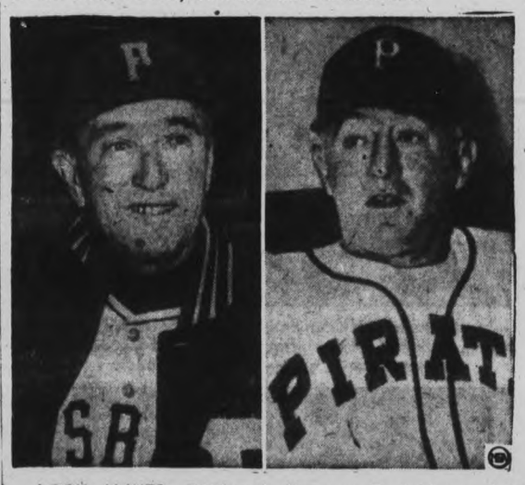
Whatever the course calls for, it's a certainty no one will play their shots faster than the German team of Hans Goernert and Georg Bessner. They walk up to the ball, take a minimum of time adressing it and then let go. They seem to be getting results. Both shot 70s in practice rounds Monday. The best rounds reported were by Bobby Locke of South Africa and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, each with 68s.

WELL REPRESENTED

The long-hitting fellows will be well represented by de Vicenzo and Harry Weetman of England. Both had the practice-round galleries bug-eyed with tremendous belts off the tee.

The schedule called for 18 holes today and 18 Wednesday. The twosome with the combined low medal score for 72 holes will be the winner. The 54-hole Canada-United States matches with seven-man teams from the Professional Golfers' Associations from both countries will get under way Thursday.

The combined England-South Africa pair of Weetman and Bobby Locke shaped up today as a tough combination to beat in the twosomes. So did the United States pair of Julius Boros and Jim Turnesa. Canada's chances were by no means written off. Leonard is playing a steady game and Kerr knows the course inside out.



The first pair in today's twosomes, Juan Neri of Mexico and Hans Goernert of Germany, were scheduled to get away at 1 p.m. The remainder were paired this way: Weetman and Escalante; Ossie Pickworth of Australia and Tony Cerda of Argentina; Peter Thomson of Australia and Germany's Bessner; Turnesa and Kerr; Leonard and de Vicenzo; Boros and Locke.

TWIN TROUBLE—Casey Stengel would like to have a lot of headaches like this one—being unable to tell the identical Charnofsky twins—Stan, left, and Hal—apart. The University of Southern California double play combination is with Binghamton of the Eastern League, where they spent last summer. Hal is the shortstop.

DOGGIN' IT—Charley Dressen of the Dodgers left the third base coach's box to chase a little dog interrupting the proceedings at Ebbets Field. The pooch took off for the outer pastures before succumbing to the kindly ways of the Giants' Davey Williams near second base.

LOOK ALIKES—Pittsburgh Manager Fred Haney, left, and Frank Frisch, who once held the same job, look enough alike to be twins.

Curve Lake Victors Over The Woollens

Gorgeous George Wrestles At The Brock Wednesday

GORGEOUS GEORGE

Gorgeous George, the fabulously attired matman, will oppose the flashy Negro champion Bobo Brazil in the wrestling feature at the Brock Arena on Wednesday night.

Despite Gorgeous George's marcelled hair, rich robes, luxurious limousine and valet, he is one rough and rugged wrestler and a mighty capable one, once the bell rings to start the bout. He'll have to be, against the ko-ko bumping Brazil.

Timothy Geohagen will meet Nanjo Singh, the explosive Hindu, in the semi-final. The first match will be Howard Cantonwine against Pat Flanagan.

An all-star card with every contestant a main-eventer. No advance in prices.

Orillia Edges Hamilton 12-9

HAMILTON (CP)—Orillia West Yorks Monday night defeated Hamilton 12-9 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game. The victory moved Orillia into a first-place tie with St. Catharines Athletics.

West Yorks built up a 5-3 margin at the end of the first quarter and led 6-4 at the half. The count was 8-6 as play entered the final quarter.

Ken Croft with three goals paced the winners. Jim McNulty, Bruce Webster and Tony D'Amico fired two apiece. McPhail, Digby and Bruce Webster added singles.

Al Doyle scored twice for Hamilton. Welch, Doney, Brown, Arnold Smith, Capula, Don Smith and McLean each tallied once.

The visitors received four of the seven penalties.

Stops Wallace In 3rd Round

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP)—Floyd Patterson, 19-year-old Olympic middleweight champion from Brooklyn, made it seven straight professional victories Monday night when he stopped Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., in 52 seconds of the third round of a scheduled eight-rounder at Eastern Parkway Arena.

Patterson knocked the claimant to the Canadian middleweight championship down four times in the brief but action-filled main event.

Wallace, 24, weighed 163½ pounds Patterson, 165⅛.

The Canadian, who had won 33 fights, lost three and drawn one, was leading on points in the first round when Patterson unloaded his heavy artillery just before the bell.

Patterson bounced a left-right-left combination off Wallace's chin, and he went to the deck for the count of eight.

In the second round, a right hand to the head and a half slip caused Wallace to go down again. Later in the second stanza, Patterson shot over a solid left hook that dropped the Canadian to the canvas again but the bell sounded to end the round.

The Brooklyn belter, who had won five of his previous bouts by knockouts, went out to end it quickly in the third round. He shot speedy and powerful punches to the head, and another left-right barrage put Wallace down for the count of eight.

When Wallace got up, Patterson nailed him against the ropes with another two-fisted barrage, and referee Ray Miller stepped in and halted the bout, the first for Wallace in this city.

Chavez Scores TKO On Savoie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eddie Chavez, 138½, San Jose, Monday night won a technical decision over Armand Savoie, 135, Canadian lightweight champion from Montreal, when Chavez suffered a bad forehead cut from an accidental butt in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round fight.

The San Jose lightweight, a 2-1 favorite, was ahead on points when the incident occurred. California state athletic commission rules provide that the contestant in front on the score sheet be given the decision in such cases.

After examining the cut, Dr Robert Laddon, the commission physician, stopped the fight.

Slugfests A Feature In The Civic League

Seabrook Electrics defeated Fairviews 21-5 in the opening of Monday nights twin Civic League softball pill at the East City Bowl; while Bill's Place emerged victorius over Busmen in the nightcap 18-4 as the winners in each case staged a slugfest at their rivals' expense.

Bill Humphries was the winning pitcher for Seabrook's, allowing seven hits to outlast two rival moundsmen, Edmison and Fowler; while Peters hurled for Bill's against Jerry Driscoll.

The entire eight teams in the Civic league have now seen action with Post Office, 10F, Seabrook's and Bill's Place each having a win; while Bell, Police, Fairviews and Busmen have been on the losing end after the first round.

Springfield Wants Join Quebec League

MONTREAL (CP)—Springfield, of the United States Eastern Hockey league, and Providence, of the American Hockey League, have intimated they would like to join the new Quebec Hockey League, formerly the amateur Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Speaking unofficially to Frank Selke, manager of Montreal Canadiens, club officials said during the weekend the QHL would be more convenient for them.

George Slater, president of the QHL said Monday he has received no official request from the clubs. Any applications would have to be approved by club owners of the league.

Asks Canadians Support Empire Games

MONTREAL (CP)—George C. Machum, president of the British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada, appealed Monday to Canadians to support the games to be held in Vancouver in August, 1954.

He said it is expected more than 600 Commonwealth athletes will participate in the events including track and field, swimming, boxing, cycling and fencing.

There are two phases to the problem, he said, the most important being to produce, within the next 12 months, a high-calibre team to compete at Vancouver; the second to equip and finance the teams so no athlete will stay away from the games for lack of funds.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It's a little early in the senior OLA season for folks in Toronto and St. Catharines to start chuckling at the Petes for dropping two recent decisions to Yorks and Athletics. Wonder who will be chuckling when it comes playoff time. Herewith a little rhyme along this line:

Though beaten at times, they still fight on,
Ignoring the jibes their rivals scream:
The ultimate goal is all that counts—
And only the game fish swim upstream.

Yorks beat 'em at times, and St. Kitts, too;
Yet naught disrupts their titular dream:
Petes pace themselves for fights to come—
As only the game fish swim upstream.

* * * * * *

So there! Watch the champs go against St. Catharines here Friday. Took the young A's overtime to yank out a 13-12 decision in the Garden City last Saturday in a fine fray, and the Petes had the long trip behind them. This time the Athletics have the hefty haul to the Liftlock City. But it could be a close fit again. We look for a grand game, a local win and the biggest crowd of the season. Weather permitting, of course. The OLA race will be a torrid one ere it's o'er, with Petes, Toronto, St. Kitts and also Fergus much in the thick of it. Brampton, Hamilton and Mimico need more building at present to keep pace with the top teams in the circuit.

* * * * * *

Concerning The Whip

St. Catharines' scribe likes Harry Wipper and the A's tried hard to get him to return and play their this year. Jack Gatecliff writes: "Harry Wipper in our books in the best lacrosse player in Canada today. He heads the defence corps. A native of this city, Wipper is starting his third year with the Petes and, when he is in the right mood, there are few players who can take liberties with him. As well as a strong, rugged defender, Wipper is also one of the most dangerous goal-scorers in the loop and his long galloping runs remind one of the late Jerry Connell of Orillia. Strangely enough, Wipper's talents are not generally appreciated by Peterborough fans."

* * * * * *

Some followers of the gutted-stick game here have been saying that Russ Slater is slow getting started this season. He is, but that's typical of Rusty. He starts off slowly, paces himself and finishes strong. Another thing, he plays a deliberate, careful game, not being as fast or colorful as some players, but highly effective on the attack, defensively and in ragging a ball. He is well up in the scoring each year and has played for three Mann Cup champions in a row. Out west in 1951, Slater slowed down the fast-breaking Vancouver Combines to a walk, though he took a terrific beating. Had both wrists swollen badly before it was over, yet he never blinked an eye as they pounded away at him trying to shake that ball loose. He's a valuable guy.

Pats Just Sitting Pat

Local junior OLA-ers, known as the Pats, have been idle nearly a week in the young season since their tilt with St. Catharines here on Saturday was called off. They trek to Long Branch on the morrow and then have Brampton her next Saturday night. Games with St. Kitts in both cities are four-point affairs. Winner of this group race is always given a good chance of taking the Canadian title and the Minto Cup, held presently by Brampton. A letter concerning local juniors stepping up to senior ranks was received this morning, but it wasn't signed. If the chap will give us his name (in confidence, if he wishes) we'll be glad to run the letter.

* * * * * *

Our baseballic junior Lifloes were washed out of their game last Saturday and have been taking it easy recently, also. However, they expect to pick up a postponed Lakeshore League game tonight in Colborne, and will be off to Cobourg comes Saturday aft. Lindsay, with a raft of ex-Petes aboard, go to Bowmanville tomorrow and have Port Hope on the Scugog diamond Friday, then heading for Oshawa next day. The Oshawa Transporters, with Ted Stone throwing three-hit ball, blanked Bowmanville Roses 6-0 last gloaming. Whitby leads the loop by half a game o'er Oshawa now. With no COBL going this semester, Belleville is in the Bay of Quinte intermediate loop while Kingston has four clubs playing in a senior city circuit.

Petes Making Puck Plans Despite Time Of Year; Seek Players And A Coach

Though hockey seems a long way off in early June, the Petes' Hockey Club executive are making definite plans now for next season. They expect to ice a strong squad in the same classy circuit they were in last year, and they promise to make a much better showing than last winter. As it was, the 1952-53 Petes finished strong to be nosed out by Kingston, the club which then went on to capture the OHA senior "B" crown. The Petes didn't ice their best team till the season was half over, as some of the former Eagles were slow signing up. But all these players, Petes and former Eagles, as well as several newcomers will be available this coming season for Peterborough.

Two starry members of the local club, high-scoring Chum Fryia and hard-hitting Roy Armstrong, have recently turned down offers to play next season in the Scottish Hockey League, where Bill McMaster and Murray Fife performed the past winter. Fryia and Army intend to remain with the Petes.

CHECKING AROUND

Meantime, the executive have been checking on several good players from other centres, and are also seeking a good coach, either an experienced benchman—since Jim Ellis doesn't wish to coach this year—or a starry playing pilot. He may be from out-of-town, too. An early meeting of the executive will be called to clear the decks for the summer rebuilding job regarding coach, players, finances and general plans for the autumn. Nip O'Hearn now has his amateur hockey card.

The 1953-54 Petes' executive consists of: President, Ed O'Toole; vice-president, Ray Tanner; board of directors, Lionel Browne, Frank Jopling, Roy Lewis, Jim Ellis, Ed Foley, Ken Kingston, George Bennett, Johnny Russelle, Bob Gamble, Dit Clapper and Bas Phelan. Life members include: Frank Buckland, Ed Riley, Fred Scates and Ben Swartz. Besides a coach, the club still has to name its secretary, treasurer and manager for the next campaign.

Plate Winner Gets $20,570

TORONTO (CP)—One of 19 race horse owners will step into the winner's circle today to pick up a whopping $20,570, the richest purse in the history of the Queen's Plate.

The big payoff surpasses the record of $16,877.60 won last year by Epigram and is a far cry from the $340 purse when Vice Chancellor won the Plate in 1881.

The purse in Canada's richest stake race — for Canadian-bred three-year-olds—has been increasing steadily since 1860, when the Plate was first run. However, it wasn't until 1897 that the four-figure mark was reached.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Every right-thinking person is in favor of better international relations, as a means of extricating the world from the sloughs of hot and cold wars, hate, bitterness, intolerance and all such festerings upon our lives.

But it's like the attitude towards the weather. Everybody talks about it, mighty few do anything about it. In fact, the only gentleman we know, whose interest in improved international relations is so keen and sincere, that he's willing, every year, to spend a small fortune to promote such good feeling is John Jay Hopkins, who devised, sponsors and finances two of the greatest international golf events staged in Canada — the Canada Cup invitation twosomes, dated this year in its inaugural to coincide with Coronation Week, and the Canada-United States P.G.A. matches, immediately afterwards.

John J. Hopkins is 60 years old, an 18-handicap player, president and chairman of the Board of General Dynamics. His hobby isn't golf, but he believes the broad avenue of sport is one along which the nations might march in peace and harmony to better relations, and better relations are his hobby.

Hobbies can run into money, and frequently do, particularly if you happen to be importing golfers from France, Germany, South Africa, Australia and other points at around $4,000 per team of two. Last year, when John Jay Hopkins staged the first international P.G.A. matches, he under-wrote the venture which brought two teams of six golfers each from as far away as South Africa to Montreal, paid the transportation, living expenses, and a fee to every participant. When the matches were finished, there was a deficit of almost $50,000, which Mr. Hopkins cheerfully paid. "So long," he remarked, "as everybody was happy, it was well worth it."

This year, his Canada Cup matches, a new addition which has attracted twosomes representing eight different nations, has its inaugural on Coronation Day, June 2. The entrants include two professional players from Germany. So rapidly did the fame of the international spread, that Argentina, Australia, England, France, Germany, Mexico, South Africa, and, of course, Canada and the United States, made entries for the Canada Cup. From all indications, this event will become one of the world's outstanding golf events, expensive, but all dedicated to the belief of John Jay Hopkins that they will foster a better understanding among the nations.

The Canada Cup itself will weigh 55 pounds. It is made of solid silver and is so large that part of it had to be imported from the U.S. It is 27 inches in diameter, 22 inches deep and is based on Brazilian onyx. It cost $5,000, or about 100 times as much as the Stanley Cup. Mr. Hopkins pays for that, too.

All of which is sport at work, in the best interests of world harmony. At least, one man's projection of the idea.

Braves Surprise Of League, Plan To Keep Lead

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Just how good are Milwaukee's amazing Braves? The next 10 days may supply a definite answer. Charlie Grimm's second placers are at Ebbets Field tonight starting a three-game series with Brooklyn Dodgers. Then comes a four-game series in Philadelphia followed by another four-game set in New York. By that time, the rest of the league should know whether the Braves are to be taken seriously. Despite their lofty perch, some rival managers still insist the Braves are playing over their heads and will drop back among the second divisioners when the weather gets hot and the going gets rougher.

Grimm, the jovial skipper of the Braves, dissents.

"We're up there to stay," he says. "Our pitching has been great, our infield has been tight and our hitters have begun to find the range. From what I've seen thus far, we're as good as any team in the league."

SURPRISE OF LEAGUE

Certainly the Braves have been the surprise of the league. With six weeks of the season gone they find themselves only a half-game behind the league-leading Dodgers. A victory tonight would put them on top. This is the same club experts picked to finish sixth or seventh. Players and fans alike are still trying to figure how it happened.

A good part of the answer lies in the slugging of sophomore third baseman Eddie Mathews (.331 batting average, 14 homers and 37 runs batted in), resurgence of shortstop Johnny Logan, the fine showing of rookie pitchers Don Liddle and Bob Buhl and outfielder Bill Bruton, and the return from service of batterymen Johnny Antonelli and Del Crandall.

Also the tremendous reception the transplanted Braves are getting in their new home has given all the players a lift. Spurred on by such encouragement, the players are going all out for the Milwaukee fans.

RUNNING NORMALLY

With the exception of the Braves, the major league races are running normally. Brooklyn, Philadelphia and St. Louis are up there in the National League with the slow-starting Giants right behind them. New York Yankees, as expected, are setting the pace in the American with Cleveland and Chicago striving mightily to overtake them.

Boston Red Sox, surprise of the American League, face their annual test. Can they prove successful on the road? They open a 14-game western tour in Cleveland tonight. A double loss in Washington Sunday dropped them out of the first division.

The Yankees open a 14-game tour of the West with a game in Chicago tonight. The White Sox and Indians, who will be at home during the next two weeks, have a 4½-game deficit to make up.

In the National League, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and New York, among the contenders, will be at home during the next fortnight. St. Louis Cardinals and the Braves will be on the road until June 16. It should be an interesting two weeks.

Royals Chalk Up 9th Win Blank Rochester Wings 1-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals came through with their ninth straight International Baseball League victory Monday night, blanking Rochester Red Wings 1-0. It was Montreal's third shutout in a row.

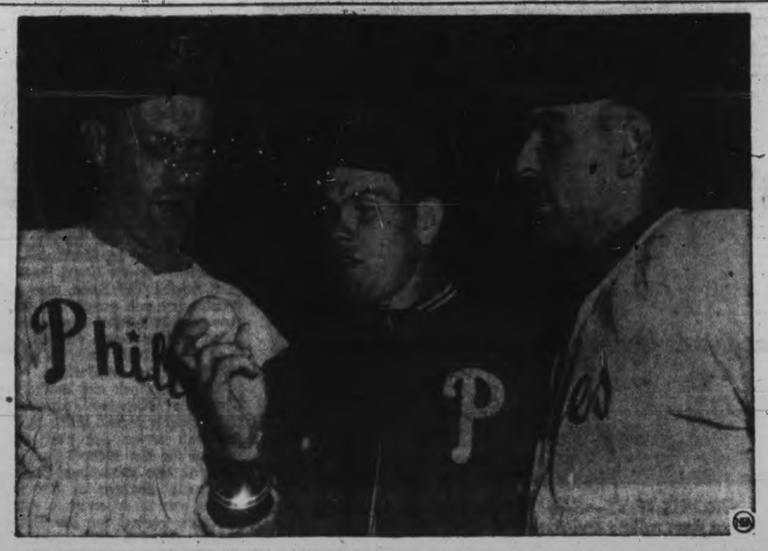
This leaves last season's pennant-winners comfortably in the choice spot, 3½ games ahead of the second-place Wings, whom they are scheduled to meet again at Montreal tonight in a doubleheader.

The Royals can thank their effective pitchers for the good fortune. Lefty Ronnie Lee whitewashed the tail-end Springfield Cubs Saturday, Ed Roebuck did it again Sunday and Bob Ludwick accomplished the feat against the Wings Monday.

Ludwick hurled a four-hitter, his third victory against only one defeat. Lou Hahn was charged with his second loss in six starts, although he allowed but four safeties

CROSSED PLATE

Sandy Amoros, Montreal's fleet-footed centre-fielder, was the only man to cross the plate. He doubled in the fourth and was driven home by left-fielder Dick Williams' single.



Righthander Bobby Hogue spelled the difference as the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs routed Buffalo Bisons 7-1. Hogue gave up only five hits and batted in two runs for his third win in five decisions.

Ken Johnson was belted for 11 hits, before being pulled for Ted Kapuscinski in the eighth.

Syracuse Chiefs and Ottawa Athletics split a double bill, the A's taking the eight-inning opener 4-3 and the Indians the nightcap 4-1.

Right-fielder Dick Greco's bases-empty homer in the opener gave Ottawa the contest. It was Al Romberger's second win. He allowed only seven hits to 10 off Jack Griffore.

Art Ditmar went for his fifth loss against two wins in the second game. He also allowed 10 safeties. Duke Markell, who hurled six-hit ball, got his fifth win.

BIG THREE CONFERENCE—When the Phillies stopped hitting, and Curt Simmons, right, was twice flattened, Robin Roberts, centre, called an emergency meeting of the Phillies Nationals' Big Three. The other member is, of course, Karl Drews.

Canadiana Remmains Favorite For Queen's Plate Race

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—In just under two minutes this Coronation Day, Canadian horse racing fans will add a new name to the country's equine aristocracy.

This is the day when the country's sports fans focus their sights on Toronto's Woodbine Park for the 94th renewal of the Queen's Plate, North America's oldest continuously-run race for Canadian-bred three-year-olds. It is the plum pudding of the racing season and it will be dished out with all the trimmings.

A record-breaking crowd of 50,000, largest for any sports event in the country, is expected to watch 19 hand-picked thoroughbreds speed over the nine-furlong course. Befitting the occasion, the winning owner will receive the Queen's 50 guineas and $20,570, the richest purse in Canadian racing history.

The weather man has promised sunny and warm weather for the classic scheduled to start at 4:45 p.m. EDT. At about 4:47 p.m., the winning horse with the jockey, trainer and owner will congregate in the winner's enclosure to receive the cup and purse and the plaudits of the huge crowd.

Who will win?

The people's choice is a sleek swayback filly, Canadiana, the sensation of Canadian tracks as a juvenile. The morning line on the daughter of Chop Chop-Iribelle is 3 to 5, far and away the favorite.

On her 1952 record Canadiana is what the chalk-eaters term a sure thing. She won nine of 11 races and her two defeats were blamed on running wide at the bends.

The two-buck bettor probably will steer clear of Canadiana and plunk his water on a thoroughbred that will give him a decent return for his money. He can get anything from 6 to 1 to as high as 30 or 40 to 1 on the rest of the field.

Second-ranking favorite is Blue Scooter, son of Blue Warrior-Baby Joice who showed his heels to the field in a division of the six-furlong Plate Trials May 23. Next—at 10 to 1—are North of Seven, a gelding owned by Lou Chesler of Toronto; Bonsand, the hope of Western Charlie Krupp of Winnipeg, and Virginia Fair, the quiet-mannered filly from the stable of J. A. (Jimmy) Charlesworth of Edmonton.

Long shot of the race is Belflares, filly owned by the Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, Ont. It was eighth in the Plate Trial and earned its oats in 1952 with three wins and six seconds in 19 starts.

The track probably will be a trifle heavy after recent rains, practically ruling out any possibility of the winner eclipsing Last Mark's record of 1:52 in the 1948 Plate. Canadiana, with internationally-famous Eddie (Banana Nose) Arcaro on board, will break from the 17th stall, a spot that possibly could be to advantage of the E. P. Taylor-owned horse.

The outside portion of the track isn't as soggy as the rail positions and the faster going should overcome the disadvantage of breaking from far out. This also applies to Virginia Fair and Food for Thot (from the Vancouver stable of Dr. L. H. Appleby) in the 18th and 19th slots respectively, but Canadiana's fast breaking probably will leave the Western horses at the gate.

There are two double entries in the race—the Taylor pair of Canadiana and Lively Action and Briarcrest and Sunita, owned by Vince Sheridan of Toronto.

Schoendienst Leads League Batters

NEW YORK (AP)—Red Schoendienst, overshadowed by St. Louis Cardinal teammates Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter during a nine-year major league career, finally is coming into his own this season.

The Cards' switchhitting second baseman methodically has worked his way into the National League batting lead with a healthy .371 average. Red also is tops in hits with 62 and doubles, 14.

Schoendienst picked up 22 points last week with 17 hits in 38 at bats to move ahead of Jim Greengrass of Cincinnati in second place at .362 and Johnny Wyrostek of Philadelphia with .358.

KELL SETS PACE

In the American League, George Kell of Boston Red Sox is setting the pace at .367. The veteran third sacker last Monday relinquished the lead he held since May 3 but regained it when Washington's Mickey Vernon tailed off to a runner-up .339. Records include Sunday's games.

Clyde Vollmer of Washington Senators has driven in the most runs, 33.

Milwaukee's Max Surkont maintained his National League pitching supremacy with a 6-0 record. Four American League hurlers have won four games without a defeat. They are Bob Hooper of Cleveland, Ed Lopat and Whitey Ford of New York Yankees and Frank Shea of Washington Senators.

Incidents From Coronation

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—Tombs and statues of long dead British notables served the living today as secret caches for sandwiches.

Behind the fine uniforms and lovely dresses, the impressive robes and solemn demeanor, the thousands in Westminster Abbey carried a pressing hunger. So they brought food and they hid it wherever they could.

An elegantly gloved noble hand bore a square paper package. It was slipped surreptitiously under a chair. Another package was placed out of the path of squashers and rested secretly behind a statue.

A packet of sandwiches dropped embarrassingly from a lady's service book.

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptians read about the Coronation in foreign-language newspapers only.

The major Arabic dailies, Al Misri, Al Ahram and Al Akhbar, today declared they would "boycott news and pictures of the Coronation" in protest against Britain's refusal to pull her troops out of strategic Suez canal.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP)—After the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret took their places in the abbey today for the Coronation there was a faint ripple of laughter from the guests.

This was occasioned by the appearance of a charwoman dressed in white and carrying a cleaner to give the gold carpet a fresh gloss.

It was an abrupt change of mood, from the slow solemnity of the royal procession to the entry of more plebeian persons with household machines.

LONDON (Reuters)—Three peers today defied official orders and rode to Westminster Abbey in private horse-drawn coaches.

The earl marshal in charge of the Coronation, the Earl of Norfolk, had banned all other coaches except those used in the procession.

But the peers, led by the Marquess of Bath, defiantly trundled to the abbey from their town houses in private carriages attended by footmen in mustard-yellow and royal blue and scarlet.

LONDON (AP)—Eight Tudor-garbed yeomen who guarded the priceless crown jewels in Westminster Abbey through the night were oddly armed. They carried, as always, their ancient pikes. For added safety they wore revolvers strapped round the waist of their gold and crimson tunics.

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Maggie Port, 77-year-old Toronto charwoman, is here with a double mission. She aims to see the Queen today. Then she starts searching Britain for her daughter, whom she has not seen in 20 years.

LONDON (AP)—A last-minute rush for the few Coronation seats still available today sent prices soaring. Some back-row places to view the procession went for £75.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP)—Sitting in the abbey today amid all the aristocracy of Britain in their rich robes was a lone London bus driver in his uniform. Driver William Reynolds had been chosen to represent the 97,000 London transport workers.

Five hundred bus drivers and conductors who thought they should have a Coronation holiday went on strike today and brought services to a halt in many parts of industrial Monmouthshire.

Canada's Share Of Foreign Aid Said Not Enough

LONDON, Ont., (CP).—The $800,000 which Canada is supplying to UN's technical assistance program this year is not enough, Dr F. R. Scott told a Royal Society meeting at the University of Western Ontario Monday.

Requests from underdeveloped countries are more than twice the $21,000,000 which was raised from all member countries, he said.

He also criticized the lack of international funds which would provide backward nations with long-term, low-interest loans, or outright gifts, where necessary.

Dr. R. A. MacKay of the Department of International Affairs, explained why the Canadian Government preferred to invest $2,500,000 annually in the Colombo Plan rather than to contribute to a more elaborately organized International Fund.

"Actually our investment in Southeast Asia is so small that if we developed a master plan to integrate aid plans we would have no money left for aid," Dr. MacKay said. "We prefer to aid national governments directly with their plans."

POPULATION GAINS

"Even the most optimistic plans of Asian countries today only barely keep pace with expected population increases," Professor B. C Keirstead of the McGill department of economics said.

Chairman Dr. A. R. M. Lower asked: "Is it possible to create a food surplus in Southeast Asia? It seems to me that the more food, the more Southeast Asians."

Dr. F. H. Soward of the University of British Columbia said it takes about two years before a Canadian technical expert is of any use to an Asian country. He must learn the language, and then his term of duty is up.

Several members said that help was necessary to curb poverty, ill health and ignorance, the natural breeding grounds for totalitarianism. Others mentioned the impatience of the newly independent governments in Asia to see tangible results.

Dr. Soward warned that if results were not forthcoming the native population would turn to wild promises from any quarter.

PINZA DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP)—Sir Gordon Richards' Epsom Derby mount Pinza was established favorite for the historic race at a betting call-over of London's bookmakers Monday night.

Pinza was quoted at 5-1 and Queen Elizabeth's Aureole at 11-2. At the last call-over Thursday, Pinza and Aureole were joint favorites at 4-1.

World champion jockey Richards has never won a Derby in 33 years racing. Richards, now 49, talked Monday about retiring and taking up training this year or next. Thus this year's Derby may be his last chance of winning the race. It will be run over 1½ miles Saturday.

Premonition is third favorite at 8-1. William Humble's Nearula, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas and favorite for the race until lameness interrupted his training, now is a 17-2 chance. He went to 100-6 at the last call over.

Nearula's price shortened after a training spin Monday. Captain Charles Elsey, the colt's trainer, said: "The colt went very well and pulled up sound. There is every chance he will be started at Epsom Saturday."

Other odds for the race were: Good Brandy 100-8, Shikampur 100-6, Novarullah and Star of the Forest 18-1, Chatsworth 20-1, Empire Honey, Pharel and Prince Canarina 33-1, Pink Horse, Mountain King and Fellermelad 40-1 and Prince Charlemagne 66-1.

SIR RICHARD WINS

LEICESTER, England (AP)—Gordon Richards celebrated his knighthood Monday by doing what he has done more frequently than any man in the world—win a horse race.

It was the veteran rider's first victory since the Queen made him "Sir Gordon" in the Coronation honors list, published earlier in the day.

Leicester is a lucky course for Richards. He rode his first winner here 32 years ago and last April reached a world mark at the same track.

JACK MAYO TO ORIOLES

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies announced Monday they are sending 26-year-old Jack Mayo to Baltimore Orioles of the International League, subject to 24-hour recall. The baseball club gave no reason for the transfer of the utility outfielder. Mayo played in 50 games last year and batted .273.

Dr. Jordan Says

Recognized 100 Years Ago, Lukemia Destroys Red Cells

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

Leukemia is a disease which was named and recognized more than a hundred years ago. Translated it means "white blood".

The blood does not turn white in leukemia, but it does have a "whiteness" about it which is caused by the destruction of some of the normal red cells and the addition of large numbers of colorless cells which are known as white cells or leucocytes.

Normally, there are about 5000 to 10,000 white cells or leucocytes in a cubic millimeter of blood—this being a very small amount of blood indeed. In many forms of leukemia the number of white cells rises to 30,000 or 40,000 and sometimes more than 100,000. There are both normal and abnormal kinds of white cells present.

In the rapid or acute cases the body becomes overwhelmed with the abnormal white cells. In such cases weakness developes rapidly. There is likely to be bleeding from the gums or into the skin.

In the slower or more chronic cases, enlargement of the lymph glands in the armpits, groin or neck may be the first sign of the disease. The spleen also is usually enlarged. Increasing fatigue is another common early sign.

The exact diagnosis of leukemia is made by examining the blood under the microscope. This is done by taking a small drop of blood and counting the white cells. The blood is also smeared on a glass slide, stained with special dyes, and examined under the microscope.

It is possible that leukemia is becoming more frequent, although it may still be considered as a comparatively rare disease. It should be realized, too, that there are several kinds of leukemia, depending on the particular variety of white cells involved and on whether the condition is acute or chronic.

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN

Unfortunately, the cause of leukemia is not known. It is sometimes called cancer of the blood, but this is not really correct because no one is yet entirely sure as to whether it is related to cancer or not. Also, it cannot be cut out by surgery as many cancers are.

Victims of leukemia, particularly those with chronic varieties, often can be helped temporarily by blood transfusions, X-ray treatments over the spleen, or by certain kinds of arsenic preparations taken by the mouth. Other methods, including ACTH and cortisone, are being studied, though treatmen of any kind is still far from satisfactory.

Mitchell Hart

The funeral for Mitchell Hart, River Rd. South, who died Saturday, was held Monday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell of Trinity United Church conducted the service.

The pallbearers were G. Taylor, O. Cruikshank, W. H. Lytle, O. Smith, C. Derry and W. Derry. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

GOT IT—Taking the ball almost off the toe of Liverpool's Bill Jones, left, Goalie Eduard Schaffer of Nremberg looks like a halfback hitting the line at New York's Triborough Stadium. The British won this edition of an international series, 4-3, before an overflow crowd of 24,000, with several thousand turned away.

Cooke Special Wins Twice In Sprint Races

Here for the second week, that little red car from Toronto, the Cooke Special, powered to victory in two sprint car racing events Monday night at Exhibition Park. Driven by owner Lloyd Shaw once and novice Ted Race, also of Toronto, for one event, the Jaguar-powered half-miler came from behind on the home stretch of the last lap in both heats to edge out Hugh Darragh of Buffalo.

In three stock car heats, Frank Andre of Napanee captured two firsts and a second place. A Peterborough novice, Joe Fair, driving stocks for the second time, came up with two third-place finishes.

Special feature of the night's races was an attempt to establish a track record for the Peterborough half-mile oval. Lloyd Shaw, in the Cooke Special, turned one lap in 30.2 seconds, an average of just under 60 miles per hour. In the process, however, he bent the car's tie-rod, and that was all for Shaw.

Only one accident occurred during the night. Morley Shepherd of Trenton, driving Silver Q35, wrapped the elderly coupe around a guard post at the southeast corner during the third heat. He walked away from the smashup.

Ted Race of Toronto, driving a half-miler for the first time in his life, pulled a crowd-pleaser in the second sprint car heat. Race, third place man in Molson Cup stock car standings at the CNE in Toronto, pushed the Jaguar around six laps in 3.22.4 seconds, coming from behind to beat Darragh by about two feet.

RESULTS

Sprint cars—First heat: Lloyd Shaw, Toronto; Hugh Darragh, Buffalo; John Fife, Buffalo. Time: 3.21.4. Second heat: Ted Race, Toronto; Hugh Darragh, Buffalo; John Fife, Buffalo. Time: 3.22.4.

Stock cars—First heat: Earl Handley, Picton; Frank Andre, Napanee; Morley Shepherd, Trenton. Time: 3.41.4. Second heat: Frank Andre, Napanee; Earl Handley, Picton; Joe Fair, Peterborough. Time: 3.38.4. Third heat: Frank Andre, Napanee; Earl Handley, Picton; Joe Fair, Peterborough. Time: 3.37.5.

Authorize Extra Market Tables

Some extra tables for the farm produce market at George and Rink Sts. were authorized by the property committee of the Council Monday afternoon.

The bulk of the recent vending has been the products of greenhouses and has extended from cabbage to two-year-old rose bushes. Approach of the flowers and berries seasons enlarges the market business, so management recommended extra accommodation.

That is some concession to the producers and hucksters who have become durable regulars, but the more vocal of them are still hoping and generally advocating that the city should "do something."

That signifies the provision of cover for winter and wet days. However, the Longhurst committee has no instruction from the City Council to concern itself about building a market hall.

Some official opinion leans to the idea that if the vendors, whether producers or not—and if they are not producers what business and credentials have they for occupying market space?—should have snapped up the property when it was offered and gone into the details of trying to build for themselves.

They are still only one-day-a-week tenants and lacking enterprise to secure the location for permanent use.

Present Two Flags To Hastings Church

HASTINGS (ENS)—A Coronation Service was held Sunday in Trinity United Church. The Church was beautifully decorated with large baskets of red, white and blue tulips and a large picture of Her Majesty in front of the pulpit.

The service opened with the hymn "All people that on earth do dwell and while it was being sung two flags were presented to the Church, the gift of the Evening Auxiliary.

The Union Jack was presented by Torry Fairman, and the following boys each said a short verse; the Empire, Bill Jones; St. Patrick's Cross, George Duff; St. Andrew's Cross, Ken Montgomery and St. George's Cross, Wayne Marsh.

The Canadian flag was presented by Elizabeth Parker and short verses on each of the provinces were recited by Sharon Oliver, Tyne Nynehuis, Sharon Marsh, Shirley Fairman, Helen O'Connell, Jim Hess, John Thompson.

Rev. Cole thanked the ladies for their assistance in the making of surplices for the junior choir.

The congregation stood for the dedication service.

THEIR YEARS TOTAL 231 and eight weeks. A get-together of the Trick family at Millbrook on Saturday was a happy occasion for all. In the centre great-great-grandmother Mrs. Alice Trick, 96, holds the youngest family member, Ronald James Bryan, age eight weeks, of Oshawa. Rotarians Given Outline Of Coronation

A dramatic and realistic preview of what will happen Tuesday in Westminster Abbey was presented at Monday's Rotary luncheon by Miss Cora Bailey, principal of Parkhill Public School.

Miss Bailey outlined the details of the Coronation ceremony including the order of service, the situations and duties of those taking part and gave background sketches of the symbols used in the service.

The speaker added to the interest of her address by using a model of the cross-shaped section of the abbey, where the ceremony will be performed, as an aid in her description. She also displayed replicas of the different gifts, the crown and sword and sceptres that the Queen will receive as symbols of her position and duties. These replicas were all made by pupils of the Parkhill school as a part of their coronation observances at the school.

The climax of the address was the entrance of three Parkhill students, one attired as Queen Elizabeth and the other two as royal ladies-in-waiting, while Rotarians sang, God Save the Queen.

Miss Bailey, who was accompanied by Leo Copp, was introduced by Mr. Copp and thanked by K. S Wightman.

ELIZABETH the Queen

XXIV

From her earliest moments Queen Elizabeth has always had that interest in soldiers, uniforms, and military customs which so animated her father.

I remember on one of the earliest of the Monday afternoon excursions on which Queen Mary used to take us, watching the little Princess as we walked slowly round an exhibition of taspestries.

"Now take this one," she would say, and then tell us something fascinting about the way in which it had been made and where it had hung in the past.

But though usually Princess Elizabeth used to hang on to every word her grandmother uttered, on this occasion I noticed her attention straying.

I followed her eyes and saw, across the room, three tall Guardsmen in their khaki uniforms. Princess Elizabeth was watching them intently, with that fascinated concentration a more modern child might bestow on a visiting film star. She never took her eyes off them during the whole tour we made of the exhibition.

I was amused when we got her home to 145 Piccadilly to notice that her first thought was to tell Mummy of this wonderful experience.

Her mother was always very gentle with the children. She would take a great interest in their day's doings, and greet them with a "Well, darlings, and what have you seen today?"

ALMOST TWO YEARS after the chistening of Prince Charles, his baby sister Princess Anne was baptized at Buckingham Palace. Queen Elizabeth holds the princess, who wears a robe from Queen Victoria's days.

This time Princess Elizabeth wasted no time on repeating the lore about the tapestry which Queen Mary had passed on to us. Instead, she ran to her mother and hugged her, saying, "Oh, Mummy, Mummy. There were three soldiers there!"

That interest in things military has remained with her. She would always stand fascinated at the window of 145 while the Guard marched across Hyde Park Corner in the mornings, splendid in their scarlet uniforms.

"Oh, look, Crawfie," she would say excitedly. "Aren't they pretty?"

I used sometimes to see the same expression of interest across her face while she watched a parade of soldiers at a much later date.

However much the routine of her life may weigh on her, I am sure the military side of it will never bore her.

✧ ✧ ✧

One of Queen Elizabeth's most charming traits was exhibited in her insistence that her sister, Princess Margaret, should be given all the attention due her. This has persisted from childhood.

When Princess Elizabeth, even as a very small girl, felt that visitors or friends were making so much fuss of her the Princess Margaret was in danger of being neglected, Princess Elizabeth would seize the first opportunity to say, "And now you must come and see my little sister."

The first time I saw that thoughtful gesture was when Princess Margaret was so young that she was still using her perambulator, but old enough to enjoy having people round her and to resent finding herself alone when she awoke from the afternoon nap. Princess Elizabeth made it her business to see that her sister was soon a centre of admiration.

This trait is still with her. Since her marriage it has had less opportunity for expression; and besides, Princess Margaret, with a personality that draws interesting people to her, never has a chance to feel neglected.

Queen Elizabeth has passed this on to her own children. An old ghillie who had spent years in the Royal Service at Balmoral and had just retired, was full of praise for Queen Elizabeth, who charm and thoughtfulness had caused her to be reverenced by servants not only in her own home but wherever she went.

"And doesn't little Prince Charles take after his mother!" said the ghillie in broad Scots which had to be translated to be readable.

"Everybody loves him here in Scotland; the servants and tenants flock to see him. After a few moments of being the centre of admiration the little boy always takes the hand of the nearest person to him—usually a woman—and leads her to where Princess Anne is sitting up perkily in her pram. 'And now,' he says, 'you must all come and see my little sister'."

Previous photos of the plane were retouched to conceal certain features.

Legion Attends Omemee Service

OMEMEE (ENS)—Christ Church Anglican was filled to capacity on Sunday for the special service preceding the Coronation. Attending were the Canadian Legion, the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs under the command of Scoutmaster John Joyce assisted by Mrs. George Stephenson and Miss Mary Evelyn Corneil.

The church was tastefully decorated with a profusion of tulips and lilacs. Special music was rendered by the choir under the direction of organist Milburn Jones, ATCM.

The Scout flag and Union Jack were deposited by Scouts Earl Ruttle and Dale Linton and received by the rector, Rev. Chas. Richmond.

The lessons were read by wardens Walter Reeds and Harry V. Smith.

Amnesty Proclamation To Benefit Prisoners

OTTAWA (CP)—Some members of the armed forces in detention or imprisonment will benefit from the Queen's proclamation of amnesty, the defence department announced today.

Those serving terms of six months or more, with good conduct, will have parts of their sentence remitted if they were convicted by May 29.

For long-term prisoners, the reduction will be 30 days for each year of imprisonment. About one-twelfth of the sentence will be remitted in lesser offences.

THEY WEEP NO MORE—Part of the estimated 30,000 Vietnamese refugees, who fled across the border when the Communists invaded Laos, stage a "weeping" strike in Nong Khai, Thailand, to back up their demands for refuge in a "suitable" place. Hearing they would be sent to Phetchabun, a city they didn't like, the refugees wept en masse until the Thai government decided to send them to a city in the south.

New Pills Aid Sufferers With Ulcers

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Eating anything you want, even to taking some drinks, is part of a new treatment to heal stomach ulcers.

But you also take anti-acid pills for months—often as frequently as every half hour.

This method, used successfully on most of 1,000 patients, was shown Monday in an exhibit at the American Medical Association convention by Dr. E. A. Marshall of East Cleveland, Ohio.

One goal is to get a speedy start of healing of the ulcer, and permit it to develop a good covering to resist re-opening.

PILLS WORK WELL

The flare-up of old ulcers is the bane of ulcer victims. Quite often, ulcers kick up every three to six months, especially in the spring and fall.

The pills plus whatever you like to eat have allowed patients to go an average of 2½ to nearly three years with no recurrence of ulcer, Dr. Marshall said. As soon as there is any sign of ulcer trouble, they start the pill treatments again.

Two Bowlers Hit Centuries Against Somerset

LONDON (Reuters)—Rain interfered with all first-class cricket matches Monday but not enough to prevent two Warwickshire bowlers from hitting centuries against Somerset.

Tom Dollery and Freddy Gardner shared the unbroken fourth wicket stand of 236 in three hours at Coventry.

Surrey did well against Lancashire at Old Trafford, taking a first-inning's lead after losing half the team for a scant 49 runs. At the close Surrey had scored 283 against Lancashire's total of 255.

Gloucestershire captain Jack Crapp pulled his team out of a precarious position against Hampshire at Bristol with his first century of the season, taking 3½ hours to score 103 runs. At the close Gloucestershire had made 323 for six in reply to Hampshire's total of 375.

Close of play scores:

Nottinghamshire 208, Australian tourists 290 for six; two-day match abandoned as a draw, rain.

Worcestershire 233 and 55 for four, Derbyshire 178.

Oxford University 238 and 33 for no wicket, Leicestershire 399 for seven declared.

Yorkshire 366 for seven declared, Glamorgan 128 for four, rain restricted play.

Lancashire 255 and 28 for three, Surrey 283.

Northamptonshire 323 for nine declared, Middlesex 24 for nine, rain restricted play.

Somerset 323 for nine declared, Warwickshire 340 for three, rain restricted play.

Sussex 404 for seven declared, Essex 290 for six, rain restricted play.

Hampshire 375, Gloucestershire 323 for six.

Gave Up Business Career To Risky Field Of Opera

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Three years ago Robert Edy, London, Ont., tenor, gave up a promising career in business to enter the risky field of operatic singing. Now the move is paying off.

The 34-year-old Canadian with the sandy-red hair needed some persuasion before he took the plunge. Since he changed careers, he's had a chance to do some of the things he has hankered after since choir days in Canada.

For instance, he recently made a one-week appearance in the first stage performance of "Irmelin," the long-neglected opera by British composer Frederick Delius. In doing so, Edy sang with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Sir Thomas Beecham—in itself an honor. The premiere was at the New Theatre, Oxford.

"SCARED STIFF"

It was his first appearance in costume on any stage and, Edy admits frankly, "I was scared stiff."

He survived the ordeal and he thinks his appearance with Sir Thomas will weigh heavily in future bookings.

His Canadian choir experience also made possible an opportunity of a lifetime. He is one of nine Canadians singing today with the Westminster Abbey choir at the Coronation.

To rehearse for the 18 anthems the choir will sing in the abbey, Edy turned down a chance to appear with the Glyndebourne Opera Company. However, he still has a busy schedule. He has several concert recitals on tap, plus a tour of operatic centres in continental Europe, before he returns to take up a Canadian engagement Oct. 5. This has been arranged by the Women's Music Club of London, Ont.

→

Edy had little more than Canadian choir training when first encouraged to take up music seriously. The tip came from Dr. Harvey Robb, choir director of First St. Andrew's Church, London, Ont., and principal of the Music Teachers' College, University of Western Ontario.

At the time Edy was leaving one job for another, with Canadian biscuit manufacturer Garfield Weston. The new assignment took him on a tour of South African beauty spots with the Westons and seven of their family, followed by a post in London, England.

In South Africa, Arnold Foulton, fellow of Britain's Royal Academy of Music, offered the Canadian a two-year scholarship to study in Britain. He turned it down, but in February, 1950, the lure of the operatic world proved too strong. He started studying in London under Dino Borgioli, former principal tenor at La Scala Opera, Milan.

Six months later he quit the business world for a year's training at the Trinity College of Music and he has never looked back.

Edy is married and has a six-year-old son, Donald.

CORONATION SINGER — Robert Edy, 34-year-old tenor from London, Ont., chucked a promising executive career to go in for operatic singing. He was recently auditioned by Sir Thomas Beecham and the Glyndebourne Opera Company and has been chosen as one of nine Canadians singing in the Westminster Abbey choir at the Queen's Coronation.

Transmit Pictures In Single Operation

NEW YORK (AP) —Pre-Coronation pictures were transmitted Monday by The Associated Press all the way from London to the west coast of the United States and Canada in a single operation—more than 6,000 miles.

It was the first time pictures sent from London by radio had been transmitted directly into AP's transcontinental wirephoto network.

The operation was handled over a specially-leased circuit, operating at 100 revolutions per minute, coinciding with normal speed of picture transmissions on AP's network. The pictures were sent from a machine in London's AP bureau.

Nugget Raises Price

NORTH BAY (CP)—Officials of the North Bay Daily Nugget announced Monday the result of a price increase last week to seven cents a copy from five: Circulation dropped 120 from 13,000. Publisher J. F. Grainger said newsprint price increases and rises in general costs made it necessary to put up the rate.

Hotelmen Get Raise

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Wage increases ranging from five to eight cents an hour and retroactive to last January will be paid employees of the Prince Edward Hotel as a result of an agreement signed Monday.

The employees, members of local 743, Hotel and Restaurant Employees, (AFL), received a five-cent across the board increase and bartenders, painters, Bellboys, wall-washers and cooks received an extra three cents an hour.

Britain Issues Coronation Stamp

LONDON (Reuters)—A double-size Coronation stamp, showing Queen Elizabeth in the ermine robe and crown she wore in Westminster Abbey today, will be issued Wednesday for air mail letters from Britain.

It will be the first time that a single stamp has been issued to cover the one shilling three penny (about 17 cents) rate on letters to the U.S. and Canada. The rate was increased from one shilling (14 cents) last year.

The olive-green "one and three" is one of a Coronation series of four, designed to cover surface and air postage over the world. A coronation air letter form and a special Coronation postmark have also been announced. The other stamp denominations are 2½ pence in magenta, four pence in blue and one shilling and six pence in steel blue.

Big Catch

VANCOUVER (CP)—Skipper Olaf Bjorge collected a new hat by being the first to land a catch of halibut this season. His boat Tanza brought 64,000 pounds of halibut from the fishing grounds off Scott Island.

Unsuccessful Everest Attempts

LONDON (Reuters)—Here are the results of previous unsuccessful assaults on Mount Everest:

1921: British (Lt.-Col. C. E. Howard Bury), height reached 23,000 feet.

1922: British (Brig. Charles G. Bruce) 27,300 feet.

1924: British (Lt.-Col. E. F. Norton) 28,100 feet. It was in this expedition that George Mallory and Andrew Irvine lost their lives. They set out from camp at 27,000 feet and were never seen again.

1933: British (Hugh Ruttledge) 28,100 feet.

1935: British (reconnaissance by Eric Shipton) 23,000 feet.

WHERE TWO KILLED—Two employees of radio station CKEY in Toronto were killed when their automobile was struck by a fast passenger train at a suburban Scarboro level crossing and hurled 300 feet. They were transmitter operators Monty Ranney and Eric Harwood, of Highland Creek. Spectator at left is unidentified.

CONFER DEGREE—Two distinguished Canadian newspapermen take part in the 159th convocation ceremonies at the University of Western Ontario, London. Chancellor Arthur R. Ford, editor-in-chief of the London Free Press, confers the honorary degree, doctor of laws, upon Herve Major, managing editor of the Montreal daily newspaper La Presse. The doctorate is in recognition of Mr. Major's contribution to Canadian journalism and the fact that while president of The Canadian Press, national newsgathering organization, he inaugurated CP's Service in French.

Rapid Economic Progress In Canada Since 1900

By ALEX DIMEO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Since the turn of the century probably no country in the world has experienced such rapid economic progress as Canada. New discoveries have followed each other in such quick succession it has been difficult for the layman to keep abreast of them all.

The Quebec government, deciding to do something about the situation had issued a series of booklets endeavoring to show advances made in the major industries of the province. The latest industry to be covered is the chemical industry.

The booklet traces the history of the industry back to 1674, when a Nicolas Follin was granted exclusive rights to make potash, a modest start for an industry that now has more than 1,000 establishments in Canada, including 334 in Quebec.

WARS HELPED

The chemical industry owes its expansion to the First and Second World Wars. During the depression years, only a small decline in business was noted and after 1933, business improved steadily.

The booklet pointed to Shawinigan Falls, Que., as typical example of town to which the primary chemicals industry brought prosperity. The town's economic life has been influenced by six plants which manufacture chemical products, and other industries which consume them.

Shawinigan is the centre of the primary plastics industry in Canada. It was estimated that more than one-third of the primary plastics output is furnished by three Shawinigan plants. Plastics such as cellulose sponges, vinyl and polythene are manufactured. There is also a compressed gas plant at Shawinigan.

Factors which determine the location of chemical plants are nearness to hydro power and raw material, availability of labor, transportation facilities and proximity to markets.

Rhee To Co-operate With U.S. To Get Armistice

SEOUL (AP) —President Syngman Rhee said today South Korea will "co-operate with the U.S. at any cost" but declared he will insist to the end on withdrawal of Chinese forces from North Korea after an armistice.

Rhee said he had received a three-point message from President Eisenhower, but refused to disclose its contents.

The 78 - year-old leader's statement came on the heels of a report from Washington that he had proposed to Eisenhower a mutual defence pact plus substantial U.S. financial and military aid as South Korea's price for accepting Allied truce terms.

Rhee did not elaborate on his statement indicating South Korea's bitter opposition to the latest United Nations truce proposal may be softening.

Although Eisenhower's message to Rhee was cloaked in secrecy, Washington sources said it stressed these points:

1. The U.S. will not be deterred from concluding an armistice on what it regards as honorable terms.

2. The security of UN forces in Korea must be the determining factor in the truce talks.

3. The U.S. continues ready to support the South Korean government.

Only Monday, Prime Minister Pyun Yung Tai threatened a break with the allies because of what he called the UN command's "sellout" to the Communists.

Washington reports said Rhee also called for Eisenhower to agree to:

Simultaneous withdrawal from Korea of all foreign troops—Communist and United Nations—once a truce is signed.

Agreement by the U.S. that it and the other United Nations would not try to stop South Korea from uniting the country after a truce.

Washington informants said this last point did not necessarily mean the Rhee government plans a military drive to unify Korea. They did not rule out such a possibility, however.

More Than 400 Canadians Attend Service In Abbey

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Here are some of the principal Canadian aspects of today's Coronation:

More than 400 Canadians were in Westminster Abbey. Prime Minister St. Laurent was in a choir stall only a few yards from the Throne chair in which the Queen received homage after her crowning.

Norman Robertson, Canadian High Commissioner, carried the standard of Canada in the Queen's procession.

Other leading members of Canada's official delegation included Chief Justice Thibeaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court, government ministers headed by Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Trade Minister Howe, leading parliamentarians such as Opposition Leader George Drew, the Speaker of the Commons, W. Ross Macdonald; senators, several provincial premiers and many other prominent personalities.

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp general to the Queen, rode on horseback in her procession. Four other officers were members of the Queen's escort of officers from Commonwealth contingents.

ACT AS USHERS

"Working" Canadians in the Abbey included four gold staff officers, who were on their feet continuously from the small hours acting as ushers in the grand manner. They wore evening dress or military uniform and carried gold staves tipped in purple. The officers were Lt.-Col. H. E. C. Price, Quebec City; Louis Couillard, Ottawa; Robert Campbell Smith, Vancouver, and G. C. Crean, Toronto.

Nine Canadians sang with the Westminster Abbey choir, at special invitation. They were Dorothy Allen, of Moncton, N.B.; Ernest Rosser, of Hamilton; Robert Edy, of London, Ont.; Edmund Hockridge, of Vancouver; Simone Flibotte and Clair Duchesneau, of Montreal; Haydn John and Jean Watson, of Toronto, and Mary McCallum, of Vancouver.

Two Canadian bandsmen, Warrant Officers Herbert Jeffery of Long Branch, and Gerald Gagnier of Montreal, were among the trumpeters in the Abbey, sounding a fanfare at the exact moment of the Queen's crowning.

Along the processional route, 336 members of Canada's military contingent were stationed near Canada House. In the prade were another 400 Canadian servicemen, plus a Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment. Watching were many groups of Canadian youth, some in the scarlet blazers of the Commonwealth Youth Movement, some in Boy Scout and Girl Guide uniform, some in neat, blue, tailored suits provided by biscuit millionaire Garfield Weston, of Toronto, for his annual transatlantic group of Canadian and British girls.

Thousands of other Canadians, resident here or in London specially for the Coronation, watched the proceedings from vantage points or by television. Among them was a blind war veteran, 36-year-old David Ferguson, of Toronto, whose wife, Patricia, provided a running commentary.

COMPOSED ANTHEM

Other aspects of the Coronation of special interest to Canadians:

For the first time, one of the homage anthems was contributed by a Canadian composer, Dr. Healey Willan of Toronto. It is entiled O Lord, Our Governor, and is the only one of the five homage scores by a living composer.

Lady Mary Baillie-Hamilton, daughter of the Montreal-born Countess of Haddington, was one of the Queen's six maids of honor. Dressed in white with gold paillettes sparkling from the bodice of their sleeveless dresses, the maids of honor carry the Queen's long train.

Field Marshal Earl Alexander, former Governor-General of Canada, carried the orb, a six-inch golden globe surmounted by a cross, part of the Coronation regalia with which the Queen is invested. His page was his 11-year-old son, Brian, dressed in black and silver with knee breeches.

Twenty-four RCAF Sabre jet pilots participated in a flypast following the Coronation.

Armills, bracelet-like articles revived for this Coronation after a lapse of 400 years, have been provided by Commonwealth governments, including Canada.

And one final touch: The ermine which trimmed the Queen's crimson robe was purchased at a Winnipeg auction last January.

OMEMEE (ENS) — The May meeting of Omemee and District Horticultural Society was preceeded by a visit to Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt's tulips on the farm of W. D. Weir, one mile west of the village.

Later members met in the United Church basement for business and a social time. A letter from the department concerning the junior essay contest was read, and filed for presentation at the junior meeting to be held on the evening of June 25. It was agreed that transportation to the district picnic at Bobcaygeon on June 17 would be provided by the society. Those who wished transportation, and those with available cars, were asked to report to convener Mrs. D. Hicks.

The flower service will be held June 21 in the United Church, Rev. C. Richmond of Christ Church to deliver the address. Owing to the backwardness of the season, the date of the August Flower Show was moved on one week to August 25.

Three interesting films were shown by W. D. Weir, featuring a seaside holiday in Nova Scotia, Wild Life in the Canadian West, and scenes associated with English Literature. Mr. Weir also led in a sing-song, after which lunch was served.

Cucumber seeds were distributed to the members as a door prize.

Norham Group Enfertain WA's

WARKWORTH — (ENS) —The Norham Group of the WA of St. Paul's United Church were hostesses Thursday afternoon at the Norham Community Centre to the Oak Heights and Morganston Women's Associations with a good attendance from all the groups.

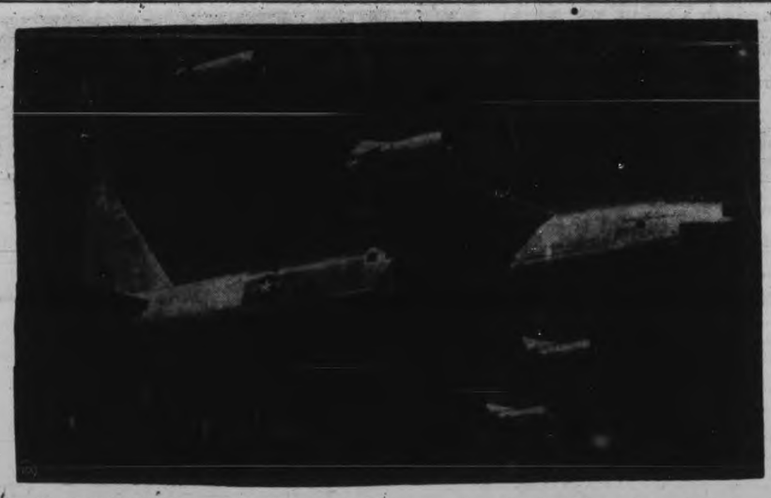
Mrs. A. E. Harwood, president of the Norham group welcomed the guests. Mrs. P. Windover, secretary, conducted the roll call A Good Thought for the Day. A short business meeting was held.

The program was provided by the two visiting groups. Mrs. A. McMurdo, program convener of the Oak Heights group introduced the following program items; a reading by Mrs. Clarence Ferguson, Janet Discusses an Age-Old Probem; a vocal solo by Miss Eleanor McMurdo, Londonderry Air, accompanied by Mrs. L. Tucker; humorous reading by Mrs. A. P. Sayles, I Love Being Middle-Aged.

Mrs. Carman Bray was program convener for the Morganston group. She introduced Miss Margaret Phillips, who sang accompanied by Mrs. Glen Clark, Mrs. Robert Robison, who gave a reading, The Care of God; Mrs. Glen Clark, who played a piano solo; Mrs. Don Massey, who gave a humorous reading, My Operation; and Miss Eunice Turney, who sang, In The Garden of To-Morrow.

Mrs. Harwood thanked those who took part in the program and the meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction.

A lovely lunch was served by the hostess group and a social period enjoyed.



Mrs. H. George, president of the Morganston group and Mrs. L. Tucker, president of the Oak Heights group expressed the appreciation of the visiting associations.

Brampton Band To Visit Hastings

HASTINGS (ENS).—A committee of combined council and other organizations of the village has planned a parade starting at the Town Hall at 1.00 p.m. on Tuesday. Children from both schools and some of the rural schools will lead the parade. The Tyro boys and the Trail Rangers are also marching as a group, as are the Legion. A band from Brampton will lead the parade and provide entertainment later in the day.

Immediately following the parade, a short religious ceremony will be held in the park, with the ministers of the churches in charge. The school children are planning songs and drills to follow the ceremony, and the rest of the day will be given over to races for the children and ball games.

To complete the day, there will be a dance in the Riverside pavilion

THE EIGHT-JET B-52: In-flight refuelling gives it an intercontinental capability.

B-52 Exceeds USAF's Hopes, Critics Score Range, Cost

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — America's newest weapon, the Boeing B-52 eight-jet long-range bomber, is exceeding air force hopes in practically every aspect of performance.

But like the giant B-36, which it will soon be replacing, it also holds promise of becoming another controversial aircraft.

Critics of the B-36 have already begun tailoring their old complaints to fit the B-52. They say that it does not have the range to give it intercontinental capabilities. Although the range of the B-52 is a secret, the air force has said that it was built for in-flight refueling, which could give it an intercontinental capability.

Critics claim that it is more expensive than it is worth, that the same money could buy better defense in other weapons. Testimony before Congress reveals that the first 100 B-52s will cost about $380,000,000.

There are reports that Secretary of Defence Charles E. Wilson might agree with the cost appraisal of the giant bomber. He is said to believe that the fact that Russia now has atomic weapons calls for more emphasis on defensive, interceptor aircraft, rather than on offensive bombers.

At the recent open atomic test at Las Vegas, the Aair Force went out of its way to point out that its fighters could carry improved small A-bombs. This raises the question as to whether the Air Force should buy any more bombers at all, or perhaps concentrate on designing long-range fighter-bombers.

Still another question is whether to wait and concentrate on piloted supersonic bombers now being designed, as the interim weapons until pilotless bombers and guided missiles are perfected.

The Air Force has announced that the Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corp, now has a contract for the design of a supersonic bomber. It is believed that it might be a four-engine, delta-wing type.

• • •

Some sources say the B-52 has supersonic capabilities. It is reported that the frame of the B-52 can stand the shock of flying faster than the speed of sound and that expected improvements in power could eventually give it that ability

The two big surprise factors in the B-52 have been the performances of its J-57 Pratt & Whitney jet engines and the lack of "drag" or friction in the air resulting from the plane's "clean" design.

The J-57 is reported to have more than 10,000 pounds of thrust, or nearly twice that officially listed for the engines now pushing Sabre jets in Korea, for instance. There are eight J-57s on the B-52.

One J-57 has already been proved as powerful as four 3500-horsepower Wasp Major engines, the most powerful piston engine ever made for a plane. In addition, the engine is said to be setting new records in fuel economy, vital in giving the bomber longer range.

• • •

The J-57 is also going to power a new line of Air Force and Navy fighters which will be in the supersonic class. It is hailed as the first American jet engine to exceed performances of any British jets.

B-52 test pilots say the plane is extremely easy to handle and very manoeuvrable. Its official ceiling is given as above 50,000 feet, more than a mile higher than the B-36. It can land at a slower, safer speed than the smaller B-47.

The B-52 is slightly smaller than the B-36. Its wingspan is 185 feet, 45 feet shorter; fuselage length is 153 feet, nine feet less; its tail, 48 feet high, is a little more than a foot higher than the tail of the B-36.

Production of the B-52 in Boeing's huge Seattle plant is proceeding satisfactorily, although it is not expected that the B-52 will begin replacing B-36s until late next year.

One of the reasons given for the plane's early success in the air is the fact that the Air Force and Boeing have a lot of experience from the development of the Boeing B-47 medium bomber, now in mass production in several plants and already in operational use. So far the B-52's performance has been so good that its testing program has gone along about twice as fast as it normally does for a new type plane.

Says Province Lacks Planning

Liberal House Leader Farquhar Oliver criticized the "timid and hesitant" leadership given Ontario planning, in a radio broadcast Monday night. He called for an equalization of hydro rates which would give some incentive to industry to decentralize.

As the province grows, industry is being more centralized, with most new industries locating near the present large centres, Mr. Oliver said. Instead of making some effort at planning, the government is sitting idly by and watching the congestion grow.

Dealing with conservation, the Liberal leader urged the government to produce a land use policy that would focus attention on the individual farm.

Throughout the province, Mr. Oliver said, there are many small dams which are falling into disrepair. While the government has taken part in the building of huge conservation dams, he said it had ignored the small dams which help form basic reservoirs. At the same time, these small dams formed beauty spots which would aid the tourist industry, he said.

Whaling Costly

OSLO (CP)—The seven Norwegian expeditions that took part in the recent Antarctic whaling season returned with a total production of 130,000 tons of whale oil plus sperm oil and by-products. Experts said net profits are expected to be well below last year because of high operating costs.

Diesel Autos

OSLO, Norway (CP)—Because of the high gasoline tax in Norway, new motor-cars powered with diesel engines attracted attention at the spring auto show here. Experts said the oil-using diesels would save large amounts for taxi-drivers and others travelling many miles each year.

Court Prohibits Hydro Wires

TORONTO — Moore Park residents won another round Monday in their battle against Ontario Hydro when the Ontario Appeal Court unanimously upheld a court order restraining Hydro from erecting high tension wires across their properties.

But the way was opened for Hydro to win the final round because the appeal court varied Mr. Justice McLennan's order in such a way that Hydro will be able to go ahead when it obtains Cabinet consent by the proper method.

The injunction was granted several weeks ago and it restrained Hydro from entering upon the property of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown James, of 193 Rosedale Heights. Dr. and Mrs. James are members of the Moore Park Ratepayers' Association.

Chief Justice Pickup held that the James' land had not been lawfully expropriated and he also declared that the June 4 expropriation notice by Hydro was null and void. Messrs. Justices Laidlaw, J. K. Mackay, Gibson and F. G. MacKay agreed.

Moore Park ratepayers have said they have no objection to power lines crossing their properties underground, but they have been fighting to protect a row of trees that would have to be cut down if overhead towers were erected, thus lowering the value of their land.

Fancy Lamps

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—A company here is negotiating a contract with the Sheik of Kuwait for 1,000 bronze lamp standards worth £250 each. An official said the posts wanted for the Persian Gulf city were "fantastic," and many more times expensive then steel or concrete.

Charles Behaves As True Prince At Abbey Service

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP)—At that golden moment for which he, too, is destined, the little boy was indeed a prince royal today.

The Duke of Cornwall, Prince Charles of Britain, heir to the throne, did his mother proud. He was a good boy.

It was only sometime later, after the crown of St. Edward had been placed on the head of Queen Elizabeth II and even after his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, had advanced to the altar for communion—it was only then that the blonde darling of Britain became the four-year-old a four-year-old can be.

Prince Charles sucked his thumb.

His granny, Queen Mother Elizabeth, to whom was given the warm but perilous task of minding the youngster, whispered quick words to him and his royal dignity returned. Charles again was a dutiful son and heir.

In the abbey, from a seat saved for him, two chubby hands grasped the gallery ledge and two wondering eyes peered over the railing at the wonderful things going on before him. Then the Queen Mother gave him something to stand on and Charles had a better view.

His arrival in the abbey caused a great craning of 7,500 necks.

His aunt, Princess Margaret, helped answer the questions that spring from childhood. The questions became more and more abundant, but at the climactic moment of crowning, there was not a better boy in all Christendom.

Later the young prince became noticeably the liveliest person in the royal gallery. He became seriously engaged with the problem of a handkerchief that he found projecting from his left sleeve. He examined his hands with great diligence and care. He gazed most thoughtfully at his thumb which had found his mouth.

Audience Of 250,000,000 Hears Or Sees Coronation

LONDON (Reuters)—An estimated world audience of nearly 250,000,000 tuned in today for British radio and television broadcasts of the Coronation.

It was the largest operation in the history of the BBC, culminating more than a year's planning.

In the abbey and along the 6½-mile procession route 100 radio commentary positions described the drive and ceremony.

BBC engineers Monday had made final tests with four concealed microphones hidden in the base and head of the Coronation chair in Westminster Abbey. These four microphones were to carry most of the Coronation service, including the Queen's responses.

At King George VI's 1937 coronation, there were two broadcasts inside the abbey to describe the ceremony.

EXTRA POSITION

This time, the Duke of Norfolk, responsible for arranging the Coronation, allowed the BBC an extra commentary position for a French commentator, mainly to meet the needs of French Canada.

The widest television coverage ever seen in Europe made instantaneous viewing of the Coronation possible in four countries—Britain, France, the Netherlands and parts of West Germany.

Arrangements were made for films of the television broadcast to be sped across the Atlantic for viewing in Canada and the United States tonight.

Four technicolor movie cameras were placed in galleries in the abbey, to make films for use later in movie houses.

500 COPIES OF FILM

More than 500 copies of the film, "A Queen is Crowned," with commentaries in eight languages, will be distributed.

Narrator of the English-language version will be actor Sir Laurence Olivier. Script will be by British poet-dramatist Christopher Fry.

Pro-British Homes Stoned

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (Reuters)—Nationalists in the six counties of Northern Ireland today stoned pro-British homes and ripped down Coronation decorations.

The attacks were a Coronation-eve climax to weeks of nationalist campaigning against the titles of Queen Elizabeth II, which proclaim her Queen of British Northern Ireland.

Windows of houses flying the Union Jack in Londonderry town and surrounding areas were smashed by the anti-British nationalists.

At Cookstown, County Tyrone, nationalists objected to street decorations. Today they were found torn down. The town council had them replaced under police protection.

JET COMET ARRIVES—The first jet transport in service with any air force, the record-smashing comet jet airliner arrives in Ottawa after being flown from Britain. The first pure jet transport to fly the Atlantic, her flying time was 10 hours and 20 minutes. The $1,200,000 plane will go into service with the RCAF.

MORE ABOUT—

Elizabeth Crowned

A tense, historic pause— then pent-up emotions cascaded in a flurry of coronets, a fanfare of trumpets, triumphant cries of "God save the Queen."

Outside, beneath grey skies, the cry was taken up by millions who had watched the Queen's progress to the ancient abbey and waited to see her emerge again as the crowned Queen.

GUNS BOOM OUT

The guns of London boomed out an announcement that the Queen had been crowned.

The seven-pound crown remained on the Queen's head only for the moment of the crowning. Then it was replaced with the lighter crown of state, which she was to wear in her triumphal procession through London this afternoon.

Eight minutes after the crowning, Elizabeth was enthroned.

Prince Charles, wearing a white satin suit, sat with his grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, and his aunt, Princess Margaret. He talked to them, in a low voice, and seemed at his liveliest.

The climactic moment—the crowning—came after the ceremony had been under way more than an hour. In the earlier stages Elizabeth had been recognized as the "undoubted Queen," taken her oath on the Bible, and then been anointed in the ceremony that dedicates a ruler to the Church.

MOST SYMBOLIC ACT

The placing of the crown upon the Queen's head was, to ordinary people, the most symbolic act in the solemn three-hour service of dedication and consecration, the compact in which a nation and a Commonwealth accept their monarch, and the monarch accepts the people's law.

It was one of the happiest coronations in Britain's history, and one which for the first time literally fulfilled the words of the Coronation rubric: crowned "in the sight of the people." Millions, in Britain and North America and other countries, saw the service on television.

The crowning ceremony came as Elizabeth II, showing no sign of strain, received the emblems or regalia of royalty—colorful symbols dating from the age of chivalry. At this stage she wore a pall of cloth of gold, a shimmering robe of such richness she seemed a slender figure of flame.

Surrounded by her bishops and her peers and gentlemen of heraldry, Elizabeth was the centre of attention, her robe the most brilliant in all this glittering assembly.

SAYS PRAYER

The Archbishop of Canterbury first said the prayer of benediction, starting with the words, "O God the crown of the faithful." Then he received from Very Rev. Alan Don, dean of Westminster, St. Edward's crown, believed to contain gold from the original crown saintly Edward the Confessor wore nearly 1,000 years ago.

Arms outstretched, lifted high above the Queen's head, the archbishop then slowly lowered the heavy crown and placed it in position. Then came a heart-thudding pause, and the voices of 7,500 guests broke loose in the cheer, "God save the Queen." Bells rang out and trumpets sounded.

The Queen was crowned as she sat in King Edward's chair, dating from 1308. This faces the high altar and is slightly to one side of the theatre, the central space in the abbey containing the throne on which the crowned Queen later received homage from lords spiritual, royal dukes and lords temporal.

A tone side of the Queen were six maids of honor. All wore white sleeveless dresses thickly studded with gold paillettes.

RICHLY GARBED FIGURES

All round the theatre, bounded by the four tall brown pillars of Westminster Abbey, were ranged the richly-garbed figures of those with a part to play in the ceremony—the Dukes of Edinburgh and Gloucester and Kent in crimson chairs near the throne, officials in medieval costume clustered in the four corners, and hundreds of peers and peeresses watching from the transepts, their own finery rivalling that of the actors in this passion play of monarchy.

Queen Mother Elizabeth, who was with her late husband, George VI at his Coronation in 1937, wept silently.

ENTHRONEMENT FOLLOWS

After the crowning came the enthronement as bishops and peers, many twice the age of the 27-year-old Elizabeth, made pretence of lifting their sovereign into the throne. And then another thrilling moment, as the Queen's leading subjects—first the archbishop, then the Duke of Edinburgh and peers of the realm—climbed the steps of the throne to pay homage.

The Duke, wearing robes over the uniform of an admiral of the fleet, rose from the crimson chair he occupied for most of the ceremony and calmly ascended the steps. He touched the crown on his wife's head, kissed her cheek and retraced his steps to the chair.

With the Duke of Edinburgh at her side, the sovereign had ridden in the traditional golden Coronation coach from Buckingham Palace to the abbey for the ceremony. The hushed throngs of 7,500 inside the abbey, many of them weeping, saw Elizabeth go through the religious ceremony with the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by 30 high clergy of the Church of England.

2 MILLION JAM STREETS

Outside, 2,000,000 or more Britons and visitors jammed the streets of a five-mile route laid out for the Queen's triumphal return to Buckingham Palace.

The route from Buckingham to the abbey was little more than a mile. The smiling sovereign, lovely in the crimson velvet robe of state that covered her elaborately embroidered gown, nodded and raised her hand continually to the wildly enthusiastic spectators as the great coach rumbled down the Mall at a walking pace of three miles an hour.

The Queen showed only slight signs of nervousness. She smiled and spoke to her husband as tremendous deafening shouts went up. The eight matched Windsor greys pulling the coach majestically toward the abbey seemed unmoved by the clamour around them.

A steady roar from the packed throngs followed the gilded coach through Trafalgar Square, down Northumberland avenue and over the Victoria embankment to the Houses of Parliament and the abbey. A great cheer went up as the Duke of Edinburgh helped his wife from the coach and they entered the abbey annex.

PROCESSION THROUGH ABBEY

Within a few minutes the Queen's procession began winding through the long nave of the abbey.

The prime ministers of the Commonwealth then filed in with Sir Winston Churchill, his head solemnly bowed, first in line. The Duke of Edinburgh moved to his chair.

Then came the Queen. She walked slowly and solemnly down the long nave, her head slightly bowed as if in prayer. Her hands were clasped before her. As she emerged into the choir, the young voices of the Westminster School scholars rang out a heralding cry in Latin— 'Vivat Regina Elizabetha" (Long live Queen Elizabeth).

Preceding the young monarch was the Archbishop of Canterbury in a robe of cream and gold with leaf-green embellishments.

The Queen walked to the chair of estate and knelt in prayer.

INTRODUCED AS QUEEN

The archbishop began the service of recognition, introducing Elizabeth as the "undoubted queen." She took her oath, swearing to it upon the Bible. The archbishop anointed her with holy oil "as kings, priests and prophets were anointed." The Queen received her regalia—the sceptres, the orb, her ring, various swords and the imperial robe.

Then came the crowning and the enthronement, followed by a service of homage. The archbishop and the Queen's husband led the homage, with the Duke of Edinburgh swearing his fealty to his wife as Queen.

The sun broke out for part of the ceremony, after a sodden morning that chilled the thousands of spectators awaiting the main procession.

TREMENDOUS OVATION

When the Queen and the Duke left Buckingham Palace a tremendous roar went up from the massed thousands nearby. The Queen, in her crimson robe of state, continually waved and smiled as her four-ton coach, resplendent in gold and drawn by eight grey horses, approached the abbey. The Duke joined in acknowledging the cheers.

Preceding the Queen to the abbey were Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the Royal Family. Also in the crowd of 7,500 were Prime Minister Churchill, Prime Minister St. Laurent, the prime ministers of the other Commonwealth nations, and representatives of foreign governments.

For her Coronation, the young monarch wore beneath her various royal robes a white satin gown, embroidered in pearls, crystals and diamonds with the symbols of 11 Commonwealth nations, including the maple leaf of Canada. The gown had a molded bodice cut square over the shoulders but curving to a slightly-heart-shaped centre over the bosom. The sleeves were halfway to the elbow and the skirt was full and flaring.

The bodice was encrusted with a delicate lattice-work of seed pearl and crystal. An embroidered band of golden crystals, graduated diamonds and pearls bordered the bodice top, sleeves and extreme hem of the skirt. The only design to appear above the waistline was a diminutive version of the pale pink tudor rose on each sleeve.

Worked in bands of embroidery around the slightly trained skirt were emblems of the commonwealth nations.

The Queen's accessories included long gloves and a diamond necklace.

QUEEN MOTHER IN WHITE

The Queen Mother's gown also was of white satin. It was embroidered all over with a design of delicate, trailing ostrich feathers decorated with gold, silver and tiny diamond-like jewels. Princess Margaret wore a white satin gown with a fitted bodice, square neckline and very full skirt. It was richly embroidered in English medallion design.

The guests included 30 representatives of royal families from countries other than Britain. No sovereign kings or queens were present, however, since it is against tradition for an independent monarch to attend the crowning of another.

The Queen began her Coronation Day with a cup of tea and a prayer. She awoke early, about 6:30 a.m. BST (1:30 a.m. EDT). Her maid delivered her usual tray of tea.

CROWDS POUR IN

Three hours before the scheduled arrival of the 27-year-old sovereign at historic Westminster Abbey, the crowds still poured into the heart of the city at the rate of 4,000 a minute.

Damp and cold but in an unquenchable holiday mood, they talked joyously of the news that the British expedition has conquered for the first time Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain. Some hailed it as an unmistakable sign of a new era of British greatness, another "Elizabethan age."

Meanwhile, the vanguard of 7,500 nobles and notables invited to witness the crowning converged on the abbey to take their places. Peers and peeresses in colorful robes began arriving at 7 a.m. and more than 1,000 were in their seats half an hour later.

Promptly at 7:55 a.m. the lord mayor of London left his official residence in the first of nine formal processions to the abbey.

The lord mayor, Sir Rupert De La Bere, lives in Mansion House in the City.

His 50-minute drive in a coach led along the Victoria Embankment of the Thames, jammed with 60,000 cheering school children.

VISIT WITH CHILDREN

At Buckingham Palace the Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, after breakfast visited their two excited children in the royal nursery.

Plans had been made for Prince Charles, 4, to drive to the abbey by a secret route to see the crowning of his mother. Little Princess Anne, 2, had to be content with watching the sights from the palace windows.

At Trafalgar Square, the only spot in London which the Queen's procession passes three times, the great mass of spectators was packed solidly under the towering Nelson Monument. Hundreds of cardboard periscopes sprouted everywhere in the rear ranks.

Thousands more packed the Mall 10 deep, from Buckingham Palace to Admiralty Arch.

All along the route first aid units had casualties to deal with—mostly women and children fainting.

One first aid man said: "We have stopped counting now."

The crowds were so thick that many persons had no hope of seeing the procession.

Some, after a long journey into the city, gave up and went home, either to join millions in seeing the Coronation on television or hearing it on the radio.

ROAR GOES UP

A roar went up from the crowd at 8:10 a.m. when police opened the gates of the Admiralty Arch leading from the Mall into Trafalgar Square. The sun came out just long enough to light up Buckingham Palace, three-quarters of a mile away, with a greyish glow.

Princes Charles and Princess Anne peered out of a palace window, but were gone so quickly most of the crowd missed them.

The first touch of the pageantry for the tens of thousands waiting outside the palace came when a long file of Grenadier Guardsmen in bearskin hats and grey raincapes marched up to line the Mall.

The traffic was so thick outside Westminster Abbey that some of the arrivals had to queue up to get inside.

Some peers had difficulty handling their regalia. One stumbled getting out of his car. Another dropped his coronet and a soldier scrambled to retrieve it for him.

On the dot the Yeoman Warders of the Tower of London marched into the abbey annex for their traditional Coronation position lining its walls.

CLOSED TO ADMISSION

The doors of the abbey and annex were closed to further general admission at 8:30 a.m. Most of the supporting company was in its place and the show awaited its star, the Queen.

The lord mayor in his gold coach behind six beautiful bay horses arrived at the abbey at 8:45 a.m. He was escorted by a detachment of pipemen of the Honorable Artillery Company in scarlet uniforms with silver facing.

The motor car procession of minor members of the Royal Family, most of them cousins of the Queen, left Buckingham Palace dead on schedule at 8:40 a.m. The group included the Earl of Harewood and his Austrian-born countess, and Countess Mountbatten, aunt of the Duke of Edinburgh.

Prince Charles, Princess Anne and an unidentified little boy appeared at a palace window to see this first royal party off. Charles wore a light yellow coat over a cardigan sweater.

CROWDS CHEER LUSTILY

The crowds at the palace cheered lustily as a colonel of the Guards rode up and ordered the troops lining the route to take off their raincoats. The rain had stopped by now. A ribbon of scarlet tunics unfurled down the line as the Guards removed their waterproofs.

Another shout went up for a workman who suddenly appeared on the Mall riding a bicycle. He cheerfully doffed his hat and bowed from side to side as he cycled around Victoria Monument and vanished from the route.

The procession of members of the Royal Family, led by the Earl and Countess of Harewood, began arriving at the abbey at 8:55 a.m.

They were preceded by Aneurin Bevan, who leads the left wing of the Labor party. Bevan, dressed in a dark lounge suit, took his seat next to a bishop.

Viscount Montgomery arrived with his field marshal's uniform shrouded with the mantle of the Order of the Garter. He exchanged pleasantries with his boy page, Nicholas Wright, and they both smiled.

READY FOR ANYTHING

The crowd, ready to cheer anything, sent up a roar for a meek little man who turned up outside the abbey with a cart of sand which he strewed on the street to provide better footing for the horses. He was unperturbed.

Police were forced to close some of the street barriers along the route from the palace to the abbey as the crowd jamming became intense toward 9 a.m.

Casualties among the crowds mounted. Along Northumberland Avenue on the procession route from Trafalgar Square to the abbey, 64 persons were treated up to 8 a.m. Another 37 received medical attention along Whitehall street. One man caught in the surging crowd suffered a broken leg.

The procession of 75 cars bearing royal and other representatives of foreign states set out from St. James's Palace at 8:50 a.m.

Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and Lady Churchill were cheered wildly as they left 10 Downing street, his official residence, by car for Buckingham Palace.

COLONIAL RULERS

The fourth procession of the day and the most colorful so far left the palace at 9:15 a.m. These were four carriages of colonial rulers.

In the first carriage was the Sultan of Kelentan state, Malaya, wearing brilliant green robes embroidered with gold thread and carrying a kris or curved dagger made from an elephant tusk. He was accompanied by Queen Salote Tupou of the Tonga Islands. Queen Salote is six feet, three inches tall, and weighs 280 pounds. Her ceremonial dress included a loose blouse, ankle-length skirt and an apron made of brown pandana leaves.

They were followed by the Sultan of Perak, in a brilliant robe of blue with a diamond-studded headdress. He also carried a kris. His travelling companion was the Sultan of Zanzibar.

Then came the Sultan of Brunei and the Sultan of Johore in the third coach and the Sultan of Lahej and the Sultan of Selangor in the fourth. The Sultan of Selangor's garb was worth a king's ransom.

WONDERFUL COSTUME

It included a gold belt studded with diamonds, sarong and loose trousers made of gold brocade, a gold neck chain set with diamonds and a kris crusted with rubies and sapphires.

Minor members of the royal family paraded into the abbey, led by the heraldic Rouge Dragon Pursuivant of Arms and the Portcullis Pursuivant of Arms. In the group was the Duke of Edinburgh's mother, Princess Alice, dressed in the robes of the Greek Religious order to which she belongs.

Not far behind her was the Marquess of Milford-Haven, a cousin of the Queen.

The speaker of the House of Commons, William Morrison, arrived at the abbey at 9:32 a.m. after the day's shortest procession —two minutes from the Commons chambers in a gilded coach drawn by two dapple greys. He got a big cheer.

COACHMAN MAKES ERROR

The speaker's coachman went past the abbey entrance by mistake and had to make a U-turn to reach the right door.

At 9:20 a.m. Churchill led the procession of 10 Commonwealth prime ministers out of Buckingham Palace gates in a line of 11 little two-horse-drawn black coaches known as Clarence coaches The coachmen, in livery of scarlet coat, white breeches and black toppers encircled by a gold band, provided a splash of color.

Churchill wore the uniform of Warden of the Cinque Ports and the robe of Knight of the Garter, an honor recently conferred upon him by the Queen. Round after round of cheers greeted the 78-year-old statesman. He waved and the crowd smiled.

The huge star of the Order of the Garter 3½ inches high, sparkled on Churchill's chest. It was made for his ancestors, the first Duke of Marlborough. Churchill borrowed it from a museum for the occasion.

IN PROCESSION

In the procession with Churchill were Canada's Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, Australia's Robert Menzies, New Zealand's Sidney Holland, Pakistan's Mohammed Ali, Ceylon's Dudley Senenayake, Southern Rhodesia's Sir Godfrey Huggins, Malta's G. Borg-Olivier, Northern Ireland's Lord Brookeborough, India's Jawaharlal Nehru and South Africa's Daniel Malan.

The high-spirited crowd cheered them all with equal good humor.

Seated in the galleries above the choir stalls reserved for the Commonwealth prime ministers were the early Canadian arrivals—Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret wearing his crimson judicial robes. Trade Minister C. D. Howe and his wife, and Opposition Leader George Drew and his wife.

Except for Nehru, each of the Commonwealth prime ministers had an escort of troops from his own country.

ESCORT OF CAVALRY

The seventh of nine morning processions to the abbey—that of Princes and Princesses of blood royal—left Buckingham Palace in three carriages at 9:40 a.m. with an escort of the Royal Household Cavalry.

The order was as follows:

First carriage—Princess Royal, Duchess of Gloucester, Prince William of Gloucester and Prince Richard of Gloucester.

Second carriage—The Duke and Duchess of Kent, Princess Alexandra of Kent and Prince Michael of Kent.

Third carriage—Lady Patricia Ramsay, Earl of Athlone, former governor-genreal of Canada and the Countess of Athlone and Princess Marie Louise.

Behind waving plumes of cavalrymen, the carriages contained most of the surviving grandchildren of Queen Victoria.

Lady Patricia Ramsay is a daughter of Queen Victoria's son, Prince Arthur; Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, is the daughter of Arthur's brother, Prince Leopold, and Princess Marie Louise is the 86-year-old daughter of Princess Helena Augusta Victoria and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

CHURCHILL CHEERED

There was still a trace of rain in the air as Churchill arrived at the abbey. In answer to a prolonged burst of applause, he doffed his three-cornered hat and stood for some moments receiving the acclaim. Lady Churchill, clad in a cherry-red cloak, smiled and waved at his side.

As the time drew near for the appearance of the Queen herself, the crowd pressure became terrific. The police broadcast an urgent appeal for the crowds to quit shoving, especially around the Trafalgar Square entrance to Whitehall where many spectators had fainted.

LIKE FAIRY TALE

Precisely at 10 a.m., a glass coach—like something out of a fairy tale— came through the gates of Buckingham Palace carrying the 52-year-old Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

An escort of Household Cavalry with standards flying rode before and behind the fragile - looking coach.

The crowd went wild as the coach came out from the gates behind a squadron of blue-garbed cavalrymen, led by a scarlet - coated officer and trumpeter.

The crowd at the abbey recognized and loudly applauded Prince Albert of Liege, brother of the King of the Belgians, Crown Prince Akihito of Japan in naval uniform, Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and Prince George of Greece.

Jacob Malik of United Nations fame, official Coronation delegate of the Soviet Union, drew a scattering of cheers. He was clad in black.

The Queen's own procession began forming up in front of Buckingham Palace at 10:03, 23 minutes before her scheduled departure.

Seated with Elizabeth in the coach of state was the Duke of Edinburgh.

SOVEREIGN LOVELY

The sovereign was lovely in the crimson velvet robe of state covering her ornately embroidered white satin gown.

The great coach was driverless. instead, each horse was ridden by a position, and at the head of each animal walked a groom. Behind the coach was a brakeman. By each of the four wheels a guard walked.

The Queen, smiling and radiant, nodded her head and continually raised her hand as wave after wave of cheering marked her progress, at the walking pace of three miles an hour, down the Mall.

Britain's top military and naval brass clattered down the Mall ahead of the coach, some of them uneasily on high-spirited horses disturbed by the roar of the spectators.

ESCORT OF 1,250

The escort to the abbey consisted of 1,250 members of the armed forces. An additional 8,150 men were ready to join in the big parade for the afternoon swing around the centre of the city, after the rites in the abbey.

The state coach carrying the Queen and the Duke came through the palace gates at 10:26 a.m. A tremendous roar went up from the crowd. The queen waved and smiled as the coach rolled along.

The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret were greeted by a trumpet fanfare at the abbey. The crowds rose in the stands cheering wildly. The earl marshal of the Coronation, the Duke of Norfolk, waited to receive them.

The 7,500 persons in the abbey rose as Princess Margaret walked slowly in. The Queen Mother followed.

The Queen, nearing Trafalgar Square, sat smiling and showing only slight signs of nervousness in the big coach beside her husband.

MAJESTIC PROGRESS

The eight Windsor grays, harnessed in pairs, drew the coach majestically towards Westminster Abbey through the sanded strip of road running between a seemingly endless sea of bobbing, cheering people.

The coach passed the square and turned south on Northhumberland avenue down to the Victoria embankment, where a shrill, deafening uproar broke out from the massed stands containing 30,000 school children.

The children stood up waving flags and shouting "The Queen! The Queen!"

The coach turned west on the embankment and proceeded to the abbey amid a steady roar from the crowd.

The Queen and Duke reached Westminster Abbey precisely on schedule at 11 a.m.

The duke got out first and then helped the Queen out.

GOES INTO ANNEX

The Queen went into the annex of the abbey, accompanied by the Duke of Norfolk, earl marshal of the Coronation.

Outside, the national anthem was played and the crowd rose and sang with the music.

A hush fell over the throng in the abbey.

The Queen had less than 10 minutes to spend in the privacy of her retiring room. Her husband, wearing an admiral's full dress uniform under his robes of a royal duke, had the adjoining room.

LEADS PROCESSION

Music welled up softly and G. F. Calvert, the abbey beadle, began leading the grand procession of the Queen through the nave and choir to the steps mounting to the theatre in front of the altar.

Behind him followed chaplains in scarlet cassocks and men of the free churches in robes of black.

Then came Dr. Alan Don, the dean of Westminster. The cross of Westminster was carried before him.

Next came the orders of knighthood with their distinguishing rods and cloaks, led by the members of the Order of the British Empire.

The heralds entered, pacing slowly behind the knights. Next was a sudden change of scene— the bearing of the standards of the nations of the Commonwealth.

Capt. J. L. Dymoke, the traditional "queen's champion," carried the Union Jack. Then came Viscount Montgomery, in the Garter robes, Lord Harlech with the standard of Wales and Lord de l'Isle and Dudley, for Ireland, the Earl of Dundee, for Scotland, and the Earl of Derby, for England.

FOUR KNIGHTS OF GARTER

Four knights of the Garter, charged with holding the canopy over the Queen at her ritual anointing, wore mantles of blue. They were the Duke of Wellington, Viscount Allendale, Earl Fortescue and the Duke of Portland.

Capt. Harry Crookshank, lord privy seal, led in the prime ministers of the Commonwealth, with Churchill, head solemnly bowed, first in the file.

The blaring rumpets stopped and a wave of band music rose as the Duke of Edinburgh moved toward his chair.

Then came the Queen.

In a chorus of young voices came the Latin phrase "Viva Regina Elizabetha! Vivat! Vivat! Vivat!"

This came from the boys of Westminster School, whose traditional right it is to hail the sovereigns at their coronation.

WITH STATELY STEP

The Queen walked with slow and stately step, the long train of her crimson velvet, ermine-trimmed robe flowing out behind in the hands of her six white-clad maids of honor.

Preceding her was the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher. He wore a robe of cream and gold with leaf-green embellishments.

The Queen walked to the chair of state and knelt for a few seconds in prayer.

Many of the men and women in the congregation were weeping openly.

MAIDS OF HONOR

The Queen took her place in the chair of state with her maids of honor ranged around her.

The archbishop approached and the Queen took a position near the chair of St. Edward.

Facing the altar, the archbishop uttered the traditional formula of the "recognition" of the Queen:

"Sirs, I here present unto you Queen Elizabeth, your undoubted queen: wherefore all of you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?"

A great shout of "God save Queen Elizabeth" went up. She had been duly recognized and accepted as queen by her nobles.

Trumpets signalled the acceptance with a mighty fanfare.

The archbishop presented the Queen to each of the other three sides of the theatre. The same cry of "God save Queen Elizabeth" went up. The acceptance was complete, and the Queen moved back to her chair of estate.

The archbishop, approaching and bowing, asked:

"Madam, is Your Majesty willing to take the oath?"

IN CLEAR VOICE

"I am willing," replied the Queen, in a voice which sounded clear but much lower and more subdued than her usual rather high pitch.

The archbishop asked a series of questions to establish that the Queen would use her powers justly. She replied "I will," or "I solemnly promise so to do," or "all this I promise to do."

The Queen then knelt at the high altar. She laid her right hand on the Bible and signed a parchment copy of the oath.

"The things which I have here before promised," she said clearly, "I will perform and keep. So help me God."

She returned slowly to the chair of estate, where the moderator of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland gave her a Bible. The archbishop told her:

"This is the most valuable thing that this world affords."

The moderator added: "Here is wisdom, this is the royal law, these are the lively oracles of God."

The Queen bowed her head and knelt with the whole company of spectators while the archbishop prayed to God:

"Grant unto this Thy servant Elizabeth, our Queen, the spirit of wisdom and government, and that being devoted unto Thee with her whole heart, she may so wisely govern, that in her time Thy Church may be in safety, and Christian devotion may continue in peak: that so persevering in good works unto this end, she may by Thy mercy come to Thine everlasting kingdom through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Our Lord, who liveth and reineth with Thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God for ever and ever."

The voices of a choir of 400 rang out as the prayer ended.

KNEEL FOR COMMUNION

The Queen and the congregation knelt for a communion service.

The archbishop of London read the epistle, from the second chapter of the first epistle of St. Peter, beginning with the 13th verse.

The archbishop of York followed with the gospel from the 22nd chapter of St. Matthew, verse 15. The choir rang out with the creed "I believe in one God."

And now the communion service was interrupted for the rite which the Church of England considers the religious core of the whole Coronation: the anointing.

The choir sang the words:

"Anoint and cheer our soiled face

"With the abundance of Thy grace."

There was a prayer of consecration by the Archbishop of Canterbury and while the choir chanted, the lord great chamberlain, Lord Cholmondeley, walked over to the Queen and with her mistress of robes, the Duchess of Devonshire, untied the cords of the crimson robe of state and removed it.

Underneath the Queen wore a simple white dress with a low V-neck.

TAKES OFF DIADEM

She made her garb still simpler by taking off her diadem and the collar of the Order of the Garter.

The lord great chamberlain and the mistress of the robes helped the Queen into her anointing robe, a simple white garment, and she walked slowly to King Edward's chair.

The Queen sat in the chair and the four lords of the Order of the Garter advanced with a large canopy of cream and gold cloth which they held over her with silver-tipped poles.

The canopy hid the Queen from the view of most spectators.

LEFT FOR CROWNING

At about that moment Prince Charles left Buckingham Palace by car to be present for his mother's crowning.

The dean of Westminster brought the ampulla, an eagle-shaped receptacle which holds the anointing oil. He poured a measure of the oil into the anointing spoon.

The archbishop dipped his fingers into the oil and touched the Queen's hands, breast and the top of her head. He said: "Be thy head anointed with holy oil as kings, priests and prophets were anointed."

SEES ANNOINTIING

Prince Charles arrived at the abbey in time to see the anointing. The congregation was so absorbed in the rites, however, that few saw him appear in the royal gallery, dressed in a white satin suit.

The knights of the Garter marched away with the canopy and the Queen was divested of the anointing robe. Then the presentation of the sovereign's regalia was made, including the spurs, which she touched, and the sword of state, which she held in her hand, the blade upright, her eyes downcast and her face seriously intent.

The archbishop abjured her to use the sword "to do justice, stop the growth of iniquity" and to "punish and reform what is amiss."

The Queen rose from King Edward's chair and walked slowly across to the altar, where she surrendered the sword to the dean of Westminster. In a strange ceremony, Lord Salisbury, who carried the sword in, paid 100 shillings for it, which gave him the right to carry it during the rest of the ceremony.

The Queen, back in King Edward's chair, received the rest of her regalia, including the armills, or "bracelets of sincerity and wisdom;" the orb, a golden ball surmounted by a cross; a sapphire ring with a ruby cross, two sceptres, a glove and an imperial robe.

Presentation of the robe presaged the crowning.

QUEEN CROWNED

The Dean of Westminster carried the crown to King Edward's chair, and gave it to the archbishop, who placed it on the Queen's head at 12:33 p. m.

The assembled nobles burst out with a roar of "God save the Queen" as Elizabeth sat still and silent in the chair, holding up both her sceptres, her head bowed under the weight of the heavy crown.

There was a burst of song from the choir.

A signal flashed from the abbey to the gun salute points in London and the booming of big guns told the metropolis the Queen had been crowned.

Addressing himself to the Queen the archbishop said, in deep tones:

"God crown you with a crown of righteousness, that having a right faith and manifold fruit of good works, you may obtain the crown of an everlasting kingdom by the gift of Him whose kingdom endureth forever."

A solemn "amen" echoed from the congregation.

ACCOMPANY QUEEN

Archbishops, bishops and peers accompanied the Queen as she walked slowly, carrying both heavy sceptres, to the throne.

Standing well back from the five steps leading to the throne, the archbishop said to the Queen:

"Stand firm, and hold fast from henceforth the seat and state of royal and imperial dignity."

Bishops and peers made pretence of lifting their sovereign into the throne. The enthronement took place at 12:41 p. m.

The archbishop was the first to pay homage. He promised to be "faithful and true," and kissed her right hand.

Now the Duke of Edinburgh, as first gentleman of the land, swore his fealty and kissed the Queen lightly on the cheek.

DUKES NEXT IN LINE

The dukes of Gloucester and Kent were next in line, and then came the lords temporal—dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts and barons.

All spoke to the Queen with this formula: "I do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship; and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

Drums sounded, trumpets blew a fanfare and against a welling background of music the congregation shouted:

"May the Queen live forever."

The Queen, almost visibly bowed by the 30 pounds of clothing, crown and sceptres, sat with her head lowered and her eyes cast down.

RESUME COMMUNION SERVICE

The archbishop resumed the communion service. Against the background of soft music the Queen walked to the altar, laid there the orb and sceptres, and took off the crown. She rearranged her fair brown hair, ruffled slightly by the headpiece.

To the archbishop the Queen handed an altar cloth and a one-pound ingot of gold, brought to her by the lord great chamberlain. When these traditional gifts had been accepted, she returned to the throne while the archbishop said a prayer.

After the archbishop had completed the long communion, the Queen again received the heavy crown, the orb and the sceptres, and returned to the throne for blessings. The choir sang the Te Deum Laudamus (O God we praise Thee.)

PRINCE GOES HOME

Prince Charles was led from the royal gallery by a red uniformed attendant for his trip home.

He shook hands and said goodbye to his royal companions in the gallery before he left.

With the choir still singing, the Queen stepped down from the throne, crowned and with the sceptres held upright in her hands, and walked through the theatre preceded by officers bearing the four swords of state.

Accompanied by her maids of honor, the mistress of the robes and the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Queen entered St. Edward's chapel. Her face was somewhat drawn.

HIDDEN FROM CONGREGATION

Inside the chapel she was hidden from the congregation. But the ceremonial program called for her to hand to the Archbishop St. Edward's crown, used only in coronations. Then the rest of the royal regalia was placed, with the crown, on the chapel altar.

The mistress of the robes helped the Queen remove the golden Coronation robe and get into a robe of royal purple for the procession through the city.

With a great trumpet fanfare the procession of notables began forming up to leave the abbey. With another trumpet fanfare, the Queen reappeared.

She now wore the imperial crown, much lighter than the one used in the ceremony. She looked lovely and somewhat refreshed in her robe of imperial purple. She flashed a smile at the Archbishop of Canterbury as they joined the procession.

CARRIES ONE SCEPTRE

The Queen carried only one sceptre this time, the one with the cross, in her right hand. In her left was the orb.

The procession moved slowly along to solemn music en route toward the abbey annex, where the Queen had the chance to snatch a little rest before a 5¼-mile ride around the city.

To the strains of "God Save the Queen" the sovereign passed through the abbey theatre.

SNAP TO SALUTE

Guardsmen snapped rigidly to the salute as the Queen left the abbey to enter her retiring room in the abbey annex.

The Queen looked near tears after the tiring ordeal of crowning.

She seemed almost bowed down by the weight of the state crown she was wearing. Her face was white and drawn. There was not the glimmer of a smile.

Ahead of her remained the long triumphant ride through the rain-drenched capital.

The Duke of Edinburgh preceded the Queen. A bit behind came the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret.

Both appeared emotionally moved and deep in thought.

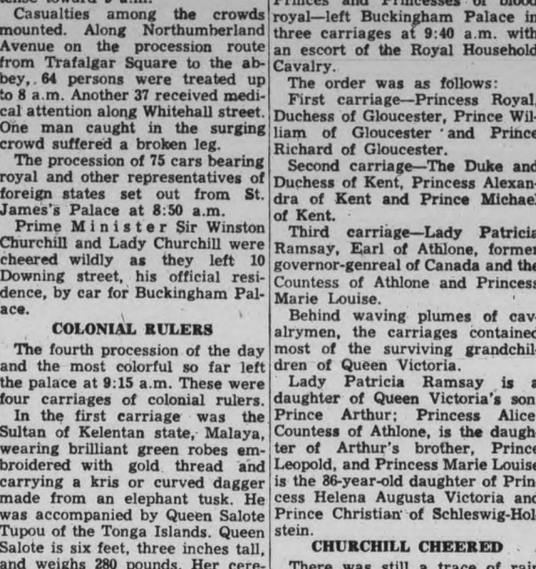
Princess Margaret's eyes were misty and red-rimmed.

The Duke of Edinburgh returned later to the abbey, unescorted and bareheaded for a few words with the earl marshal before again returning to the royal private suite.

COLD LUNCHEON

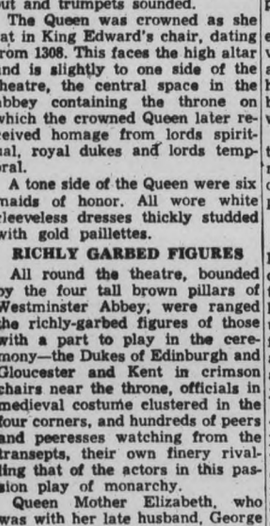
There a cold luncheon had been laid for 11. The meal included smoked salmon, pate de fois gras, sausage rolls and chicken sandwiches with champagne.

Twenty minutes before the Queen was to enter her state coach for the triumphant procession, the great parade got under way.



The Queen's respite was brief. Ahead of her were the ovations of her people who had waited through the heavy rain for the happy moment when they could cheer their crowned sovereign.

She could relax for a short time, satisfied that she had borne so heavy a role with such faultless manner and such magnificent bearing.



SMILE WITH RELIEF

Peers and peeresses smiled with relief to have the long service ended. Several elderly ones lookd extremely weary under the weight of their rich robes and ermine collars. One removed his coronet, set it on a ledge and braced himself.

Then he walked toward his car with wavering step as his robe trailed the blue carpet, dampened by steady rain.

COLD COMFORT—Demonstrating a new technique in heart surgery, Adele Masulis allows herself to be "frozen" in Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago. The patient is packed in shaved ice and the body temperature is brought down to 79 degrees to combat the problem of poor circulation. So far, three patients, who otherwise might have died, have been successfully "frozen."

BEEPER'S A HONKER — Two-year-old Patricia Kittle, of Hutchinson, Kan., has a custom-made "honker" to clear the road when she goes for a ride on her tricycle. Pat wanted a puppy, but the city requires all dogs to be penned up. She settled for "Beeper," and now she has a "honker."

SHINGLES BURN

Sparks from a chimney are believed to have started the fire that burned several patches of shingles on the House of Providence roof Monday afternoon. The fire department, as is their rule with public buildings, came out in full force. However, a single booster line and a handpump were sufficient to extinguish the blaze.

Chief Constable Of Madoc Chosen By Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — A 43-year-old, six-foot one-inch Scot with a record of 14 years on the Glasgow police department, John Rankin, Chief Constable of Madoc, has been appointed Chief Constable of Campbellford.

He will succeed Acting Chief Constable Wilfred Cargin who resigned a month ago after succeeding Chief Constable George Hardy who died earlier this year.

Chief Constable Rankin was selected from five applicants who were given personal interviews at Monday night's council meeting, after 23 written applications had been received. The appointment will take effect June 15 and calls for a salary of $2,800 and $350 car allowance.

After serving on the Glasgow police department for 14 years, Chief Rankin came to Canada from Scotland in 1948. He has a total of four years of police work in Canada, serving on the Kingston police department for a time, and two years and three months as Chief Constable at Madoc.

He is married and has a small family.

Wirephoto Service Brings Pictures Of Day's Events

The Peterborough Examiner shares today in a notable press triumph over the obstacles of time and space in presenting to its readers pictures of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II in Westminster Abbey.

By co-operation of the Canadian Press and the Toronto Daily Telegram, cabled photographs, commonly known as wirephotos, of progressive stages of the British people's rites of enthroning their Sovereign were received in Toronto.

Prints were rapidly made available from the Telegram's studio and were flown to Peterborough by Harry Oakman in 45 minutes.

The enterprise of modern newspaperdom in converting technical invention and its refinement to virtually routine procedure of press make-up was accomplished by the facilities of everday newspaper production, assisted by official co-operation of the authorities presiding over the Abbey ceremony. The Coronation and the printing of the news today framed them in the accentuating frame of historic event.

STREETS VACANT

The local setting of the accomplishment appeared to be almost casual. Peterborough's downtown streets this morning were conspicuous in their comparative vacancy.

The most convenient radio, apart from CHEX, was at the Churchill restaurant, a tiny box that would almost fit into a man's pocket. Matter of factly it echoed the enraptured narrative of BBC reporters from vantage points along the recessional route from the Abbey to Buckingham Palace.

The broadcaster's eloquence caught up every detail of the passing parade for description, interspersed with the accompaniment of bands and not the least the music of the Guards as they went by. It was a splendidly graphic and moving account. One of the personages mentioned by the clear voice of English accent was the Sultan of Zulu, figuratively suggesting the far off people assembled in London in the universal tribute to the Commonwealth's young Queen.

The continuing ovation carried through the transatlantic air reached a tremendous climax with the approach of Her Majesty's gilded carriage. The clock on the restaurant wall in the ordinary environment of a day's approach to the noon hour pointed to 11.55.

ENTERS THE PALACE

Finally, Queen Elizabeth alighted from her state coach and entered the Palace where a familiar voice took up the description which a listener was loth to leave for the prosaic affairs of a Peterborough morning in the dumb silence of its holiday.

The sense of wonder of radio was still a prepossession with the image of the finality of the last detail of Coronation until reaching the Examiner's Hunter St. windows. There, the broadcast of Elizabeth's arrival back at Buckingham Palace precisely at 12 o'clock noon was suddenly thrust out of the imagination by the array of wire photos from the scene of this June 2nd crowning.

In that ephemeral gallery was the essence of this paper's achievement, but one had to stop in thought to rationalize its full significance. In imagination one had seen Her Majesty step down from her coach, still the centre of a vast crowd and attending dignitaries.

And, there, pressed against the glass for the public to see were actual episodes of the day's great events. Wonder gave way to bemusement in the resources of Canadian Press and the Toronto Telegram at the disposal of an Ontario city daily so far removed from the heart of the Commonwealth. It seemed all so matter of fact.

From the envelopes arriving by plane pictures were selected for reproduction and hurried on to the Examiner's photo-engraving department. In the background of

Boy, 8, Falls 25 Feet From Bridge

Rushed To Hospital With Concussion, Fractured Nose, Leg

An eight-year-old boy was in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today following a 25-foot fall from Hunter St. bridge Monday. The lad, Keith Garbett of 344 Mark St. suffered a severe cerebral concussion, fractured nose and fractured left leg.

The boy was climbing under an arch on the south side of the bridge when the accident occured.

He slipped and fell from the arch 25 feet to the side of the river below, landing just at the water's edge.

Rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, the boy was described as being in "satisfactory" condition.

Criminal Cases Adjourned At June Sessions

Neither of the two criminal cases listed for trial at the general sessions of the peace that began Monday will go ahead.

Joseph Harold Redmond, 26, of Peterborough chose speedy trial before a judge alone when he was arraigned on a charge of breaking and entering and theft at the General Medical Clinic, Nov. 9, 1952. The trial will be Sept. 23.

Bail was set at $2,000.

The grand jury on Wednesday are expected to hear the Crown's evidence on a charge of carnal knowledge laid against John Randolph Brown of Lake St. Brown chose trial by a higher court at a preliminary hearing of evidence last week.

Even if the grand jury hear the Crown's evidence and bring in a true bill it is expected that the case will be tried at another sitting.

NO APPEALS LISTED

At the present jury sittings of the county court one jury case is listed and five non-jury. There are no appeals from magistrates' decisions.

In the only action to be tried by jury, Ross Irwin of Lakefield is suing Gordon A. Cameron and his brother, Cecil Cameron, both of White Lake, for $1,079 and costs. He claims that Gordon, the owner, and Cecil, the driver, were responsible for damages he sustained when his car was in collision with their truck on the 9th line of Dummer Township, Sept. 17, 1951.

The Camerons are counterclaiming for $78 damages.

Rockland Airways have entered an action against J. Russell McIntosh of Harvey township, who operates a tourist resort business there. The company—owned by George A. Stephens of Anstruther and Thomas D. Mathias of Peterborough—claim they got a 10-year lease on their base from McIntosh and they built a hangar, ramp, office building and a mooring dock.

ASK DAMAGES

They are asking for damages and an injunction restraining McIntosh from "interfering or trespassing" on the lands. They say that McIntosh stored boats and excess equipment on the property depriving them of its use.

Yvon Castonguay of Toronto is suing Charles Doherty of Hastings for $418 as a result of a two-car crash May 15, 1952, at Wolfe and Stewart Sts. Doherty is counterclaiming for a slightly larger amount, $450.

Bradford-Penn Oil Ltd., Toronto manufacturers and wholesale dealers in lubricating oils and allied products, are suing Vernon E. Forbes of Peterborough for $511 which they claim he owes them on goods shipped. Forbes claims he was not a retail merchant but a salesman and distributor and does not have to pay the company for outstanding customers' accounts.

Victoria and Grey Trust Co., administrators of the estate of the late John T. O'Connell, claim that at the time of Mr. O'Connell's death he owed them $1,119, consisting of a draft and three promissory notes. They are suing for that amount plus five per cent interest from June 14, 1951.

Marguerite O'Connell of 587 Armour Rd., defendant in the non-jury action, claims that her late brother paid $800, the full amount owing.

A complicated lawsuit is one in which William D. V. Norris, a Toronto railway sectionman, is suing Reginald J. Foster and his wife, Mary, both of Harvey township, for $500. He claims the Fosters had beneficial ownership of five acres of land in Harvey that they sold him for $350 but now they won't acknowledge it. The Fosters say the lot in question was owned by Mr. Foster's father at the time of the agreement.

Furthermore, say the Fosters, they delivered $250 worth of lumber to Norris. He refused to pay for it and the lumber deteriorated. They are counterclaiming for $200.

Family Heirloom

A family heirloom more than 100 years old was brought to the Examiner the other day by John Barnes of 729 Frank St. It is a silver coin, intricately engraved, a souvenir of the International Industrial Exhibition of 1851 that opened in the old Crystal Palace in London. Mr. Barnes' great grandfather walked the 200 miles from Leeds to London to see the grand opening. It wasn't because he didn't have enough money to hire a coach; he enjoyed hiking through the English countryside and putting up for the night in country inns. After seeing the grand opening he walked back to Leeds.

Judge Reduces Jail Term To Fine Of $75

Judge John de N. Kennedy modified a conviction on a charge of drunken driving to one of impaired driving when he gave judgement Monday afternoon in an appeal from Magistrate W. R. Philp's decision.

Leslie A. Blakely, 33, of 529 King St. consequently had his sentence reduced from seven days in jail to a fine of $75 and costs or 30 days in jail.

"In my opinion the evidence does not indicate, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Blakely was in an intoxicated condition when driving," said Judge Kennedy. However he accepted the evidence of Crown witnesses to the extent of finding Blakely guilty of impaired driving.

The charge arose out of an accident about 8.30 p.m. on February 7 on Highway 28, two miles north of Peterborough, when Blakely's car left the highway and struck a highway pole. Damage to the car was estimated at $700.

ADMITTED DRINKING

OPP Constable Jack Gray said tire marks extended back 286 feet from the rear of the car along the ditch and shoulder of the highway. He said Blakely was unsteady on his feet, smelled strongly of alcohol, and talked foolishly when he was being taken into Peterborough in the cruiser. In the car he found one empty and one full bottle of beer, two bottle caps; 10 more bottles of beer were in a case in the trunk.

Blakely testified having been drinking during the day but he claimed he wasn't drunk. He said he pulled to the right to avoid a collision when two cars side by side approached him as he drove to Lakefield. The vehicle went out of control and he couldn't remember anything more until the OPP arrived.

Blakely was convicted on the charge of drunken driving on March 3. Edward Fanjoy, counsel for Blakely, filed an appeal and argued the case before Judge Kennedy.

Girl's Condition Still Critical

Delcie Clements, 15, of 373 Bethune Street, is still in critical condition in Civic Hospital, officials said today. She suffered skull and jaw fractures and internal injuries Saturday when she was thrown 35 feet from a motorcycle after being hit by a CPR train on Aylmer Street.

In serious condition is William Olson of Toronto, who received head and leg injuries in a car accident near Bewdley on Friday night.

His wife and two-year-old daughter, also injured in the accident, were reported in satisfactory condition.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

All members, adherents and friends of Grace United Church are requested to attend a meeting to be held Thursday, June 5th, at 8.00 p.m. in Grace Church on Howden Avenue to discuss the immediate erection of a Church Building.

A FOREST OF CEDAR, PINE AND SPRUCE along Highway 7 to Lindsay will commemorate the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. The Peterboruogh Fish and Game Protective Association planted 6,500 trees today on Max Archer's farm about five miles west of the city. John Bell (back left) regional forester, and Hugh Plowman, association president, directed the tree planting and watch as Peter Minicola and Peter Dunford (left to right, front) plant a tree. Cedars, spruce, scotch pine and white birch were among the varieties planted. The forest will eventually ensure water for a large pond south of the highway. Besides offering water for the farm, the pond will also be a supply of water for nearby houses in case of fire.

Premier's Wife Wears Tiara Made In City At Crowning

The work of a Peterborough craftsman was in Westminster Abbey this morning as a part of the ensemble worn for the coronation ceremony by the wife of Ontario's premier, Mrs. Leslie Frost. Meredith Miller, well-known Peterborough jewellery craftsman, made a tiara of small paste brilliants for Mrs. Frost to wear at the coronation.

The tiara was made in an almost complete circle design with a motif in front carried out in baguettes (white brilliants). The tiara is about one and a half inches high, with scroll work on the sides.

Matching ear-rings in the same design were worn by Mrs. Frost.

Mr. Miller delivered the tiara and ear-rings to Mrs. Frost in Lindsay on May 14, six days before she and Premier Frost sailed for England.

The tirara is one of many Mr. Miller has made since he started this work approximately three years ago. He also designed and made necklaces worn at the state dinner in Toronto last year held in honor of the Queen's visit here as Princess Elizabeth.

City Rises To Hear Abbey Rites

Radio, Television Sets On Early, Reception Excellent

Peterborough rose early today at 5 a.m. to hear and see what might be termed The Greatest Show on Earth, at least, for the peoples of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Radio and television sets were turned on all over the city as 20th century developments in transmission made it possible for Canadians at home to follow the coronation ceremony and activities.

Radio reception was excellent and the solemn dignity of the ritual and music in Westminster Abbey was easily followed in Peterborough homes.

Early television broadcasts were also clear but were limited to news flashes and pictures of the Queen.

LISTEN CLOSELY

As the day progressed, citizens stayed near radio and TV sets for rebroadcasts and actual movies of the ceremony and parade. The first movies, which had been flown from London to Montreal by RAF and RCAF jets, came into Peterborough homes at 2 p.m., showed the procession from Buckingham Palace. At 4.15 the first TV broadcasts of the actual ceremony in Westminster came through on television.

The Queen's speech was heard at 4 p.m. on both radio and TV and will be rebroadcast at 6 and 10 p.m. At 8 p.m. TV will again carry the coronation ceremony.

Radio coverage will last until radio stations go off the air tonight and TV broadcasting of the event is expected to last until 1.25 a.m.

City Apartment House Link With Coronation

The coronation ceremony of Queen Elizabeth II today is linked in this city to that of her father, George VI by a Peterborough apartment house.

Sixteen years ago, the year of the late king's coronation, an old Peterborough home at 467 Water St. was renovated and turned into an apartment building. The owner, J. L. P. Smith, who was born in Scotland, decided to call the building the Coronation Apartments, to commemorate the royal event that year.

Today this building, named in honor of the coronation of George VI, is gaily decorated with flags and a picture of the Queen, who was crowned early this morning.

Miami Installs Police, Fire Alarm System

MIAMI Fla.,—A telephone, fire and police alarm system, the first of its kind in the U.S., is being installed here by the city.

Ben Demby, head of Miami's communication division, is the designer of the new system. It will cost Miami taxpayers $45,000 a year, Demby says, but will result in savings running into thousands of dollars.

City Manager E A. Evans commissioned Demby to make a preliminary survey of the present alarm system, and Demby discovered some startling facts.

Many of the alarm boxes were not in working order. Persons living within easy walking distance of them did not know of their existence. Wires had been cut, paint was peeling and the interiors were foul with dirt. Inquiries showed that, in any emergency that required aid, people used private phones.

The telephone alarm instrument is in a weather-tight, spring-hinged metal box. Lifting the receiver from the hook immediately connects the caller with a communications center. A light is flashed on a panel at the center and is locked on until released by the operator, so that, if the caller is confused and gives the wrong address the correct address is known. The address is over the light.

When the caller has contacted the center, he can ask for either the fire or the police department and get instant connection.

Roanoke, Va., is the only city in the U.S. that has a system comparable to the one Miami is instituting. Only difference between the Miami system and that at Roanoke, is that the one being installed here requires the telephone company to assume all maintenance and supervision.

Sing Coronation Hymn Composed By Rector

HASTINGS (ENS)—St. George's Church was beautiful with flowers on Sunday morning for the feast of Trinity and special services preceding the Coronation.

Psalm 145, hymns "All People That On Earth Do Dwell" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and prayers from the Coronation service were used. The anthem "I Vow To Thee, My Country" composed by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice for King George V's jubilee, was sung by the choir. The recessional hymn "All Thanks and Praise to Thee, O Lord" was composed for this Coronation by the Rev. A. J. Patstone.

A Union Jack, presented by the Sunday school, hung from the chancel arch, and the church's own flag, the cross of St. George, presented by one of the members, was hung for the first time on a flag pole erected in front of the church.

NOBLESSE OBLIGE—Queen Elizabeth II smiles down on crowds who line her way from Marlborough Chapel to Buckingham Palace. The palace itself is a focal point for the hundreds of thousands of Coronation tourists who are on a round-the-clock, non-stop sightseeing spree.

Italian Diplomats Split On Treatment Of Reds

By PATRICK CROSSE

ROME (Reuters) — Alcide de Gasperi, 72-year-old prime minister of Italy, has set a record for stability in one of the most uncertain periods of Italy's turbulent history, but he may fail by a few months to beat another of his country's political records.

He has been prime minister for more than 7½ years. His rule has been continuous, though he has six times reshuffled his cabinet.

His only predecessor to approach his record was Giovanni Giolitti, the Liberal leader, who totalled nine years as prime minister, but in five seperated periods between 1892 and 1921.

Dictator Benito Mussolini, who governed Italy for years, began his reign with the title of prime minister, but soon switched it to "Cap del Governo."(Head of the government.)

If the Democratic parties in Italy win the general elections June 7, de Gasperi may exceed, in one continuous period, the total compiled by Giolitti in five.

ROUGH PASSAGE

But there are indications that, even with a Democratic victory at the elections, de Gasperi's future passage will be rough.

One of the chief reasons for this is that his own huge Christian Democrat Party is divided on how to cope with Italy's Communists.

Eight years of post-war democracy and hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. aid appear to have made practically no inroad on the Communists' following in Italy.

De Gasperi has consistently argued that the fact of having to live with and fight the biggest Communist Party outside Russia should not panic all other Italians into abandoning democracy.

He has particularly fought an important faction in his own party which wants to clamp down on the Communists, muzzle their press, imprison their leaders and break their hold on organized labor.

Among the most energetic supporters of the prime minister's policy of whittling away Communist power have been the three minor western democratic parties, the "lay" parties—Social Democrats, Liberals and Republicans.

However, should the forthcoming election strengthen the right wing of the Christian Democrats, there would be a sudden tautening in the already strained relations between the right wing and the "lay" parties and de Gasperi might not be able to hold them all together in coalition.

Those who want De Gasperi removed from power suggest that he should be "kicked upstairs" by being elected president of the republic, in 1954, when President Luigi Einaudi's term is up.

He is far from considering his task as over. He has launched a gigantic land reform program, one of the biggest ever carried out in Europe. But it is still at the height of its critical initial phase.

How To Reduce Building Costs

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—To beat the housing shortage in New Zealand the government is offering the equivalent of $3,000 in cash prizes for ideas on how to reduce building costs.

The government has decided that cheaper homes are the answer to the situation rather than building loans or larger programs of government house building. It believes that if building prices can be brought down the people will rush to build houses of their own, and so beat the shortage more effectively than any elaborate scheme of finance or public construction.

Already it has conducted research into better-organized building, simpler designs and fittings, and greater efficiency and economy. It has called a national housing conference at which problems will be discussed with the building trade.

Now it has decided to enlist the aid of the public by holding national contests of ideas for cheaper building. One series of prizes will be awarded for the best design of a low-cost family home and another for ideas in construction which will lead to lower costs.

The government says it is convinced that costs can be cut by careful design and use of modern experience in planning, methods and materials.

The contests are open to laymen as well as to architects and builders and the government has urged that every member of the public should direct thought and energy to solution of the problem.

Judges in the competitions will be the government architect, the director of housing construction, a master builder and a representative chosen by the National Council of Women.

Announcing the contests, acting Prime Minister K. J. Holyoake declared: "The government puts forward these competitions as a challenge to all concerned with and interested in building."

Pierre Lefevre Stays In Canada

TORONTO (CP)—Pierre Lefevre, invited to Canada to judge Canadian drama, will remain here to participate in it.

Best-known to Canadians as the adjudicator of the Dominion Drama Festival finals in Victoria last April, the French-born actor from Britain will be one of the two directors of the Straw Hat Players, directing a Canadian cast in plays this summer for audiences in the Muskoka resort region of Ontario.

Lefevre, who is still a French citizen, was called up for the French Army in 1940 and when France fell he escaped to the Spanish border, later joining the Polish Army. He sailed with them to England where he became a BBC correspondent, and later marched into Paris with the Free French forces.

ON ENGLISH STAGE

His theatrical career started professionally at London's famous Old Vic.

Mr. Lefevre says most of his stage career has been spent in playing the classics. When the Old Vic started up again following the war, and started its theatre centre school, Lefevre was assistant to the director of the school.

Shortly afterwards he came to Canada for the first time as regional adjudicator for the drama festival.

Since then he has appeared in "The Life of Four Colonels" in London, done film work, which included the soon-to-be released Martin Luther film made in Germany, and worked in television.

After this summer in Muskoka a possible season at London's Royal Court Theatre awaits Mr. Lefevre.

And there will also be his work at Toynbee Hall, where he produces plays in French to aid English school children in the study of the language.

Missionary Wounded In Formosa

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—An elderly Canadian missionary was critically wounded today by two robbers identified by authorities as deserters from the Chinese Nationalist army.

The two suspects were arrested a few hours after the Rev. George MacKay of the Canadian Presbyterian mission was shot.

Doctors said a bullet pierced the 69-year-old missionary's liver. They feared the wound would be fatal because of MacKay's age.

The missionary's 64-year-old wife, Jean, and their daughter suffered superficial wounds.

A cable received in Toronto today confirmed that Dr. MacKay had been wounded but did not mention the attack on his wife or daughter, Isabel.

The cable was received by Rev. E. A. Thomson, clerk of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Isabel MacKay, a nurse from Toronto General Hospital went to Formosa with the World Health Organization about two years ago. Two other daughters, Anna and Margaret MacKay live in Toronto. A son, Ross, teaches at the University of British Columbia.

BORN IN FORMOSA

Dr. MacKay was born in Formosa, son of the late Rev. George Leslie MacKay who left Embro, Ont., in 1871 to found the Formosa mission.

Dr. MacKay studied at the University of Toronto and served in Formosa during the 1930s and later returned to Toronto. He and his wife then went to mission posts in British Guiana and returned to Formosa in 1947 where they have lived since his retirement in 1952.

News Flashed Secretly To U.K.

KATMANDU, Nepa, (Reuters)—News of Britain's conquest of Mount Everest four days ago was secretly radioed to London through diplomatic radio channels to reach the Queen before her Coronation, it was learned today.

The British embassy at this Nepalese capital received the bare announcement from the expedition's radio that E. P. Hillary, 34, New Zealand beekeeper, and the 39-year-old veteran Sherpa guide Tensing Bhutia had conquered the 29,002-foot peak.

FLASHED TO FOREIGN OFFICE

"Hillary and Tensing climbed on May 29. All well," read the message from Col. John Hunt, leader of the 13-man British expedition.

The news was immediately flashed to the foreign office to reach the Queen on the eve of her Coronation.

Full details of how the two climbers reached the summit may not be known for several days. Hunt must write his report and the triumphant climbers are not expected here until the third week in June.

Farmers Visit Malabar Farm

Ford Warren, manager of the Bank of Montreal, will be absent for the rest of the week. He is taking off Wednesday morning at 7 a.m. from the bus terminal with hte group of Peterborough farmers who are off to visit the farm of Louis Bromfield known in the agricultural world as Malabar farm.

The Lawrence Kerr place in western Ontario is down on the list for a call on Wednesday.That day's itinerary also includes Woodstock. Cliff Curtis, an implement dealer is going along. The route crosses Ontario and looks into Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania and New York.

Frank Paterson, agricultural representative prepared the schedule for the four days until Saturday evening. It has been one of the projects of Peterborough Crop Improvement Association for some years but has been postponed in other springs.

The Bromfield place is only one of many calls. Co-operation of agricultural extension service in Michigan has helped to marked out the route.

IRON FIELD RAILWAY—A railway work train carrying a crane and track extends a line of steel across a bridge in rugged country as a 360-mile railway line is built to reach rich iron ore deposits of Labrador-Ungava. Canada's first new railroad in many years, the line will carry ore to Seven Islands, on the St. Lawrence river, with the operation virtually automatic through a complex $4,000,000 communications and control system.

Workers Tired On Job But Loss Not To Blame

By GARVEN HUDGINS

NEW YORK (AP)—Tired on the job? Maybe it's your boss, but scientists don't think so.

Armed with thermometers and stop watches, they've been doing some on-the-job sleuthing for the causes of fatigue. So far, the prime suspects are dust, noise, vibration, smoke fumes and plain ordinary thirst.

Not a boss in the lot.

These workaday bogeys were exposed by physiologists who stood by workers through entire shifts recording pulse rates and temperatures after exertion. Closely they watched the rate at which pulse and temperature returned to "resting levels" after a stretch of work.

If pulse and temperature regain this level too slowly, the psychiologist knows the worker is over-taxing himself. He's on the border of fatigue. His efficiency is on the downgrade.

The aim of the tests, says Dr. Lucien Brouha, of Dupont's Haskell Laboratory of Industrial Toxicology, is to organize work in industrial plants so reactions at the end of a shift are the same or only slightly higher than at the start.

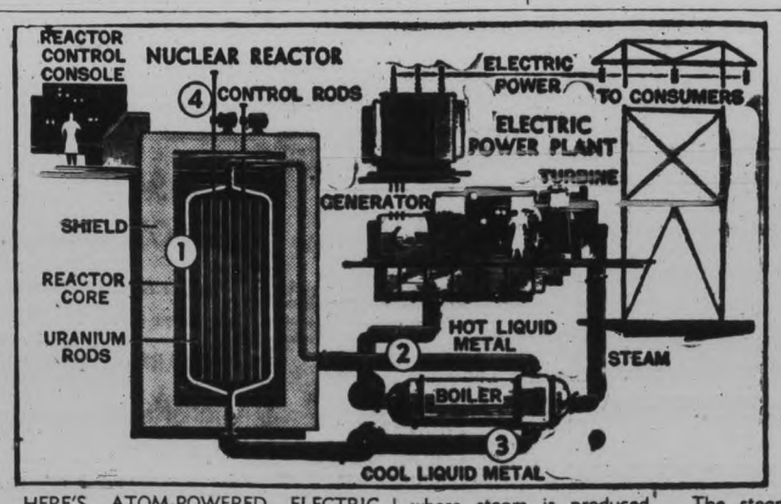
"The tests," he adds, "make it possible to evaluate and classify industrial ob sacorcdn gti oatfgiue potential."

Once this is established, employers can select workers on the basis of their physical fitness for a given job.

In so-called "hot industries," where workers perspire profusely, Dr. Brouha found men who ran "fevers" of 100 degrees and higher on the job.

Increased consumtion of water banished the fevers and helped workers avoid crippling fatigue.

Physiologists have dealt body blows to fatigue by lowering heat and humidity, where possible, and working out a schedule of regular rest periods.



You can get tired, however, just holding your balance. Those aching muscles may not produce mechanical work, but they get a workout holding you up.

New Trend

HALIFAX (CP)—Active interest is being shown in production of hand-wrought silver jewelry and the polishing and setting of Nova Scotia agates, says Miss Mary Black, director of the handicraft centre of the Nova Scotia trade and industry department.

RENT SEALING—Under government orders, workmen in Rome seal up a cave after evicting the family that had been occupying it. Although the government has promised them better housing the family protested the move from what had become their home. So workmen were sent to seal the entrance to prevent their moving back.

OAK TREE PLANTING, MOCK CEREMONIES, MARK CORONATION

Plant Royal Oak Maple Trees At City Schools

A Royal Oak acorn from the British Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries and a small maple tree were planted at both the Prince of Wales School and St. Peter's Boys' School on Monday afternoon with the school bodies of each in full attendance.

At the former school children gathered for the ceremony on the lawn at the east side of the annex. The tree was planted following a few words from the Hon. Harold Scott; he was assisted by president of the student council Keith Latchford and chief janitor J. E. Morrison. Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., planted the Royal acorn.

Short speeches were made by Acting Mayor Doug Miller and principal R. E. Bolton. Prayer was said by the Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints' Anglican Church. President of the Chamber of Commerce John Madden and secretary-manager James Fraser also said a few words. Chairman of the Board of Education Stanley Adamson, member Arthur Pitchford, and assistant manager of the chamber Robert Hamilton were also present.

Some of the officials then proceeded to St. Peter's Boys' School and were joined there by Bishop Gerald Berry. Mr. Fraser acted as chairman. Mr. Scott again planted the maple on the east lawn assisted by Paul Young. Mr. Fraser was helped in planting the acorn by Richard Anthony. Bishop Berry blessed the plantings and said a short prayer. Acting Mayor Miller spoke again briefly and also Mr. Madden.

Each school in the city was provided with a maple seedling tree and acorn for the Coronation anniversary planting and two acorns were sent to the public schools in Lakefield, Omemee, Campbellford, Millbrook and the Lakefield Preparatory School. The Beth Israel Synagogue was also supplied.

Annointing Oil Formula Kept Secret

LONDON (AP)—A coronation secret is the chemical formula of the oil with which the Queen will be anointed today.

In what is regarded as the most sacred portion of the Coronation ceremony, the Archbishop of Canterbury will dip his fingers into the anointing spoon and touch the Queen on the hands, breast and forehead. The ceremony, to be seen by no one else, will be carried out under a canopy held over the pair by four Knights of the Garter.

But no one associated with the Coronation will reveal the precise nature of the oil which is being prepared by a Bond street firm of chemists. There was concern, apparently, that cosmetics manufacturers might make and and market a similar preparation and pretend that it possessed some fantastic virtues.

DESTROYED IN WAR

Formerly the oil was saved from coronation to coronation. Little is needed to anoint one sovereign; a pint would be enough for a long history of kings and queens. But Britains stock of anointing oil was destroyed by German bombers who damaged a portion of Westminister Abbey.

A fresh supply was ordered and Elizabeth II will have no grounds to complain, as did Elizabeth I, that the "oil smelt ill".

The constituents of the oil with which Charles the I was anointed were recorded, and presumably recipes for anointing oil do not vary greatly over the centuries. Charles, brew contained musk civet, ambergris, flowers of benzoin and oils of orange flowers, roses. cinnamon, jasmine and sesame.

Knights Of Malta Parade At Roman Catholic Tribute

LONDON (CP)—Britain's 4,000,000 Roman Catholics paid tribute to the Queen Monday night amid scenes of medieval splendor.

In brilliant pageantry, Bernard Cardinal Griffin, archbishop of Westminster, with the papal ambassador to the Coronation, Archbishop Cento, presiding, sang the mass of Saint Augustine at the high altar of Westminster Cathedral.

Included in the congregation were Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada, Dominion ministers, foreign ambassadors, African chiefs and Catholic peers.

The Duke of Norfolk, who is in charge of the abbey Coronation rites, and is himself a Roman Catholic, represented the Queen.

He walked slowly down the nave to his place two minutes before Archbishop Cento arrived.

With the Union Jack and the Papal Flag flying side by side, the procession of the Papal envoy, preceded by the Papal Guards and accompanied by envoy to Great Britain, followed.

With the pennant of flaming crimson and white cross of Malta, surmounted by a miniature golden crown, Cardinal Griffin entered the sanctuary, preceded by the 18 Knights of Malta in flowing black robes reaching to their ankles, with huge loose sleeves and with red-edged white collars.

It was the first time since the days of Henry VIII that this knightly order, founded in 1118, as spiritual warriors and guides to crusaders in the Holy Land, had escorted a cardinal in England.

The Cardinal wore a vestment of white damask silk with scarlet and gold adornments. In jewelled mitre and white gloves, he carried his crozier and blessed the congregation as he walked.

Behind him moved the cathedral canons and clergy in grey ermine.

The marble mosaic-encrusted altar was hung with white silk embroidered in scarlet and blue.

After mass prayers were said for the Queen, a triumphant Te Deum followed and then the National Anthem.

NBC Jet Plane Turns Back

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Broadcasting Company announced that a Canberra jet flying NBC Coronation television films directly to the United States turned back because of a defective fuel tank.

Capt. John Hacket, pilot of the jet, radioed he was returning when the jet was two hours and four minutes out of London.

NBC chartered the jet in a surprise move in its race with Columbia Broadcasting System to get Coronation films on U. S. TV screens first.

It was a Canberra scheduled for delivery to the Venezuelan government and had nothing to do with RAF Canberras which are flying Coronation films to Goose Bay, Labrador, where they will be flown by RCAF jets to Montreal.

NBC and CBS also have films aboard the RAF Canberras and have souped-up Mustang fighters waiting to fly them from Goose Bay, or Gander, Nfld., to Boston for TV transmission.

Marmora Students Visit Ottawa

MARMORA (ENS) — Thirty-eight scholars of Principal E. C. Prentice's room at the public school travelled by bus to Ottawa on Friday for a tour of the city.

The party visited the government experimental farm, national museum, Royal mint, parliament buildings (ascending the Peace Tower), archives and Veterans' Museum. They also saw the exteriors of Rideau Hall and the residence of the Prime Minister.

The party was supervised by Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

Civil Servants Get 5-Day Work Week

OTTAWA (CP)—The capital's 33,000 civil servants Monday received a Coronation present—a five-day work week for June, July and August. In previous years they worked the short week during July and August only.

Some federal workers, including the national research council staff, already have the five-day week on a year-round basis. The new move brings all employees, at least temporarily, into line.

The government has been pressed to institute the five-day week for all employees on a year-round basis

Dr. Earle Strain Dies In Montana

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—Dr. Earle Strain, a pioneer in establishing the relationship between Rocky Mountain spotted fever and the wood tick, died Monday. He was 87.

Strain and the late Dr. A. F. Longeway, also of Great Falls, began studying spotted fever in Montana's Bitterroot valley at the beginning of the century.

Strain, a native of Flesherton, Ont., reasoned that if the mosquito transmitted yellow fever, the tick might be a spotted fever carrier. A Minnesota pathologist performed a number of autopsies and concluded that spotted fever was conveyed to man by a temporary parasite.

Knowland Would Risk War With Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator William Knowland (Rep. Calif.) said Monday night that if truce negotiations with the Communists collapsed the United States should expand the Korean fighting and take the risk of war with Russia.

Supporting proposals made by Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) and rejected by President Eisenhower, Knowland said he does not believe the Allied armistice offer to the Communists will produce a truce with honor because it would leave Korea divided.

Case Of Leprosy Reported

CALAGRY — (CP) — What is believed to be the second case of leprosy in Calagary's history was discovered last week, city health officials revealed Monday.

The victim, a 21-year-old Chinese who came from Hong Kong, is still in the city and living with his father while health officials await instructions from Ottawa.

Dr. W. H. Hill, medical officer of health, recalls only one other local case. Early in the Second World War a Japanese who escaped from an internment camp was picked up in Calgary suffering from leprosy.

The young Chinese has been in Clagary about six months. Shortly after he arrived he went to a doctor for treatment of what appeared to be an ordinary skin condition on the face.

He failed to respond to treatment and further medical consultation led to the leprosy diagnosis. This was later confirmed by laboratory tests.

The youth had previously been given a clean bill of health by immigration officials.

Find Skin Test Can Tell Person's Sex

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A skin test to tell true sex was reported Monday at the opening of the American Medical Association's annual convention.

It tells whether a baby of mixed-up sex, or hermaphrodite, is really a boy or girl from cells taken from the skin or bone-marrow of the infant.

The answer tells whether the child should be made into and reared as a boy, or as a girl.

This method was described by Dr. C. M. Pomerat, of the University of Texas, Galveston.

Sometimes babies are born having both male and female characteristics. Their true sex is in doubt, and tragedies come because they are wrongly reared as boy or girl.

They may have one female sex gland—an ovary to produce eggs—and one male sex gland—a testis to produce sperm. The question is, are they predominantly boy or girl?

The answer can be had by looking at the chromosomes of ordinary body cells. Each cell of the body contains chromosomes, the necklace-shaped structures carrying the genes or units of heredity.

There's a difference between the male and female chromosomes in any cell. Male cells contain two chromosomes of unequal length. In females, the sex chromosomes form an identical pair.

Dr. T. C. Hsu, an associate of Dr. Pomerat, discovered a way of making tightly-packed chromosomes inside a cell separate, so they can be seen clearly, and be counted and examined. Hsu found the chromosomes will spread out if there is no or little salt in the fluid which is added to cells to keep them alive.

A look at the chromosomes in skin or bone-marrow cells can then tell a surgeon whether he should remove the ovary or testis of the doubtful-sex baby to make the child a complete boy or complete girl, to give the infant the best chance for a happy, normal life.

This is just one possibility in amazing research by Dr. Pomerat and associates.

He can take any kind of human body cells and keep them alive and growing in glass flasks. He can take motion pictures, under a microscope, to see what happens inside these fantastically tiny engines of life.

The movies are made by snapping one picture every few minutes, then running off this film at ordinary motion-picture speed. The events taking two hours to happen inside a cell are seen within one minute.

FOR CORONATION BABIES — As a personal souvenir from Governor-General Vincent Massey, Canadian babies born on Coronation day, June 2, will receive one of these engraved silver spoons. It will not be necessary to apply for the souvenir. Names and addresses of the Coronation babies will be obtained from family allowance board records. The spoons then will be forwarded in gift boxes. It is expected some 1,000 spoons will be sent out.

US Will Base Policies On Friendship Not Fault Finding

WASHINGTON (AP) —State Secretary John Foster Dulles told the U.S. Monday night the Eisenhower administration will base its foreign policies on "friendship—not fault-finding."

Following up a wave of congressional criticism of U.S. Allies, notably by Republican Senators Robert Taft of Ohio and Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, Dulles told a country-wide radio and television audience:

"It profits nothing merely to be critical of others."

In a report on his recent 20-day tour of the Middle East and South Asia, Dulles concentrated heavily on affairs in the troubled Holy Land. He said he found Jerusalem "heavy with hate."

FEAR ZIONISM

He said his tour convinced him the Arabs are "more fearful of zionism than of communism" Zionism is the term used to express the Jews' desire for a national homeland.

Dulles said he found the Arab nations hold a "deep resentment" against the United States for its role in helping create the independent land of Israel.

The secretary said the U.S. will pursue an "impartial" policy in the Middle East to win the friendship of both Jews and Arabs.

The peoples of the Middle East and South Asia, Dulles said, "are suspicious of the colonial powers." He added:

"The United States, too, is suspect because, it is reasoned, our NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) alliance with France and Britain requires us to try to preserve or restore the old colonial interests of our Allies.

"I am convinced that United States policy has become unnecessarily ambiguous in this matter."

"We cannot afford to be distrusted by millions who could be sturdy friends of freedom," he said. "They must not further swell the ranks of Communist dictators."

Dulles gave a detailed account of the tour which took him from the Middle East to India and Pakistan.

He expressed confidence that Britain and Egypt can settle their bitter quarrel over the Suez canal area. He promised that the U.S. will "assist in any desired way" to bring the nations together.

Havelock Men Honor D. O. Post

HAVELOCK (ENS). — D. O. Post, who has been superannuated after completing 31 years of continual service with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company as section man in Havelock was the guest of nonor at a social evening held in the CPR Recreation Club room.

The gathering comprised fellow-workers from the following departments: shops, station, and section, with representatives present from Norwood.

Mr. Post was presented with an electric razor, a wallet and a sum of money. George Carleton, the locomotive foreman here read the address and the gifts were presented by L. Sagriff, the section foreman.

The address referred to the compliments which had been made in connection with the flower garden and lawns around the station which had been under Mr. Post's charge. It also paid tribute to the loyal manner in which he had discharged his many duties during his years of service which was an example that others might well follow.

Mr. Post came to Havelock in December, 1921, and entered the employ of the CPR in May, 1922. He plans to take up residence with relatives in Peterborough in the near future.

Paper Firm, Unions Announce Agreements

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—The northern division of International Paper Company and three AFL unions announced Monday agreement on wage increases for 4,200 hourly-paid workers in three states.

The new one-year contract, effective Monday, provides for a general boost of five cents an hour and an extra five-cent increase for maintenance workers and three-cent raise for maintenance helpers.

The new basic hourly rate for employees of "international Paper plants in Niagara Falls and North Tonawanda is $1.50. Workers at mills in Palmer and Ticonderoga, N.Y., Livermore Falls, Me., and York Haven, Pa., receive five cents less an hour.

Spraygun Nozzle Breaks, Starts Fire

GUELPH (CP)—A $25,000 fire set off when the nozzle of a spraygun broke destroyed a large barn on the farm of William Dolson on the Elora highway near here Monday.

Dolson said he was spraying the inside of his barn for powder post beetles when the nozzle on the spray gun broke, starting the fire.

New Weapon Against TB

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A new weapon against tuberculosis may come out of research laboratories at Queen's University.

According to Dr. C. B. Reid, OBE, president of the Royal Society of Canada and a bacteriologist at Queen's, researchers there are working on a new antibiotic which "may be more effective on tuberculosis than streptomycin."

In his presidential address to the society Monday night, Dr. Reed said streptomycin is the number one antibiotic in treatment of the disease today.

The Royal Society president did not enlarge on his statement. He said the work is still in "the test tube stage."

Canadian Culture Takes Beating

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canadian culture in general and universities in particular took a beating Monday from Prof. A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University, noted Canadian historian.

Prof. Lower told members of the Royal Society of Canada meeting at the University of Western Ontario that it was time Canadian academics stopped gnawing over the meatless bones of old-world culture.

"What has got to be done is to create a new culture—a native culture—built upon the remains of the old and let us hope incorporating a good deal of it."

Speaking on "The Canadian University," Dr. Lower said: "My major concern is as to how the university can be prepared for the elect and not at the same time cut itself off from the mass."

Dies Under Tractor

TILBURY (CP)—George Buis, 15, was killed Sunday night when pinned beneath a tractor which crashed into a 15-foot ditch while he was driving it along the highway near here. Wedding Recorded Forever When Photographs Taken

"Hold it please!"—a click of the shutter and there for all time is a record of the happiest day of a girl's life.

The beautiful flowers will wilt, the bride's dress will go out of style, but pictures of her wedding are a lifetime treasure, to be cherished by the couple, its children and grandchildren.

The years may dim the recollections of what your favorite aunt wore, or how sweet your little flower girl looked, but a glance at the wedding pictures will unlease the floodgates of memory and bring the happy day back in all its beauty.

The formal, posed pictures of the bride and groom and the wedding party should, if possible, be taken by a professional photographer, just to make sure there's no slip-up. However, photography is a hobby which is gaining in popularity and the bride or groom may have a friend who can do this job as well as a professional. If this is the case, he or she might be asked well in advance, and it might be suggested that this be the friend's wedding present. Unless the couple is quite sure of the calibre of the work, however, it's better to put aside a certain sum of money to spend for the photographer.

The formal pictures are a "must," but don't stop there. Try to beg, borrow or buy a camera from the first moment you announce the wonderful news of your engagement. The informal shots you paste in your album will be cherished just as much in years to come as the more formal ones on your wedding day.

EVEN THE PARTIES

Bridal showers are bound to be high spots in the lucky girl's calendar. A bride-to-be would need a photographic memory to recall the names of the hostess and all the guests at these occasions. If she can manage to get a picture of herself surrounded by her friends, she can then write the names on the back. Nothing is so frustrating as to realize years later that you've completely forgotten the name of one of your best friends.

DECORATIONS

While the bride thinks she'll never forget how pretty the decorations were at a certain party, she'll find that in a few years she's quite forgotten most of the details, and isn't too sure about the bigger things. This, however, does not apply to the bride who arranges to have a picture from which she can always refresh her memory.

Think how pleased that favorite aunt and uncle would be to get a picture of you and your fiance excitedly opening the present they sent to you from thousands of miles away. A snapshot like this tucked in with your "we really loved your gift" note will be more convincing than all the words you can muster.

Many brides like to have pictures of the ceremony itself. To avoid disappointment, the couple should check with the officiating clergyman. Many clergymen will not allow the photographer to take pictures during the church ceremony. Or, the clergyman might say that the photographer may take the pictures if he does not use flash. If, after it's over, the photographer has no pictures of the ceremony, don't blame him; without the use of extra light, the light in the church may not have been adequate.

The professional photographer has every interest in getting the best possible pictures of the wedding and the reception. He realizes that good results are the most effective advertisements for his work. Remember, he's trained to see the finished product in his mind's eye, while those having their picture taken are not. Suggest to him what you want, but don't order. He knows what grouping will be most effective, and what poses will show the couple at its best, so be guided by his experience and artistry. He will make every effort to produce pictures which will be cherished through the years.

Suggest tactfully to your amateur camermen friends that they stay, as much as possible, out of his way, and that they let him take the pictures. Years of training and experience have earned him the title of professional photographer. He knows his business or he wouldn't last long in an extremely competitive profession.

Springville Holds Special Services

SPRINGVILE (ENS)—Coronation Sunday was observed at Springville United Church with a special service—"The Religious Significance of the Coronation."

The hymn, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," was sung to the tune "Crimond," as used at the Queen's wedding. The Rev. A. E. Larke told of the historical occasion when "Crimond" was first used with that lovely psalm.

The Misses Betty and Doreen Stevens gave an organ and violin rendering of the hymn "Crown Him, Crown Him, Lord of All."

Mrs. Larke arranged a beautiful basket of flowers in colours typifying the Coronation.

In closing the service, Mr. Larke asked the congregation to stand and dedicate themselves to the service of the Lord as the Queen does in her Coronation service.

The organist, Mrs. Harry Bothwell, also played Coronation music.

Coronation Service Is Held

LAKEFIELD — (ENS) —Lakefield United Church was filled to capactiy on Sunday evening when a union service honoring the Queen's coronation, was held, attended by members of the congregations of the Protestant churches of the village. Assisting the minister, the Rev. W. H. Tonge, with the service were the Rev. Horace Kaye of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the Rev. L. J. Delaney, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, (Anglican) and the Rev. George Downing of Lakefield Baptist Church.

A mass choir, directed by Mrs. Robert Neale, organist of St. John's Church, sang the anth "Send Out Thy Light." Elmer Trethewey, Harry Wannamaker and Walter Walker also sang during the service. The prelude and postlude were played by Mrs. T. E. Rath at the organ and Mrs. G. Warren Payne at the piano.

The sermon was delivered by Mr. Downing who predicted great and glorious days ahead for the Commonwealth, reminding one of the extention of the British Empire under the first Elizabeth and later Queen Victoria.

"We are proud," said Mr. Downing, "that tonight we honor a virtuous Queen, a great and good mother— one who is willing to yield her life, if necessary, for the good of the Commonwealth of nations, and tonight we pray sincerely, from the bottom of our hearts, God Save The Queen."

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and flags by the missionary and service club.

Attending as organizations were members of the Canadian Legion, the Ladies Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion and the Catherine Parr Traill Chapter IODE.

Following the service two films, "The Coronation Ceremony" and "The Trooping of the Colours" were shown in the sunday school room.

Headed by the band of the Lakefield District High School Cadet Corps, Brownies, Guides, Sea Scouts and Cubs of Lakefield attended the morning service at the Baptist Church, where the minister, the Rev. George Downing delivered an address of special interest to youth.

Mr. Downing titled his address "Just a boy in a crowd," and used as his text "There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes but what are they among so many?"

During the service Mr. Downing dedicated a flag donated by Mr. Frank May of St. Mary's to the Lakefield Girl Guides. This flag was received, on behalf of the troop, by Guide Capt. Mrs. Eldon Jewell, Mr. May's daughter.

Members of the Guide color party are Athabelle Hendren, Carole Hopkins, Isobel Coons, Karen Walker, Patty Jakins and Margaret Richardson.

United Church MS Calling For Adequate Housing

TORONTO (CP)—The Women's Missionary Society of the Dominion board of the United Church of Canada passed a resolution Monday calling for more adequate housing for persons in the middle and lower income brackets

The resolution, passed at the closing sessions of the society's annual meeting, said "lack of adequate housing is a major cause of economic and social unrest and one of the greatest factors contributing to shattered homes and families."

Another resolution, supporting the United Church stand in favor of the Senate committee investigating objectionable literature, asked that ways be found for "eradicating this evil without endangering the freedom and liberty at present enjoyed by the press."

Mrs. M. Coughlin Honored By CWL

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League of St. Paul's Church was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening, the president, Mrs. Joseph Kennedy presiding.

Rev. Dr. V. J. Masterson opened the meeting with the League prayer and Miss Madeline Allen, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and of the executive meeting.

It was decided that groups should be appointed to be in charge of arrangements for the weekly bingos, each group to be responsible for one bingo.

After the business was concluded, Mrs. T. Corkery read an address and Mrs J. Delledonne made the presentation of a hand made rosary to the retiring president, Mrs. M. Coughlin. Little Miss Karen Kennedy then presented Mrs Coughlin with a pretty nosegay of flowers.

Mrs. Coughlin thanked the members and said she would continue to help in any way possible.

Dr. Masterson then addressed the meeting and thanked Mrs. Coughlin for her faithful service during the past five years.

Mrs. W. Dever played various selections on the piano and a dainty lunch was then served by members of the executive.

Queen Cables Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, 100 Yrs. Old Today

A cable from Buckingham Palace was delivered in Peterborough while Queen Elizabeth was in the midst of the coronation ceremony. It came to Mrs. T. A. S. Hay at 192 McDonnel St. who is celebrating her 100th birthday today, June 2nd, 1953.

Mrs. Hay, whose health does not permit more birthday guests than her immediate family and her minister, is surrounded with many floral tributes and hundreds of cards of congratulation from friends as well.

She has also received a very large birthday cake decorated with a message of good wishes from the members of 57th Regiment Chapter, IODE. Mrs. Hay has been a member of this chapter since 1913 and during the first world war she knitted continuously for the soldiers. Afterward, she was for years a member of the chapter's hospital visiting committee.

The Royal Message is her particular joy when she is celebrating such an important birthday on such an important occasion as Coronation Day. It reads: "The Queen is much interested to hear that you are having your 100th birthday on June 2nd and sends you warm congratulations and good wishes."

Mrs. Hay is the only member of her family to be so long-lived, most of them having died in middle life and some at 30. She was always considered delicate and therefore developed in the arts, music and painting, and excelled as a French linquist.

She was born Elise Roux at Lennoxville, Que., on June 2nd, 1853, and attended school in Montreal and Plattsburg, N.Y., finishing at a private school in Toronto, which led to her coming to Peterborough for a party at which she met her husband, Thomas Hay, a former city engineer. Since his death, and the death of her other daughter, Mrs. Hamilton Crawford of Marmora, she has lived in Peterborough with her daughter Mrs. C. D. Mathias. She has five grandchildren and three great grandchildren who are joining in her birthday celebration today.

MR. AND MRS. GORDON T. SANDS, who were married in St. Andrews' United Church Saturday. The bride is the former Doris Annabelle Dawson of Peterborough.

Doris Dawson Is Bride Of Gord. T. Sands, Toronto

White lilacs and candlelight formed the setting in St. Andrew's United Church for the marriage Saturday of Miss Doris Annabelle Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Franklin Dawson of Peterborough, to Mr. Gordon Thomas Sands, son of Mrs. Sands and the late Thomas Sands of Toronto.

The Rev. Henry Cotton performed the ceremony and Mr. Harry Northrop was at the organ. The soloist, Mrs. John McCourt, sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the bride entered the church and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Mr. Dawson gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a full ballerina length gown of white tulle and Chantilly lace over taffeta. The portrait neckline was fashioned with tiny scallops of pleated tulle caught with rhinestone straps. An heirloom tiara of lily of the valley and seed pearls, worn by her mother on her wedding day, held her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a small cascade of tea roses, lily of the valley and sweet peas.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. Bruce Taylor, matron of honor for her sister, and Miss Mary Scollard, bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in waltz-length white nylon tulle over palest blue. Bodices were of irridescent sequins with halter-style necklines and they wore stoles of white nylon tulle. Tiny halos of flower petals formed their headpieces, and they carried cascades of pale pink sweet peas.

Little Paul Taylor, nephew of the bride, carried a white calla lily, bearing the ring. Mr. Albert Baker of Oakville attended the groom. The ushers were Messrs. Bruce Taylor of Peterborough and Keith Shier of Toronto.

The reception was held at the Empress Hotel in the Kawartha Room. The bride's mother received, wearing navy with pink accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses and stephanotis. Assisting was the groom's mother, wearing pale blue with matching accessories and a corsage of Butterfly roses and stephanotis.

Later, the bride and groom left on a motor trip to the Laurentians. For travelling the bride chose a dress of white printed silk with full length coat of white silk bengaline, a red hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of red carnations.

The couple will make their home in Toronto at 173 Ranleigh Avenue.

Flags, Bunting And Flowers Decorated Coronation Tea

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Flags, bunting and flowers were used in decorating the Sunday School rooms for the coronation tea, held on Friday afternoon by the Missionary and Service Club of the United Church. General convener for the successful event was Mrs. Robert McCracken and the decorating was in charge of Mrs. Douglas Davis, who carried out all her designs in the colors of our flag.

The guests were received by the president, Mrs. W. H. Fife and the vice president, Mrs. Clarence Coons.

The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a miniature Queen Elizabeth, wearing an exact replica of the robes that will be worn at the Coronation ceremony. Silver bowls of red, white and blue flowers completed the table arrangement. Tea was poured by Mrs. Howard Bullock, president of the Lakefield Women's Institute; Mrs. N. Jessup, vice president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion; Mrs. Stanley Burger, president of the Home and School Asociation and the club's advisory president, Mrs. W. W. Leonard.

A home baking table, in charge of the Mission Band, did a thriving business. It was managed by Mrs. L. G. Poole, Mission Band leader, assisted by Mrs. Edison Foster, Mrs. George Graham and Miss Irene Darling.

Mrs. J. O. Huddart was convener of the tea table and she was assisted by Mrs. Paul Irwin, Mrs. J. E. Stephens, Mrs. Eric Anderson, Mrs. C. H. Hunter, Mrs. Clare Chittick, Mrs. S. Henderson, Mrs. J. R. Hull, Mrs. J. Keller, Mrs. Carmen Payne and Mrs. T. Payton. Special tables for the children attending were supervised by Mrs. A. W. Stewart and Mrs. Allen Graham.

Mrs. Davis was assisted in decorating by Mrs. G. E. Renwick and Miss Merle Crawford. Plates were replenished by Mrs. Alex Graham, Mrs. George Tanner, Mrs. A. W. Newson, Mrs. George Carey and Mrs. S. A. Grylls.

During the afternoon Miss Edith Whetung played several piano solos and vocal solos were sung by Mrs. J. R. Hull and Mrs. Donald Hendren. The soloists were accompanied by Mrs. M. Kennedy at the piano.

Pre-Nuptial Honors

Prior to her marriage on Saturday, Miss Doris Dawson was entertained by friends on several occasions. Mrs. Murray McCullough was hostess for a miscellaneous shower and Mrs. George Sullivan entertained when the bride received personal gifts. Previously, in Toronto, her roommates held a kitchen shower. Misses Mary Scollard and Anne Jamieson were co-hostesses for a shower held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilson for both the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Martin entertained when a bridge set was presented. The bride's associates at Austin of England presented her with a mixmaster. The groom's associates at Anthony Foster presented him with a step-up table and a double casserole set in wrought iron.

MISS ELIZABETH WRIGHT, daughter of Dr. J. W. Wright, reeve of Millbrook, and Mrs. Wright, graduated recently from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto. She was awarded the Paula Stanton prize for general proficiency.

Burris-Drummond

MARMORA (ENS). — A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, Saturday, when in a double ring ceremony Marianne Margaret daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Drummond of Marmora Township was united in marriage to Ray Kenneth Burris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Burris of Madoc. The Rev. K. J. Crawford officiated, assisted by the Rev. J. F. Lane of Trinity United Church, Madoc.

A beautiful arrangement of tulips, peonies, lilac, spirea and lily of the valley graced the interior of the church. Stanley Hawthorne of Madoc at the organ played traditional wedding music. William R. Rothwell, also of Madoc, sang "I Love You Truly," "The Lord's Prayer," and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father the bride looked charming in a gown styled by her mother. It was of nylon tulle over slipper satin with nylon lace and small velvet flowers with pearls. Her short length nylon veil in coronet shape was caught with velvet flowers and pearls. She wore a small corsage of red and white rosebuds and carried a white Bible.

Miss Irma Burris, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, was attired in blue silk organza over taffeta. Bridesmaids Miss Joan Burris, sister of the groom, and Miss Doreen Brown of Norwood, were also in similar frocks, wearing floral crowns, and they too carried white Bibles. The three attendants wore corsages of red roses.

Flower girls were young sisters, Mildred and Mary Rivers of Madoc, who were prettily dressed in yellow nylon tulle over taffeta, and carried baskets of yellow sweet peas.

Ray Downey of Madoc was groomsman. William and Robert Drummond, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

A reception was held in St. Andrew's Hall. The bride's mother received, wearing a gown of pastel pink crepe with lace and navy hat with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink and white roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore blue lace, a rose hat, white accessories, and corsage of blue and white roses.

After the reception in the church hall, which about 75 guests attended, many later adjourned to the home of the bride, where refreshments were again served.

Later the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Eastern tSates. For travelling, the bride wore a cream colored linen suit with white accessories, a red velvet coat, and corsage of red roses. On return they will live in Madoc.

Guests were present from Madoc, Stirling, Kingston, Norwood, Peterborough, Lindsay and Toronto.

Pocock, rector of the parish of Cavan.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom left on a motor trip through the western provinces and will visit for some time in Regina, Sask. On return they will live on the homestead farm on the eighth line of Cavan.

Atkinson-DeJong

DARTFORD (ENS)—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford was decorated with spring flowers for the double ring wedding ceremony on Saturday when Johanna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Teade DeJong, became the bride of Robert Ambrose Atkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Atkinson. The Rev. H. Moes, minister of the Christian Reformed Church officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white brocaded satin and a shoulder length veil which was caught to a headdress of white roses. Her bouquet was red roses. Miss Carolyn Atkinson, sister of the groom, was her only attendant She was frocked in a blue gown of brocaded taffeta. Her bouquet was pink carnations.

The groom was attended by his brother, Sydney Atkinson of Toronto. Ushers were Dictus DeJong, brother of the bride, and Carman Atkinson, cousin of the groom.

Wedding music was played by Mr. A. Hazell, church organist. Before the bride entered, a duet "O Perfect Love" was rendered by Mrs. John Goodfellow and Mrs. Donald Stegink. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Goodfellow sang "The Lord's Prayer". According to the custom of Holland, the bride's homeland, the bridal party remained after the ceremony while Mr. Moes delivered a message, using for his text, "In God will I put my trust".

The reception was held at Maple Lodge, Roseneath, for 40 guests.

Mrs. DeJong received wearing a figured shear dress and corsage of yellow carnations. Mrs. Atkinson chose navy sheer, her corsage was pink roses.

The guests were served by Misses. Isobel McCracken, Peterborough, Linda and Joyce Arthur of Fenella.

The happy couple left afterward for Toronto and other westward points. The bride travelled in a beige suit with white accessories. They will live on the groom's farm near Roseneath.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. John Van Netten and son, Mr and Mrs. Sydney Atkinson and Jacqueline, also Mrs. Ethel McCleary of Toronto. Miss McCracken, also Rev. and Mrs. Moes of Peterborough; Mr. Robert Northey of Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs Donald Stegink and David of Holland, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs John Goodfellow, Nancy and Paul of Codrington; Mr. and Mrs. John DeJong of Grafton; Mr and Mrs. Henry DeJong of Brockville; Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hoeckstra of Campbellford; Misses Joyce and Linda Arthur of Fenella.

WAITING FOR A STREETCAR is sort of pleasant in Toronto, where girl guides sell car tickets to ease the pedestrian traffic jam. They help pick up lost pearls, too.

Toronto Solves Problem Of Traffic With Beauty

By JAMES MONTAGNÈS
NEA Special Correspondent.

TORONTO (NEA). — They've solved the traffic problem here—with pretty girls.

According to the Toronto Traffic Commission, it takes only one glamor gal at each bus stop to keep the city running smoothly.

To this mobile end, the TTC has uniformed a corps of beautiful guides and you'll find them at every busy intersection in Toronto. They know their city like a book. They can point out the right bus, sell you a bus ticket, and help you across the street.

They are equipped to make change and save you and the bus driver time. And they're carefully instructed on how to handle crowds, cars and injuries.

At the bustling corner of Bloor and Jane Streets, you'll find smartly-uniformed Betty Wood watching the crowds crossing the intersection. Betty's been trained to watch every person in the crowd—all at the same time.

Recently, she noticed a middle-aged woman halt briefly and then try to push forward. TTC Guide Wood was at the woman's side as she began to totter. Betty took her home, called her son and the doctor and waited until both arrived.

Then she went back to her post at Bloor and Jane Streets.

The TTC picks its guides from girls between the ages of 21 and 30. The girls, either unmarried or widows, must be tall, well groomed and attractive. Bad manners or a snippy disposition have disqualified many girls.

* * *

At least 2 years of high school are required for the guides. And even then they are put through a rigorous training program.

They have to learn each section of Toronto and the surest way to get there. They must know every bus route and how to make change accurately and quickly. And they are given physical training to equip them for this job that takes them through all weather and hours.

Each TTC Guide is outfitted in a gray-blue jacket and skirt with an overseas cap trimmed in red. During the winter the uniform of the day is slacks, uniform jacket and heavy overcoat.

In the early days of the TTC program, several guides report, they used to find wolves whistling at their curb. But the TTC gear included wolf bane. An annoyed guide would merely raise her finger and the intersection's traffic officer would saunter over.

* * *

Only the police seem to have success in dating the guides. Many of the girls have married the officers they got to know in the intimacy of a roaring street corner.

It was from just that kind of street corner, blonde guide Dawn Marshall remembers, that she spotted a woman who was staggering in the street, clutching her throat. Dawn raced to the woman's side to learn that her string of pearls had snapped. Pearls were rolling everywhere.

TTC Guide Marshall and a policeman held up traffic and pedestrians while they crawled across the pavement scoooping up the little beads.

Still clutching her throat, the woman thanked them over and over again. It was the sentimental value, the woman said. The pearls had cost only 59 cents.

DOROTHY DIX:

Seeking Change In Career Teacher Wants Welfare Job

DEAR MISS DIX: After working for several years as a buyer for a departmental store, I am now unemployed. I am 34, and would like a change of business. I have always been interested in people, especially children, have majored in psychology and am a former teacher. With these qualifications, where could I go to get the sort of work I want? I am willing to take additional traning if necessary. C. L.

ANSWER: You doubtless realize that, with very few exceptions, work in the field you mention wouldn't pay nearly as well as merchandising does. It is, however, far more rewarding in other ways, and if you are prepared to sacrifice financial gain for service, you certainly deserve commendation. There are so many fields to which you can put your talents, that the problem is more of selection than anything else.

WELFARE WORK

To name a few, there are the social service offices of large hospitals, any family welfare agency, the domestic or children's courts of your city, or the local welfare department. If your home surroundings permit, you might open your home to foster children. Providing love and temporary shelter for youngsters whose own homes have been broken through death, illness, or desertion is one of the finest things any woman can do. If you wish wider experience, you might work through the offices of the foster home agency, contacting possible homes for the children.

There is certainly no dearth of opportunity for you, and since most of this work is not too lucrative, and the qualifications high, I doubt if you will have difficulty finding an opening. I do hope you are successful in your quest, and that you will find happiness and satisfaction in the job you decide to take.

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend says that at a dance or party I have no right to dance with anyone else. In fact, he says I should refuse if I am asked. On the other hand, he claims he has the right to ask any other girl to dance. Who is right?

ANSWER: Your friend certainly is rewriting rules to suit his own convenience—and ego. What does he expect you to do while he's dancing with another girl? Let me warn you, lady, a man with a one-track mind like his had best be discarded right now.

For a direct answer to meet your question: the matter should be settled by mutual agreement. Either both are privileged to dance with other partners, or you dance with each other exclusively.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a boy in the Marines whom I date regularly. He tells me he loves me (in fact, thats' about all he ever talks about), but he says he's afraid of getting married. T. L.

ANSWER: If you haven't known the boy too long, perhaps you're bringing up the marriage question when he isn't really ready to discuss it. His reliance upon "love" as a sole topic of conversation might be sincere, but more likely it would indicate a lack of knowledge on any other subject. I strongly advise you to get a boy friend with a wider range of conversation.

DEAR MISS DIX: Last week the young man with whom I have been going since Christmas told me he had decided not to take me out any more. I am heartbroken. What can I do to get him back?

ANSWER: When a young man tells a girl he is no longer interested in her, there's not much she can do but accept the situation gracefully. In time, you'll find that it's not nearly the catastrophe it may seem now.

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it proper for an office manager to date his secretary? There are only a few people in our office, and the dating in question seems to be getting serious. M. S. S.

ANSWER: What in the world is improper about the situation, provided both the manager and secretary have no marital ties? "Marrying the boss" is often the ambition of a working girl, and many very fine marriages have resulted.

DEAR MISS DIX: How does one get rid of a divorced man? This one is about 35 years old, and persists in calling me for dates. I'm not interested in him, and my mother has advised me not to accept his invitations. POPPY G.

ANSWER: If the man won't listen to your refusals, perhaps a word from your mother will have more authority. The next time he calls, see that she answers the phone, or at least tells him to stop annoying you.

THE SPECIAL PROBLEMS of both the tall girl and the girl who's five-feet-five or under are solved in these designs. Tall girl (left) wears a pure silk ribbed crepe that's a matter of pure line and sleek fit. Rib-cage jacket covers neckline that's cut low, makes this a daytime dress. Same girl (left centre) chooses proportioned fine wale pique with halter bodice and brief jacket. For the diminutive (right centre), there's a summer dress in pima broadcloth. Rows of smocking make this pretty and feminine. There's no trim to interfere with the line. Also for tiny girl (right) is pima broadcloth dress with white pique edging alternating with white pearl buttons. This makes long line of contrasting color from neckline to hem.

Mrs. H. Turck Heads Cobourg WA

ROSENEATH (ENS)— The inaugural meeting of the Women's Association of Cobourg Presbytery United church was held at Roseneath United church on Saturday. Delegates were present from the Women's Association from Brighton, Seymour, Colborne, Port Hope, Centreton, Warkworth, Welcome, Fenella, Centenary and Roseneath.

Following are the officers: President, Mrs. H. V. Turck, Port Hope; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. C. Crowhurst, Port Hope; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Mac Little, Campbellford; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Roseneath; secretary, Mrs. E. M. Gresham, Colborne; treasurer, Mrs. O. Morrow, Brighton; literature secretary, Miss S. Bennett, Port Hope; press secretary, Mrs. E. Barrowclough, Wesleyville; devotional secretary, Mrs. J. A. Greenly, Warkworth; convener of visiting and Christian fellowship, Mrs. A. C. Crowhurst, Port Hope; convener of parsonage committee, Mrs. Mac Little, Campbellford; Christian citizenship and devotional convener, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Roseneath.

The meeting opened at 10.30 a.m. with Mrs. H. Turck presiding, with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe as pianist.

Mrs Earl Waldie, president of Roseneath W.A., welcomed the new organization as a desire of the Women's Associations to become an organized body of church women within the presbytery.

The devotional service was in charge of Seymour United church W.A., with Mrs. Mac Little presiding, assisted by Mrs. Reginald Craighead and Mrs. Frank Sager.

Mrs. Sam Black, Bowmanville, guest soloist, sang "Green Pastures," with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe piano accompanist.

Mrs. A. A. Crowle, Oshawa, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference Women's Association, was the guest speaker. Her subject was, "Feeble Excuses." In part, she said: "We can perform miracles if we allow ourselves to be used by God and the more we give of our talents, the more we have." In conclusion she stressed the necessity of women taking their place in affairs that vitally affect Canada's youth and Canada's women.

The Rev. J. R. Wheeler, pastor of Roseneath United Church, was in charge of the communion service, assisted by Messrs Archie Mouncey and A. J. Campbell, elders of the Roseneath Church.

During the luncheon hour, Mrs. H. Ireland, Brighton, president of the Cobourg Presbyterial WMS, brought greetings from the sister organization. The Rev. J. R. Wheeler brought greetings from Cobourg Presbytery.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The members of Warkworth WA were in charge of the devotional period in the afternoon, with Mrs. Frank Bowen in charge. The address, "Giving," was presented by Mrs. A. L. Sisco.

Literature reports were given by Miss S. Bennett, Port Hope, literature secretary of Cobourg Presbytery, and Mrs. W. C. Ives, Bowmanville, Conference literature secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mrs. A. A. Crowle, Oshawa, contributed a vocal solo, "Spirit of God," with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe accompanist.

Mrs. J. M. Wood, Belleville, immediate past president of the Bay of Quinte Conference WA, was the speaker at the afternoon session, her topic being "Listening Women." She said, "Women are the pivot and core of the nation's life," and stressed the necessity of not clogging their lives with criticism, unloving thoughts and selfishness.

Mrs. A. C. Crowhurst, Port Hope, was convener of the courtesy committee and voiced appreciation of the society to all those who in any way had helped to make the day a success.

The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe.

Persian Empress Becomes Greatest Show On Earth

By ALEX VALENTINE

ROME (Reuters)—Romantic Italians who love mystery, femininity and glamor, have been completely taken during the last month with a green-eyed, olive-skinned beauty from Iran—the Empress Sorayah, wife of Iran's beleaguered shah.

This 20-year-old oriental queen arrived here April 27, officially in quest of a European "cure." She left behind her in Iran another crisis between her husband and Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, who apparently is bent on clipping the shah's royal wings.

That provides the mystery. Is the black-haired empress beginning a permanent life of exile? the Romans ask. Sorayah only adds to the mystery, when reporters try to probe into the matter, by withdrawing into a dignified yet amused silence.

TOUGH COMPETITION

Sorayah's sultry beauty has been put to the test in Rome. She has had to compete with a top-flight royal marriage in Norway and with news from London about the coming Coronation of Queen Elizabeth.

The Italians did not take long to decide that, for them, Sorayah was the greatest show on earth.

Photographers have made the Persian empress the cover girl for two of the nation's top illustrated weeklies. This happened at a time when Rome was chuck-full of Hollywood glamor girls.

Sorayah simply refuses to talk. She gets full protection from her German-born blonde mother, wife of Irah's minister to West Germany, Cabil Esfandiary. Mrs. Esfandiary shadows the queen at all public appearances, and deftly wards off reporters.

Society columnists here report that Soraya pines for her handsome husband. But her public life betrays no loneliness. She goes to horse shows, polo games, golf tournaments, and dines at the capital's choicest restaurants.

GOING TO SWITZERLAND

This much is known about Sorayah's future: She plans to leave here in June "for health treatment" in Switzerland. Then, it is reported, she will relax for a while at the modish French seaside resort of Deauville; and then, on to Spain.

During her Roman "cure" she has been dropping in at Schubert's, the world-famous fashion house, to stock up with clothes designed by Schubert and by Christian Dior of Paris.

They say the empress likes to lie in bed late in the morning. But when she gets up she likes activity. She is a "lazy" athlete, but naturally good at the sports she prefers—riding; skiing and tennis.

Spokesmen at the Iranian embassy say she has given no hints that she intends to settle in Europe. They believe she is waiting for the shah and Mossadegh to settle their feud. She will go home again, they believe, when and if the imperial throne of Iran no longer is in danger.

SOFTIE

comfort and protection for your baby

SOFTIE is a new scientific sanitizing and cloth softening rinse.

SOFTIE is not a water softener or detergent.

SOFTIE when added to the final rinse of the wash gives baby's diapers, clothing and bedding protection against the ammonia forming bacteria which cause diaper rash and irritation.

SOFTIE gives baby's diapers and clothes a feathery feel and luxurious super softness which protects your baby against harsh cloth discomfort.

Subjects Cheer

Prime Minister Churchill received a great ovation as he entered his carriage with Lady Churchill.

Rain began to pour as the Commonwealth prime ministers started het ling ride.

Princes and princess of royal blood emerged next, many of them waving gaily despite guests of rain.

The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, a small coronet perched jauntily on her curls, smiled happily as they moved off to a fanfare of trumpets and outbursts of cheering.

The procession had been held up for about 25 minutes waiting for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh to step into the state coach.

Some 10,000 servicemen, including 2,000 from the Commonwealth and 500 from almost every colonial territory, took part in the procession.

The waiting millions, drenched by the downpour, saw a smiling Queen, who had put behind her the strain and fatigue of the three-hour Coronation service.

A robe of imperial purple covered her gem-encrusted dress as she rode in the golden coach. The precious stones in her crown and sceptre winked and glowed as she bowed to the cheering throngs.

Beside her in the golden coach, drawn by eight straining greys and manned by footmen and coachmen in powdered wigs and scarlet coats, her husband touched his cocked admiral's hat in salute.

Ahead and behind the coach undulated files of marching troops, with their brass bands and bagpipes blended with the roar of cheers.

Cavalry escorts in plumed helmets jogged on high-spirited horses along the wet streets.

SUN COMES OUT

Then, as if by royal order, the rain stopped and the sun came out.

About 3 p.m. the colorful column of marching troops preceding the Queen halted in Piccadilly, where the Queen had lived in childhood in the home that was destroyed by German bombs during the war.

A voice through a loudspeaker told the packed thousands waiting to welcome the Queen to her old neighborhood:

"The parade has been halted because the Queen has been delayed in getting into her royal coach."

Cheering rolled across Parliament Square and up Whitehall as the eight Windsor greys pulled the state coach along its triumphal route.

The Queen looked happy. The Duke took the orb from the Queen's left hand and laid it on the arm rest between them.

COUPLE APPEAR RELAXED

When finally settled, the royal couple suddenly appeared relaxed. Both smiled.

Col. Bert Burrows, who led the Queen's procession to the abbey, was also at the head of the return procession, on a grey charger. Four state troopers followed, then a winding array of troops, carriages and bands—with 2,000 musicians formed in 47 bands.

Southern Rhodesian detachments led the Commonwealth contingents, followed by Australia. Then the crimson-clad Canadian Mounties who were cheered to the echo.

The parade was almost 2½ miles long.

A sustained roar of cheering sounded for Prime Minister Churchill and Lady Churchill as they passed through Trafalgar Square. The crowd went wild when the Queen and the Duke passed by a few minutes later.

The crowd broke into the song "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" at the Whitehall entrance to the square, where the carriages of the Commonwealth prime ministers paused.

DIGNITARIES SOAKED

The sunshine did not last long. A quarter of an hour after the sun popped out, the rain set in again over much of the parade route. Soaked dignitaries riding in open carriages had the hoods put up.

All along the route as the Queen came into view there was a spontaneous wave of emotion—women weeping, children dancing in their places in the stands, and fervent singing of the national Anthem.

Scores of agile spectators clung to precarious positions on the sides of buildings fronting Hyde Park and Oxford Street.

UNIFORMS DAZZLING

The array of uniforms was dazzling. Bare-legged, fuzzy-haired men from Fiji vied in precision marching with Pakistanis wearing their puggris (a kind of turban) spread behind their heads.

The crowds, which had already seen the parade pass Marble Arch, began streaming across Hyde Park to pick it up again at Buckingham Palace on the return swing.

At Piccadilly Circus crowds shouted "Are we downhearted?" and answered themselves with a resounding "No!"

The downpour got heavier and heavier. The air ministry announced that a scheduled fly-past of 168 planes over Buckingham Palace would be postponed from 5:15 p. m. to 5:40 p. m.

The head of the procession passed Trafalgar Square for the third time at 3:57 p. m. It was the only place to be passed three times—once en route to the abbey, once on the way out for the grand swing through the heart of town and again on the way back to Buckingham Palace.

CROWN WORRIES QUEEN

The weight of the imperial state crown—2½ pounds—worried the Queen. She held her head very steady and erect in the jolting coach—as though afraid the crown might slip.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent leaned out of his carriage window and waved his tophat to the crowds. Mounties in their brilliant uniforms followed directly behind his carriage.

Admirals and air marshals had trouble with their horses who slithered and slipped on the wet road surface.

Up Whitehall the procession plodded steadily around Trafalgar Square to Pall Mall, St. James's street, Piccadilly, Hyde Park corner, through the Marble Arch and on along Oxford street.

BACK TOWARD PALACE

From Oxford Circus the procession went down Regent street to Piccadilly, the Haymarket, Admiralty Arch, and back down the Mall towards Buckingham Palace.

The Queen seemed increasingly gay and carefree during the ride through Oxford street, with its boarded up shop windows and cheering tens of thousands in temporary wooden stands.

Those with a good view of the interior of her carriage noticed she was tightly clasping the Duke's right hand with her left hand.

The head of the procession reached Buckingham Palace at 4:12 p. m.

The procession was watched by members of foreign royalty and celebrities in their abbey costumes, and by peers and peeresses in robes, from the windows of the palace.

MARCH WELL

About that time the rain stopped again. The marching troops slogged through shallow puddles with admirable precision. The parade maintained its steady pace, taking 50 minutes to pass a given point.

The crowds at Buckingham Palace, who had waited the longest and were now the wettest viewers in London, gave vent to a hoarse roar when the parade finally came back.

They seemed to feel there was some special honor in being there to welcome the Queen back after a day in which the eyes of the world had been on her.

Meeting Asks Changes In Act

SUDBURY (CP)—Requests for changes in the Unemployment Insurance and Workmen's Compensation acts were tabled today at the opening session of the 41st annual convention of the Ontario Council of Carpenters and Joiners of America (AFL-TLC) here.

Some 80 delegates, representing 34 provincial locals, are attending the meetings which will continue today and tomorrow.

Benefits for all workers absent from work or unemployed because of sickness and immediate steps to increase "totally inadequate benefits," were asked.

Three changes sought in the compensation act were: That workers in construction and logging industries, temporarily disabled in their employment, be kept on full compensation until able to return to work; addition of common colds, allergy, rheumatism and pneumonia to ailments covered by the act; setting up of "light work" in construction.

Day Of Tension In Ireland

DUBLIN (AP)—The Coronation brought Ireland a day of tension marked by picketing of the British embassy in Dublin.

The Irish Republican pickets, both men and women, carried placards saying "England, We Want Our Country—Not Your Queen" and "An Irish Republic, Not an English Queen."

Later in the day, an unidentified man ran into a Dublin pub, smashed a television set with a cleaver, and escaped.

Republic of Ireland officials boycotted a garden party held by the British ambassador, Sir Walter Hankinson.

The Irish Republic sent no representative to the abbey crowning.

Queen Has Won

HEARTS TURN TO QUEEN

Today we think deeply of the Crown and of all it means; but in our hearts we turn to the beloved person who wore it this morning for the first time—the person who won our devotion when she was our guest not long ago.

In a few moments the royal standard—the Queen's own flag—will fly, by Her Majesty's permission, from this great tower.

As we see it against the sky, we shall be reminded of what our sovereign means to us—not only a long tradition of high character and devoted service; but a personal example of grace and dignity and humanity, of discipline, of duty done. I know that you would have me offer, on your behalf, and for all the people of our land here at this time, our true homage to our Sovereign Lady.

PORTABLE VOLT JOLTER — Resembling an artillery piece from outer space, this 340,000-pound transformer is the largest portable transformer in the United States. Built for the Bonneville Power Administration, the transformer "steps down" electricity from 230,000 volts to 115,000 volts. Shown here in Goshen, Ore., it is mounted on a 175-ton railroad flat car.

Colorful Celebrations

Ottawa Toasting Queen With Music, Military Pomp

OTTAWA (CP)—A red-jacketted battalion of Guards turned the vast lawns of parliament into brilliant spectacle today in a centuries-old ceremony that did honor to Canada's new queen.

Possibly 20,000 people stood up to 10 deep to watch this first in a series of Coronation Day festivities that will go on late into the night.

They flooded into the grounds of Parliament in numbers that haven't been seen there in years to witness the trooping of the color by the governor-general's Foot Guards, a reserve-force regiment that turned on a performance full of color and merit.

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, arriving sharp on the dot of 11.30 a.m., took the royal salute as Lt.-Col. Thomas Bowie's men, a combination of old soldiers and teen-agers, climaxed an intricate military ritual that may go back at least 300 years in the annals of British soldiering.

RARE CEREMONY

It is a rare ceremony that parades the Queen's color in her honor and it has its roots in the ancient days of war when fighting men were ordered to "follow the color" so that order might be kept in the confusion of battle.

Thousands of Americans were among the crowds joining in the public celebrations keynoting national rejoicing at the crowning of Elizabeth II in distant London.

In one wave after another, ceremonies which really started Monday night will roll on from morning deep into the night. They will have everything from the marching of 7,000 troops and cadets and the split-second flypast of 140 RCAF planes to city council's cruise down the Rideau canal.

The air force has tightened up the flypast that combines jet fighters and lumbering transport craft and other planes and has arranged two special effects.

One involves a flight of Sabre jets which by their position will form the letters E II.

The other involves three Sabres which will lay down vapor trails 10,000 feet high to reproduce the three plumes of the crest which has been borne by the Princes of Wales for 600 years. The Sabres will fly straight up over the Peace Tower and the air force hopes the trails left by their jets will resemble three feathers.

The three forces are set for the march past of nearly as many servicemen as will march in London. Bandsmen from 15 different bands—RCMP, army, navy, air force and cadets—have worked out all their musical details.

And the decorations are something Ottawa hasn't equalled in years, street arches, flags and banners and shields, a big maypole on the supreme court building lawns, a huge panel with the Queen's profile on the Peace Tower, a totem pole under the war memorial, all these and more.

Monday night some 450 massed bandsmen played a concert on the brightly-lighted hill while thousands listened.

At 3 p.m. Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey approached the gates of his residence in his landau drawn by horses. He was met by the robed city council which reaffirmed its loyalty to the Queen and then escorted him through the city streets.

musing was the deep awareness of the immeasurable contrast with the crowning of the first Elizabeth and the narrow local sphere of its publicity.

Today's press achievement is not ordinary and it is not routine, although it has every appearance and effect of those aspects. It is salient in man's inventive fathoming secrets of nature and shaping them to public ends.

This was a day for newspaper history in Peterborough—the Examiner's finest service to its city and district.

Sends Message

TORONTO (CP)—Hon. Louis O. Breithaupt, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, sent a message to Queen Elizabeth today expressing the "deep feelings of loyalty and respect" held towards her by the people of his province.

AUTOMOBILE like the above and some 35 others are operating in Canada today (mainly in Montreal and Toronto) because a group of nine men have combined nostalgia and a love of mechanics to keep the automobile past alive. They have banded together in the Duster and Goggles Club. There are three clubs in the United States made up of men dedicated to rebuilding and preserving the pioneer automobile models, but the "Duster and Goggles" is the only such club in Canada. While these men have the standard early models—a French Delahage Wagonette, built in 1895; a 1902 Rambler, the forerunner of the present-day Nash; a 1902 Cadillac which took two years to rebuild and now runs like an expensive watch—their main aim is to find and rebuild early models of Canadian cars.

Everest Feat Thrills N.Z.

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP)—A tremendous wave of enthusiasm swept New Zealand today as news spread that a New Zealander had successfully scaled Mount Everest, the world's highest peak.

In some towns telephone exchanges were jammed as excited citizens spread the word that a New Zealand beekeeper, Edward P. Hillary, 34, had conquered the giant Himalayan peak with a Snerpa guide, Tensing Bhutia, on May 29. They were members of a British climbing party headed by Col. John Hunt.

Excited mountaineers took the news to huts high on Mount Raupenu, an active volcano in the centre of New Zealand's North Island where Hillary began his climbing career.

Hillary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hillary were overwhelmed with messages, telegrams, telephone calls and visitors.

Acting Prime Minister Keith Holyoake sent Hillary a cable of congratulations.

Hijackers Do Good Business

HAZEBROUCK, France (AP)—A French court today sentenced 11 men and women to jail terms in one of the strangest liquor hijacking cases in French history.

For 19 years, the gang siphoned thousands of gallons of French brandy out of huge distillery vats by underground pipelines.

Jail terms ranged from five years to six months, and eight of the gang were fined.

Then French justice took one of its own peculiar turns. It condemned La Gorgue Distillery for failing to prevent the theft, which at times went as high as 2,000 gallons of brandy a month, and fined it 330,418,300 francs ($940,000) in back taxes on the alcohol.

A lot of the stolen brandy found its way to Belgium.

10 Forest Fires Burn Across Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Ten forest fires are burning today in Ontario's fire districts. Five others have been extinguished during the last 24 hours.

The fires are near Port Arthur, White River, Swastika, Sudbury, Pembroke and Tweed. Four are in the Cochrange area.

Fires have been extinguished in the Parry Sound, White River, Cochrane and Swastika areas.

Coronation Day At Front

Commonwealth Soldiers Have Ceremonies In Korea

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (CP)—British Commonwealth fighting men in Korea, including Canada's 25th brigade, saluted Queen Elizabeth on her Coronation today with guns and cheers and parades.

All artillery pieces of the 1st Commonwealth division fired across the divisional front toward enemy lines a mile or so away with shells that sent up red, white and blue smoke.

The artillery salute was followed by firing from monster 52-ton Centurion tanks perched on front-line hill positions. Their fire, precisely at 10 a. m., was the signal for men of half a dozen nations who make up the division to come out of their sand bag bunkers and trenches, take off their caps and berets, and give three rousing cheers for Her Majesty.

Chinese Communists facing the Commonwealth troops did not fire back.

A few miles away, near division headquarters, picked detachments participated in a colorful parade. A royal salute was ordered by Maj.-Gen. M. A. R. West, commander of the Commonwealth division.

Bands of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal Australian Regiment played "God Save the Queen."

The ceremonies were attended by South Korean President Syngman Rhee, his wife and high-ranking officers from more than a score of nations.

Ten Sabre jets piloted by South Africans flew over in a formation of the letter "E". They were followed by a formation of Sea Furies from the British carrier Ocean, spelling out "E" and "R".

Coronation Day Baby Has Dual Nationality

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Niagara Falls' first Coronation Day baby has a dual nationality.

The little girl, born at 6:25 a. m. EDT today, was a surprise arrival. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lunney of Williamsville, N. Y., came here for a visit last evening.

Under Canadian citizenship laws the baby is a Canadian citizen. The United States recognizes her as one of its citizens because both parents are U. S. citizens. She will have to choose between the two by the time she is 21.

Churchill's Coach Squeezed Out Of Line

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill's coach, drawn by two horses, was squeezed out of the line of march as the Coronation procession swung through Trafalgar Square for the third and last time this afternoon.

The coach had to draw up to the side of the street and wait for an open spot to get back into the parade.

One of the horses appeared to be balky, but Churchill's coachmen finally were able to tack on at the end of the line of carriages.

Rosenbergs To Die At Sing Sing June 18

NEW YORK (CP)—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, convicted of conspiring to give U. S. atomic secrets to Russia, will die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison at 11 p. m. EDT June 18 unless the courts agree to delay execution for further appeals.

Carefree Holiday Suggested For Every Norwegian Housewife

OSLO (Reuters) — "Housewife substitutes" may be taking over in many Norwegian homes this summer so that wives can go away by themselves and enjoy a real vacation—free from family responsibilities.

That is the plan of the Norwegian state holidays council which wants the government to back its plans to provide eventually for carefree vacations for every Norwegian housewife, regardless of the size of her purse.

Under its initial plan, now waiting approva, the state would grant 800,000 kroner ($112,000) to help meet the costs of the project and the council would set up a central organization in Oslo with local committees all over Norway to carry it out.

Most Norwegian families who go away for their summer holidays, rent houses or camps or rooms where they have to do their own cooking.

This makes the family's vacation considerably cheaper—at the expense of the housewife. She, in fact, gets no vacation.

Usually the housewife is only too thankful when the vacations are over and she can return to her own modern home.

The idea, therefore, is to provide what are known as "housewife substitutes," who will take over all the household duties in the home, so that the housewife can get right away for a real rest.

Most local authorities and many big industrial firms already have regular "housewife substitutes," but at present their job is mainly confined to helping families where the housewife is ill, in hospital, or having a baby.

The problem now will be to recruit and train sufficient "housewife substitutes" so that they can step in when the housewife leaves for her vacation.

City Man Hurt As Autos Crash

A Peterborough man was treated for injuries Monday night received as the result of a two-car collision at the intersection of George and Lansdowne Streets. Jack Easton, of 748 Herman Avenue, suffered a possible fracture to his left arm in the crash involving drivers Edward Hotston of 446 Cameron Street and Mrs. Jean Nelson of Keene.

Hotson was driving north on George and Mrs. Nelson, west on Lansdowne when the accident occurred. The right front corner of the Nelson car came in collision with the right rear of Hotston's vehicle.

Daamge was set at $375 to Hotston's car and $450 to Mrs. Nelson's.

A second accident at the intersection Monday saw a car driven by Harold Whitman of 345 Dublin in a rear end collision with one driven by Harry Ross of 540 Bolivar.

Both cars were driving south on George when the Whitman vehicle slowed for the light. The Ross car which sustained $35 in damages, collided with the rear of the first car. Neither driver was injured.

See Unknown Father Who Left Baby

MONTREAL (CP)—Police today sought an unknown father who left his baby daughter "for a few minutes" Monday with a woman sitting on a park bench.

Mrs. Jean Turcotte told police the man, about 35, asked her to mind the baby as she was enjoying the sun in the park. He left her a bag containing milk, baby food and diapers. Mrs. Turcotte went to police when the man failed to return an hour later.

Judge Dismisses Appeal In Bootlegging

An appeal by Norman Manley of 206 Lansdowne St. against a conviction on a charge of bootlegging was dismissed Monday afternoon in county court by Judge John deN. Kennedy in a written judgment.

Manley was convicted on Jan. 30, 1952, of selling liquor illegally to an Alexander Williams and he was sentenced to two months in jail. He appealed Magistrate W. R. Philp's decision and the case was not disposed of until Monday, 16 months after the offence.

Williams said he went to Manley's home and the latter handed him a bottle of whiskey for $7.

Judge Kennedy dismissed as "an improbable story" Manley's contention that he knew the police were watching his home and he gave the bottle of whiskey to Williams to get rid of him. When searched by city police, headed by Constable Douglas Farthing, Manley had $7.50 in his pocket.

In the Lansdowne St. house police found four 24-pint cases of beer, another case of beer with seven full bottle in it, and five 26-ounce bottles of beer. It was the second time in less than two months that Manley's home had been raided.

Police found Everitt Byers of 745 Walkerfield Ave. in a drunken condition when they raided Manley's house.

Judge Kennedy agreed that Williams was an accomplice. However, he found sufficient evidence— including Manley's own unconvincing testimony — to uphold the conviction.

BANCROFT

BANCROFT— (ENS) — Mrs. Coons, chairman of Peterborough and District Home and School Association was guest speaker at the meeting of the Bancroft association.

Introduced by Mrs. Jack Brown, Mrs. Coons told of the importance of having an effective Home and School in the community and explained that through such a medium much could be done to further the welfare of all pupils. Mrs. Art Hewitt, new-elected president, thanked Mrs. Coons.

Retiring president, Mrs. E. Goodkey thanked parents and teachers for their cooperation during her year of office and the new slate of officers was installed by Mrs. Coons. They are President, Mrs. Art Hewitt; vice presidents, Mrs. A. Gaebel and Mrs. A. Weiss, secretary; Mrs. E. Bruce, treasurer; Mrs. L. Freiburger; executive committee, Mrs. P. Labarge, Mrs. C. Wark, Mrs. Montreuil, Mrs. A. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fresque.

It was decided to send a delegate to the Lake Couchiching conference and to present all Grade 8 pupils with a class photograph. The lunch committee served refreshments.

TRAFFIC JAMS THE MALL—A continuous stream of automotive traffic pours toward Buckingham Palace in London, moving under the arches along the Mall. This and other sections of the Coronation route were so jammed with sightseers that buses were running as much as an hour behind schedule.

City Bars Vending Wagon From Parking In Square

Application of Percy Harrison for permission to park his potato chips vending wagon during the day time on the city square, the old market place, was turned down by the property committee of the council Monday afternoon.

"If we grant it to him, we'd have to grant it to others," was the remark of Ald. Syd Black.

The parking place is restricted to its original purpose, and is no place for trade to horn in. That was the attitude of the committee with Ald. H. S. Longhurst presiding. Ald. W. J. Beggs and Acting Mayor Miller were other members present.

Parking receipts have been increasing, the tourist season is near at hand, revenue is satisfactory, and the committee decided to recommend to the council that uniforms be bought for the attendants, Harry Gabbutt and Fred LeBarr. Two-piece khaki suits, slickers for wet weather and official caps are proposed. Overcoats will be added in winter.

"We are getting enquiries from all over Canada about our operation of the parking place," City Clerk Outram told the committee. "It appears that from the view point of municipal interest nothing the council has done in providing parking accommodatioin has created more."

It is the intention of the committee to engage some elderly man to look after the market on George St., leaving the parking supervision to its two attendants. These changes are considered as warranted by the increased parking, which, it was said, should reach sustained volume during the summer months.

Sour Coronation Note As Protest Planned

LONDON (Reuters)—A sour note was struck in the Coronation celebrations today when a man with a thick Scot's burr phoned a London news agency to warn of a Scottish Nationalist "protest" near Westminster Abbey sometime today.

He did not say what form the "protest" would take.

The man said the protest would be against the continued use of the Stone of Scone in the Coronation ceremony.

Scottish Nationalists, theoretically pressing for more "home rule" for Scotland, stole the Stone of Scone from the abbey in December, 1951, to publicize their cause. The stone, which lies under the Coronation chair, was returned later.

Five New Victims Have Trichinosis

SUDBURY (CP)—Five new trichinosis victims, all Sudbury residents, have been reported to medical authorities.

This brings to 22 the number of persons taken ill with the disease since it was first reported here May 25.

The illness is caused by eating insufficiently-cooked infected pork.

Dr. Garth Edge, veterinarian with the Ontario department of health, Toronto, was in Sudbury Monday to check on possible sources of the disease and to take pork samples.

Dr. J. B. Cook, medical officer of health, said the most recent victims of the disease are not in serious condition.

Canadian Women Urged Join IODE As Loyal Subjects

TORONTO — (CP) — Mrs. Kathleen Drope of Toronto, newly elected Canadian president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, today urged all Canadian women to join the IODE as as a declaration that they are loyal subjects of Queen Elizabeth.

Mrs. Drope urged Canadian women to pray that the Queen's reign would be peaceful and prosperous.

"As a tangible expression of loyalty to Her Majesty, the order appeals to members and friends for contributions to the Westminster Abbey appeal for £1,000,000, aimed at restoring and perserving the 900-year-old shrine where our Queen's solemn coronation service has taken place."

Glimpses From Coronation Scene

By ARCH MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Coronation glimpses through Canadian eyes:

It was early to bed and early to rise for Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent so they would be fresh for today's ceremonies. They retired at 9:30 p. m. at the richly-decorated Dorchester hotel and were up and about at 5:30 a. m.

Canadian servicemen participating in the Coronation—about 750 in all—tucked away porridge, eggs and bacon, bread and butter, marmalade, tea or coffee for breakfast in their camps at Kensington Gardens and Earls Court, before marching 13 miles, total distance to the processional route and back. Later, they got haversack lunches and a hot supper of roast beef and trimmings.

The RCMP in the Coronation procession, four guarding Prime Minister St. Laurent's carriage and 36 riding with the Canadian services, were watched by a professional eye. The observer was Joseph Brunet, chief security officer of NATO and until recently an assistant RCMP commissioner at Ottawa. Brunet arranged details for the Mountie contingent this time. He headed the RCMP contingent at the 1937 coronation.

In the crowded, colorful Mall three Canadian students wore rain hats decked out with "Liz is a Whiz."

Canada House on Trafalgar Square was the centre of one of the densest crowds on the Coronation route. Periscopes sprouted from the mass, separated from the street by Canadian service personnel on guard duty, to see the procession pass three times.

The 50 Canadian girls watching the procession from an Oxford street site sang Canadian airs to while away the time. The girls were among 500 guests of Canadian industrialist Garfield Weston.

First "incident" today on the procession route involved the Canada Gates in St. James's park. Two women climbed the 18-foot iron gates to gain a vantage point. One was hauled down by police with a ladder, but the other eluded capture, to the cheers of the jam below, and yelled down commentaries to her friends.

FIRST NATIONAL FLAG — First raised in Williamsburg, Va., on May 15, 1776, after the Virginia Convention adopted an independence resolution, this flag will fly in Williamsburg until July Fourth as part of the annual prelude to Independence Day observance. Steal Family Jewelry From Duke, Duchess

LONDON (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland arose early today to attend the Coronation and discovered family jewelry they valued at £30,000 ($84,000) had been stolen from their home

The back door was open but there was no sign of a forced entry.

The jewel theft was the second in less than three years from the duchess. In November, 1950, thieves lifted heirloom gems valued at £50,000 from her Surrey estate.

Canadian Coronation Briefs

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Martin, 78-year-old British-born citizen, Monday night defied civic authority to touch his four-foot Union Jack before the Queen is crowned.

Mr. Martin, former beadle at the University of Toronto, was told by a city hydro employee that he would have to remove the flag he had hung from the line between the top window of his home and the hydro pole in front.

He said he will back his intention to see it stay there with rifle, if necessary.

"I was born under the British flag and I'll die under it," he said. "Nobody's going to touch that flag until Her Majesty is crowned."

OTTAWA (CP)—The band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals from Kingston will play at tonight's state ball given by Governor-General Vincent Massey, government house announced Monday. The band is directed by Lieut. B. J. Lyons of Kingston.

A government house spokesman said earlier plans were for the band of the Governor-General's Foo Guards to play. However, this had been changed.

OTTAWA (CP)—The governor-general Monday sent a message to the Queen wishing her a reign "filled with happiness and peace."

On behalf of the people of Canada, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey sent "devoted good wishes" to Queen Elizabeth. To the Queen Mother, he said the people of Canada are happy "to share Your Majesty's pride in the solemn dedication" of the Queen to the welfare and peace of all her people.

[illegible] (CP)—An exact replica of the royal Coronation coach is to be drawn through the streets of Flin Flon today, highlighting the town's Coronation celebrations.

The horse-drawn coach, built at a cost of $3,000 by officials of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., is two-thirds the size of the real thing.

The replica was made of cardboard, cement and plaster of paris, topped off with two coats of gold paint. The creation is 16 feet long, almost six feet wide, 8½ feet high and weighs 2½ tons.

CORONATION, Alta. (CP)—This east-central Alberta farming town cashes in today on the publicity-rich name it was given 42 years ago by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Coronation, a community of 800 population 130 miles southeast of Edmonton, was first put on the map as such on Sept. 27, 1911, to mark the accession to the throne of King George V in June of that year.

On the coronation of Queen Elizabeth, the town will come in for special attention from stamp collectors in many parts of the globe. A unique addition to their collections will be a stamp bearing a Coronation-dateline cancellation of June 2.

Several thousand special Coronation Day envelopes bearing an engraved cachet of Queen Elizabeth, self-addressed by the philatelists and mailed by them under separate cover to town postmaster Robert S. Ellis, will be cancelled and returned to the collectors.

The town's teen-aged queen, high school student Maxine Nashiem, is to ride in a parade replica of a royal coach, made by the local Canadian Legion branch.

Reds Hand Allies Truce Letter

Keep Contents Secret Decision Of U.N. Command

MUNSAN (AP)—The Communists handed the Allies a letter relating to the Korean armistice talks at a two-minute meeting of liaison officers today. The United Nations command said its contents would remain secret.

An official spokesman said, however, a full-scale negotiating session will be held on schedule Thursday morning after a nine-day recess.

The Reds were expected to answer the latest Allied proposal for breaking the prisoner exchange deadlock, last major barrier to a Korean truce.

Barring a last-minute change, Thursday's truce session will be secret.

ASK FOR SECRECY

The UN command asked for secrecy, but the Communists reserved the right to ask at any time that the sessions be made public.

The disposition of 48,500 Allied captives who refuse to return to communism is the last big road block to a cease-fire in the nearly three-year-old war.

The UN command offered its proposal in a closed door session May 25 and the contents never have been officially disclosed. South Korean sources have divulged most of the plan, however.

The talks then were recessed, first at Allied request, then at Red request—indicating the Communists have given the offer serious study.

UNUSUALLY QUIET

Communist radio stations — usually a sounding board for official policy—have been unusually quiet throughout the recess, giving no hint what the Red position might be.

The drawn-out talks resume amid apparently easing tensions between the UN and South Korea, which has bitterly denounced the Allied offer as a "sellout."

South Korea, after boycotting the May 25 session, indicated that a delegate will attend Thursday's meeting in Panmunjom.

Car Strikes Side Of Transport

One of Fatalities Son of Farmer In Belmont Township

COBOURG —(ENS)— Two men were instantly killed about two miles west of here on Highway 2 when their car sideswiped a transport at 3:30 a.m. today.

Dead are are driver of the car, George John Harrison, 19, of 36 Elena St., Oshawa, an employee of the Bell Telephone Co., and William Everett Gratton, 30, employed in Oshawa by General Motors.

Gratton is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gratton, RR 4, Havelock, in Belmont township. His father is a farmer well known in East Peterborough. The son is a member of a rather large family, and had been working for some years in Oshawa.

The driver of the transport was C. J. Brown of 57 Chestnut Street, Kitchener, who escaped injury.

The transport had been eastbound and the car, which had been proceeding west, struck the side of the tractor and continued on about 75 feet and went into the north ditch, the automobile coming to rest with the front pointing east. Apparently wrenched off by the impact, the dual driving wheels of the tractor were left lying on the highway at the rear of the trailer.

FLUNG FROM CAR

The bodies of the men in the car were found on the side of the highway where they had been flung when the car whipped around after the impact. Police think that the driver of the car fell asleep.

Brown told police that he saw the car approaching on its own side of the highway and there was no other traffic in sight.

"Suddenly the car swerved over on to my side of the road and I cut sharply to the shoulder of the highway to avoid him. But he sideswiped the transport, striking the driving wheels of the tractor. The cab door was jammed on my side and I had to kick my way out the window of the other door. I went back to the car and the two men were lying out on the

Hinges On Crisis

PARIS (AP)—The foreign office said today the date of the Big Three meeting in Bermuda hinges on the outcome of France's ministerial crisis. The United States, Britain and France have agreed informally that no positive date can be set until France has a government.

Sovereign Gives Medals To Canadians

By ARCH MACKENZIE

LONDON (CP) — The new-crowned Queen today presented the 2,600 members of the Commonwealth and colonial Coronation military contingents with her Coronation medal.

Fighting men from around the world, including 750 Canadian servicemen and the RCMP contingent, lined up on the lawn of Buckingham Palace this morning, their uniforms spotless despite the rain during Tuesday's Coronation marching.

Four Canadians received their medals from the Queen herself, as she stood on the palace terrace beside the Duke of Edinburgh, who was dressed in a uniform of the admiral of the fleet.

The four were Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp general to Her Maejsty, Maj.-Gen. J. D. B. Smith, officer commanding the Canadian contingent, Cmdr. Robert P. Welland of Victoria, naval force commanding officer, and Wing Cmdr. J. V. Watts of Hamilton, RCAF unit head.

Above, looking down on the multi-colored uniforms headed by the Canadians in two units and the Gurkhas of the British army, were the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, Prince Charles and Princess Ann of the Royal Family.

RECEIVED IN PALACE

Gen. Crerar was received before the ceremony in the palace and stood below the Queen. The band of the Canadian Royal 22nd Regiment, one of three bands on parade, played the national anthem as the Queen appeared. After contingent commanders had received medals, the remainder took theirs from trays distributed rank by rank.

The Queen chatted briefly with Capt. J. A. E. Belanger of Quebec City, conductor of the Royal 22nd Band, and with Watts, expressing concern at the tribulations the forces encountered in yesterday's rain.

Before marching off wearing their medals, the parade components doffed hats and gave Her Majesty three cheers. The Duke of Edinburgh returned their salute.

May Be Dismissed

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Presidential Secretary Andres Domingo announced today that dismissal proceedings have been instituted against Cuba's ambassador and consul-general in Canada for having welcomed ex-president Carlos Prio Socarras in Montreal. The ambassador is Delfin Pupo and the consul-general is Guillermo Espinosa.

Queen Goes Calling On Residents In City Of London

LONDON (AP)—The Queen, gay and smiling, went calling today on her people—and chose first a Cockney working class district that bore the brunt of the Nazi blitz. She set out on the first of four official tours of London after awarding Coronation medals to 2,600 Commonwealth and colonial troops who participated in yesterday's procession. Four-year-old Prince Charles led the cheers for his mother at the colorful mingling of soldiers from many lands. The Queen showed no sign of the strain of yesterday's ceremony.

Charles, heir to the throne, looked on from a balcony at Buckingham Palace while his mother awarded decorations to the contingent of troops from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan, Ceylon, Southern Rhodesia and the colonies.

PRINCE SALUTES

As the troops lined up to pass the Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, the little prince shouted, "Ready, steady—go!" and every time the Duke saluted, Charles raised his arm in imitation.

Princess Anne wasn't as interested in the soldiers as brother Charles and after the bands passed she called out in a shrill voice: "Mummy—are you coming in?"

Crowds broke through police lines just after the royal car swung out of the palace yards on the official tour. The car came to a stop for a few seconds until the way was cleared.

Elizabeth was dressed in a powder blue, tightly-waisted coast and a blue felt hat with navy brim to match. She wore a diamond brooch at her lapel, pearl necklace and earrings, black gloves and shoes and carried a navy blue handbag.

The Duke wore a black overcoat over a dark lounge suit and carried a bowler. The couple rode in an open car, despite cold and cloudy weather.

Prime Ministers Open 6-Day Meeting

LONDON (AP)—Eight Commonwealth prime ministers, including Canada's St Laurent, in conference today supported Sir Winston Churchill's call for top-level talks between East and West, authoritative sources said tonight.

This had been the reported aim of Churchill as he opened a six-day conference of Commonwealth leaders with a general review of world affairs and a detailed analysis of east-west relations.

Qualified sources said Churchill hoped to win the unreserved support of Britain's eight Commonwealth partners for his project to bring about an early top-level meeting of the big powers. Churchill evidently believes he will then be in a position to speak with greater authority when he meets President Eisenhower and the French premier in Bermuda late this month.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is representing Canada at the conference. He also attended the conference last November when sterling members of the Commonwealth drew up a plan to beat the dollar shortage, a problem not shared directly by Canada.

Newcomers to today's meeting at 10 Downing street were Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Daniel Malan of South Africa and Mohammed Ali of Pakistan. They did not attend the November conference.

Cabinet Crisis Ended Israel Leader Says

JERUSALEM (AP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion announced today Israel's cabinet crisis has ended. He said four ministers from the right-liberal General Zionist party, who quit because they feared state schools would be allowed to fly socialism's red flag, were rejoining the cabinet.

He also told Parliament that because of a need for national unity, he would continue his efforts to broaden his cabinet "despite difficulties met from the right and left."

The four General Zionists quit the cabinet because they feared Ben-Gurion's labor party would push through legislation to let schools fly the Socialist flag and sing the labor anthem on May Day.

The party executive announced it had approved the four rejoining the cabinet after the government informed it a special bill to cover the flag and anthem issues would be presented to Parliament soon.

Borrow Ideas To Save Jets

TOKYO (AP)—The air force has borrowed an idea from aircraft carriers and is using it to save jets and pilots in Korea.

Far East air forces headquarters said today that an aircraft arresting barrier—a net made of nylon webbing, steel cable and a heavy anchor chain—has been in use at a Korean air base since March 1 to stop crippled jets when they land after combat.

Jets with their wing flaps shot away come in at a high speed and need a lot of runway to land. The net, which cost about $14,000 to construct, brings the $240,000 jets to an easy, gradual halt and prevents possible destruction.

Heavy Snowfall Sweeps Western Europe

LONDON (AP)—A spring cold snap swept western Europe today, bringing heavy snow falls in the Alps and chilling rains elsewhere.

Britain had a repeat this morning of the cold, damp weather that brought discomfort to the tens of thousands who watched the Coronation procession yesterday.

Near blizzards swept the Austrian, French and Italian Alps. Traffic dislocations developed in many parts of the Austrian Alps.

Heavy snow, up to 39 inches at Fedaia, blocked several mountain passes in northeastern Italy.

Western Germany had unseasonable cold and rain.

Heavy rainstorms have battered Italy off and on for a week. Venice's famous St. Mark's Square, was one foot under water Tuesday.

Swiss farmers were worried about their cattle which were taken to Alpine summer pastures last week and now are grazing in several feet of snow. Snowfalls up to three feet were recorded during the last 36 hours on the Swiss Jura mountains.

Stubborn Fire Still Burning At Pier

BOSTON (AP)—A stubborn pier fire in the Charlestown waterfront burned on today after firefighters halted its spread during a night battle.

The blaze was fed by huge stocks of wood pulp and wool waste Damage approached $100,000.

History Books All Wrong Thompson Never Saw River

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Note to high school history students writing exams: Any date you give for David Thompson camping on the Thompson river in British Columbia will be wrong.

"David Thompson never saw the Thompson river," University of British Columbia Professor W. N. Sage told members of the Royal Society today.

"Thompson went another way to the Columbia river," he said, speaking in the light of recent research done into the barren central area of B. C., known in early days as "New Caledonia."

SEVEN FRASERS

If that doesn't jar high school historians this will: There were no fewer than seven Simon Frasers in the fur trade. "I helped to find the second," said Dr. Sage, "but when a friend turned up five more I told him I had lost interest since he went into the wholesale business."

Professor Sage also took a poke at the "white man's text books." None of them ever mentioned that the explorers just followed well-marked paths or passes shown them by Indians. Some day a history may be written by an Indian with an entirely different evaluation of the explorers, he suggested.

He called New Caledonia "the Siberia of the Canadian fur trade." There were no buffalo and therefore no pemmican. Salmon and a few berries were the chief diets.

The Indians were so peculiar they wouldn't even eat the beavers they were pelting. "I think it was because they were conditioned to salmon," he said, "but they would eat dogs when they could get them."

Boat Runs Wild On Mississippi

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A 15,000-ton Japanese freighter ran wild on the Mississippi river today, plowing into a wharf and buckling the roof of the Isbrandtsen Steamship Company warehouse.

The Mayjharu Maru scraped the bow of another ship at the wharf and just missed the offices of the Isbrandtsen line. A section of the warehouse roof fell on the bow of the freighter.

No one was injured.

The ship was heading upstream to pick up cargo when the steering gear went out of control.

Joseph Schultz, 53-year-old watchman for the Isbrandtsen line, said he watched the boat as it manoeuvred helplessly a few hundred feet off the dock.

"I noticed her about 200 feet out," said Schultz. "She let go one of her anchors and I heard somebody say 'Throw the other', but she kept right on coming."

Clothing Takes Fire Railman Burned

LONDON, Ont. (CP)— A London man burned to death today when a flash-back from wheel adjusting equipment ignited his clothing at the CPR roundhouse.

Wilbur Cove was dead on arrival at hospital. Firemen and roundhouse workers said his clothing was almost completely burned away.

The man dashed from the side of a locomotive he had been working on with kerosene-fed flames blazing from his clothing.

Two fellow workers attempted unsuccessfully to smother the flames.

7 New Farms Report Cholera

OTTAWA (CP)—New cases of hog cholera have turned up on seven farms in seven southwest Ontario counties, the agriculture department said today.

The outbreak which began in early May has spread to four new counties, Oxford, Brant, Middlesex and Norfolk, all south of, and close to the previously-infected eight counties.

All new cases have been traced back to community sales, two of which had not been directly involved before.

The seven new cases bring the total number of premises involved to 34 in 12 counties. Total of hogs dead or destroyed has reached 1,970.

The new disease spots are at Bright, Oxford county; Hatchley Station, Brant; Lucan, Middlesex; Seaforth, Huron; Vanessa, Norfolk; Hillsburg, Wellington; and Heidelberg, Waterloo.

North Koreans Storm Trenches

SEOUL (AP) — North Korean Reds, bayonetted from Allied main-line trenches in eastern Korea early today, stormed back this afternoon and tangled with South Korean infantry in savage close-quarter combat.

The battle on Luke the Gook's Castle still raged.

The South Koreans counter-attacked Red troops dug in on Luke's Castle at dusk Tuesday. Allied tanks pouring shells into Communist positions ahead of the assault waves.

By dawn, after a full night of bitter close-quarter fighting, the Reds had been knocked off the hill, the 8th army said.

It was the fourth time South Koreans counter-attacked in the sector. United Nations troops stopped other Red forces which charged 11 main-line positions and five outposts.

The Communists lost an estimated 1,100 men killed and wounded Tuesday in the heaviest eastern front fighting in more than a year.

Two Chinese companies—up to 350 men—hit Allied positions in the Sniper ridge sector on the east-central front Tuesday night, but were met by heavy fire and pulled back after sharp fights, the army said One clash lasted 90 minutes.

Coalition Retains Control Of Senate

BRISBANE (Reuters)—The government coalition of the Liberal and Country parties retained control of the Australian federal Senate as a result of the Queensland votes announced today.

Bad weather caused delay in counting the Queensland ballots in last month's election.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies captured three of the five Queensland coalition seats; their strength in the Senate will now be 31 against 29 for the Labor opposition. Pre-election standing was 32-28.

The president of the Senate will be elected from government ranks leaving the government with a majority of one on the floor of the Senate.

Churchill Perfect Knight

Like Proud Ship Of Line Spectator Describes Him

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, a proud old lion of empire, acclaimed his young Queen Tuesday, his eyes brimming with emotion.

The man who served Queen Victoria more than half a century ago repeated once again what for him were magic words: "God Save the Queen!"

Then he walked slowly from Westminster Abbey in the procession of the newly-crowned Queen Elizabeth. As he left, Churchill symbolized for the 7,500 persons there much of the chivalry of Britain's past. He seemed somehow to represent the tides of history all in his own person.

In his deep blue velvet robes of the Order of the Garter, Sir Winston was in that moment the perfect knight of valiant service.

And as befitted the leader of the "Mother of Parliaments," he was accompanied by the prime ministers of the Commonwealth—Louis St. Laurent of Canada; Robert Menzies of Australia; Sidney Holland of New Zealand; Daniel Malan of South Africa; Jawaharlal Nehru of India; Mohammed Ali of Pakistan and Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon.

Seen in the robes of the garter—the world's most exclusive order of chivalry—it was easy to understand why Churchill recently accepted a knighthood. As a knight he could show with a sense of completeness his homage to his 27-year-old sovereign.

Churchill's entry into the ancient abbey was almost as spectacular as his exit. A spectator commented "What a magnificent sight he is! As impressive as a 100-gun ship of the line."

The tag fit. He did remind you of an ancient ship returned from hard battles.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Jerry, a four-year-old parrot, is set for life today thanks to a $20,000 inheritance.

Luther A. Sawyer, 83, of Arlington, who died recently, left the money to his pet in a will filed in Middlesex probate court.

Under terms of the will, the parrot will be cared for by Sawyer's sister, Mrs. Vera Barnes, 73.

Mrs. Barnes said she is "not at all pleased" with the will, but will not contest it.

"It is too bad he could not have left the money for research for cancer or polio, something to aid suffering humanity," she declared.

2 Sisters Begin Hunger Strike

MEIGS, Ga. (AP)—Two elderly sisters today began the third day of a hunger strike "for the sake of the needy aged of Georgia."

Mary Hicks, 77, and Mildred Hicks, 73, former schoolteachers, tacked a neatly written notice on the front door of their modest home as they began their hunger strike. It reads:

"In October, 1951, we filed with the welfare department of Thomas county an application for an old-age pension for Mildred Hicks, totally blind. The application has been treated with stony silence.

"For the crime of outliving our savings the welfare department has sentenced us to death by starvation. After waiting 19 months we now submit to that sentence.

"We are convinced that we have no choice but starvation unless there is a vital change in the administration of welfare in Georgia."

TWO WERE KILLED when the car in the lower photo sideswiped the transport shown in the upper photo about two miles west of Cobourg at 3:30 a.m. today. Dead are George John Harrison and William Everett Gratton, both of Oshawa. Driver of the transport, C. J. Brown, Kitchener, was uninjured. Police believe Harrison, driver of the car, fell asleep at the wheel. —(Murray Smith Photo)

Churchill Pays Tribute To Monarch

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill Tuesday night hailed Coronation Day as "a day which the oldest are proud to have lived to see and which the youngest will remember all their lives."

In radio broadcast, he introduced the Queen's broadcast speech with: "It is my duty and my honor to lead you to its culmination."

"You have heard the prime ministers of the Empire and Commonwealth pay their moving tributes on behalf of the famous states and races for whom they speak," he said.

"The splendors of this second of June glow in our minds. Now, as night falls, you will hear the voice of our sovereign herself, crowned in our history and enthroned forever in our hearts.

NOT IN PAST

"Let it not be thought that the age of chivalry belongs to the past.

"Here, at the summit of our worldwide community, is the lady whom we respect because she is our Queen and whom we love because she is herself . . .

"It is our dearest hope that the Queen shall be happy, and our resolve unswerving that her reign will be as glorious as her devoted subjects can help her to make it."

Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth also broadcast messages of loyalty and greetings to the Queen.

Police Seek Knife Slayer

LONDON (AP)—Police spread a country-wide net today for a knife-wielding sex slayer who killed one teen-aged girl and possibly a second. They feared he might strike again.

Detectives grilled more than 1,000 United States airmen at nearby Bushey Park camp after the battered body of 16-year-old Barbara Songhurst was pulled from the Thames. The girl had been missing since Sunday, when she went on a date with an 18-year-old friend, Christine Reed.

Police were convinced that Christine was killed, too. Her shoes were found on the river bank near signs of a bloody struggle and her bicycle was dragged from the river. Police said they planned to use navy divers to search the river for her body.

Authorities said the killer mutilated Barbara with a nine-inch dagger as she struggled to fight off his attack. Then he dressed her in a sweater and jeans before throwing her body into the river.

Every policeman in Britain has been warned to look for a missing U. S. airman driving a stolen black sedan. Authorities also are seeking a British airman who knew both girls.

Girls Win Right To Wear Shorts

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — A short walkout by 63 telephone operators here won the girls the right to wear shorts at their work.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company agreed to this yesterday in working out a "heat relief" program with the Communication Workers of America (CIO).

But the operators are to wear their shorts only inside the building—and no midriffs are to be left bare.

During the 26-hour walkout most of Gulfport's 10,000 telephones were idle.

The link that had to come

The two main roads to the solution of life's problems, divergent though they may have seemed to be, are the way of Science and the way of Religion.

These two paths converge in Christian Science. Today the rational thinker finds logic, supported by proof, in the religious thinker's deep conviction of a primal cause, or intelligence, called God.

Science and religion can now agree, for through the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, the actual Science of Christianity has been revealed.

This great book shows, through reason and revelation, the solution to problems of health, supply, or of any other kind. It may be obtained at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon below is also for your use.

Prices Turn Weaker On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Prices turned weaker in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials dipped sharply around noon. Golds improved from a weak opening. Base metals drifted lower and western oils slipped after a mixed opening. Volume for the first three hours was 1,910,000 shares.

Steels, refining oils and manufacturing companies slipped in industrials.

Uraniums held firm. Graham Bousquet posted a 21-cent gain. Chimo, Goldfields, and Nesbitt-Labine also posted gains. New Brunswick base metals showed a majority of losses.

Base metals continued to fade slowly as most high-priced issues eased fractionally. Waite Amulet, Noranda and Hudson Bay were among the losers.

In golds, Wright-Hargreaves and McIntyre traded higher.

Western oils weakened by a 2-1 ratio but Gridoil again was a feature with a gain of 40c Canada Oil Line, Central-Leduc and Devon-Leduc slipped pennies.

Prime Ministers

Churchill was understood to have dwelt in his address on the various ways he thinks East-West political tension can be relaxed and how improvement in the world situation might benefit the Commonwealth's economic position.

At his side was Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd with the latest foreign office situation reports from trouble zones such as Korea, Egypt and South East Asia.

Reported up for discussion at the meetings here is a plan to have the Queen and Royal Family live for periods of time in the capitals of each of the self-governing countries of the Commonwealth.

Following Churchill's appraisal today of the world situation, each of the other prime ministers will make a policy statement. Particular interest will be shown in Nehru's address since he has taken a key role in seeking a Korean truce.

Queen Goes

CAPITAL HAS HANGOVER

This old capital was still in a state of hysteria—or hangover.

More than 10,000 people massed in Trafalgar Square when the Queen and Duke drove through—the same square they passed three times on Coronation Day.

The royal car slowed down passing a children's hospital in Kingsway and the Queen gave a special smile to the young patients, many in wheel chairs.

Shouts came up from the crowd "She's got the top down, bless her" and "You lovely girl."

The Queen's two-hour motor tour was through an avenue of waving Union Jacks, bunting and banners that gave a gay look to the normally drab neighborhoods with their begrimed cream stone houses.

A cold wind did not seem to disturb the young Queen, whose stamina during the long Coronation service drew the admiration of her people.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY

Small shopkeepers declared a special holiday. Little girls proudly showed their Queen their starched Coronation party dresses with red, white and blue sashes under their coats. Many wore coronets in the style of the peeresses who were present at Westminster Abbey.

The Coronation marked the start of six weeks of journeys by the Queen and her husband among Britons hopeful that the gracious young sovereign will lead them to a new Elizabethan age of golden splendor.

Thursday the royal couple visits northwest London. Tours of other sections of the city are scheduled for Sunday and Monday.

STATE BANQUETS

For distinguished Coronation guests, the Queen presides at state banquets at Buckingham Palace tonight and Thursday night.

The Queen's travels through her islands, typify the task destiny has cut out for her—to be her subjects' living symbol of everything Britain cherishes, to be the tie holding together the varied races of the Commonwealth.

In London, throughout Britain and in every continent where Britain's contribution to history has left indelible marks, people celebrated the Queen's Coronation Tuesday in ancient Westminster Abbey.

In these islands they carried their happiness into the rain-drenched night in an ecstacy of carnival spirit.

CHEER ROYAL FAMILY

Crowds growing to 100,000 cheered the Queen and her family on six different appearances they made on the flood-lit balcony at Buckingham Palace. Thousands danced in the streets. Great bonfires blazed through the land. Fireworks turned London's night into a spectacular theatrical pageant.

The fever of the Coronation ebbed only in the early hours today, when the tired thousands finally went to bed.

Subjects through the Commonwealth celebrated with the same enthusiasm as the millions here.

"God save the Queen" echoed through the scrub hills of Korea, where soldiers of five Commonwealth lands hold front-line positions against the Communists. Artillery fired red, white and blue shells and tank guns loosed a synchronized salvo.

In lonely Kenya outposts, where Britons carry on amid Mau Mau terrorism, toasts were raised in the Queen's name.

In Dyak Longhouses in North Borneo, in sedate government houses of Britain's Southeast Asian territories, in strife-torn Malaya, the peoples of many races joined in showing their loyalty to the 27-year-old Queen on the other side of the world.

DRAGON DANCERS

Dragon and lion dancers writhed through triumphal arches amid great clashing of cymbals and gongs in the Chinese-populated colonies of Singapore and Hong Kong.

In countries outside the realm, British representatives gave parties and receptions in honor of the occasion. Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet deputy premier and foreign minister, was the principal guest at a Coronation ball staged by the British embassy in Moscow.

Moscow newspapers gave unusual play to an announcement of the affair. Earlier papers in the Soviet capital made special mention also of the Coronation.

In London's rain, an estimated 3,000,000 sat or stood for long, wet hours for a fleeting glimpse of their sovereign. Tens of thousands had slept in the wet streets, some through two nights, waiting for the moment.

TELEVISION VIEWERS

But 30,000,000 television viewers had a comfortable ringside seat on history—the sacred ceremony in Westminster Abbey, the glittering procession and the closeups of notables.

They peered down over the shoulder of the Archbishop of Canterbury and caught a Queen's secret smile, a smile only the archbishop among all the 7,500 persons in Westminster Abbey could see.

Television made this a Coronation for the people.

The London press hailed the Coronation with one of the biggest issues since newsprint was rationed in Britain in 1940. They spoke editorially of the dream of a new Elizabethan Age and they cheered its meaning.

NEW MEANING

The Times saw in the ceremonies "both inward and outward expressions of the greatest coming together of free peoples freely associated that the world has ever seen."

But The Times added Britain must give to the words "Elizabethan Age" a new meaning—"Christian values re-established, morals reasserted, conscientiousness revived, energy renewed and national unity restored."

The Telegraph said the Queen in a "memorable broadcast" struck the authentic note of the new Elizabethan Age. Her Coronation, she said, was not a symbol of departed power and splendor but a declaration of hopes for the future.

St. Alban Smith Dies In Toronto

The funeral of Harry Denne St. Alban Smith, DSO, 97 Roxborough St., east, Toronto, who died there Monday, will take place from the CNR station here Thursday at 1:15 p.m. to the Little Lake Cemetery. The service at the cemetery will be conducted by Archdeacon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church.

Mr. Smith was only surviving nephew of Miss May Denne, 116 Dublin St., Peterborough and Mrs. Helen Schulte, Freeport, Ill. He was a son of Algernon St. Alban Smith and his wife, Polly Denne, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Denne of Peterborough. Two uncles were the late T. H. G. Denne and Roland Denne, former mayors of Peterborough.

A. St. A. Smith was an accountant in the Bank of Toronto at several places in this district and later retired in Toronto. His son, Harry Denne St. Alban Smith, went overseas in the First World War with the rank of Lieutenant and returned a Lieutenant-Colonel. He leaves his wife the former Nellie Moffat, and daughter Helen Mary in Toronto and his two aunts.

Hamilton Loans City Inspector

The temporary services of a sanitary inspector for the remainder of June have been obtained by the Peterborough Department of Health.

Through the co-operation of Dr. L. A. Clarke, medical officer of health in Hamilton, and former Peterborough MOH, a sanitary inspector will be loaned to the Peterborough department by the city of Hamilton.

It is expected that the appointment of a permanent inspector will take place at the next regular meeting of the Board of Health, June 10.

Jury Indicts Six On Charges Of Lying

WASHINGTON (AP)—The justice department announced today a Miami, Fla., grand jury has indicted six persons, five of them identified as members of the Ku Klux Klan, on charges of lying under oath during an investigation of racial terrorism.

The department said a seventh man was indicted on charges of making false statements in an application for a job at the Orlando, Fla., air base.

All seven were residents of Orange County, Fla., where violence occurred a number of times in 1949 and 1950.

Ontario Centres Celebrate

By The Canadian Press

Beacon fires and skyrockets flared across Ontario Tuesday night as Coronation Day rejoicing drew to a close. Virtually every centre staged civic celebrations, mostly featuring parades and speeches, a Canadian Press survey today showed. But some communities added special touches of their own. A golden coach, patterned as closely as possible after the one in which Queen Elizabeth rode to Westminster Abbey for her crowning and drawn by four white horses, rolled through the streets of Campbellford in that town's procession. Its coachmen were costumed like those in London and a troop of red-coated beefeaters escorted it.

Toronto's Chinese community heralded the start of the new Elizabethan age with a firecracker display in keeping with their ancient traditions.

LINE OF BEACONS

A line of beacons blazed long before dawn on the brow of Hamilton mountain to signal the start of Coronation Day in Hamilton. By noon 100,000 persons lined a two-mile parade route and later 20,000 packed into Civic Stadium for ceremonies and an air show. A blaze of fireworks atop the mountain just before midnight could be seen for five miles.

A choir of 1,500 children in Galt formed the Union Jack with cards, as well as a Crown and "E R" in gold, in Coronation drills before more than 10,000 persons.

Fifty floats on historical and religious themes were seen in the St. Catharines parade. Drum majorettes, a wild west group and a clown band added color.

Nine Boy Scouts at St. Marys, 12 miles south of Stratford, have special reason to remember Coronation Day. They were made Queen's Scouts during their community's celebration.

MODEL AIRCRAFT SHOW

A model aircraft show was part of Simcoe's observances, which also included religious services, sports, fireworks, street dancing and a parade.

The Japanese Citizens Association received a civic award for the most elaborate float in an early-evening parade at Chatham.

Seventeen immigrants received Canadian citizenship at a special Coronation Day court sitting in Cochrane. About 3,000 new Canadians in Toronto gathered last night to pledge their loyalty.

North Bay's parade was the largest in that northern city's history. It included veterans' groups, service men, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. The day ended with fireworks and a beacon fire on the airport hill.

FEW TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Toronto police said so many persons watched the Coronation on television over the city's station CBLT that there were scarcely any traffic accidents.

A choir of Six Nations Indian girls sang during a Coronation night service at Her Majesty's Chapel of the Mohawks in Brantford, the only royal chapel in Canada. The scripture was read from a Bible which was the gift of Queen Anne.

Canadian Air Base Commander Speaks In Three Languages

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

ZWEIBRUECKEN, Germany (AP)—When the commander of the new Canadian air base here, Group Capt. A. C. Hull, made a speech at the opening ceremony, he spoke in French, then German and finally English.

The tall RCAF officer from Manotic, near Ottawa, thus underlined the international role of Canada's airmen in Europe.

This magnificent base was built by French Air Force engineers out of funds provided by German taxpayers for use by Canadians under the over-all command of American General Lauris Norstad.

FLY SABRE JETS

The first Canadian squadrons to be stationed in Germany are in the third fighter wing, equipped with F86-E Sabre jet fighters. Their arrival was warmly welcomed by the Allied air forces in West Germany, which had until then only a handful of American Sabres to match the formidable Russian MiG 15 jets in the Soviet zone and Czechoslovakia.

Now Canada has six Sabre squadrons just west of the Rhine. Three are here and there are three more at the French airfield at Gros Tenquin, only a few minutes jet flying time away.

Number one fighter wing, now at North Luffenham, England, is due to transfer to the continent as soon as there is a base available.

FOURTH WING

Canada's Defence Minister Brooke Claxton has promised that the fourth fighter wing will take post at Soellingen, near here, before the end of the year. Like those already here, the jets of the fourth will make a series of hops across the Atlantic called "Operation Leap-Frog." These long-distance flights are major operations for jets and call for split-second timing because of their fuel limitations.

LOVELY SIGHT

Canadian air division headquarters is just outside the French garrison town of Metz.

Zweibruecken is a small German town near the Saar frontier, situated among rolling hills covered with beautiful farms. The super-modern base is an extraordinary sight in the local landscape. Set right on top of a ridge, it looks like an aircraft carrier ploughing through a green sea.

Veterans of the Second World War whistled with envy when they saw the comfortable living quarters, spacious and light mess-halls, clubs, cinema, 55-bed hospital and steepled churches. No Nissen huts here, no drafty tents. Paved roads instead of mud-tracks. Luxury!

The squadrons on the base are 413 from Bagotville, Que., commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. W. L. (Rocky) Gordon of Vancouver; 427 from St. Hubert, Que., commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. C. L. V. Gervais, of Waubaushene, Ont., and 434 from Uplands, commanded by Flt. Lt. H. S. Tetlock, of Mazenod, Sask.

Tea Service Given Couple

LILY LAKE (ENS) — Neighbors, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Steinkrauss recently to honor Mr. and Mrs Fred Steinkrauss on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

During the evening an address signed on behalf of the community by Mr. and Mrs. Everett Tully, Mr. and Mrs George Middleton and Mr. and Mrs. William Steinkrauss, was read by Mrs. Everett Tully and a large silver tea service was presented to them by Mrs. George Middleton.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Steinkrauss expressed their appreciation.

Progressive euchre was played, prizes going to Earl Craighead, Mrs. Walter Guyatt, Mr. Fred Steinkrauss and Henry Guyatt.

A silver guest book was signed by the guests and was in charge of Miss Donna Steinkrauss.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess at midnight.

Presbyterian Parley Opens In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The 79th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada opens here today with an expected attendance of 225 commissioners.

In absence of the Rt. Rev. John A. MacInnis, Orillia, the Rev. C. L. Cowan, minister of St. Andrew's Church, Hamilton, will conduct the opening service.

Election of a moderator is scheduled for the opening session. Two nominees are the Rev Dr.. W. A. Cameron and the Rev. Dr. A. Neil Miller.

West Hastings WI Elects Officers

STIRLING (ENS).—The West Hastings district 52nd annual Women's Institute convention was held last week in Scott's Church, 6th Concession of Sidney.

Frank Folwell, MP, was guest speaker.

Officers elected were: Mrs. George Birkitt, Frankford, honorary president; Mrs. John Reid, Trenton, president; Mrs. Louis Rodgers, Stirling, 1st vice-president; Mrs. E. B. Finkle, Holloway, secretary-treasurer.

Oath Is Taken In Lindsay Citizens Meet

LINDSAY (ENS) — Some 3,000 citizens gathered in Kawartha Park here Tuesday morning to hear an address by C. D. Logan, Bobcaygeon, at the town's civic coronation celebration. The gathering was one of the largest the town has seen in some years, and was made up of Legion members, Cubs, Scouts, Brownies, Guides, school children, three bands and hundreds of adults.

Following the service of worship led by Revs. P. C. Reed and H. Hesketh a coronation tree was planted by Mayor Lamb. The greatness of the British Empire and Commonwealth, Mr. Logan said, lay in the fact that it was a Christian brotherhood, founded on faith. He stressed that many of the colonization endeavours of the British people had come originally from missionary travels, and cited as typical British-instituted organizations that showed this type of leadership, the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, nursing, British and Foreign Bible Society, and the Salvation Army. The binding together of the Empire and Commonwealth was made possible, he said, only through the best system of government in the world—that of constitutional monarchy and parliamentary government in all the varied states of the association.

Following the service, which ended with the citizens taking the oath of allegiance a parade was led to the centre of the town by the band of the 44th Battery RCA. In the evening the Lindsay Kinsmen Club, which had postponed their usual Victoria Day fireworks, presented a show at the fair grounds

Germany, U.S. Restore Pre-War Treaty

BONN, Germany (AP) — The United States and West Germany moved another step nearer normal relations today by agreeing to restore their pre-war treaty of friendship, commerce and consular rights.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and U. S. high Commissioner Dr. J. B Conant signed an agreement to put the treaty into effect.

This treaty, first signed in 1927 and suspended at the outbreak of war, will, among other things, re-establish a basis for operations by business men of both countries.

A U. S. high commission spokesman said re-establishment of the 1923 treaty "will prove advantageous to U. S. investment in West Germany and will help the Germans lick their dollar gap."

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m.:

Synopsis:

Patchy cloud with scattered showers and thunderstorms is heading for central Ontario from west of Lake Michigan. This poor weather has been caused by the ascent of very warm moist southerly winds over the relatively cool air that has covered the province for the last few days. Just how steady and how heavy the rain will be is difficult to say, but most of Ontario probably will get at least an hour or so of rain tonight and Thursday. Some localities will have a heavy fall. Temperatures on Thursday will be somewhat cooler than today.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight, Thursday:

Northern Lake Huron, Niagara, Lake Ontario, Haliburton regions, Toronto, Hamilton. Sunny today becoming cloudy this evening; a few showers Thursday; continuing warm today, a little cooler Thursday winds light today, south 15 Thursday. Low tonight and high Thursday at Wingham, Toronto, St. Catharines and Hamilton 50 and 68, Trenton 45 and 65, Killaloe 40 and 65. Summary for Thursday: Cloudy. Some showers.

On Top Of The World

The mystique of Everest has been transcended by man. The British climbing expedition led by Colonel John Hunt has made th top. A New Zealand member of the expedition, Edmond Hillary and a native sherpa, Tensing Bhutia, planted the Union Jack on the swirling peak of the highest mountain in the world. It was indeed wonderful news on the eve of the Coronation. The feat challenges the imagination and chills the blood. Amidst the glory and pageantry in London yesterday rose in the mind's eye the image of one British flag planted nearly six miles above the seas, in an isolation of winds and peaks, cold and snow, and of the heroic party struggling with human limitations and unlimited spirit from the heights which no man before had scaled and lived to tell of it.

The hills are shadows and they flow
From form to form and nothing stands,
They melt like mists; the solid lands
Like clouds they shape themselves and go.

* * *

It was right and virtually inevitable that one of the two men to reach the top should be a native climber—a sherpa, which means a bearer. Bhutia is one of the "Tiger" sherpas, that is, a porter who has carried a load to 24,000 feet. Bhutia went as bearer with the New Zealand Hillary to the final stage, to that awful top at 20,002 feet. The veteran Himalayan mountaineer H. W. Tilman has written of the courage and tenacity of the native bearers without whom climbing in Nepal would be impossible to Europeans. Nepal is the largest uninhabited country still unexplored by Europeans, but as Tilman is at pains to point out, the natives themselves know most of the territories and peaks which Europeans have been exploring in the last hundred years. They know the passes and the terrible weather. No natives had ever before scaled Everest but they well deserve the honour which Bhutia has brought his race and craft in being one of the two first men to set foot on that dreadful and sensational summit.

* * *

The British party's achievement is magnificent, exalted. The annals of the climb will last as long as the earth's crust endures.

Two Forms Of Anti-Communism

The cases of Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton and Dr. Felix Browder, both citizens of the United States, offer an interesting example of two forms of anti-Communism. Mrs. Horton had been invited early in March by the State Department, under the Eisenhower regime, to serve as U.S. delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Affairs Commission. Dr. Browder had qualified for one of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellowships by writing a winning paper a few weeks ago.

After the original invitation, Mrs. Horton heard no more about the appointment for several weeks. Inquiries brought no direct reply, but finally an official of the Republican National Committee wrote saying that the appointment had been cancelled, to save "you and the State Department embarrassment." It was later said that Mrs. Horton had belonged to alleged Communist-front organizations, although Secretary of State Dulles had said she was entirely acceptable.

Mr. Dulles had reason to think so. Mrs. Horton was president of Wellesley College for thirteen years. During World War II she was commander of the WAVES; she is currently a member of the board of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., a director of the New York Life Insurance Company and of NBC. With that record, alleged membership in an alleged Communist-front organization hardly seemed sufficient to cancel Mrs. Horton's appointment—and apparently it wasn't. Mrs. Horton is a liberal, and had spoken disparagingly of the House Committee on Un-American Activities for helping to build up a climate of fear. And criticism of that committee makes the State Department shy violently away from the critic.

The members of the Guggenheim Foundation learned that Dr. Browder is the son of Earl Browder, for many years secretary of the Communist Party in the United States. They felt they should not knowingly grant a fellowship to a Communist, so they inquired quietly and carefully about Dr. Browder's political affiliations. Dr. Browder voluntarily signed an affidavit saying that he is not now and never has been a member of the Communist Party. No hearsay evidence was considered, and the association of parenthood was tossed out as a governing factor. The members accepted Dr. Browder's affidavit and awarded him the fellowship in mathematics.

The New York Times was nauseated by the Horton story. It said that "The reductio ad absurdum has now been reached. The entire lunatic fringe of frightened, vacant little minds must be babbling with happiness. And the rest of us must be sickened with shame." We hope The Times finds some comfort in the normal and reasonable behaviour of the Guggenheim trustees.

Our Street Dance

A street dance was held Coronation eve, off Charlotte street at Aylmer. The block was cut off from all vehicular traffic, the hard cement waxed, and the Utilities Commission had put up special lights. A dance band was engaged to play. So the stage was set for a good old-fashioned community dance. Yet the dance was not so. The weather was a little cool, but that was not a serious hindrance. Many hundreds of people attended at one time or another during the evening. But they were not dancing. They were outside the barrier, looking on.

The fault with the street dance was that it was a barred affair. The temporary fence around the block was not to stop cars, but people—unless they paid admission. What kind of community street dance is it for which tickets must be bought? What kind of popular Coronation celebration, for which a charge is made? The street is public, the lights are public property, but the dance was private, private to those who had the money to pay, or wanted to pay.

The service club which sponsored the dance and made the arrangement is of course using its funds thus raised for public welfare. Any profits from the dance—after the band was paid—will go into good public works. Yet we feel that on this occasion the street dance should not have been granted as a concession, even to a service club. It would have been much jollier, a real public amusement and celebration of the Coronation, had there been no barriers, no charge, and just a good time available for anybody who wanted to dance the evening out. The actual cost to the Coronation Committee of the City Council would not have been very great, had the dance been arranged as an open, truly public festivity, free to all comers. A public street is not a private dance hall; the chief reason for holding a street dance is that it may be public.

Ontario Economic Survey

The Ontario Bureau of Statistics and Research has just issued its annual Economic Survey of the Province. This is the fifth. It is physically a more manageable but nevertheless bigger volume than its predecessors, because the print is smaller—and incidentally clearer—than the typescript of the earlier editions. It includes seven of the detailed studies of economic regions which have appeared earlier in the Bureau's monthly bulletins. (The study of the Kawartha Region, which the Examiner printed at the time of its appearance, is not included because it came too late for inclusion in the annual volume. Probably it and studies of the remaining economic zones will appear in the 1954 volume.) Another new series included for the first time in the annual survey is tables on municipal finance statistics.

The compilation is useful and informative, but we must confess it would be more useful and informative if its figures were nearer the date of publication. Most of them are for 1951, and some come no nearer the present than 1950. A special magic seems necessary, even in this speedy age, to bring general statistics in such a volume as this, or even in the Canada Year Book, within firing distance of the present.

We have been a litle disturbed, ever since we first saw the Bureau's economic bulletins and reviews, by the separation into what it calls economic regions. Some of the most oddly assorted places are grouped into one region. For instance, the Kawartha Zone includes Peterborough and Oshawa. What has Peterborough in common with Oshawa except their condition of being manufacturing cities? The first chapter explains how and why the Province was so zoned. The reasoning is sound and one must admit the difficulties of any partition plan. We shall have to be content to let Oshawa ride along under our Kawartha banner.

The statistical highlights (pages eight and nine) for the Kawartha Region may fascinate some readers and induce boredom in others. The area (Peterborough, Victoria, Northumberland, Durham and Ontario counties) was 1.4 per cent. of the area of the Province. It had—in the fiscal year 1951-52—5.1 per cent. of the Province's people, 4.8 per cent. of its labour force, 8.8 per cent. of its estimated net farm income, 5.5 per cent. of the Province's manufacturing payrolls, 4.4 per cent. of its purchasing power, 4.1 per cent. of Ontario municipal debts, 4.1 per cent. of the municipal taxation of Ontario, used 3 per cent. of all the Hydro power used in the Province, had 5.4 per cent. of the registered motor vehicles, 9.9 per cent. of its highway miles, 4.5 per cent. of its telephones, 5.2 per cent. of the total school enrolment of the Province, and 5.6 per cent. of the teachers of Ontario. Fascinating stuff to persons prepared to be fascinated by statistics.

Can Formosa Stand Alone?

By O. M. GREEN

EVEN the warmest friend of Formosa (Taiwan, the Chinese call it) cannot believe that the Nationalists will ever reconquer the mainland of China.

But it does not seem inconceivable that the Taiwanese may, if let alone for the next few years, attain such conditions of prosperity and self-government that they may claim to rank as an independent State to be recognized as such by the world.

In 1952, with a total foreign trade of U.S. dollars 234,752,545, Formosa had a favourable balance of U. S. dollars 4,300,000.

The trade balance continued to be in Formosa's favour in the first quarter of 1955 (there was actually a deficit in the same period of 1952, despite the good showing of the whole year) and there seems no reason why this year's figures may not be better still.

❖ ❖ ❖

SUCH a recovery from Formosa's deplorable state only four years ago is worth noticing.

Like other South-East Asian countries, Formosa suffered shockingly during the war. Half the land went out of cultivation, factories were bombed, valuable forests were cut down.

After the defeat of Japan came two years' plundering of the unhappy islanders by the infamous Governor Chen Yi and a swarm of Kuomintang officials. A revolt in February, 1947, was stamped out by Chen Yi with such frightful savagery that loud protests were raised abroad. Chen Yi (eventually shot for treacherous dealings with the Communists) was replaced first by Dr. Wei Tao-ming, then by General Chen Cheng— a man of long, honourable record, both as soldier and Minister in Nanking before the war— and conditions began slightly to improve.

But in 1949 the island was swamped with refugees and the remains of General Chiang Kai-shek's army. Prices soared, unemployment was rife. It was not until 1950 that reconstruction could be begun seriously.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE RECOVERY since then may broadly be ascribed to four factors— America's unstinted liberality; the purification of the Nationalist Government, under the Premiership of General Chen Cheng, from "the old gang" of the Kuomintang; the good administration of Dr. K. C. Wu, well remembered by many foreigners as Mayor of Shanghai from 1945-49; and the well-planned work of the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction composed of three Chinese and two Americans.

Add to all this the balmy climate and natural fertility of Formosa, which can grow most things, besides possessing gold, copper, silver, sulphur and vast stores of coal, while the surrouding seas and inland waters teem with fish.

Formosa's farmers number three million—about half the indigenous population— and until recently more than half of them have been tenants, their rents ranging from forty-six to sixty-two per cent. of the annual produce. About a quarter have been farming no more than one and one-fifth acres (which by the way is over three times the amount allotted to each adult peasant in the Communists' land reforms on the mainland).

THIS YEAR should see the completion of the land reform in Formosa which has been enforced in three stages. First, all rents were reduced to not more than 37½ per cent. of the produce. Secondly, all public lands were sold to the tenants; and, thirdly, the balance of private estates, above a modest portion which a landlord might keep, was sold to the Government (the landlord being paid in lands, bonds or shares in a public industry) and re-sold to the tenants for twenty semi-annual payments, the prices of the land being calculated at two and a half times the value of its produce. Like any other government scheme in the world, these reforms have had their critics. On the face of them, they seem fair and by foreign testimony they work pretty well.

Sugar is much the biggest of Formosa's exports, more than half all those of 1952. Most of it until recently went to Japan and America, but other purchasers are appearing —Great Britain, for example, has placed orders this year for 160,000 tons— and there are hopes of "barter agreements, for example with Iran for oil, Pakistan for jute and West Germany for machinery. Formosa's sugar has the advantage of not being a "dollar" commodity.

BUT EFFORTS are being made to develop other exports. Rice, to the value of U.S. dollars 23,240,000, last year came next to sugar. Indeed, Formosa's production of 1,570,115 tons or rice in 1952 exceeded the best year under Japanese rule: it would have been considerably higher but for a bad typhoon in in November.

Bananas and pineapples are a promising line; timber, too, as the Provincial Government's comprehensive scheme of reafforestation develops; and tea, especially green tea, for which there is an enormous demand in North Africa.

❖ ❖ ❖

ANOTHER interesting devolopment is cotton. It was never grown under the Japanese. Yet it is hoped that this year Formosa will be self-supporting in all cotton yarns except the finer counts.

Cement factories, aluminium works (expected to export two thousand tons this year), hydro-electric power stations, the cultivation of sweet potatoes for man and beast, and the manufacture of starch are other activities.

Chemical fertiliser is the great need. Although three new factories last year nearly trebled their 1950 output, they only cover a third of the island's needs. Fertilisers are Formosa's most expensive single import.

❖ ❖ ❖

AS one looks to the future, the increasing share of the Taiwanese in the management of their own affairs attracts attention.

Under Dr. K. C. Wu, seventeen of the twenty-three members of the Provincial Government Council were chosen from Taiwanese and over fifty thousand of the eighty-one thousand employees were Taiwanese. Dr. Wu also instituted councils, popularly elected, in the sixteen counties and five municipalities that make up Formosa.

Dr. Wu was succeeded recently (he is understood to have been seriously overworked) by Mr. O. K. Yui, a former leading banker and mayor of Shanghai, who has now appointed three Taiwanese to control as many Departments of the Provincial Government.

Against such positive measures towards popular government, the fact must be faced that Formosa is still largely a police State under control of General Chang Ching-kuo, son of General Chiang Kai-shek by his first wife.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE GENERALISSIMO, as he was once styled, now sixty-seven years old, takes much less share in the government than formerly. But his son has filled the Army with political commissars, thus undercutting the authority of its commander General Sun Li-jen, who fought brilliantly with the American General Joe Stillwell in North Burma; and his secret police are always about the streets. His excuse is that he must ever be on guard against Communist provocateurs, who may slip in from the mainland. But one imagines that Chiang Chingkuo is no more liked by men such as O. K. Yui and General Cheng Chen than he is by the Taiwanese.

The only solution offered by what is now the most important Taiwanese faction is—time.

An American View:
"....HOWEVER, THE DOVES ARE REALLY SCORING!"

The Moral Of McCarthy

By PHILIP TOYNBEE

IT IS an old truism that life is stranger than letters—clearly a false one, in that, whatever oddity life provides, letters can make it odder by a scratch or two of the pen.

But it sometimes happens that a given life reads more like a moral tale than a genuine biography—and so it is with a new book just published on the topical subject of the American Senator Joe McCarthy.

Read as fiction the only weakness of the story is that it breaks off before the end; the moral of the fable hasn't yet been supplied. The moral may prove to be the comforting one that wicked men are confounded in the end—or it may be the harsher one that cowardly men are at the mercy of someone who knows how to play on their fears. Both things have happened, but often the second happens before the first, with long and tragic consequences.

This is a careful and well-organised study of McCarthy's life and methods by two American journalists. The American edition carries a sensational announcement by the publisher that he will instantly append a supplement to the book to correct any single factor in it which is proved to be false. Even without this pledge of integrity, these authors would carry conviction. They write ironically, but without beating any loud moral drums—and the result is the most devastating exposure of a living man that I have ever read.

There are two traditional beginnings to the American success story—either you sell newspapers or you're a farm boy; and McCarthy was provided with the rural, and more appealing, origin. He was the disconsolate son of a poor Wisconsin farmer, and, while still in his teens, he himself set up as a chicken farmer. The most admirable—the only admirable—episode in McCarthy's recorded life is his brave determination to be educated, even at the cost of going to school with small boys when he was already a loutish adolescent. The speed with which he hurried through primary school to law school and eventually to a law partnership, should remind us that McCarthy has an extremely efficient brain. It is a superficial one; it is unsupported by the smallest ingredient of wisdom or moral sensitivity—but his mind is remarkably quick and shrewd.

His political career began with an act of calculated duplicity against his elderly lawpartner, which enabled McCarthy to stand for the local judgeship. He won these early elections, in 1936, by the campaign methods which have subsequently enabled him to become, within sixteen years, the most publicized and feared man in the Senate of the United States. Lies and demagogy, promises to all, false simplicities and an unscrupulous defamation of his opponents—these are McCarthy's methods—and it must be admitted that their success presents to the foreign reader an alarming picture of the American political scene.

Before reading this book I had imagined that McCarthy was a bigotted fanatic, odiously narrow-minded but full of misplaced zeal. But the plain fact revealed by this book is that he has been proved again and again before the public to have told lies and to have been involved in shady financial deals.

Before he began his anti-Communist "crusade," McCarthy accepted the support of the Communist Party in his initial campaign for the Republican nomination in Wisconsin. He began his Senate career by opposing public housing schemes in favour of private mass-builders. (He was well paid for this campaign.) He went on from this to defending the Nazi perpetrators of the Malmedy massacre of American airmen. The American prosecutors, he suggested, were made up of a vengeance team of Jews with a violent hatred for the Nazis. (There was money in this, as well.)

It was only when his publicity was beginning to flag that McCarthy decided to discover that the State Department was riddled with Communists. Two hundred and five Communists in the Department was his original figure, but in three-and-a-half years McCarthy has not succeeded in exposing a single Communist in the State Department. His campaign was deliberately undertaken to keep his name in the limelight: his total failure to substantiate his allegations has not abashed him, has not abashed his mass-following in Wisconsin, has not provided his many enemies with the means of destroying him. Courageous men have made the attempt; all have been thwarted, most have been resoundingly defeated; some have been ruined.

The authors of this book suggest many reasons for McCarthy's continued power and success, but to the non-American it is likely to remain a disturbing and inexplicable mystery. Let us hope that the end of the story will come quickly, and that it will provide the old American moral that you can't fool all the people all the time. Already Thurber's variant has been justified; you can fool too many of the people too much of the time. OFNS—Copyright.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all. (I Chron. 29:11,12.)

❖ ❖ ❖

O Lord God of Hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee? or to thy faithfulness round about thee? . . . The heavens are thine, the earth also is thine: as for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them . . . Thou hast a mighty arm: strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand. (Ps. 89:8, 11,13.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth. (Ps. 119:142.)

❖ ❖ ❖

The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. (Ps. 103:19.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. (Isa. 41:10.)

❖ ❖ ❖

By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth . . . For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast. (Ps. 33:6,9.)

Letter To The Editor

ENCOURAGED

Sir May I congratulate your editorial dept. for writing such a splendid down to earth, common sense editorial as "Jobs for men growing old."

The reading of said editorial has helped greatly in lifting me out of the Slough of Despond. I have tried desperately to find a job since last December when I made out my first application but having reached the decadent age of forty plus four was beginning to feel doomed.

I won't attempt here to state my qualifications, realizing that your department is not an employment agency— but will state that I'm willing to work along with any man in his twenties or thirties and give at least as good a day's work. Please don't think I'm boasting when I say that I would be more valuable to an employer than some of the twenty-year-olds that have been snapped up in recent months while I've been left on the shelf.

Then there is the question of farmers and D. P.'s who seem to be able to acquire jobs in our fair city—regardless of age— in preference to our local men who, like myself, are trying to meet rent and tax payments— but that is another problem altogether and I must not deviate from my original purpose of this letter and that is to thank your for your stand for the "Old Boys".

Men At Front Observe Coronation Day

By BILL BOSS

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (CP)—The Coronation was honored in Korea Tuesday in realistic technicolor on the battlefront.

Artillery sent plumes of red, white and blue smoke trailing across no man's land from smoke shells and booming guns maintained a thick curtain of smoke in the Commonwealth colors before the dazzled and doubtless puzzled enemy.

Then, punctually at 10 a.m., hearty warrior voices were raised along the whole Commonwealth front in three cheers for the Queen after a toast in rum was drunk to Her Majesty.

CORONATION PARADE

Two hours later, 21 contingents representing the entire 1st Commonwealth division held a Coronation parade in a rear area long associated with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in a valley among hills washed to a lush green by recent rains and flooded Tuesday with sunlight.

Two Sherman tanks of the Lord Strathcona's Horse, commanded by Sgt. Demetu Pishkarenko of Vernon, B.C., and Cpl. Leonard Goebel of Melville, Sask., acted as markers for the parade-ground ceremony.

Marmora Celebrates Coronation Day

MARMORA —(ENS)—Citizens and children assembled at the public school grounds Tuesday afternoon for a special coronation service at which Reeve Ritchie Wells was chairman. Miss Barbara Meiklejohn presided at the piano.

After the singing of "O Canada" Reeve Wells extended a welcome. The Rev. G. H. Bache read scripture lesson and the Rev. A. B. Moffatt offered prayer. This was followed by the piano selection "Land of Hope and Glory" by Miss Meiklejohn.

Canon J. M. Brownlie gave an address on the signficance of the coronation. Miss Meiklejohn then played "Fight the Good Fight". Medals were then distributed to the children, the village medals by Councillors W. Shannon and C. Heath and the school medals by Principal E. C. Prentice of the public school. Flags were presented to the children by Major Percy Gray.

The Girl Guides under command of Capt. Helen York, assisted by Lieut. Lucille Bedore, sang vespers. The service concluded with the National Anthem.

Under command of Major Gray, a procession marched through the principale streets, headed by the color party of Marmora Branch 237, Canadian Legion. Included were Carl Gray and Kenneth Reynolds, Korean war veterans. The Girl Guides led the school children with members of the Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary bringing up the rear.

OLDEST RITUAL

The oldest coronation ritual is that described in the Pontifical of Egbert, 8th century archbishop of York.

Havelock Marks Coronation With Service

HAVELOCK— (ENS) — The coronation was celebrated with divine service in arena Tuesday evening when a record number of residents from the village and townships of Belmont and Methuen attended to pledge their allegiance to Her Majesty.

A parade was formed at the town hall and paraded to the park where, following the service in the arena, a display of fireworks was given. The Havelock pipe band, under the direction of drum Major Robert Hill, led the parade, followed by the veterans, the Ladies Auxiliary, the boy scouts and a number of school children.

CONDUCTS SERVICE

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson, Legion padre, conducted the service, gave the call to worship and offered the prayer of invocation. This was followed by the hymn "O Worship the King." The Old Testament was read by the Rev. Lawrence Bigelow. The recognition was read by Reeve W. E. Griffith of Belmont and Methuen townships followed by the narration by Warden E. J. Leeson.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. R. G. Newman and the New Testament lesson was read by the Rev. W. Stevenson. This was followed by singing "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

The Rev. H. E. Peasgood gave the address. He told the children about Prince Charles being brought to Westminister Abbey to see the crown placed on the head of his mother. His address to the adults was based on the prayer of benediction by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Donald Pollock was accompanist. During the fireworks display the children were given a treat of ice cream.

Canadian Forces Soaked But March Smartly On

By DAVE McINTOSH

LONDON (CP)—Man, did it rain.

But, as the Englishman said as he unfurled his umbrella, "don't suppose we can have Everest and the weather, too."

Over and over again one heard: "Wasn't it grand, love? Pity about the rain, though."

The Mounties' scarlet uniforms were so wet they looked almost black. Their Stetsons became so warped in the downpour they resembled toques.

Soaked trousers stuck to the legs of Canada's marchers in the Coronation parade, 450 stalwarts from the navy, army and air force. They looked straight ahead as the water streamed down their faces and necks. Stockings of the 22 Canadian servicewomen were splashed with rain.

AT DISADVANTAGE

The 336 Canadians lining part of the route were at a worse disadvantage. They couldn't move to get warmed up.

Only 26 Canadians in the show kept dry—Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent, who drove in a closed carriage, and the 24 pilots of the RCAF Sabres which took part in the 168-all-jet flypast.

The marchers were about the only people in London who didn't see the radiant Queen float by in her golden coach.

The patient watchers—some had slept out on the pavement for two nights, the rest had sat or stood for nearly 12 hours—were packed 30 and 40 deep in Hyde Park and at Marble Arch. The rain came down in torrents. They didn't budge. Bands played to keep up the watchers' spirits, but they really weren't necessary.

Against Marble Arch, a middle aged woman propped herself, sitting on the pavement, her tattered coat dragging in a dirty puddle.

"Wasn't it grand, love? Pity about the rain, though."

Saw a piece the other day which said: "In a northside Chicago hotel, the shrunken, gaunt shadow of Battling Nelson, former world lightweight boxing champion, waits for help from the Benefit Committee which will provide an annuity of $1,000 a month for life for the Bat. He figures he could have been a millionaire after one fight at modern purses. Perhaps he could, as he was a great fighter in his day many long years ago. However, we get a bit tired of hearing of those former athletic greats being broke and looking for a handout in their old age. They were well paid then according to standards of the time, and should have saved some of it.

* * * * * * *

Strikes us that a thousand bucks a month is a pretty good handout— more than a great many of us make today or will get when we're old. Nobody will be financing us when our working days are over—we'll have to get by on the pension we're paying into and any savings we can stash away, unless a rich uncle remembers us in his will. But too many of these oldtime athletes, who lived real high on big money in their heyday, windup flat and looking for help. Not so the smarter ones, who realize their big money days are comparatively few in the world of sports, and therefore make provision for the future. As a working guy, we can't feel too sympathetic toward former sports' stars who have chucked it all away.

Dr. Kenner In Sports

Just 10 years ago this month, Dr. H. R. H. Kenner retired as principal of the PCVS after being 50 years on the staff 35 as head of it. Kenner Collegiate in the southend is named after him. We recalled it after seeing a picture of the OHA intermediate champs of 1902, who beat Galt out in finals at the old Charlotte St rink. The group shot showed Mr. Kenner as club president, Harry Rush the secretary, Dr. A. W. MacPherson, treasurer, D. Bradd and Dr. A. Scott on the executive, Jim McCabe manager, and Ed. Dillon trainer. These were the players: Harry Morgan, Harold Armstrong, Rollie Glover, Fred Whitcroft, Chris Graham, Roy Armstrong and Ernie Wasson. The late Dr. Kenner was keenly interested for many years in rugby and hockey.

They're feeling quite cocky down in St. Catharines these days after edging our OLA senior Petes 13-12 in overtime last Saturday eve. Some of this cockiness will be knocked out of them here Friday if the Petes play up to form. Locals are still the champs and have the advantage of the home pitch this time and no long trip behind 'em. But they'll still have to hustle as the Athletics are a young running bunch of lacrossers with several smart veterans to steady them, and a goalie almost as good as Moon Wootton. It'll be the game of the year to date and should see a record crowd bulge the walls of Miller Bowl. Hope the weather is right for it.

Now Tied For Third

At the moment the Trailermen are tied in the third slot with Fergus Thistle, who downed 'em 12-9 in Fergus last evening, while St. Catharines beat Mimico to take over sole possession of first place. The Yorks are a close second, a step up on Petes and Fergus. It was 9-9 to end the third period last gloaming, but Fergus finished a bit stronger to wrap up the verdict. Bob Dobbie hit the twine three times for the victors as Don Gear and Don Campbell clicked for two each. Curly Mason and Russ Slater led the scorers with a brace apiece. Harry Wipper and Bill Killingbeck, local husky who plies his lacrosse trade now for Fergus, tangled once in a fairly rugged match. Petes will have to dig in from now on as these early losses often hurt plenty late in the schedule.

Over at the Bowl by the river last p.m., Seabrooke's took an 8-3 win 'gainst TPT in a curfewed eight heats, while TPT won 4-2 from UEW. Latter game was a neat one with Reg Gordon tossing a three-hitter for the winners and Jack Crowley allowing but six in nine stanzas, both getting good support over most of the route. Driscoll pitched well for Seabrooke's as Red Sullivan again was the big hitter, Bob Wyatt and Mark Donoghue also cuffing the apple hard. For Revoy's, Ray Craig led the hitters. Some keen ball being served up now in the men's circuit. Games Thursday: Revoy's vs. TPT, and Seabrooke's vs. UEW.

Maple Leafs Take Twin Bill Beat Out Buffalo Bisons

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The second-place Rochester Red Wings Tuesday night halted Montreal's win-streak at nine games, taking the abbreviated opener of an International Baseball League doubleheader 2-1.

The Royals came back with a decision in the nightcap to maintain their 3½-game lead over the Wings.

Ben Flowers, on option to Baltimore from Boston Red Sox of the American League, hurled a brilliant four-hitter to blank the tailend Springfield Cubs 5-0—his second victory against as many setbacks.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who are third, swept both ends of a Coronation Day twin bill from Buffalo Bisons, winning the 12-inning opener 3-2 and the seven-inning nightcap 2-1.

PACES LEAFS

Francisco Campos, newly-acquired outfielder from Washington Senators, paced the Leafs with a homer in each game.

His big blast with one on in the ninth of the first game tied the score 2-2, sending it into extra innings. His bases-empty homer in the fourth of the nightcap ensured the win. Team-mate Mike Goliat tied the score 1-1 in the second with his seventh round-tripper of the season.

Ottawa and Syracuse split a night double bill, the Athletics taking the opener 3-1, while the Chiefs came through in the nightcap 9-5.

Bob Trice scattered five safeties and came home for a run to take the short opener for the A's. The second game went to Marv Williams, who tripled in a run in the third. The victory was his first in four starts. Nine walks and five errors helped give the Chiefs the nightcap.

Ken Lehman, making his first appearance since injuring his ankle two weeks ago, started for Montreal in the twilight game, but he lacked his usual control and was pulled in the sixth for Ronnie Lee. The loss was Lehman's first against five wins. Bob Tiefenauer was the victor. Starter Tom Lasorda was the winner in the second game, although he was in trouble in the eighth and needed help.

GORGEOUS GEORGE, above, who takes on Bobo Brazil in the feature wrestling match at the Brock Arena tonight. Out of his many gowns, it is expected that the gorgeous one will wear his Coronation robe when he enters the ring. An all-star supporting card sees Timothy Geohagen and Nanjo Singh tangling in the semi-final and Howard Cantonwine and Pat Flanagan in the opener.

Colborne Gains A Triumph Against Liflocs

Colborne pulled out a 5-2 Lakeshore Baseball League victory over the local Liflocs on the former's diamond yesterday, a replay of a postponed contest. It was a tight tussle throughout, with the losers getting a run each in the third and fifth frames, as Colborne counted one each in the third and eighth, but fashioned three to win it in the fifth on a walk and some timely thumping. The winners had several former Quinte seniors aboard, including pitcher Wright who gave just seven hits as he whiffed a dozen.

Don Ash twirled neat ball till they reached him somewhat in the fifth, Jerry Frizzelle taking over then. Ash was wild to get himself in trouble at times. He allowed four hits and fanned three. Frizzelle giving up four bingles the rest of the way and striking out four. Liflocks reeled off two double-plays to help their hurlers.

Sales led the winners at bat with three for five, one a double. Kearns clouted a double and two singles in four for the Dalton crew and pilfered a sack. Foley had two for four and a stolen base, while Pammett hit a pinch single in the ninth, and MacSporran had the other hit

TPT Petes Beat UE Squad In Nifty Scrap

TPT Petes rang up their second straight win 4-2 of the men's senior softball campaign in the nightcap of Tuesday's twin bill at the East City Bowl, as Reg Gordon served up six-hit ball, behind fairly superb fielding from his hockey cousins.

The former UE star now toiling for skipper Buck Legrow met tough opposition from the veteran speedballer Jack Crowley, and the two staged a battle royal for five scoreless frames. With little to choose between, TPT's finally broke loose in the home half of the sixth and before the smoke had cleared, the hockey boys had hiked four tallies across the platter, to virtually sew up the verdict, then and there.

Crowley hit a triple to left in the ninth with two away; but Jack tried for a homer only to be nailed at the plate on a great throw in and an amazing catch and tag by the veteran Castle, who caught a fine game.

Gordon fanned seven and walked but one; Crowley struck out four and issued five passes while allowing but three hits in the season's best battle to date. Gus Leonard and Bernie Robson looked good defensively

Frankie Albert Signs With Stampeders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Frankie Albert came out of football retirement Tuesday night to sign with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Terms were not announced. But the former San Francisco '49-er T-quarterback said Calgary "paid me considerably more than I ever received with the '49-ers" of the National Pro Football League. That was estimated at $22,500 in 1950.

Calgary's general manager, Bob Robinett, also declined to discuss the terms.

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES celebrated the crowning of Queen Elizabeth Tuesday with the annual track and field meet, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at Morrow park. The meet had previously been scheduled for May 18 but it was rained out. St. Peter's High School girls, coached by Mary Scanlin (second from left, top), more than held their own with Joanne Kearns, Ruth Hickey and Mary McDongall (left to right) leading the firsts in the senior, junior and intermediate brackets. Kenner Collegiate boys, coached by Jack Cullis and Gord Johnston, provided many surprises in the junior events. Romping to an easy win in the 440-yard relay, [illegible] Ballantyne literally flies, even ahead of his shadow, across the finish line, followed by the Saints' Bill Forestall (10) and Merv. Gray of Kenner (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Girls Of St. Peter's High Capture Top Honors At Track And Field Meet

St. Peter's High School girls won track and field meet honors yesterday at Morrow Park with 80 points on the day and a combined total of 178 for the dual meet staged May 19 and June 2 under auspices of the Recreation Commission and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Only the local high schools had competitions at the meet Tuesday. PCVS junior, intermediate and senior girls were next with 61 points for a total of 151. Keene had 26 points to total 89. From the earlier meet, North Hastings posted 15, Lakefield 15 and Port Hope five points. Yesterday's meet showed SPS boys with 98, PCVS 90 and Kenner 63, but total points for the intermediate and senior boys are not yet available from the COSSA district meet in Oshawa.

GIRL WINNERS

J. Kearns with 15 points led senior girls, M. McDougall topping the intermediate lasses with 13, and R. Hickey going best for juniors with 11. All are from St. Peter's. Ballantyne of Kenner was the junior boys' champion with 10 points. Kenner junior boys amassed 49 to 26 for SPS and six for PCVS. With 52, SPS led intermediate boys as PCVS got 27, but the latter seniors led with 57, SPS having 20 and Kenner one.

For the girls, SPS were high with 32 in the senior section, PCVS getting 18 and Kenner none. In intermediate, PCVS and SPS tied with 25 and Kenner had three. The SPS juniors led with 23 as PCVS totalled 18 and Kenner 13.

Field events winners were: Junior boys' shot put, Hotston of Kenner; junior girls' ball throw, Jackson of Kenner; intermediate girls' ball throw, Wood of PCVS; senior girls' ball throw, Ward of PCVS; junior girls' running high jump, Heffernan of SPS; intermediate girls' running broad jump, Dobson of PCVS; senior girls' running high jump, Fletcher of PCVS; junior boys' hop, step and jump, Whitehill of PCVS; junior girls' running broad jump, Merrett of PCVS; intermediate girls' running broad jump, Rose of PCVS; senior girls' running broad, Kearns of SPS; junior boys' running broad jump, Ballantyne of Kenner; junior boys' high jump, Hale of Kenner; junior boys' pole vault, Falkner of Kenner.

Coaches on hand were John Lynch of St. Peter's and Jack Cullis of Kenner. Alex Sinclair was there as recreation commissioner. Jaycees working as meet officials included Jerry Grady, Bill Waye, Tom Miller, S. Bannerman, Ron Balaam, Doug Landry, Steve Evans, George Hutchison, Ralph Hutchison, Bill Gartland, Bruce Edwards and Doug Vaisey. Other officials were: Miss Roselyn Stone, Miss Marion Foster, Jim Daly, Gord Young, Dennis Fitzgerald, Bill Huntley and starter Bill Morewood.

Merchants Fall To The UEW In Close Game

UEW defeated th local Merchants 2-1 in a keen city soccer match yesterday. The Merchants opened strongly and the inside left tested the UE goalie early. Later, UEW attacked and Strong forced a corner kick which was cleared. Payne hit the net side next. Hoyle had a break to miss after beating three men. Payne scored first for Merchants on a fine play. UE tried hard to even it up but the Merchants' goalie kept them out, Strong and Smith making extra good thrusts, and the half time count was 1-0 for the Merchants.

UEW attacked to open the second and Smith's hard shot was blocked by the netminder. Merchants drove back and Croll headed one off the goal line with the goalie beaten. The UE goaltender made some nifty saves from Merchants' forwards. Croll equalized the score and then both teams fought hard for the winner. With 10 minutes left to go, Smith scored the deciding goal on a pass from Hoyle. Croll nearly got another on a free kick but the Merchants' goalie, who shone throught, saved.

Fergus Yanks Out Victory Over The Petes By 12-9 To Climb In OLA Standing

FERGUS (Special)—Fergus Thistles moved up to a third-place tie wtih Peterborough Trailermen in OLA senior "A" competition last night here when they defeated Peterborough 12 to 9. The game was extra close from the start with neither team having any advantage. Fergus led at the end of the first 4-2. By half-time they were out in front 8-5. At the eight-minute mark in the third period, Jim Robertson, Fergus goalie, got a five-minute penalty for slashing. At this time, the Thistles were ahead only two goals. With a regular player in the Fergus net Peterborough got two goals to tie it up 9-9 at the end of the period. During this same period Bill Killingbeck of Fergus and Harry Wipper of Peterborough got five minutes each for fighting.

SETTLED DOWN

In the fourth quarter, both teams settled down to concentrated playing. Just after the five-minute mark, Fergus broke the tie and after that the Thistles gained a bit on confidence. They scored two before the end of the period and managed to keep the Trailermen scoreless.

Top scorer for Fergus was Bob Dobbie with three, Don Gear and Don Campbell scored pairs. Singles were scored by Stan Abbott, Bill Killingbeck, Harry Kazarian, Elmer Harris and R. Black. For Peterborough, Curly Mason and R. Slater got two each, and singles were netted by Fitzgerald, Hildebrand, Thorpe, Ashbee, and O'Hearn.

Seabrooke Gets An 8-3 Win From Revoy's

Seabrooke Motors won their second game of the young men's senior softball season Tuesday night at the Bowl defeating Revoy Motors 8-3 behind the six hit pitching of Jimmy Driscoll, erstwhile U. E. slinger. The win places Sullivan's men in a first-place tie with TPT with two victories and one defeat.

Driscoll fanned seven rival hitters and walked four over the route and received almost perfect support. Dick McCracken on the opposing mound started well; but the big bats of Red Sullivan, Bobby Wyatt, Jake Jaquith and Neil Thompson proved too great a stumbling block to success after the hard-working righthander had made a nice beginning.

Sullivan hit three for five, a double, triple and a homer and drove in three to lead his mates; Wyatt had three for five; and Mark Donoghue hit two for the winners. Ray Craig hit two for four for Revoys who featured with the only double play, Henry to Nelson to Elmhirst— a gem in the fifth Elmhirst and Thompson shone afield.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Notwithstanding many other attractions, a goodly crowd was out at the Lawn Bowling Club on Coronation Day. It was a mixed rink affair. The tournament got under way at 10 a.m., one game being played then and two during the afternoon. There was no scheduled bowling in the evening. The winning rinks were skipped by A. Mander, J. Cumming, S. Shields and J. Adams.

The ladies' games committee is asking that schedule games rained out on Friday, May 29, be played on or before Monday, June 22.

Tonight we have another mixed rink tournament— draw off the board at 7:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow evening both sections continue with schedule games.

Braves Humble Brooklyn 4-3, Snap Win Streak

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

What a difference a day makes—at least in the standings of the National League. Starting from the top where Milwaukee Braves brought an abrupt end to Brooklyn's 48-hour reign of glory, six clubs found their positions changed today from what they were on Monday. The Braves were back in first place by half a game, Brooklyn slipped to second. Third place belonged to Philadelphia instead of St. Louis. At the other end Pittsburgh was out of the cellar and Chicago was in it.

Milwaukee went into the ninth inning at Ebbets Field trailing by one run and pulled out a 4-3 victory on a two-run homer by Andy Pafko.

SNAPS 10-GAME STREAK

The drive by Pafko, all the more humiliating to the Dodgers since he was on their payroll until early this year, snapped a 10-game Brooklyn winning streak, the longest in either league.

The Phillies traded places with the Cardinals as Robin Roberts blanked the Red Birds on seven hits for his eighth victory 5-0. New York Giants and Cincinnati played the longest National League game of the season—13 innings—with the Redlegs scoring twice in the 13th for a 4-2 decision. Pittsburgh nipped Chicago 4-3 in 11 innings.

The National League had no monopoly on the marathon contests. In Detroit the Tigers and Philadelphia Athletics battled four hours and 28 minutes through 14 innings to a 7-7 tie. The game, which will have to be replayed from the start, was called because of the league curfew which prohibits the start of any inning after 12:50 a.m., local time.

SECOND HOMER

Joe Collins' ninth-nning homer, his second of the night, gave New York Yankees a 4-3 margin over Chicago White Sox. Cleveland kept pace with the Yankees by defeating Boston 7-3 and St. Louis outlasted Washington, 5-3.

Jim Wilson and Lew Burdette combined to limit Brooklyn to five hits with Burdette, who came on in the eighth, picking up the victory, his third without a loss. Russ Meyer went all the way for Brooklyn.

At New York the Redlegs ruined a fine relief job by Dave Koslo as they bunched two singles and a triple by Jim Greengrass for two runs in the top of the 13th. Koslo had pitched 5 1-3 hitless innings before Gus Bell opened the 13th with a bloop single. Bud Podbielan went all the way for Cincinnati.

BREAKS UP GAME

Frank Thomas broke up the Pittsburgh-Chicago game with a bases-empty blast in the 11th.

Cleveland led all the way and clinched matters in the eighth when Al Rosen homered with two on. Mike Garcia picked up the decision.

Satchel Paige, the ancient wonder of St. Louis Browns, finally won his first game of the 1953 season. Satch took over in the sixth inning against Washington and retired 10 men in a row. He has been charged with two losses.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

William Muldoon, a dominating figure in American boxing officialdom for more than a decade, died 20 years ago today at his "health farm" in Purchase, N.Y. Muldoon, pillar of the New York state athletic commission, 88 years old when he died, had trained John L. Sullivan for his victory over Jake Kilrain in 1889—the last championship bareknuckle fight, 75 rounds at Richburg, Miss.

Argentina Holds One-Stroke Lead In Canada Cup International

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The final 18-hole round of the Canada Cup international twosomes got under way today with Argentina holding a one-stroke lead over England-South Africa and several perplexing questions unanswered.

Little Tony Cerda and big Roberto de Vicenzo combined for a medal score of 145 Tuesday over the Beaconsfield course and the Commonwealth team of Harry Weetman and Bobby Locke was right behind with 146.

Cerda was the only player in the starry field of 24 to get under par. He fired a 70. Locke shot an even par 72 and no one else was closer than 74.

So far so good for the leading teams, considering the strong north west wind that whipped up and down the fairways and puffed gusts back and forth. But what happened to such fellows as Julius Boros, United States Open champion, and his teammate, Jim Turnesa, Professional Golfers Association titleholder across the border?

RUB THEIR EYES

Each took an 80, a score that just about had the galleryites rubbing their eyes in disbelief when it was realized the U.S. was 15 strokes off Argentina's place.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver came breezing along the back nine two under par to finish with 74, two over for the 18 holes. This figure, with a 79 shot by Bill Kerr, home club pro, left Canada in third place with 153, eight strokes off the pace.

Ossie Pickworth and Peter Thomson of Australia put together a 77 and 78 to leave Australia in fourth place with 155.

Then there was a five-stroke gap, with the U.S. and Germany tied at 160, followed by Mexico in last place with 163. The German pair, Hans Goernert and Georg Bessner, may have been far back but they were elated at their tie with the Americans. "We will have to try hard in the second round, Hans," said Bessner. "Won't that be something to tell them back home if we beat the Americans?"

High scorer for the opening day was Juan Neri of Mexico City who blew himself to an 87 and at the same time scored the only eagle, a three on the par five sixth hole.

Neri's teammate, Al Escalante, was much steadier, shooting 39-37 for 76.

ONE-MAN SHOW

Cerda became something of a one-man show for the day. In trouble several times, he made fine recoveries. He was over par at only two holes and gathered four birdies.

De Vicenzo, a big fellow against the big wind, had some trouble with his booming shots and took 37-38 for a 75.

Boros rated the hard-luck medal for the day. He lost valuable strokes when some of his putts just wouldn't go down. Locke, paired with Boros in the first-round draw, said he never saw a man play such good golf and finish with an 80.

Locke himself was over par twice and wiped out the extra figures with two birdies.

He all but sent himself and Weetman into a tie with Argentina when he came to the 18th late in the day. His third shot left him 10 feet from the pin. Putting for a birdie four and a tie with the South Americans, he missed by a scant inch.

Arcaro Thrills To Performance By Canadiana

By JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie Arcaro, a nonchalant little guy who has ridden some of the best thoroughbreds in the world, won Canada's richest stake race Tuesday. Then he tossed his pants to an apprentice and said:

"She's a sweetheart. Those pants were on the best filly I have ever ridden."

The "sweetheart," of course, is Canadiana, the three-year-old bay filly who romped home in front of 18 other Canadian-bred horses to win the 94th running of the $20,000-added Queen's Plate at Woodbine Park.

Arcaro, a native of Cincinnati, said after the 1⅛-mile run:

"I really had some horse under me today. She could have beaten anything the way she was going. She's a sweetheart."

IN CLASS OF OWN

Don't think Arcaro didn't mean it. That performance by Canadiana, horse of the year in Canada in 1952, put the filly and Arcaro in a class of their own.

It made the daughter of Chop Chop out of Iribelle practically invincible against the best horses in the country and marked Arcaro as the only jockey in turfdom to win all the important stake races in North America.

"I think Canadiana is so good she could beat even Bubbley, the Calumet Farms horse who was rated as the best filly in North America last year. And that goes for Sweet Patootie, too. Sweet Patootie and Bubbley were rated ahead of Canadiana last year, you know."

P.G. & C.C. CHIPSHOTS

The Midland League was rained out on Saturday and will be held next Saturday at the Kawartha Club. The Westclox Trophy draw will be posted shortly. The mixed two-ball entry sheet is posted on the outdoor score board, expiry date is June 15. The senior men's sheet is posted in the men's locker room. Congratulations to Madeline and Alf Hill on the arrival of their daughter Karen Susan.

The ladies' field day was held on Thursday. Low net and low gross were both taken by Mrs. C. Selkirk. Second low net went to Mrs. S. Pearson and third low net to Mrs. S. McBride. The competition sealed holes was won by Mrs. F. Hollowell. The field day for this week will be held on Friday.

Canadiana Wins Queen's Plate Race With Ease

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—"I'll take Canadiana above any filly in North America," was jockey Eddie Arcaro's salute to Canada's queen of thoroughbreds. From a guy like Arcaro, that's the best any horse can expect.

This tribute was paid on Coronation Day shortly after the sleek bay filly breezed to a 5½-length victory in the 94th running of the $20,000-added Queen's Plate against 18 of the country's best three-year-olds.

The nine-furlong route was just another ride for Arcaro, who has either ridden or seen the best horses on the continent in his 21-year career. He hunched up on Canadiana's back and let her go the distance in a manner that justified her 3-to-5 odds for the Queen's 50 guineas.

At the finish, Blue Scooter, from the Jack McIntyre Stable of Toronto, followed her across the line. The Scooter was second favorite at 7 to 1.

Lively Action, an entry with Canadiana, finished third, a neck ahead of the 70-to-1 Belflares.

Canadiana's time was 1:52.1, just one-fifth second off the record set by Last Mark in the 1948 plate, and there wasn't one of the 26,000 crowd who figured the little lady couldn't have shattered that time. The others didn't make a race of it for her.

Canadiana paid $3.20, $2.70 and $4.20. Blue Scooter returned $5.20 and $5.30 and Lively Action $4.20. The mutuels handle on the race was $149,655 and the bettors wagered nearly half that amount on the Taylor entry.

The crowd gave Arcaro and Canadiana a polite ovation as they went into the winner's enclosure after the race. Taylor was there to receive his third cup in four years—he won with Epic in 1949, Major Factor in 1951—and $20,570, the biggest purse in plate history.

The purse boosted Canadiana's winnings to $61,332 in her brilliant two-year racing career and, unless something goes wrong, there's little doubt she will eclipse Kingarvie's Canadian record of $100,000.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS

The fickle filly, shortest-priced winter-book favorite in history at 8 to 5, caused some anxious moments in the Taylor stable 10 days ago. Quoted at 1 to 10 in the six-furlong Plate Trial May 23, she threw the classic wide open when she came in a poor fourth.

The trial was just an off day for the horse that won nine of 11 starts as a two-year-old and was voted third-ranking filly of 1952 in North America and the horse of the year in Canada.

That was demonstrated Tuesday in sunny, warm weather on a fast track.

She was two lengths in front at the quarter, five at the half, six at the three-quarters and eight at the mile.

It was the second filly plate victory in 10 years and the fifth in the last quarter century.

Only four outsiders have won in the last 39 years, the biggest payoff coming in 1924 when Maternal Pride paid off a whopping $193.30 for $2.

King Discusses Title Row

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur King, who will fight Armand Savoie of Montreal here next Monday for what is billed as "the Canadian lightweight and British Empire lightweight championships," had a few things to say Tuesday about the titles at stake.

King presented his view about the fight which the Canadian Boxing Federation said last week is not sanctioned by them. The CBF say that King, an ex-Torontonian who has been fighting out of Philadelphia, is reported to have taken out United States citizenship papers and therefore is not eligible for the Canadian championship.

The CBF also claim that the British Empire crown could not be up for competition because the British boxing board of control "some time ago" took the title away from King for failing to defend it.

STILL CHAMPION

King had this to say about whether he's still British Empire lightweight champion or not:

"Nobody's challenged me and nobody's told me I haven't the title anymore. They suggested I go to Australia and a couple of other places. Why should I wander all over the world? I've got the title, let them come to me."

King said he believes the reason behind the Canadian championship furore is that "Savoie's management is worried and doesn't want to put Armand's Canadian title on the line."

Surrey Beats Lancashire, Goes On Top

LONDON (Reuters)—Surrey beat Lancashire by eight wickets at Old Trafford Tuesday and went to the top of the county cricket championship table.

Surrey now has 40 points, the same as Hampshire, which failed to gain a point against Gloucestershire. Surrey has two games in hand, having played seven.

Generally, the Coronation and cold rainy weather kept down attendances at Tuesday's first-class matches. Several matches were abandoned.

Close-of-play scores:

Yorkshire 366 for seven declared, Glamorgan 128 for four. Match abandoned, no decision. No play Tuesday, rain.

Somerset 323 for nine declared and 79 for three, Warwickshire 448 for five declared. Match abandoned. Drawn, rain.

Northamptonshire 323 for nine declared, Middlesex 244 for nine. Match abandoned, no decision, no play Tuesday, rain.

Worcestershire 233 and 96, Derbyshire 178 and 152 for seven. Derbyshire won by three wickets.

Oxford University 238 and 243, Leicestershire 399 for seven declared and 83 for five. Leicestershire won by five wickets.

Lancashire 255 and 130, Surrey 283 and 103 for two. Surrey won by eight wickets.

Hampshire 375 and 62 for two, Gloucestershire 393. Match drawn.

Out At The Kawartha

OUT AT THE KAWARTHA

Midland League will be out at the Kawartha this Saturday. This was originally scheduled for last Saturday at the Peterborough but was postponed due to the rain.

Now what is happening out at Kawartha? Fairways and greens are in excellent condition and—a wish fulfilled— the bunkers are in splendid shape complete with a soft lining of fresh new sand.

Draws have not yet been posted for the various club competitions but there is every indication of a healthy entry list in each.

In the Kawartha Cup for those with a handicap of 26 and up there are 58 names down. President's Cup handicap of 1 to 6, 35; MacGregor Trophy, a new one, handicaps of 1 to 25, 32. McRae for the senior men, 7. Men's two-ball, the Glover trophy, 42. Also the junior for those under 21 years of age, 9.

The Riley mixed two-ball is one-sided at the moment with 39 men and only 23 ladies. However, we know that there are enough ladies who enjoy this competition so we feel sure that the two lists will even up. Some time still remains for the shy ladies to come along and get on the band wagon.

Speaking of the ladies, plans are well in hand for the great big Field Day for ladies in August. This promises to be a very popular event, not only this district, but in Ontario.

Now the Kawartha Lakes competition for the men, over Civic holiday weekend. Entries are coming in and local players are again urged to get theirs in fast with the fee, to be assured of getting in on this, the largest amateur competition in Canada.

Just a reminder before we go, the regular weekly radio broadcast, Out at the Kawartha" is now on the air for the summer. Listen for it at 6..15 this Saturday.

Jockey Club Cables Queen Race Results

TORONTO (CP)—Included in the thousands of cablegrams sent to the Queen on her Coronation Tuesday was one from the Ontario Jockey Club. It told her of Canadiana's victory in the 94th running of the Queen's Plate.

The winner won't get the 50 guineas for at least 10 days or two weeks, after financial and diplomatic red tape. But, here's what happens after the horse walked into the winner's circle:

The OJC forwarded a certificate on parchment to the governor-general in Ottawa, recording the name and address of the owner, name of the horse and date of the race.

The governor-general will inform the keeper of the Queen's privy purse at Buckingham Palace that a bill of exchange is being drawn on the Bank of England for 50 guineas. A sterling bank draft is made for 52 pounds, 10 shillings, no pence—that's the exact wording—nd, in Canadian currency, it is worth about $144.50 at current rates of exchange.

UP TO CLUB

The governor-general then forwards a bank draft to the OJC, made out to the winner. It is up to the club to see that it reaches the owner, who may collect the equivalent in Canadian currency by presenting the draft at a bank.

The royal donation has been paid—with one exception—by draft.

The exception was in 1939 when the late King George VI presented the Guineas—in gold pieces of equivalent value—to the late C. George McCullagh when his Archworth won. That was during the royal tour.

Athletics Clout Mimico In 24-9 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics maintained their position on top of the Ontario Lacrosse Senior loop Tuesday night by handing Mimico Mountaineers their fourth successive defeat, 24-9.

In other league games, Orillia West Yorks defeated Brampton Excelsiors 16-15.

In their home opener, the Mounties held the Athletics to a 2-2 count in the first quarter, gained a 3-2 lead early in the second and then folded to the St. Catharines onslaught.

SCORES 5 GOALS

Skip Teal scored five goals for the Athletics, Jimmy McMahon three and Jim Bradshaw two. Ken Lytle was top Mimico scorer with three goals.

In another close game, Jim McNulty paced the West Yorks with five tallies, Leo Teatro and Ken Croft scored three each, Joe McNulty two and Tony Damico, Frank Facto and Les Digby one each. Leading goal-scorer for Brampton was Jack Bionda with four. Jack Sibbald notched three and Al Garbutt and Bob Sutherland bagged two each. Singles went to Nick Ferri, Pete Bradkin, Dan Miller and Gordie Steele.

CARDS SIGN HAL WHITE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hal White, a 34-year-old right hander released by St. Louis Browns last week, was signed by St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday. Club officials said White, 0-0 in 10 relief appearances this season, was signed to give Cardinals' pitching staff some support while reliefer Eddie Yuhas nurses a sore shoulder.

Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years!

Up to 15% more power

Up to 150% more spark plug life

TCP, a Shell-discovered additive, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, puts an end to the greatest cause of power loss.*

Strange as it may seem, the majority of cars on the road today are not putting out their full horsepower.

Perhaps you may have noticed that your power "falls off" especially when accelerating, climbing a hill, or driving on the open highway.

The reason is that deposits are constantly accumulating on the spark plugs and in the combustion chambers. They actually "short-circuit" your spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel mixture, especially when you want extra power and "step on it" hard!

To overcome this condition, Shell Research discovered TCP—a remarkable fuel additive which has the property of counteracting the power-wasting of these deposits.

As a result, Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP gives you up to 15% more power, up to 150% more spark plug life, plus an increase in gasoline mileage.

Shell Premium with TCP is the most significant development in gasoline since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

New and old engines benefit

If you have a new car, particularly one with a high compression engine, Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of the spark plugs. But high compression, or not, Shell Premium with TCP keeps it working like new.

Owners of older cars also benefit. Even if your car has gone thirty thousand miles or even more, your engine can get back much of its original power by the use of Shell Premium with TCP.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium with TCP counteract the deposit on spark plugs and in combustion chambers, that you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. You enjoy that new car pep again.

Now in Canada–but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP was originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only from Shell Dealers.

Mankind Seems Beset By Fear Christian Science Lecturer Says

Christian Science, The Way of Dominion was the subject of a lecture given on Tuesday evening in the Queen Mary School auditoriums. Lecturer was Elizabeth Carroll Scott, C.S.B., of Memphis, Tennessee, a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston. The lectufer was introduced by Carroll Lewis, 1st reader of the Peterborough church.

The lecturer spoke substantially as follows:

The first mention of man in the Bible states that he is made in the image and likeness of God. The next statement concerning man tells us that God has given him dominion over all the earth. Now dominion, as all of you know, means supreme power, and one who reflects supreme power is necessarily free from fear. Today humanity is apparently very far from asserting and proving this dominion.

Mankind today seems beset by fear. Men fear war, they fear aggression and depression. They fear one another. They even carry fear to such an extent that they fear themselves, their own weaknesses and their lack of capacity for success.

NEED NOT BE AFRAID

Christian Science comes to tell you that you need not be afraid. The Bible tells you that dominion is yours by immutable right, for it is God-given and coexists with God. Christian Science comes to show you that you can exercise this dominion and thereby control the everyday affairs of your life in the degree that you reflect divine law.

Christian Science teaches us that God is the only mind, flawless and eternal. It teaches that this mind is so invariable in its perfection that the word divine principle is used as a synonym for the mind which is God. It declares that this divine principle is everywhere present, universally available, always compassionate, tender, and kind. It teaches that God is not only loving; it teachers that He is love itself and that His love encircles His children, sustains and protects them, and endows them with His power.

The Psalmist said: "What is man, that thou are mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" (Ps. 8:4). The man of whom God is mindful is created by Him to express Him; for "Man", our textbook says, "is the expression of God's being (p. 470).

WORLD NOT READY

Christ Jesus expressed, demonstrated, and revealed the Christ. However, he recognized that the world was not yet ready for all he had to give, and he promised that the Comforter or final revelation of truth would be sent by the Father and would lead humanity into all truth. This revelation has come in our time; it is called Christian Science. It has been revealed through a woman, Mary Baker Eddy, and through her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," wherein is found the Science of the Christ.

The prayer of spiritual understanding is the sole equipment of the Christian Scientist. Mind is his only medicine in healing the sick and sinning; just as prayer was the only medicine employed by Jesus.

Mrs. Eddy has given to her followers a brief prayer which she asks us to use daily for ourselves and for all mankind. It may be found on page 41 of the Church Manual. "'Thy kingdom come'; let the reign of divine Truth, Life, and Love be established in me, and rule out of me all sin; and may Thy Word enrich the affections of all mankind, and govern them!"

Will Decide Seaway Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 29-member House of Representatives public works committee will decide Thursday whether to hold a hearing on St. Lawrence seaway legislation.

The committee's decision to take the vote was made at a closed session Tuesday. Representative Russell Mack (Rep. Wash.), a member of the committee, told a reporter some members have objected to holding a hearing until after the Senate acts.

A Senate foreign relations subcommittee has held a hearing on a seaway bill but has taken no action on it.

Main bill which would be up for consideration is a proposal by representative George Dondero (Rep. Mich.), chairman of the committee, that the U. S. be authorized to join with Canada in constructing the International Rapids section of the proposed 27-foot waterway linking the Atlantic with the Great Lakes.

Small Boy Enjoys Parade Pageantry Delights Charles

By FORBES RHUDE

LONDON (CP)—A small boy saw a big parade Tuesday.

He saw it in company with several thousand other people who sat outside Buckingham Palace.

The boy is 4½-year-old Prince Charles, Duke of Cornwall.

The parade, of course, was for his mother, Queen Elizabeth, who made the solemn covenant of Coronation with her people.

For the greater part of the time, the boy was inside the palace walls and the thousands of people who watched with him were outside.

But, inside or out, Prince Charles seems to have little difficulty in establishing an easy camaraderie with folks who drop around. This is, partly because he is curious, and likes to push his chubby face through the big curtains of the windows which front the palace.

DOESN'T DISAPPOINT

He didn't disappoint his public Tuesday. He was fast asleep when they started to take their seats in front of the palace.

But by 8 a.m., he and his sister Princess Anne, 2, could be seen peeking through the curtains.

Little wonder that they were looking out. Bands were already playing and the famous Guards regiments, in their scarlet tunics and high black busbies, were marching about.

Before the day was out Prince Charles would be taken to Westminster Abbey and would see his mother in moments of deep solemnity.

In fact, between the pageantry in front of the palace and the religious ceremony in the abbey he would see English history represented before his eyes.

WAVES GOODBYE

Perhaps we can't know what a small boy will think when he sees his mother ride away in a golden coach, just like all the fairy stories that ever were, come true.

In any event he waved from the window when his mother left, but if he wished to be solemn about it, Princess Anne quickly ended that. She gave him several violent pushes, and while he still seemed to be thinking of what disciplinary measures should be taken, a nurse whisked them both from view.

After that he was taken to the abbey, and next time we saw him at the palace he stood looking out over the colorful scene in front of him—though his mother wasn't there then—in a prolonged salute which seemed to last until his arm grew tired.

Dies of Injuries

STRATHROY (CP) — Eleven hours after he was thrown from his truck in a highway crash John M. Lee, 50, of RR 7, Strathroy, died in hospital here Tuesday. Police said the one-ton truck driven by Lee went off old No. 22 Highway one-half mile east of Watford early in the day.

Marmora Sisters Win Medals At Festival

MARMORA (ENS) — At the Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise Monday under the auspices of the official board of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, two local girls Mary and Linda Meiklejohn, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn, won honors as vocalists.

In Class 15 for girls under 16 Mary finished second with 80 points for her contralto solo "A Star Was His Candle." She received the silver medal in that class.

Linda in Class 2 vocal, girls and boys under 8, took first honors out of 34 entries in her singing of "Holy Spirit, Hear Us" winning the gold medal.

There were 36 classes in the festival and entries this year were far in excess of 1952. The festival attracts entrants from a wide area and the promoters are hoping that many more competitors will be attracted next year.

Goes 2,000 Miles On Bicycle For Coronation

OTTAWA (CP)—It's all over on Parliament Hill. Paper blew about on the worn lawns Tuesday night. The bands are silent and the crowds have gone.

As the traffic streams away there goes with it on a bicycle a man of 67 who has already ridden 2,000 miles to spend this one day in Ottawa.

"Just call me Johnny," he said. He is a little man as brown as a gypsy with grey eyes, like an old sailor's, focussed in the distance.

CIVILIZATION TABOO

Johnny turned his back on the cities in 1945, took his went to alone in the bush of Northern Alberta. Tuesday was the first day he has spent since then in a city.

"I never cared for civilized life," he said, "and the war just about finished it off."

He built a shack and lived like a hermit. "Some hunting, some fishing, a bit of wood carving, a bit of reading and thinking."

This spring he got the idea of visiting Ottawa for the coronation celebrations.

He started April 7, covering 40 or 50 miles a day. He slept out and cooked his own meals.

ELIZABETH the Queen

Former Governess to Her Majesty

XXV

In Canada, on the most strenuous Royal tour ever undertaken, there were often tears in her eyes when the conversation turned to her father's illness, or even at banquets when the ritualistic toast was given to "The King!" She sought to reassure herself constantly by transatlantic telephone calls asking about his recovery.

The tension she clearly suffered did nothing to impair her graciousness, but the essential warmth of her personality tended to be overshadowed by the strain of the hectic routine of inspecting Guards of Honor, visits to City Halls, the presentation of City Councillors, receiving bouquets, and addresses of welcome. The Duke of Edinburgh spread the cloak of his smiling protection around her, in an effort to help her.

One day she seemed particularly tense as she sat stiff and erect in a limousine, ready to depart for yet another official function. The Duke entered the car and began a lively conversation with her. She received from him a gift which every wife realizes is priceless, a compliment on how attractive she looked in the dress she was wearing. She relaxed, with a smile that the crowds shared with her husband.

Queen Elizabeth's sense of duty drives her to the limits of her strength and endurance today. She governed her onerous tours by two broad principles, while the actual day-to-day details, of course, were worked out by the country whose guest she was.

She insists that she be seen by as many people as humanly possible, and she asks to see as much of the country as she can, whether by car, train, airplane, or ship.

She stipulates, too, something that comes straight from her heart—that special consideration be given to the children and the ex-service men and women on all occasions.

As the days passed on her Canadian tour, the continuingly favorable reports of the King's doctors and the Duke of Edinburgh's infectious high spirits transformed the Princess. Canadians caught sight of the happy, graceful girl I used to watch in the Palace ballrooms when, at Government House in Ottawa, she danced lightheartedly in flared blue skirt and brown checked blouse.

Since her childhood she has heard the Scottish reels that the band played there, but the "hoe down" was completely new to her. After one brief lesson, she acquitted herself handsomely to the music of such Western favorites as "Rock Valley" and "The Farmer's Jamboree."

As I have said, Queen Elizabeth, like all of us, lives and learns, but she learns faster than most — as she is showing us already in her young reign.

✧ ✧ ✧

If Canada were already in love with her, that love deepened as the crowds noticed the little, human details of her appearance: easing her feet out of fashionable, high-heeled pumps; her hatless, hair-blown ride beside her husband in a racing open car; her hairdressing appointment soon afterward, where the sympathetic woman hairdresser reported later that "she was homesick for her children."

She telephoned Clarence House to talk to Prince Charles from Eaglecrest, the ski lodge retreat in the Laurentian Mountains, set in a landscape straight from an old-fashioned Christmas card.

Before a roaring log fire she painstakingly wrote the thank-you notes, which she never forgets, and outside the lodge she was almost a girl again, freed of public servitude for a romp over the snow, while the Duke of Edinburgh built a snowman and threw snowballs at her.

But such moments would be few. She knew that then. She knew it earlier, when on her 21st birthday she said—in words that still move me as I think of them: "I declare before you all that my whole life, whether it be short or long, shall be devoted to your service and the service of our great Imperial family to which we all belong.

"But I shall not have the strength to carry out that resolution alone unless you join in it with me, as I now invite you to do."

✧ ✧ ✧

With the ladies-in-waiting, a valet, footman, and a casket full of jewels, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh visited the capital of the United States for what one newspaper account accurately described as "the best party Washington ever had." As any one of us would, she had saved a new velvet hat for her journey south of the Canadian border.

I have always found the people of North America generous and demonstrative to a point where such retiring souls as I am almost overwhelmed. I think Princess Elizabeth may have experienced a similar feeling during the nearly 20,000 miles of her journeying in that awe-inspiring continent.

Washington had seldom seen such numbers on its broad avenues as when the Royal party arrived.

President Truman himself declared: "Never before have we had such a wonderful young couple that so completely captured the hearts of all of us."

His beaming smile showed that, so far as he was concerned, he regarded the British Princess almost as "one of the family" — which, on the feminine side, wore new dresses for this celebration. That feminine side of his family, Mrs. Truman and his daughter Margaret, shared his opinions.

From the President's first "I thank you, dear," spoken in answer to the formal arrival speech, to his farewell urging that the Royal couple should visit him again and "bring the children," those 45 packed hours in the United States afforded our future Queen a new vista of the world in which she now plays a vital part as ruler of its most powerful monarch.

ANSON HOUSE MEN AND WOMEN marked the celebration of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth Tuesday when they planted a tree on the front lawn. Along with members of the board the elderly people at a brief ceremony went through the same program other Anson House people did in 1937 when they planted a now sturdy oak tree. The honor of planting the tree went to 99-year-old Miss Agnes Lumsden (left, above) with a little help from former mayor James Hamilton, who is board president. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

CBC Television Network Scores N. American Beat

TORONTO (CP)—CBC television and its new TV network scored a North American beat Tuesday with its films of the Coronation procession and ceremony.

Its recordings of BBC telecasts went on the air 27 minutes ahead of those of the Columbia Broadcasting System of the United States runner-up in a trans-Atlantic race by jet planes carrying Coronation films.

CBC also piped the Coronation telecast to two U.S. TV networks, National Broadcasting Company and American Broadcasting Company.

The U.S. networks carried most of the CBC's afternoon program of the London films, which started at 4:15 p.m. and continued until 7 p.m. ABC rejoined the Canadian network for about two hours at night.

The CBC made its own recordings in London of the BBC telecasts. It installed two machines known as "hot kine recorders" which processed film in three minutes instead of the usual 40. By the time the film left London aboard RAF Canberra bombers it was ready for showing.

The Movie Column

Richard Arlen Promoted To General

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard Arlen figures he has gone about as far as he can go in the air. He's now playing a general flying jets.

The perennial juvenile has been up in the air since the First World War when he flew with the RAF. After he got into the movies, he appeared with Buddy Rogers, Clara Bow and Gary Cooper (he had a bit part) in "Wings," the first great air picture. He has been in 10 or 12 flight films since then and now is playing in "Sabre Jet."

I dropped by the set to get his reflections on aeronautical maters, both the real and the movie kind. I found him trim and youthful in his air force uniform. If anybody has found the fountain of youth, Arlen has. His records show he was born 52 years ago in Charotesville, Va., but his lineless face can hold its own with today's glamor boys.

"I was crazy about flying as a kid,' he recalled. "I was in high school in St. Paul during the First World War, and a bunch of us kids wanted to become fliers. The American air force wouldn't take us because we were only 16. But an RAF recruiter came to town and we joined up.

TRAINED IN CANADA

"We trained in Canada in the old Curtis Jenny. Then we were shipped to England, and we expected to get into combat right away. We didn't know they were just holding us in reserve, in case they ran out of older pilots."

Arlen never saw action in that war, but he saw plenty for old Paramount in "Wings." He almost lost his life four times in scrapes.

"That was in 1927, before we had any process shots," he remarked. "All the air shots had to be taken in the air. Buddy Rogers and I had cameras strapped on the front of our planes. When we got up in the air, we'd press a button and the cameras would roll. We had two mirrors in the cockpit so we could line up a plane behind us.

Father Of Five Has Sweeps Ticket

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Leo Barrette, 48, father of five children, was notified Tuesday his Irish sweepstake ticket was one of those drawn at Dublin.

He will receive about $1,600 because his ticket was drawn and if his horse, Pharel, wins the Epsom Derby Saturday his ticket will be worth almost $150,000.

A Ford of Canada employee, Mr. Barrette said he would use part of the money he is sure of getting to take a trip.

And if Pharel wins?

"Come back after Pharel has won," interrupted his wife, Virginia, "and we'll tell you then."

Separated As Babies Two Brothers Meet

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Wallace Wade, 40, of Calgary, met his brother, Sydney White, 39, of Windsor, Tuesday for the first time since they were separated soon after Sydney was born.

Mr. Wade said they were separated when babies and brought up by different branches of the family. Both took the surname of the family they went to live with.

Wallace later discovered his brother's name and traced him to Windsor. They met when Wallace visited here on business.

While comparing notes they discovered they had both worked in a gold mine at Timmins at the same time several years ago.

Downeyville Supports Pigeon Lake Bridge

DOWNEYVILLE (ENS)— The residents in this area are highly pleased with the move made by the Chamber of Commerce at Bobcaygeon to get a bridge across Pigeon lake to replace the old bridge that was between Sullivans in Emily township and Flood's Landing in Ennismore. It is a short road from here to Peterborough where all the farmers around here ship their cattle, hogs and grain. We hope it will go ahead in the not too far future.

TRAINING SCHOOL

A three-day training school for truck salesmen sponsored by the General Motors Corporation started this morning in the Empress hotel.

ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT

Stuart Sparling, Peterborough county assessor, was elected third vice-president of the Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario at their convention in Hamilton ending last Friday.

PICNICS

The first picnics of the season in city parks are taking place today. Armar Butcher, parks superintendent reported two picnics were being held today, St. Andrew's United Church Sunday School in Nicholls Oval and the Members' Council of the YWCA in Riverside.

IN FLY-PAST

FO Don Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Parker, 686 Armour Rd., piloted one of the Sabre jets in the RCAF fly-past in connection with the national ceremonies celebrating the Coronation at Ottawa Tuesday FO Parker is a member of No. 422 fighter squadron stationed at Uplands Airport near Ottawa.

ON THE SPOT

Firemen were johnny-on-the spot for a fire that started on the roof of the home of A. D. MacDonald, 2 Crescent Street, Tuesday night. Some shingles on the verandah roof began to burn when a firecracker landed there, probably thrown by pranksters. Firemen were in the vicinity and put the smouldering fire out with a garden hose.

CORONATION DECORATIONS

The answer to the question: How long will coronation decorations remain up in Peterborough couldn't be obtained today. Ald. S. J. Black, chairman of the coronation committee, was tied up on jury duty. But James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of committee, said that he believed city retailers would like to see the lights, pennants and ensignia remain up throughout the tourist season.

THE ROWAN'S BLOOM

The Rowan tree is in white flower, clusters of them following the horse chestnut trees, and the thin leafage of the locust is complete. Purple irises and spirea are a present striking contrast, except that the white blooming shrub is all over town, as if it were the only bush in nature's garden. There's even a cascade of their blossoms at the City Hall, giving approval and somewhat of authority, it seems, to all Peterborough's spirea background. And who hasn't a Chinese elm hedge?

New Parking Lot Outboard Marine

How to acquire motor parking space? At Outboard Marine the company went about it the only way apart from construction. They bought the Mervin place across Monaghan Road, and are now completing recent levelling and grading.

The intimations have been that the company is planning further building on the east side of the street, and need the land reaching to Romaine St., now occupied by employees' cars. Romaine St. residents objected to the council about the parking in front of their houses, and to the surprise of just about every other street in the city, the traffic committee thumbed the cars from the curbs.

And, there's nothing so formidable about the Romaine St. delegations, just ordinary citizens, but equipped with the persistency of gnats. Any way, along the southside of the CPR the new parking lot appears to be about ready for occupation and quick getaway, an old factor habit that persists from the pedestrian times down into the present acceleration of 60-plus miles an hour in going anywhere, including homeward from the place of work.

Few Citizens Attend Act Of Dedication

Pledging Loyalty Asked To Renew National Pride

In solemn ceremonies at Miller Bowl Peterborough residents joined in prayer for Queen Elizabeth II as religious and civic representatives presented a program of dedication to Her Majesty on the night of her Coronation.

Leading a small group of men, women, boys and girls in prayer, the Rev. H. G. Douglas, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, asked for blessings on the Queen in her hour of anointment, prayed for the Royal Family and peace and prosperity.

Featured speakers on the program were acting Mayor T. D. Miller, His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry and Rabbi A. M. Babb.

Mr. Miller stated a pledge of loyalty and support to the throne, saying "we acknowledge the Queen symbolizes our democratic way of life; a way of life second to none and which we will, if necessary, defend to the end.

"In pledging our loyalty to the Queen we should renew our national pride and enthusiasm for this great country of ours . . . I mention this to you so that we will go on from here with a firm resolve to demonstrate to a greater degree pride and loyalty to our Queen and country," the acting mayor said.

BISHOP SPEAKS

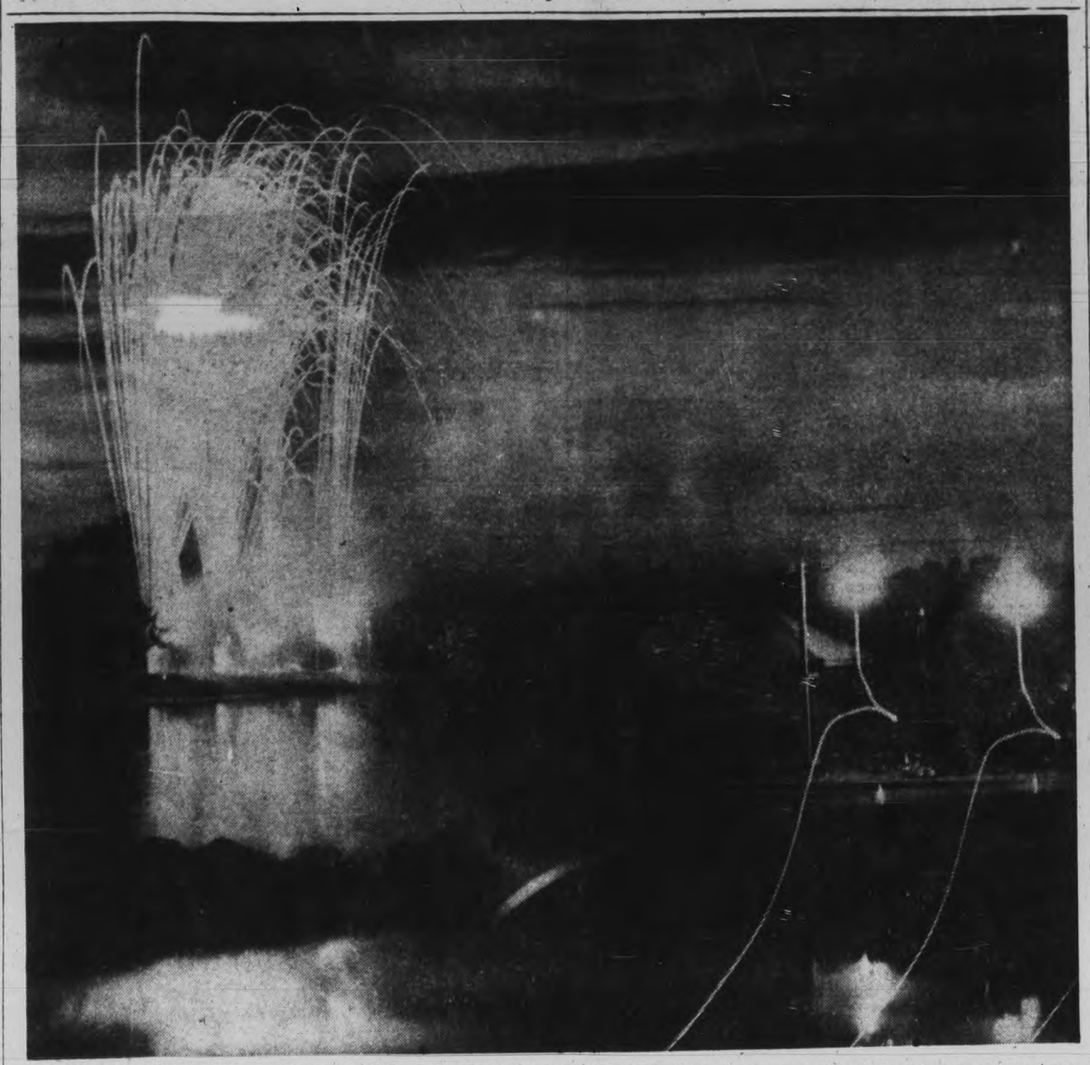
Touching on the religious aspects of the Coronation, Bishop Berry told the Miller Bowl audience "the anointing and crowning of Her Majesty have in a sense set her apart from her subjects, for that is the sense of the religious ceremony of king-making. Being a person apart, Her Majesty is above political parties, national groups and all that might be divisive in the nation.

"The full significance of such a position of apartness is not appreciated until one has lived in a republic where the active political head of the nation tries to fulfill, as well, the office of head of the state. The reverence and the respect that will go out immediately and always to our Monarch are so often wanting in such republics."

Quoting from St. Paul, the Bishop pointed out "there is no power but from God; and those that are ordained by God," and said, "we regard her person as the visible power of God in the temporal order of things" and "we should tender to our gracious soverign the heartfelt feelings of our loyalty to her person and her throne."

Rabbi Babb urged that we in Canada "confer upon the Queen a spiritual diadem of love, affection, loyalty and allegiance" much as a material diadem, beset with jewels, had been placed upon her head earlier in the day.

"The crown . . . is a symbol which unites us all as a Commonwealth of Nations; and we in Canada, since our time began, have without a doubt, earned our rightful place in loyalty and devotion to the crown."



Led by the Salvation Army band, the audience and dignitaries opened the program with "O Canada" and closed with "God Save the Queen."

Alderman S. J. Black, chairman of the civic Coronation committee, acted as chairman of the evening.

Car Strikes Tree 1 Killed, 1 Injured

HAMILTON (CP) — A woman was killed and her husband suffered severe injuries today when their car went out of control and hit a tree on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Freeman.

Mrs. Helen Prince of Pontiac, Mich., was killed instantly and her husband, Adolph, 40, was brought to hospital here with undetermined injuries.

CORONATION FIREWORKS along Little Lake Tuesday night easily drew the largest crowd ever massed in the city's history. Citizens wishing to see the brilliant show began arriving along the lakeshore about 6 p.m. At 9:30 when the show began, the shore was packed to capacity along Crescent St., St. Charles' Point and Burnham's Point. Others took their cruisers and small water crafts out into the lake to see the display. It ended in a traffic jam which kept city police busy for a half-hour clearing the streets. During the finale the Examiner photographer caught several dozen skyrockets zooming up from the lake and used a truck top and wharf lights to give this pleasing effect (above).

Thousands Line Parade Route; Much Congestion

Peterborough citizens celebrated the coronation of their new Queen with a six-block-long parade Tuesday night that began at the Armouries and ended at Miller Bowl where a civic ceremony was held.

Five bands spaced among the marchers gave a combined martial and festive air to the parade that included veterans, boy scouts and girl guides, cadets, floats, cars and even horses— the latter lending a wild west touch to the event. It is estimated that 1,000 people in all took part.

The route of the parade was lined with men, women and children, standing several deep. The crowd grew thicker as the marchers neared the Bowl. Many people didn't go to the ceremony after a glance at the congestion; they apparently thought there wasn't a chance of getting a seat.

At 7.50 p.m. the parade, under the direction of Parade Marshal Edward Davis, moved off from the Armouries, the band of the 50th H.A.A. Regt. leading. They were followed by the regiment and the 28th Technical Sqdn.

SCOUTS AND GUIDES

Then came the Peterborough Citizens' Band and at least 200 smartly dressed Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Cubs, Brownies and Trail Rangers.

Members of the Peterborough City Council, headed by acting Mayor Douglas Miller and Aldermen S. J. Black, chairman of the special coronation committee rode in the parade in open cars. Mayor Hugh Waddell is now in England and was at the Coronation Tuesday morning in Westminster Abbey.

City firemen with fire trucks also took part.

Heading the list of veterans organizations was the Salvation Army Band. Altogether there were about 150 former members of the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Force. This group included Branches 52 and 452 of the Canadian Legion, Women's Auxiliary, Naval Association, Red Patch Club, Duffy Club, RCA Association, 32nd Battery Association, 8 Field Park Association, Westclox Vets, CGE Veterans and SD and G Veterans and 93rd Battalion veterans.

CGE PIPE BAND

As usual one of the biggest hits of the whole parade was the smartly-turned out CGE Pipe band who led the PCVS Cadets and the RCAF Cadets. The Sea Cadets, who were joined by fellow cadets from the Grove School, had their own band.

Floats were entered by the Red Cross Society, IODE, Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Humane Society. All drew applause from the spectators who lined both sides of George Street up to five deep.

The Jaycees float — depicting the Fathers of Confederation sitting around a conference table — proved particularly popular, even if they were three years short on the correct date of Confederation.

Another novelty was presence of a group of horses, ridden by riders dressed in colorful costumes as cowboys, Indians, and other western-style characters. They were led by F. H. Preston of the Diamond P. Ranch.

When the parade got to Miller Bowl it was found that the market square was occupied by cars so there was no place for proper dismissal. Parade Marshal Davis marched them along Rink St. to Aylmer St. and the parade broke off in sections.

Examiner Picture Service Within 24 Hours Of London

Reproductions from actual photographs taken at Tuesday's Coronation appear in tonight's Examiner. This has been brought about by a chain of fast moving events. A Canberra jet bomber left London with negatives on Tuesday and in less than 24 hours pictures developed from these negatives were in the Examiner office.

Here is how it was accomplished: The RAF bomber arrived at Goose Bay, Labrador, a few minutes more than five hours after having taken off from London. Two other RAF jets—one of which had to turn back because of engine trouble and left again after being quickly fixed—followed it. An RCAF jet fighter was at Goose Bay and there picked up the films and negatives for Canada. This plane arrived at St. Hubert's Airport, Montreal, at 3:45 p.m.

The picture-process pool developed the films to prints and raced them via domestic air express to Malton Airport, Toronto.

Peterborough airman Harry Oakman flew to Island Airport in his seaplane, transferred to a landplane taxi, picked up the Examiner photos at Malton and returned to his seaplane. He brought them to the newsroom this morning at 9:20, exactly 22 hours after the raw film left London.

The first picture was processed in the Examiner engraving plant, starting five minutes later, and was ready for the printers in 25 minutes. This is the fastest long-distance picture news coverage ever offered by the Examiner to its reader. There were no hitches in the ramifications of flying, processing and domestic delivery and engraving anywhere along the line.

Contact With Ship Lost After SOS

HONG KONG (AP)—The Royal Navy and Royal Observatory here said today they had lost contact with the British steamship Saxon Star which radioed earlier she was aground off Tarama island and in "dangerous condition."

Tarama island is about 175 miles east of Formosa.

Lloyd's shipping registry lists the Saxon Star as a vessel of 7,355 tons owned by Frederick Leyland and Co., Ltd.

George Matthie Dies In Lindsay

LINDSAY— (ENS)—Lindsay's oldest businessman and probably the oldest living native of the town died Tuesday in the person of George H. Matthie, of the firm of Baxall and Matthie Ltd. He was in his 88th year.

Active in his business even during recent years, Mr. Matthie was at the hardware store on Saturday. In public life Mr. Matthie was for a time councillor, and for many years president of the Lindsay Cemetery Board. He was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and a curler for years. He was one of the pioneer cottagers on Pleasant Point.

Mr. Matthie was the oldest active member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and Past Nobel Grand of the organization.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife and one daughter, Mrs. George W. Weeks. The funeral will be held on Thursday from the Mackay Funeral Home, Lindsay.

Evening Crowds Bring City To Life

Peterborough's official celebration of the Coronation came to a spectacular close shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday night with a brilliant display of fireworks that drew gasps of delight from thousands of children who lined the shore of Little Lake and enthusiastic applause from as many adults.

This was the high point of the day locally and there couldn't be much doubt that the figure of Queen Elizabeth II outlined in brilliant flame and surrounded by bursting rockets that filled the air with daylight brilliance and a noise like the fusilade of guns would impress the memory of the event on the minds of the youngsters as almost nothing else could.

DISAPPOINTED

Officials made no attempt to hide their disappointment at the negligible turn-out at Miller Bowl for the civic ceremony; one of the dignitaries, commenting on the fact that the scheduled mass oath of allegiance had been omitted, said that the affair was "an obvious flop."

But it seemed as though to most of the city nothing could compete in magnificence with the impression left by the day-long broadcasts of the ceremonies in London and the afternoon views of the Coronation on television.

But neither the voice of a radio announcer nor the screen of a television set could encompass the effect of weeks of preparation on those for whom the Corona-

Scouts Light Beacon On Millburn Hill As Part Of Coronation Celebrations

Flames leaped 40 or 50 feet in the air at precisely 9:30 p.m. Tuesday as lighters were applied to the Boy Scout beacon on Millburn hill near the provincial police radio tower just north of the city.

The beacon was one of a series lit simultaneously by Boy Scouts right across the country as part of the Coronation celebrations.

About 100 scouts and their parents were present at the lighting supervised by Dr. G. R. Langley, district scout commissioner. Field glasses were used in an attempt to see similar beacons at Lakefield and Port Hope but the watchers saw no sign of them.

The beacon was built Monday evening by the 5th Rover Scout crew of All Saints' Anglican Church under the direction of Skipper Art Rose. Barrels of tinder were placed around an upright discarded hydro pole and the base was piled with hydro pole butts. Kerosene-soaked sacks were placed on top.

At the stroke of 9:30, the lighters were applied and within 30 seconds the whole was a flaming mass. It took about an hour for the blaze to die into embers and a crew of scouts remained on duty at the site until after midnight to see that surrounding property was not endangered by sparks.

North Monaghan Requests City To Terminate Lease

Termination of W. Meredith's tenacy of the former John Harper house on Lansdowne St. west, part of the industrial area owned by the city has been recommended to the council by its property committee.

The proposed cancellation of the Meredith rental has been requested by North Monaghan council on the grounds of subletting to a tenant, permission of trailer occupancy, and general nuisance.

A letter from Bruce-Johnston, clerk of the township, was read by chairman Ald H. S. Longhurst at the Monday meeting of the property committee.

"I have been instructed by the council of North Monaghan to notify the city of Peterborough that their tenant, W Meredith, on the Adamson farm, is causing the township a lot of headaches.

The latest episode is a slaughtering place for old horses by N. Peconi."

SLAUGHTER HOUSE

The township council has information that Peconi rented "the back part of the under part of the barn from Meredith, in which to kill horses or other animals. The insides of a horse or other animal lay in a rotting condition for over two weeks."

That is Mr. Johnston's unvarnished phrasing. It is alleged that "odors and unsanitary conditions on this farm" contributed to the illness of a member of the family of subletting tenant.

"A year ago this same Meredith kept a man in a trailer on his property contrary to the township bylaw. The township is asking the city to terminate the lease of this property to Meredith.

The township could lay a charge against Meredith and Peconi, but feel that the termination of Meredith's lease, and getting him out of the township, would be more effective."

Mr. Meredith's rent to the city is $50 a month, since March 1951.

Opinion of the committe was that the city should continue its co-operation with North Monaghan. A motion by Ald. Wm. J. Beggs and Ald. Sid Black proposed to the council that steps be taken to have the old Harper or Adamson place vacated by Mr. Meredith. In the event of his contesting the expected ruling of the council, it was said that the township has evidence to support their complaints, and since then, it was reported today, other corroboration has become available.

City's 1953 New Building For Five Months Exceeds 1952 By $100,000

Building Permits Issued In June Total $648,362, Include 72 New Homes; Only 16 One Year Ago

The building permits issued at the City Hall last month at $648,362 amounted to half the total of $1,363,143 for the first five months of 1953. With that surge of new construction the value of new property now exceeds the total of $1,255,432 for the corresponding period of five months in 1952. The May permits were: 17 garages, $4,813; 72 dwellings, $579,900; and 117 miscellaneous permits $63,649; total, $648,362. The figures for May last year were: 14 garages, $4,550; 16 dwellings, $130,750; miscellaneous, $188,454; total, $323,784.

The 72 new houses for which building authority was listed last month compares with 16 houses in May last year, a sweeping increase that has already been mentioned.

Fireworks Show Highlights Coronation Day

Thousands of people thronged to Little lake Tuesday night for the final and perhaps the highlight of the city's three-day observances of Queen Elizabeth II coronation — a mammoth fireworks display.

As early as 7:30 the shore of Little lake started filling up with people waiting for this feature event and an hour before the first rocket exploded over the lake, hundreds of cars were causing a traffic jam on George and adjacent streets.

The lakeshore itself was not the only site chosen by coronation-excited spectators. Hunter St. bridge had more than its share of observers and cars soon filled up the available parking space on Armour Hill.

35 DIFFERENT KINDS

Shortly after 9:30 p.m.—the scheduled hour of starting—the first of the $1,300 worth of fireworks were set off by experienced men in Little lake park. More than 35 kinds of firecrackers exploded in a myriad of colors over the calm water of the lake. At times the flashes were bright enough to illuminate the whole scene.

Also at intervals during the hour-long display, the shore broke out in a series of bright and dancing flashes as children waved hundreds of sparklers which had been given to them earlier.

The display came to a climactic and impressive close with the setting off of a set piece of the Queen, which was greeted with enthusiastic applause and was accompanied by the deafening noise of exploding bombs.

This impressive show of color and noise was a fitting close to a series of events arranged by the coronation committee to celebrate the crowning of a Queen.

2 Women Serve On Grand Jury, Criminal Case

The grand jury is expected to bring in a verdict later today that will decide whether or not John Randolph Brown of Lake St. will stand trial on a charge of carnal knowledge involving a 15-year-old girl.

They were given their charge before noon today by Judge John de N. Kennedy, county court judge, who is presiding at the general sessions of the peace. Two women are on the 13-person jury.

If they bring in a true bill, meaning that Brown may be guilty of the offence and in their opinion should stand trial, the case will not go on at the present session. The only other criminal case has been laid over to Sept. 23.

A petit jury, also including two women, was sworn in today for the civil action in which Ross Irwin of Lakefield is suing two brothers, Gordon and Cecil Cameron of White Lake, for damages as a result of a car-truck collision on Sept. 17, 1951.

STAND-BY JURORS

The action cannot be tried until next Tuesday. Three stand-by jurors were picked to fill in should any of the present 12 fall ill between now and the date of the trial.

Dates for trying the five non-jury actions were also set by Judge Kennedy.

Rockland Airways versus J. Russell McIntosh of Harvey township, a suit involving a lease and an airbase in Harvey, will be tried Oct. 13.

Yvon Castonguay of Toronto is suing Charles Doherty of Hastings—and the latter is counter-

U.S. Has Shelved Threat To Make Cut In Aid To UN

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON— (AP) — President Eisenhower talked congressional leaders into junking today a proposal to cut off U.S. financial support of the U N if the international organization seats Communist China.

But in return the lawmakers obtained at a White House conference what some of them described as the strongest possible pledge from the president that the U. S. not only will oppose Red China's entry into the security council, but will lead the fight against it.

Coupled with this was presidential approval for a substitute proposal — promptly introduced in the senate by Senator Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.) to put Congress on record against Peiping's admission to the world body.

Bridges gave notice he will call for a vote tomorrow.

The president threw his prestige into the balance at a hurriedly called White House meeting with the leaders to head off almost sure adoption by Congress of a proposed rider to the bill. This would automatically have cut off U. N: contributions to the U. N. if the Chinese Communists replaced the Chinese nationalists in the securtiy council.

Eisenhower won agreement for substitution of a virtually toothless expression of congressional opinion. In turn the president apparently went much further than he has previously in lining himself up — in advance of the Burmuda Big Three Conference — against British Prime Minister Churchill and other free world leaders who have made it clear they would support Red China's bid for a security council seat if a satisfactory truce in reached in Korea.

Bridges who heads the Senate Appropriations Committee and wrote the fund-halting rider, said after the conference: "The President assured us that not only would this country oppose the admission of the Chinese Communists, but would take the lead in opposing such admission."

Previously, Eisenhower had said that under the conditions and circumstances that exist in the world with Peiping subservant to Moscow, he did not believe Red China should be admitted to the UN.

However, he had called the proposed fund-halting rider a drastic sort of cure for such an eventuality and asked for more time to think it over.

Bridges quoted the President as contending that the rider might be considered as a threat against the UN.

Others said the President told them he was very much disturbed by the implications of the rider It was his duty to conduct foreign relations, the President reminded, adding that he had not been consulted before the rider was introduced.

Bridges argued that Congress was only trying to set up a formula in advance, to warn U. S. allies what U.S. reaction would be to any proposal for admission of Red China.

The substitute Bridges later introduced read:

Resolved, that it is the sense of the Congress that the Communist Chinese Government should not be admitted to membership in the United Nations as a representative of China."

Its adoption by both Houses seemed to be a foregone conclusion, since Democrats who have been opposing the rider as improper legislation all have said they oppose admission of Red China.

Says Emotions Can 'Mark' Unborn Baby

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A pregnant woman's emotions may really "mark" her unborn baby, making the child neurotic, Dr. William S. Kroger of Chicago said today

The infant may become predisposed to psychosomatic ailments, the complaints born of emotional upsets rather than actual physical troubles, he said.

This kind of effect is not the same as the old wives' tales that if a woman is frightened by a spider, for example, her baby will have birthmarks. It is something different.

Kroger, gynaecologist of the Chicago Medical School, was telling the American medical Association convention of some psychosomatic aspects of gynaecology and obstetrics.

LASTING EFFECTS

Recently, he said, scientists have found that various effects from a mother's physical and emotional health can lastingly affect the growing embryo, or unborn baby.

"In other words, disturbing maternal emotions and behavior may produce a neuroticfetus (unborn baby) with a predisposition toward a wide variety of psychosomatic diseases," he said.

By present evidence, he said, the first few weeks or months of a baby's life are more important than any other period in shaping personality.

Some specialists, Kroger continued, think that bottle-feeding of a baby may lead to psychosomatic ailments, that breast feeding is better.

"I believe it makes little if any difference how or when a baby receives nutrition, as long as its held and cuddled by a loving mother."

The funeral of John T. A. Parsons, 256 McDonnel St., who died Friday, was held Monday from the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Albert Brooks, Roy Genge, William Miller, Clifford Bell, Clarence Sargenson, Herbert Jones. Burial was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Approve Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate, without opposition, Tuesday approved Admiral Arthur W. Radford to be chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chief of staff of the army; Admiral Robert B Carney, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chief of staff of the air force.

By-Product Of Steel Has New Use

HALIFAX (CP)—Canadian and American steel companies are making money from a by-product which until a few years ago was considered worthless.

In 1951 steel plants in the two countries produced more than 2,000,000 tons of mineral aggregate from blast furnace slag, and it had a market value of nearly $5,000,000.

Since the aggregate was first marketed in 1949, a report presented at the annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada her disclosed, demand has increased so sharply that last year more than 10,000 cubic yards were made into building material.

Tests have shown that the slag is excellent as a dry, poured, insulating film for frame walls, hollow block or canopy walls. Another advantage is that it will not in itself corrode steel.

In the Maritime provinces, cellular, light-weight foamed slag aggregate has been used for making light concrete, building blocks, roof and floor slabs, and building joists.

IN LOOSE FORM

It is also being used extensively in the loose form as poured insulation. It finds its fullest application in the manufacture of precast building units.

The product's properties were brought out in hundreds of tests using various ratios of cement to aggregate, differing amounts of air-entraining agents, fly ash, fine sand and granulated slag.

The product was tested for plasticity and vibration. Ten samples of six different mixes were subjected to freezing and thawing cycles twice daily. Even after 150 cycles there was no visible deterioration.

The lightness of aggregate concrete has been found to offer the advantages of decreased dead weight and ease of handling. It also has excellent sound absorption qualities. Concrete made with the mill by-product weighs 25 to 45 per cent less than concretes with gravel aggregates, engineers were told.

Queen Had Studied Role So Well She Gave Thought To Every Meaning

No Boastful Proclamations of Power And Majesty

By I. NORMAN SMITH
(Special to The Examiner).

LONDON — It was a muted service. The emphasis on dedication more than celebration. Fanfare of trumpets and peal of bells occasionally took exaltation to the lofty arches atop the old grey Abbey church. But there was no shaking of the stone with blatant organ, no boastful proclamations of power and majesty.

In retrospect this stands out in my memory. Somehow I thought a coronation service would tremble. We sang louder at school than the boys of the Chapel Royal and Westminster did today. You have heard your local preacher far outdo the Archbishop of Canterbury. For all the prayers we heard today were so quietly simple and humble that he might have been saying them at some sick bed.

And the Queen, she had studied her role so well. That when the time came to do it she was able to give thought to its every meaning. She was neither the automat, mannequin perfect, nor did she reveal uncertainty and worry about the next devotion—she was acting not by heart but from the heart.

From the Queen, touchingly serious; from the Archbishop with his superb voice and sense of timing; from Dr. William McKie, organist and master of choristers who was knighted yesterday — from these three was set the tone and spirit of the service. It was amazing to note that once the service began all excitement and tension and the theatre aspects of the "project" fell away. The 7500 people who up until now had been thinking about their own problems and how to get a bite of lunch— now they were praying or sitting still in meditation. There was now a minimum of gawking and staring. Even at Sir Winston who the Lord knows was a tremendous sight in the uniform of the warden of the Cinque Ports. Topped off with his newly-acquired Order of the Garter.

AWAY IN QUIET MOOD

Consequently one came away in quietened mood, one usually comes away from a communion service— of which the coronation was but a part. It is only now, an hour or so afterwards, while I can still hear the crowds on the streets, and the bells are pealing to welcome the cessation of the rain. It is only now I recall the gold and silver and diamonds. The smashing marshals and admirals, the Arabian Nights figures in purple or yellow from strange lands. The sight of Nehru standing meekly in a coat alongside Mohammed Ali the new Pakistan premier so recently gone from Ottawa. There was South Africa's Malan beside Nehru, two pretty stiff enemies.

Once you start thinking of the sights and sounds—dear devoted sounds of Handel as he was meant to be played or of a solo chorister surely an angel or archangel down for the day — once you start removing yourself from the mood of communion and dedication the sights and sounds come back at you in carcades.

Perhaps I should start at the beginning. It was quite unnecessary. All that fussing about getting through to the Abbey before 7.00 a.m. the appropriate labels on the car, and the splendid police organization did the trick in 15 minutes. Those who had stood outside all night looked as cold as they must have been. For it had rained intermittenly and you could see your breath. One felt guilty of comfort and privilege in the face of such rugged loyalty. Access to the Abbey, gained with the right ticket for the right door, was equally easy. These people understand organization even to the signs in the men's rooms alongside the Abbey, wherein was this nice distinction "gentlemen," on one door and "Peers" on the other.

Several hundred were already in their seats at 6.45 a.m. In no time at all it was 8.15. And from my fortunate seat in the south transept it was something of a dream. The Abbey is wonderfully tall. French in style and designed for this very service so that there is ample room before the altar. Below in full view, was the central area where the nave and transepts cross, and whereon before the altar were King Edward's coronation chair and behind it the enthronement chair, or throne.

SUN SHONE THROUGH

I remember 8.15 because the sun suddenly and momentarily shone gently through the large eastern windows. The crimson of the peeresses' robes leaped in the light, and the carpet beneath the throne was now yellow turned to gold. Just then, it was, that Dr. Vaughan Williams—nearly 80 — climbed to his seat, close to mine. Imagine hearing your own music played at such fit time, including his Sanctus and arrangement of The Old Hundreth.

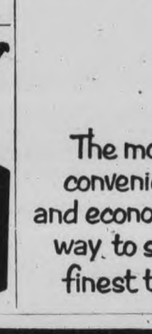
Printed instructions issued Abbey guests were overly explicit, even to telling us not to smoke. But it was a restrained and whispering assembly even at the beginning, with nary a hustle or bustle. Though we did, from our gallery, enjoy seeing the red uniformed ushers gently tap the peeresses on their behinds when they lingered too long over their individual seats. It would take a Burke's peerage, all the colors of the spectrum and immense knowledge of whos who to describe this scene. You have perhaps seen the large round rose windows high in the Abbey's transepts. Usually you see them against the Abbey empty grey and they seem brilliant. Today this window, a wonder of the world was merely another warmth in a living gorgeous panoply.

Across from me are several hundred peeresses in ermine and crimson. Above them are soldiers and sailors and diplomats and knights and men of state, all arrayed in color, and their ladies too, and the justices in ermine and wig, and countless diamonds and precious stones. And the Easterners are there. A stained glass window cannot add to that, lacking the animation, the air of something doing. And so today the Abbeys famed windows will hardly have been noted. I've not mentioned peers, who also are redolent in ermine and crimson, but then I can't see them for they are beneath me. In the Abbey, the peers sit to the Queen's right, the peeresses merely on her left. Robert E. Sherwood about five seats along from me, should work that into a play.

A SERVICE FROM THE FIRST

I last saw him in Madison Square Garden at one of the November election meetings. That was something else again. It is now 8:50 and that unfailing spine tingler has done it again: the violins in the orchestra of 60 have begun to tune up. In a moment the music began ever so quietly. But one peeress chose that moment to summon first aid of smelling salts and whiskey and we all smiled nervously. Not too confident we wouldn't follow suit in the eighth or tenth hour of our witness. Where the time went I don't know. Though we were just sitting there. Presently it was 9:55 and Dr. McKie's Chapel Royal Boys sang a little preliminary to the Litany. The "event" became a service as from their first clear notes. And more certainly so when the Litany itself was intoned by a priest whose measured pleadings trailed off into the wonderfully mysterious reaches of the grey overhead. Now the princes of royal blood were coming, and the princesses. Below us they turned from the nave to their seats. This was a hint of the ceremony to come. And the Queen Mother's stately entrance was ceremony itself. Her train carried by her mistress of the robes. Herself a duchess dowager whose own coronet was carried by a young lord. And six ladies assisted with the robe and the music began to swell. The organ now partnering the orchestra and the choir adding its praise. It was about 11:30 when the Westminster School Boys shouted out their traditional "vivat" and the Queen came serenely into view before the altar.

Then began that graceful service wherein the Queen is presented. Herself takes the oath, is prepared and annointed, is crowned, is paid the homage of her people and then seeks and obtains the blessing of communion. I know that by now you will have heard the service over the radio and read of it in yesterday's papers. There is no need here to attempt another general description. But perhaps I may note some impressions.



ACT OF LOVELINESS

The moving simplicity of the Queen's expression as she bowed in turn to all four corners of the Abbey to acknowledge that her people had replied, "God Save the Queen", to Archbishop's solemn query whether they were willing to do her homage. It was an act of sheer loveliness, her thanking us with so modest a bow. All in the Abbey wanted to reverse the thanks and none knew envy. The clear, clean youthful voice that we could all hear so easily when the Archbishop asked her for her vows, "All this I promise to do,"

Oath Of Allegiance Recited At Cobourg

COBOURG— (ENS) — The Coronation was marked here by a large parade from the public school to the park where a program was held at the bandshell.

All the boy scouts, girl guides, Legion, military units, town council, public utilities and other groups were in the parade, headed by the Kilties Band.

Mayor John D. Burnet was chairmon of the program at the park, where addresses were given by the Rev. H. Bedford-Jones and the Rev. J. P. Collins. The prayer was given by Capt. A. G. McDowell. Judge M. A. Miller of Cobourg led the crowd in the recital of the oath of allegiance to the Queen.

In the evening the boy scouts lit their beacon fire on the park beach.

Swedes In Korea

STOCKHOLM (CP)—A fresh contingent of 20 persons has just left for the Swedish Red Cross Hospital at Pusan, Korea, where about 150 Swedes now are working. The Swedish Hospital has cared for more than 20,000 men of the United Nations forces and many wounded Communist prisoners.

IN HER LAST OFFICIAL ACTION before her Coronation, The Queen announced she has knighted two of Britain's most popular sports figures and handed ranks and honors to some 4,000 other Britons. The sporting greats made sirs were world champion Jockey Gordon Richards, who may beat the young monarch's horse in The Coronation Derby Saturday, and Jack Hobbs, grand old man of cricket. The Queen's honors list, one of the longest in British history, marked Her Majesty's Coronation and her official birthday celebration June 11. Olympic figure skating champion Jeannette Altwegg was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Farmer Shot At Neighbor Is Placed On Bond Of $500

COBOURG (ENS)—A charge of shooting with intent to do bodily injury, laid against Ekel Grills, 51, of Haldimand township, was reduced to assult and Grills was placed on a bond of $500 to keep the peace for a period of one year.

Grills was charged with shooting a .22 rifle at 21-year-old Garnet Anderson, a neighbor, over a family matter on May 12. The case was previously heard in camera and Magistrate R. B. Baxter reserved judgment.

The magistrate, in delivering his decision, said that he could not find from the evidence that Grills had intended to do bodily harm as he had only fired in the general driection of Anderson's car. Under the circumstances he felt the proper penalty was to bind the accused over to keep the peace.

"I am also directing that Mr. Grills permit no guns on his property and that the .22 rifle which was seized be retained by the police until the expiration of the bond.

"It was a foolhardy thing for you to do. You may have been goaded into it and were sorry afterward. And you, Anderson, you know that Grills is apparently highstrung and I am suggesting that you refrain from doing anything to disturb him," said the magistrate.

Campbellford Council Opposed Brighton School Debenture

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—The town council on Monday evening received a letter from the East Northumberland High School Area Board saying that the board had passed a resolution to build a new 370-pupil High School in Brighton, at a total cost of $515,000. The proposed school is to cost, according to estimates, 1½ mills throughout the district for 20 years. Council ordered the secretary to be notified of their unwillingness to be a party to this debenture.

WARN MERCHANTS

Reports of committees included a protest from Reeve Nicholas that the various merchants had not been putting in their relief accounts monthly and it is difficult to know where the relief expenditure stands at any given time Relief officer Birmingham said he would warn merchants receiving vouchers that they must be presented the same month as received. Councillor MacMillan reported the boulevard between the road and sidewalk on the school hill should be surfaced. This was left with the road and bridge committee to make a report. Councillor Rutherford reported Fire Chief Alex MacDonald had attended the fire-fighters school in Peterborough and had obtained a certificate.

There was some difference of opinion in committee on action to improve the bank of the canal between the river and Grand Road. Councillors Maybee and Macmillan tending their resignation from that committee. However they were persuaded to continue.

PURCHASE Old RIGHT-of-WAY

Councillor Burgess reported the desire of Mr. Locke to purchase the part of the old railway just west of his property on Booth St. It was offered to him for $25 plus legal costs.

In responce to a claim by E. G. Tinney for damages his car suffered on Front St. the matter was referred to the insurance company.

A letter was received from the annuity branch of the Dominion government, advising that annuity rates had been raised from 3 to 3½ per cent, and that, upon application a new contract more beneficial to the applicants could be obtained. Council made application for this on behalf of the employees.

The parking problem was discussed at length, and Mayor Locke named Councillors Macmillan and Rutherford with Deputy Reeve Maybee as a delegation to ascertain what properties are available for additional parking space.

PEP FIGHTS FOR DOUGH

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Pep, the last of the master boxers still active in the ring, continues his career "just for the dough."

"Another year, maybe, and then I'll call it quits," said the sad-faced little man with the dark, brooding eyes. "I need the dough."

Close to a half million dollars must have slipped through Willie's hands since he started his illustrious career some 14 years and 183 fights ago.

A yen for gambling and high living, and marital troubles have bankrupted the little Italian from Hartford. Willie hasn't much to show for his long career except his clippings—and the admiration of the trade for his consummate skill.

When the spry veteran and former featherweight champion climbed into the ring at Stillman's Gym where he is preparing for his fight here Friday with Pat Marcune, the trainer, managers and other boxers stopped to watch.

Trainers beckoned to their charges and whispered in their ears.

"See that—watch that," they said. "Watch him hit and move. . . hit and move. He's great."

But the years have caught up with the tiny guy the writers called "the will o' the wisp."

His face is scarred now and the flash has gone out of his legs. He's still fast compared to what's around today but not half as speedy as the old Willie.

No Boastful

she said, and you thought of her father and all he did, and you thought how young she was. The Scottish dignity of the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland when he said his short sentence so impressively in this Church of England abbey while presenting Her Majesty with the Holy Bible: "Here is wisdom; this is the royal law; these are the lively oracles of God".

The glory of Handel's Zadok the Priest, sheer, sheer glory. The humility of the Queen as she sat in King Edward's chair, hands laid softly on her lap, palms up, to receive the holy oil; and her infinite care in receiving from the Archbishop the orb, and how she beseechingly lifted her face to him as he said: "Receive this orb set under the cross, and remember that the whole world is subject to the power and empire of Christ our redeemer".

How very hard it must be to hold the sceptre in her right hand and the rod in her left hand and have the heavy crown on her head and still be able to mount steps, or sit down in a vast throne chair and get from it, to acknowledge homage.

And the bells rang out all over London when she was crowned, and the trumpets sounded to every corner and crypt of the Abbey and we all cried out "God Save the Queen" and the great guns of the tower and in the park were shot off. That being ended, the choir sang, "Be Strong and of a Good Courage". Here was something singularly beautiful and the vast assemblage was stilled in thought.

It was at the end of the coronation part of the service (but before the Archbishop went to the altar to celebrate communion) that all the people did shout out God Save Queen Elizabeth, and the drums did beat and the trumpets sound and the choir sang and the organ rumbled. It was the fullest sound of the day and it was grand and the rumbling organ sounded like Churchill talking of England. But even so . . . it wasn't ponderous and crushing as ceremonial crescendos are apt to be. It was stirring but without threats: it made you realize what great, great churches such as this are built for. The Abbey was truly a national shrine at this moment, a commonwealth and empire shrine.

TAKE COMMUNION TOGETHER

And then . . . Queen and her husband went to the altar and knelt together for communion. Sir William Walton wrote special music for the Te Deum, for double choir and orchestra and organ and I can only advise anyone who cares about music to watch for the recording and then cherish it. As Dr. McKie has said, it is a superb and fitting musical climax to the whole service. "The glorious company of the apostles; praise thee. The goodly fellowship of the prophets: praise thee. The noble army of martyrs: praise thee. O Lord save thy people; and bless thine heritage. Govern them: and lift them up for ever. O Lord, in Thee have I trusted; let me never be confounded." That wasn't the end. There was still the National Anthem, and there was the going out of all the state processions that came in, including the line up of prime ministers with Mr. St. Laurent looking as distinguished as any man in the Abbey though not decked out in any uniform save that of full evening dress, and with Sir Winston stalking about a bit on his own in plain unadulterated proud pride of his Queen, his country, and the service as a whole. He was magnificent. But the going out was . . . well, a going out. The true end to the coronation service was that young pair kneeling in the sanctuary for communion, from the hands of the Archbishop, and the choir thereafter lifting the heart of all present: "We praise thee, O God: we acknowledge Thee to be the Lord."

Legion Asked To Put Plaque In New Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—A. J. Meyers and Franklin Linton addressed the members of branch 103, Canadian Legion, at their regular June meeting on Monday evening, asking them to place a plaque in the new Memorial Hosital in memor yof the servicemen who made the supreme sacrifice in the two world wars.

Mr. Meyers expressed the view that, as it was a memorial hospital, it would be fitting if the branch could accept the responsibility of honoring the memory of the men from this district who did not return. A committee was appointed to investigate this suggestion and report back at the next meeting.

An invitation was received from the Trenton branch to a drumhead service to be held there on Sunday, July 5. The service will be the conclusion to Trenton's centennial week.

Comrade Jack Storie gave a short report on the Legion carnival, to be held on June 20.

Page's Uniform Too Tight But He Enjoys Abbey Show

By JOHN TALBOT

LONDON (Reuters)—It was a wonderful day. I saw Queen Elizabeth crowned in Westminster Abbey and I walked with princes and sultans from many lands. I shall never forget it.

At 5 a. m. I was dressed in my page's uniform. I had to wear my aunt's cotton stockings under my white hose to make them grip my garters.

They were an ordinary woman's garters, and I don't know what the boys at my school would say if they knew I had to wear them.

I had white breeches with white buttons and a gold and white waistcoat and a claret-colored coat.

Claret is the color of my family.

SEES PRINCES ARRIVING

We went into the abbey annex and I saw all the princes and sultans arriving and Sir Winston Churchill was there. He went off to greet the Queen and when he came back he said "I had to have a private look."

I saw the Earl Marshal walking about. At one rehearsal he told all the pages that he wished he was our headmaster and he would beat us all.

At last the Queen arrived at the abbey with the Duke of Edinburgh. She went to put on her robes and I thought she was taking rather a long time. Then she came out and the ladies in waiting picked up her train.

We went in before her and took up our positions in the south transept. The earl sat at the bottom and I gave him his coronet and he gave me a white wand of iron which is a sort of a stick.

CLOTHES TOO TIGHT

There were hundreds of people in the abbey, but I didn't see much of them as I had to go and sit on the steps at the top of the transept. My clothes were very tight.

I saw the archbishop raise the crown in his hands and put it down on the Queen's head. She looked very lovely. I saw the homage and when the Duke of Kent went up, the microphone bust and I could not hear a word he said.

The peeresses' coronets were terribly funny. They were so tiny compared with those of the peers. The Countess of Shrewsbury had to use elastic to keep hers on.

WALK IN PROCESSION

After it was all over we walked in procession out of the abbey and the crowd cheered, but I was jolly hungry. We went to the House of Lords and I had a meat roll, a biscuit with a piece of chicken on top and egg.

The most awful moment of the day was when I was coming out of the annex and my sword fell with a clatter on the floor.

I go back to school on Thursday. I'm not looking forward to it, but I'll have plenty to tell the boys.

Ottawa Celebrations Called Scene Of Greatest Pageantry

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians have thrown their hearts to the Queen in an unprecedented gesture of devotion.

In towns, cities and hamlets they dedicated themselves to their Queen on Coronation Day in solemn prayer and brilliant military ceremonial.

The heart of that Canadian dedication flowed from this capital. Never before in Ottawa was there such pageantry and warm response, such vivid spectacle and spontaneous gaiety as Tuesday's.

Police estimated that more than 100,000 Canadians paid homage here to the young sovereign in her hour of glory.

STORIES AND PICTURES

Newspapers bulged with stories and pictures of the Coronation. Films and photographs from London were air-sped across the Atlantic by jet plane.

In Ottawa, great throngs trampled the lawns of Parliament. Shut off from the centre of the spectacle, thousands jammed the streets below. Batteries of police could not, for a time, cope with them.

Drawn from the city and neighboring communities, this vast mass of humanity could not see the crowning of their Queen, but they could display their devotion by cheering her representative, the governor-general. They did that, lustily.

CHEER LANDAU

They cheered the horse-drawn open landau bearing Governor-General Vincent Massey to Parliament in his white-plumed, black cocked hat and black ceremonial dress, trimmed with white and gold braid.

They cheered the RCMP's finest, the mounted troop that accompanied the carriage, and the 7,000 of the Queen's troops that later marched past Mr. Massey in a smart, 33-minute revue.

They listened quietly, probably with deep reflections of their own, when the Queen's voice came over loudspeakers as she spoke from the heart of London to her subjects overseas.

And they thrilled as more than 100 warplanes swept the skies overhead.

CLIMAX OF FLY-PAST

The climax of Canada's own fly-past was the creation in the sky of "E II" by a Sabre jet formation and the startling swoosh from an unexpected direction of three Sabres, simulating by their vapor trails the three plumes of the crest borne by Princes of Wales for 600 years.

Festivities went on late into the night. But there was a late touch of gloom to the gaiety. Scores of persons received minor burns from a defective skyrocket in the brilliant fireworks display that topped street celebrations at night. Four were taken to hospital.

This was the only incident to mar the over-all gaiety of the city.

The gay crowds, in holiday mood, danced in the streets and lined Ottawa's Rideau canal to witness high-spirited city fathers set sail in one of the world's strangest armadas.

City council led a flotilla of 30 craft in a three-mile cruise from Dow's lake in Ottawa South to the centre of the city.

In another part of the city, the social whirl rose to a high pitch with some 700 special guests turning out to the governor-general's state ball, the first in Canada in 40 years.

MR. AND MRS. EMIL YORK of Burleigh Falls, the bride formerly Miss Mary Lenore Armstrong. —(Choate Studio Photo)

York-Armstrong Wedding

Wesley United Church, Smith, was the setting for the wedding on Saturday of Mary Lenore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Armstrong of North Smith, to Emil Paul York, son of Mr. Emil York and the late Mrs. York of Burleigh Falls.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland performed the ceremony and Miss Mary Nicholls played the wedding music. During the signing of the register Mr. Jack Durham sang "Through The Years."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a floor-length gown of net and Chantilly lace. The lace bodice had a stand-up collar and long sleeves which came to points at the wrist. The full skirt was in panels of net and lace and had an underskirt of satin. She wore a fingertip veil of silk illusion caught to a band of beaded pearls and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Mac Gordon, sister of the bride, as matron of honor wore a strapless gown of blue net over taffeta with tiered skirt and a jacket of net and matching mittens. Her headband was of woven net trimmed with pearls and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Little Ann Gordon as flower girl wore yellow organdy with Peter Pan collar and puff sleeves and a full gathered skirt. Her dress was tied with a mauve sash and she had mauve flowers in her hair and carried a nosegay of sweet peas and talisman roses.

Mr. Gordon attended the groom and the ushers were the bride's brothers Keith and Jack Armstrong.

The reception was held at the bride's home, her mother receiving alone, wearing a navy crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Leaving later on a wedding trip to United States, the bride wore a dress of navy faille with blue accessories and a white topcoat. Her corsage was an orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. York will make their home at Burleigh Falls.

Cultivate Beauty, Health By Gardening As Hobby

You get much more out of gardening than beautiful flowers and luscious vegetables. It's a relaxing, healthful and beautifying activity. The fresh air and exercise do wonders in bringing a natural glow to your complexion and keeping your waistline small.

However, without certain protective measures gardening can take a toll of your beauty.

Even on the type of day when the sun is behind the clouds be sure to guard your skin from burning with a good sunburn preventive. If you are a tanner, you can use an oil. Even a tanner, if she's been indoors most of the day, should be careful at first.

On days when the sun beats down mercilessly, wear a lightweight hat or scarf on your head to protect yourself from sun dizziness and to keep your hair from drying out.

DIRT BRUSHES OUT

Before you get your hands into the dirt take a few minutes to dig your nails into a cake of damp soap. This will keep them from blackening. At scrub-up time, it takes but a few seconds to brush the dirt out. If your brush man should stop at your garden gate hail him if you haven't got a good manicure or all-purpose stiff-bristled brush.

We hope you're a girl who not only has gardening gloves but uses them. Before pulling them on, coat your hands with good hand cream or lotion. It will do a softening job while you work and if you're likely to discard the gloves while working, you'll have at least some protection.

Don't abuse your feet with bedroom slippers or an old pair of once-good shoes while in the garden. Some girls like to go barefoot at least part of the time. But when they do put their shoes on, low-heeled, arch-supporting, comfortable ones are best.

TOOLS SHOULD BE RIGHT

If your gardening tools are too long or too short for you, you won't get the fun out of gardening that you should, and you won't be able to maintain good posture. Insist on having the tools right for you.

Don't break your back even though, at the moment, it seems a worthy cause. There's no need to make a jackknife of yourself. Use your thigh muscles and flex your knees to bend down and keep the back straight. This will not only keep your posture good but avoid later backache.

Study the most efficient way for using any new tool, to keep from straining any of your muscles. When you can use two hands for doing something, don't make one do all the work.

Your clothes should allow you perfect freedom of motion and protect you from callouses. And, if you want to be pretty, don't wear some old discarded garment for gardening. Have one of the smart outdoor costumes available in sportswear departments.

Stop for rest before you get tired, don't get into the poison ivy, wear an insect repellent and your hours of gardening should reap great beauty returns.

Legion Auxiliary Closes Season In Good Standing

A pot luck supper preceded the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion Monday evening at the Legion Hall. This was planned as a wind-up to the activities until the fall and was in charge of Mrs. A. A. Glenn. About 50 members were present.

The business session, conducted by president Mrs. G. C. Stevens, disclosed the Auxiliary has good financial standing to end the season. The Coronation Tea last week was pleasingly successful and all those who helped were thanked by the president and the convener, Mrs. W. Downer.

Four new members were proposed for admission at the first fall meeting on September 14th.

The silk flag which was soiled in the fire last winter and which is now replaced, was given to the Red Patch Club for their lodge.

It was arranged to hold a summer picnic at Mrs. Walker's cottage at Bobcaygeon on Wednesday, August 19th. Mrs. Downer is in charge of transportation and Mrs. A. Parrington and Mrs. R. Ritchie are to convene the lunch.

Sub-executive minutes of the Provincial Command were read, and required that a vote be taken as to whether the Auxiliary wishes to have conventions held yearly or biennially. Peterborough members recorded a vote for the two year plan.

A wall bracket offered as the draw prize at the recent tea was drawn for and Mrs. R. Ritchie, treasurer of the Auxiliary, was the winner.

"At Home" Closes Activities Of Two Sodalities

Activities of the senior and junior Sodalities of St. Peter's Cathedral came to a solemn close on Sunday when, after the Holy Hour, the members were at home to their mothers and friends in the K of C hall.

Miss Catherine Kieran, Senior Sodality prefect, recited a prayer. Then, Miss Leila McGrath, secretary, gave a summary of the year and Miss Patricia Beresford presented the financial report.

Spiritual director the Rev. Dubbery, addressed the gathering, expressing his pleasure with the work of the sodality the past year. He was then presented with a spiritual bouquet.

Miss Lillian O'Neil, prefect of the Junior Sodality, addressed the mothers and thanked each one for co-operation during the year. Miss Marie Begley presented the Juniors' spiritual director, the Rev. R. J. Garvey, with a spiritual bouquet.

Father Garvey thanked the girls and expressed the desire that they keep up their work and "try to come closer to their Blessed Mother by being members of the Sodality."

Father Dubbery drew the lucky ticket on a silver tea service and it was won by Miss Frances Moher.

Junior members entertained with two hymns, "Ave Maria" and "Bring flowers of the rarest." A film was also shown.

Refreshments were served with Miss Kieran and Miss Beresford pouring tea and members of both groups serving.

Also during the at home, officers for next term were elected. New Central Council of the senior Sodality is prefect, Miss Mary Sullivan; vice prefect, Miss Leila McGrath; secretary, Miss Margaret Gorman; treasurer, Miss Betty Moher; social conveners, Miss Patricia Beresford and Miss Nora MacDonald. Our Lady's committee, Miss Teresa Doran and Miss Margaret Moher.

Yelland-Pearson

At the parsonage of Murray St. Baptist Church on Saturday, the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan performed the marriage of Ellen Julia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pearson of Lindsay, and Harry Alfred Yelland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Yelland of Peterborough. It was a double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a french tweed suit in leaf green and a hat of the same material and had black accessories. Her corsage was of white and yellow roses. Her sister, Miss Marie Pearson, as bridesmaid, was in a navy linen suit and wore white and red accessories and a corsage of white and red roses.

The groom's attendant was his brother Ray Yelland.

A reception was held at the groom's home, 183 Dublin St. His mother received in a white printed nylon dress and wore blue accessories and a corsage of rust pom poms. The bride's mother, assisting, was wearing brown and white printed silk with brown accessories and a corsage of white pom pom 'mums.

The couple are honeymooning at the family cottage on Gold Lake and afterward they will live at 196 Brock St.

QUEEN'S GOWN—Held in completely secrecy until the last minutes before the Coronation, the gown worn by Queen Elizabeth II is revealed in a sketch by designer Norman Hartnell. The regal dress features the Commonwealth emblem and has gems and embroidery worked into a scalloped pattern across the full skirt.

Fete Coronation Day Bride

Mrs. Frank Peel, the former Mary Moher, Reg.N., was feted at three showers prior to her marriage on Tuesday. Friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Joe O'Connor, Douro, when Mrs. O'Connor and Mrs. Mastra Moher were joint hostesses for a surprise shower for their niece. An address was read by Mrs. Joseph Lonergan, a former teacheer of Miss Moher, and the gifts were presented by Misses Gerry Allen and Marie Burke, cousins of the bride. Lunch was served to 60 guests. Mrs. David Kirchner, a former classmate of Miss Moher, was hostess for a miscellaneous shower when former classmates gathered and presented gifts. Mrs. Bernard Meagher and Miss Margaret Moher were joint hostesses for their sister at a surprise shower. Sharon and Terry Meagher, neice and nephew of the bride, presented the gifts. Mrs. Victor Kennedy and Mr. Joseph Towns, on behalf of the members of St. Joseph's choir, Douro, presented Miss Moher with a pair of pearl rosary beads. Miss Monica Hefferman, on behalf of the members of the Sodality of St. Joseph's Church, Douro, presented a statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary to the bride. Fellow employees at Outboard Marine presented Mr. Frank Peel with a hostess chair at a stag party held in his honor.

Ansgar, the "apostle of the north," preached Christianity in Scandinavia in the ninth century.

Froz. Soup Cubes

Save leftover soup and capture its full flavor by freezing. A convenient method is to use the refrigerator's ice cube tray. The soup is frozen in cube form —two cubes make a serving— and is always ready for heating and eating.

Prepare Yourself For Low-Cut Necklines

If a low-cut neckline reveals skin less smooth and fair on the shoulders and chest than that of your face and neck, you can improve these areas with the same treatment creams you use above your collarbone.

Prepare yourself for a thorough job by dressing for the part. You might wrap a huge towel around you and tuck it in place so that your shoulders and upper chest are bare.

First cleanse and stimulate with plenty of warm soapsuds and a complexion brush. Be sure to rinse off every trace of soap thoroughly when you're finished.

Now lather on this entire area some of your richest cleansing cream. Massage it in with upward molding movements of your palms and finger tips. Wipe off the cream with cleansing tissues.

A film of cream, of course, remains on your skin. To benefit from it, apply towels wrung out in very hot water. Keep applying them until your skin is glowing. The film of cream will easily wipe off now. Then splash with very cold water or your skin freshener.

Finish by massaging with a very little light oil which will go into the skin without leaving a greasy film.

If you take this treatment oft your chest and shoulder skin should soon be as pretty as that on your face.

Pie In A Bag

Have a piece of leftover pie? Wrap and put it in a plastic bag. Freeze in the home freezer. Filled with several pieces of different kinds of pie, the bag is a handy snack-sack. One piece of pie may be removed at a time and a selection is always available.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS PEEL of Peterborough were married on Coronation Day in Douro Church. The bride is the former Miss Mary Moher, Reg.N.—(Choate Studio Photo)

Coronation Day Wedding

On Coronation Day, the wedding took place in St. Joseph's Church, Douro, of Mary Teresa Moher, Reg. N., to Francis Christopher Peel. It was solemnized by the Rev. J. J. McCarthy who also said the nuptial mass.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Moher of Douro and was given in marriage by her father. She wore white satin with a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace with long sleeves coming to points over the wrists. The skirt, with bustle waistline and pleated lace insertions on either side fell to a slight train at the back. Her fingertip veil in Queen Anne style was caught with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Margaret Moher as her sister's bridesmaid wore a strapless gown of yellow satin and net overskirt with insertions of Chantilly lace and a lace bolero. Sharon Meagher, niece of the bride, as flower girl was dressed in orchid nylon floor length. Each attendant wore a headdress to match her gown and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and lily of the valley.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Peel of Peterborough, was attended by his brother Gerard Peel. Ushers were LAC2 Ray Moher, brother of the bride, and Carl Peel, nephew of the groom.

The church was decorated with pink and white snapdagon. Mrs. Victor Kennedy played the wedding music and Mr. John Sheehan sang "Ave Mariai" and "On This Day" during the ceremony and signing of the register.

Receiving the guests in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room, the bride's mother was gowned in dusty rose crepe and wore a white hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother was dressed in skipper blue linen and wore white and navy accessories and a red rose corsage. An informal reception was also held at the bride's home in Douro with friends and neighbours gathering to see her wedding gifts.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Montreal, the bride travelling in a white and blue flowered nylon dress with white accessories and carrying a powder blue topcoat.

They will live at 489 Mark St. on return.

DOROTHY DIX:

Three Persons And Child Concerned In This Tangle

DEAR MISS DIX: The man I married was divorced and had one child. We have had no children. I knew when we were married that he was still in love with Mona, his first wife, but she had remarried and I was very much in love with him. I have been a good wife, and still love him dearly, but I live in constant fear of losing him to Mona. I know they have been seeing each other, I want to know what I should do if he should ask for a divorce. Mona is free now, and I am sure he would remarry her if she would have him. I don't know how I could live without him. Our religion forbids divorce, hence we are both estranged from our church.

W. W.

FOUR UNHAPPY PERSONS

ANSWER: Your course is so clear that I'm sure you have no doubt about the right path. You know what you should do, but there's no gainsaying that to do it will be hard. Four people are concerned in this domestic tangle—you and your husband, Mona, and the child. At present, you are all unhappy. Divorcing your husband and paving the way for his remarriage might result in happiness for all but you. That is a bitter pill, but you will at least be free to find another man. At present you are convinced that there never can be anyone else, but broken hearts do mend, and while you will probably never love anyone else as much as you love your husband, you can certainly love again. If you persist in trying to hold the marriage together you will certainly not be happy. You know your husband doesn't love you, and your brooding will further complicate matters.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going with a boy a little older than I am. Now, he is becoming interested in a girl much taller and older than he is. I am his size, as he is a little below average height. He still dates me, but I am disturbed because he dates her, too. Do you think her height is the attraction?

MOLLY

ANSWER: It's rather unusual for a boy to go with a taller girl. Height is one point on which most young men are sensitive. I doubt if that is the attraction. You seem to be the No. 1 girl anyway, and I'm sure his affection won't wander too far.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My 13th birthday will be along soon, and mother has given me permission to have a party. However, she says I may have only seven persons, including myself. For the odd person, I have a choice of a girl who is very lively, or a younger girl who is very quiet.

LINDA D.

ANSWER: Seven is a difficult group; can't you possibly persuade your Mom to allow one more, so that everyone can pair off for games, dancing, refreshments, etc.? Then you can have both girls and no one's feelings will be hurt.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister, who is 17 and two years older than I am, has a mean habit of trying to take my boy friends. As soon as a boy calls on me, she decides she likes him. Of course, since she is older and more sophisticated, she usually succeeds.

B. H.

ANSWER: It's an unwritten law among fair-minded people that sisters, as well as best girl friends, keep hands off each other's boy friends. Perhaps Mom or Dad can appeal to sister's better nature in an effort to keep her attention on other boys.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 30, and recently married a young man five years younger. Since he is in the Navy, I don't see much of him. Hence I have a great deal of time on my hands. There's an attractive man in my office, and I find myself being romantically drawn to him. What should I do?

CONFUSED

ANSWER: First of all, grow up! Thirty is slightly past the ideal age for adolescent romancing. You married in good faith, probably because you figured you wouldn't have many more chances, and it behooves you to settle down. The Navy doesn't keep its men forever. When your man gets out and discovers what sort of girl he married, he'll probably be glad to head out to sea again.

Mental Hygiene Subject Of WI Address

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Dr. D. J. Holdcroft was the guest speaker at a meeting of Havelock Women's Institute in the council chamber on Monday afternoon. His subject was "Mental Hygiene." He dealt with children's absenteeism from school and the proper corrective measures to overcome it.

At the close of his address he answered a number of questions.

A vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Holdcroft on motion by Mrs. James Wilde.

The motto for the meeting was "Prevention is the daughter of intelligence," with Mrs. H. W. Roche giving a few comments on the subject.

50TH ANNIVERSARY

An invitation was read from the Warsaw branch to attend their 50th anniversary June 18, and the president, Mrs. H. Pollock and Mrs. Robert Melville were named to represent the local branch on that occasion.

Mrs. Pollock presented Mrs. W. Woodbeck with a silver teaspoon as a token of appreciation for her work as leader of the Havelock Girls' Club, the members of which, who completed their project were previously presented with spoons.

Trent River, Belmont and Havelock branches have jointly ordered 1,000 letter-heads and envelopes with the W.I. crest.

It was decided to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Havelock branch in October. Complete plans to be made at a later date.

Mrs. James Wilde donated cream puffs for a draw and these were won by Mrs. W. Bullied.

Mrs. G. Buchanan and Mrs. B. Jewell were conveners for the program, which included a piano solo by Mrs. Russell Williams, a vocal duet by the Misses Lorraine and Edith Thompson, with Miss Sandra Vansickle at the piano.

Mrs. Jewell conducted a health quiz which was won by Mrs. Buchanan.

Tea hour hostesses were Mrs. A. Holland, Mrs. J. Wilde, Mrs. R. Jones.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Broiled Lake Trout Offered On Special-Purpose Menu

Since many of you girls look forward to the menu I usually give you at this time of week, I'll give you one, but I want to tell you a short story about "Meals-on-Wheels" in England too.

DINNER MENU

Broiled Lake Trout Lemon
Asparagus
Individual Salads of Potato Salad and Tomato Jelly Moulds
Jellied Strawberry and Rhubarb (Attention reducers and diabetics)
Crackers and Cheese Coffee.

DIRECTIONS

I will give you the recipes for the dessert because the reducers will virtually lap it up, for it contains only 24 calories per average-sized serving. One other thing I want to stress is the amount of gelatin in your tomato jelly. Always make it stiff by using two tablespoons powdered gelatin to each 3 cups of total liquid.

JELLIED STRAWBERRIES AND RHUBARB

One tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 2 cups boiling water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 20 to 24 sucaryl tablets (buy them at the drug store), red food coloring 1 cup each steamed unsweetened rhubarb, sliced unsweetened strawberries. Sprinkle gelatin on cold water, let stand 5 minutes, then dissolve by stirring into the boiling water. Add lemon juice, sacaryl tablets, and enough food coloring to tint pink. Chill to mushy consistency. Meanwhile, combine steamed rhubarb and strawberries — don't cook the strawberries. Fold the fruits into the slightly congealed gelatin. Chill until set in the individual moulds. When unmoulded on dessert plates garnish with whole berries.

MEALS-ON-WHEELS

You may have read of the visit of Drs. Rudd and Andrews (facetiously called the Ruddy-Andrews program by one Ottawa official) last week to Canada from England. They are geriatricians. That is (among other things) specialists in the diseases and troubles of the aged.

They were invited to come to to Canada by the Canadian Welfare Council to tell our Welfare and Medical organizations of the tremendous progress they have made in England with the care of their old folk—with special emphasis on keeping them happy, occupied, and non-bedridden.

They were a charming pair and modestly expressed a desire to see Niagara Falls. It was by happy privilege to be included in the party that drove them there — and Pete was full of glee to be the driver of such exalted company—being a medico-in-embryo.

Dr. Andrews described one feature of British care-of-the-aged plan that intrigued me particularly. In most big English cities there is a welfare service called Meals-on-Wheels. To put it in a nutshell, meals are delivered to homes of aged and indigent and frail folk who would otherwise dine on such meagre rations as tea and toast. Malnutrition—or undernourishment — is a major problem with old people. They simply find it too much bother (or too costly) to prepare proper meals.

So the idea of meals-on-wheels was born and implemented and is roughly this: A large welfare canteen prepares meals in large quantities. The "sweet" course is put into a round pan of very light metal, slipped into a cylindrical carrier-frame, which is completely insulated to keep the food piping hot. Slipped over it in the frame is the hot main course. It could be beef stew. Each insulated carrier holds five two-unit meals and these may be stood in the back of a car or small truck. Dr. Andrews said that, depending on the density of the population and the efficiency of the driver, anywhere from 25 to 100 meals could be delivered between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and still be hot when the hungry diner (often waiting at the v... them in his or her hands.

Those who can pay do. Those who cannot get their dinners anyway. Bless England and Englishmen. Long may she save. And soon may we start such a soul-saving program in Canada.

ANSWER: Your course is so clear that I'm sure you have no doubt about the right path. You know what you should do, but there's no gainsaying that to do it will be hard. Four people are concerned in this domestic tangle—you and your husband, Mona, and the child. At present, you are all unhappy. Divorcing your husband and paving the way for his remarriage might result in happiness for all but you. That is a bitter pill, but you will at least be free to find another man. At present you are convinced that there never can be anyone else, but broken hearts do mend, and while you will probably never love anyone else as much as you love your husband, you can certainly love again. If you persist in trying to hold the marriage together you will certainly not be happy. You know your husband doesn't love you, and your brooding will further complicate matters.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going with a boy a little older than I am. Now, he is becoming interested in a girl much taller and older than he is. I am his size, as he is a little below average height. He still dates me, but I am disturbed because he dates her, too. Do you think her height is the attraction?

MOLLY

ANSWER: It's rather unusual for a boy to go with a taller girl. Height is one point on which most young men are sensitive. I doubt if that is the attraction. You seem to be the No. 1 girl anyway, and I'm sure his affection won't wander too far.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My 13th birthday will be along soon, and mother has given me permission to have a party. However, she says I may have only seven persons, including myself. For the odd person, I have a choice of a girl who is very lively, or a younger girl who is very quiet.

LINDA D.

ANSWER: Seven is a difficult group; can't you possibly persuade your Mom to allow one more, so that everyone can pair off for games, dancing, refreshments, etc.? Then you can have both girls and no one's feelings will be hurt.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister, who is 17 and two years older than I am, has a mean habit of trying to take my boy friends. As soon as a boy calls on me, she decides she likes him. Of course, since she is older and more sophisticated, she usually succeeds.

B. H.

ANSWER: It's an unwritten law among fair-minded people that sisters, as well as best girl friends, keep hands off each other's boy friends. Perhaps Mom or Dad can appeal to sister's better nature in an effort to keep her attention on other boys.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 30, and recently married a young man five years younger. Since he is in the Navy, I don't see much of him. Hence I have a great deal of time on my hands. There's an attractive man in my office, and I find myself being romantically drawn to him. What should I do?

CONFUSED

ANSWER: First of all, grow up! Thirty is slightly past the ideal age for adolescent romancing. You married in good faith, probably because you figured you wouldn't have many more chances, and it behooves you to settle down. The Navy doesn't keep its men forever. When your man gets out and discovers what sort of girl he married, he'll probably be glad to head out to sea again.

Mental Hygiene Subject Of WI Address

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Dr. D. J. Holdcroft was the guest speaker at a meeting of Havelock Women's Institute in the council chamber on Monday afternoon. His subject was "Mental Hygiene." He dealt with children's absenteeism from school and the proper corrective measures to overcome it.

At the close of his address he answered a number of questions.

A vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Holdcroft on motion by Mrs. James Wilde.

The motto for the meeting was "Prevention is the daughter of intelligence," with Mrs. H. W. Roche giving a few comments on the subject.

50TH ANNIVERSARY

An invitation was read from the Warsaw branch to attend their 50th anniversary June 18, and the president, Mrs. H. Pollock and Mrs. Robert Melville were named to represent the local branch on that occasion.

Mrs. Pollock presented Mrs. W. Woodbeck with a silver teaspoon as a token of appreciation for her work as leader of the Havelock Girls' Club, the members of which, who completed their project were previously presented with spoons.

Trent River, Belmont and Havelock branches have jointly ordered 1,000 letter-heads and envelopes with the W.I. crest.

It was decided to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Havelock branch in October. Complete plans to be made at a later date.

Mrs. James Wilde donated cream puffs for a draw and these were won by Mrs. W. Bullied.

Mrs. G. Buchanan and Mrs. B. Jewell were conveners for the program, which included a piano solo by Mrs. Russell Williams, a vocal duet by the Misses Lorraine and Edith Thompson, with Miss Sandra Vansickle at the piano.

Mrs. Jewell conducted a health quiz which was won by Mrs. Buchanan.

Tea hour hostesses were Mrs. A. Holland, Mrs. J. Wilde, Mrs. R. Jones.

Marmora News

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Broiled Lake Trout Offered On Special-Purpose Menu

Since many of you girls look forward to the menu I usually give you at this time of week, I'll give you one, but I want to tell you a short story about "Meals-on-Wheels" in England too.

DINNER MENU

Broiled Lake Trout Lemon
Asparagus
Individual Salads of Potato Salad and Tomato Jelly Moulds
Jellied Strawberry and Rhubarb (Attention reducers and diabetics)
Crackers and Cheese Coffee.

DIRECTIONS

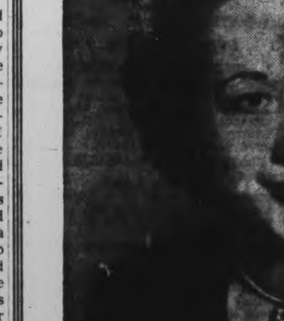
I will give you the recipes for the dessert because the reducers will virtually lap it up, for it contains only 24 calories per average-sized serving. One other thing I want to stress is the amount of gelatin in your tomato jelly. Always make it stiff by using two tablespoons powdered gelatin to each 3 cups of total liquid.

JELLIED STRAWBERRIES AND RHUBARB

One tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 2 cups boiling water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 20 to 24 sucaryl tablets (buy them at the drug store), red food coloring 1 cup each steamed unsweetened rhubarb, sliced unsweetened strawberries. Sprinkle gelatin on cold water, let stand 5 minutes, then dissolve by stirring into the boiling water. Add lemon juice, sacaryl tablets, and enough food coloring to tint pink. Chill to mushy consistency. Meanwhile, combine steamed rhubarb and strawberries — don't cook the strawberries. Fold the fruits into the slightly congealed gelatin. Chill until set in the individual moulds. When unmoulded on dessert plates garnish with whole berries.

MEALS-ON-WHEELS

You may have read of the visit of Drs. Rudd and Andrews (facetiously called the Ruddy-Andrews program by one Ottawa official) last week to Canada from England. They are geriatricians. That is (among other things) specialists in the diseases and troubles of the aged.



They were invited to come to to Canada by the Canadian Welfare Council to tell our Welfare and Medical organizations of the tremendous progress they have made in England with the care of their old folk—with special emphasis on keeping them happy, occupied, and non-bedridden.

They were a charming pair and modestly expressed a desire to see Niagara Falls. It was by happy privilege to be included in the party that drove them there — and Pete was full of glee to be the driver of such exalted company—being a medico-in-embryo.

Dr. Andrews described one feature of British care-of-the-aged plan that intrigued me particularly. In most big English cities there is a welfare service called Meals-on-Wheels. To put it in a nutshell, meals are delivered to homes of aged and indigent and frail folk who would otherwise dine on such meagre rations as tea and toast. Malnutrition—or undernourishment — is a major problem with old people. They simply find it too much bother (or too costly) to prepare proper meals.

So the idea of meals-on-wheels was born and implemented and is roughly this: A large welfare canteen prepares meals in large quantities. The "sweet" course is put into a round pan of very light metal, slipped into a cylindrical carrier-frame, which is completely insulated to keep the food piping hot. Slipped over it in the frame is the hot main course. It could be beef stew. Each insulated carrier holds five two-unit meals and these may be stood in the back of a car or small truck. Dr. Andrews said that, depending on the density of the population and the efficiency of the driver, anywhere from 25 to 100 meals could be delivered between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and still be hot when the hungry diner (often waiting at the v. them in his or her hands.

Those who can pay do. Those who cannot get their dinners anyway. Bless England and Englishmen. Long may she save. And soon may we start such a soul-saving program in Canada.

6—In Memoriam

BROWN—In loving memory of Mrs. Marie Brown, who passed away June 3, 1940.
Four years have passed and gone,
Since one we loved so well,
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
—Ever remembered by husband, Frank Brown.

BROWN—In loving memory of Mrs. Marie Brown, who passed away four years ago.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved,
From memory pass away.
—Fondly remembered by her son, Bert Rowe and family.

DUVAL—In loving memory of mother, Georgina Duval, who passed away five years ago, June 3, 1948.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear mother, how we think of you,
Friends are friends if they are true,
We lost our best friend when we lost you.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Jean and son-in-law Chuck Murney.

MEIN—In loving memory of George Mein, who passed away ten years ago today, June 3, 1943.
While you, dear parent, rest and sleep,
Your loving memory we'll always keep.
—Always remembered by sons and daughters.

RONCO—In loving memory of a dear sister Philomena, who passed away June 3, 1938.
We know that she is happy
In our Saviour's home above,
Growing fairer as she lingers
In the sunshine of His love.
—Ever remembered by her sister Lucy and brother-in-law George.

SPEIRS—In loving memory of a dear sister, Bertie May Duff, who entered into rest one year ago.
Upright and just in all her ways,
Faithful and true to the end of her days;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Sadly missed by brother Jack, Theresa and family.

TRIPP—In loving memory of Mrs. John Tripp, who passed away four years ago, June 3, 1949.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of her in silence,
No eye can see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
—Lovingly remembered by husband and family.

Report Talks Making Progress

KITCHENER (CP) — A joint statement issued today by the Kitchener Public Utilities Commission and Local 304 of the Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers (CIO-CCL) said talks over the dispute which led last week to a strike threat on the PUC bus system were progressing favorably.

The 100 members of the local were scheduled to go on strike May 29 after the commission refused to recognize its rights as a bargaining agent. Union members seek a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase.

Havelock's Oldest Resident, 96, Dies

NORWOOD (ENS)—Havelock's oldest resident, 96-year-old Mrs. Alexander Sexsmith, died today at her home after a long illness.

Mrs. Sexsmith, the former Anne Wilson, was born in Rawdon township, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson. She was educated at the 12th line school in Rawdon.

For the last 25 years she has lived in the Havelock district.

She leaves two daughters—Miss Maude Sexsmith and Mrs. Otto Patterson (Pearl), both of Havelock; and two grandchildren — Mrs. R. W. Henry (Gloria) of Kitchener and Aldon Patterson of Havelock.

Her husband, Alexander Sexsmith, died 35 years ago.

Mrs. Sexsmith was a housewife and a member of Knox Presbyterian Church, Havelock.

The body is at her own home and the funeral service will be 2:30 p.m Friday at the Knox Presbyterian Church, the Rev. R. D. Duncanson officiating. Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery.

claiming—in an action over a two-car crash in Peterborough on May 15, 1952. The date for trial has still to be set.

Bradford-Penn Oil Ltd. of Toronto are plaintiffs and Vernon E. Forbes of Peterborough is defendant in an action for $511 which the company claims Forbes owes. It will be heard October 15.

Marguerite O'Connell is suing the administrators of her late brother's estate, Victoria and Grey Trust Co., for certain moneys she claims she lent him before he died. The action will be tried on October 7.

William D. V. Norris of Toronto is suing Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster of Harvey Township for breach of contract over the alleged sale of five acres of land. There is a counterclaim. The action will be tried October 21.

Brings Secret Message

WASHINGTON (AP)—A top West German foreign office official has arrived by plane, bringing secret messages to State Secretary John Foster Dulles from Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. The emissary, Herbert Blankenhorn, director of the West German foreign office political department, probably discussed with Dulles the forthcoming Big-Three Bermuda conference and the prospects for a top-level Big-Four meeting.

Dedicate 1st Monastary

TORONTO (CP) — James Cardinal McGuigan, archbishop of Toronto, Sunday will dedicate the first Passionist church and monastery in Canada — St. Gabriel of the Sorrowful Virgin. Monastery and church are on a 12½-acre property in suburban York Mills.

Want Special Stamps

LONDON (AP)—Hundreds lined up at all-night post offices today for the first sales of special Coronation stamps. Dealers buying stamps by the thousands joined schoolboy collectors in the rush to get the new issues on envelopes and in the mails for "first day" frankings.

Pickets Taken Off

The Coronation spirit invaded the headquarters of the striking Quaker Oats Co. employees on Tuesday. From 8 a.m. Tuesday till 7 a.m. today there were no pickets at the entrances to company property: the strikers were given a holiday with pay by the union, Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL). The union executive also made it a festive day and strike headquarters was deserted for the first time since the 435 men and women walked off the job on April 22.

3 Babies Born Coronation Day

Three Coronation babies arrived in Peterborough Tuesday, two at St. Joseph's Hospital and one at Civic. These babies will receive silver spoons both from Gordon K. Fraser, MP, and Governor-General Vincent Massey.

Previously reported first baby was a girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Gordanier of 853 St. Mary's St. She arrived at St. Joseph's at 1:15 a.m., weighing six pounds, two ounces.

Second arrival was a baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rayment of 524 Arndon Ave. Weighing five pounds, 11 ounces, he checked into Civic at 6:40 a.m.

Third baby of the day was a son to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jenkins of RR 2, Indian River. Baby Jenkins weighed eight pounds, five ounces. Time of arrival was 4:30 p.m.

2 Children Wake Find Room Afire

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Waking from their sleep to find their bedroom afire and full of smoke, Jackie, 8, and Peter, 3, sons of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Jury, escaped with a few minor burns and blisters late Tuesday night.

The parents were watching television when the two boys came screaming down the stairs crying that their room was afire.

Jackie had a burn on his finger and his nose was scorched, the younger boy had his ears blistered.

Churchill Gives Cigars To Hussars

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill had to think of an appropriate little gift for the officers and non-commissioned officers of the Queen's Own Hussars, who escorted him in the Coronation procession.

Apparently he speculated what he would like to get from a prime minister if he were a young serviceman, something to touch the heart.

So every Hussar who went to 10 Downing street today to be photographed got from him a very large, imperial-looking cigar.

Evening Crowds

tion required some form of participation other than merely listening or watching. Like the crowds in the old country, they were out to celebrate Tuesday evening after a day of solemn and impressive ceremony.

All day long, the downtown streets had been practically deserted except for a few people whose jobs required that they be on duty even on a holiday such as this. From five a.m., most residents were beside their radios listening to the lengthy broadcast of the stirring events in London. A fortunate few stayed home or visited friends to watch the proceedings on television from four p.m. until after six, with follow-ups at intervals.

Shortly before parade time, the business section looked as though it were wakening from a sleep. About 6:30 p.m., traffic began to thicken and crowds lined up all along George St. from the city hall to Townsend St. By parade time at 7:30, people were packed four and five deep on both sides of the route. From then on, the downtown was a lively scene.

For some unexplained reason, the parade did not march into Miller Bowl for the civic ceremony where it was intended to have Judge John deN. Kennedy lead citizens in taking the oath of allegiance. With only about 400 people on hand in the bowl, it was hastily decided to skip this part of the proceedings.

Meanwhile, most of the thousands who had lined the parade route drifted over to Little lake park to hear the concert by the Citizens Band and await the fireworks display.

The sparseness of people in the Bowl contrasted sharply with reports of crowds attending ceremonies in other centres. In an effort to make up for the disappointing turn-out, acting Mayor T. D. Miller read his address a second time from the George St. wharf to the crowd gathered on the bank as dozens of pleasure boats quietly drifted about on the calm waters of the lake in view of the care-free holiday crowd in the park.

When it was all over, many a weary tot was still struggling to keep his eyes open after the events of a long, long day—one it would be a long time before he would forget.

Quaker Union Management Meet In Toronto

TORONTO (CP). — Union and management of the striking Quaker Oats Company plant at Peterborough met with James Hutcheon of the Ontario Department of Labor today in an attempt to settle their six-weeks-old walkout.

Some 435 employees, members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, (CIO-CCL) struck April 22 for higher wages. Union officials said employees were not satisfied with conciliation board's recommended increases.

See No Safety Against Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—An advisory committee of industrial and scientific leaders told the defence department today that "in the light of stern facts" there can be no safety against atomic attack for the United States.

The committee, headed by M. J. Kelly, president of Bell Telephone Laboratories, was appointed last December to study defence of the North American continent against atomic attack.

In its summary, the committee commented that "the Soviet Union is militarily capable today of a surprise attack in the United States which could cause large loss of life and major property damage and possibly temporarily lessen the capability of the U. S. to support a major war effort."

The committee argued for speedy development of "atomic offensive capability" as a deterrent.

Sir Alexander Korda To Wed Canadian

ANTIBES, France (Reuters)—Sir Alexander Korda, 60-year-old British movie producer, disclosed today he will marry a 25-year-old Canadian beauty soon.

The girl is a petite Ontario-born stage actress, Alexandra Boycun. He met her at a party in London three years ago.

She and her mother are vacationing on the Riviera here with Korda on his yacht, the Elsewhere.

Korda, married twice before—once to actress Merle Oberon—said the ceremony would take place in "two or three months."

"I can tell you one thing about Alexandra," he told newspapermen, "she has never appeared in films, and she never wants to."

Heavy Rains Flood Streets Of Manila

MANILA (AP) — Heavy rains flooded Manila streets today as the season's first typhoon roared along the Philippine northeast coast with 140-mile-an-hour winds.

The Philippine weather bureau said the intensifying tropical storm was bearing northwestward at 11 miles an hour. Its centre was about 290 miles northeast of Manila.

The big blow is expected to skirt the northeast Philippines tonight and hit the Batanes islands to the north Thursday.

McMillan Heads Church Conference

WINNIPEG — The Rev. K. G. McMillan of Wesley United Church, Fort William, today was elected president of the Manitoba conference of the United Church of Canada.

Mr. McMillan was minister of Parkdale United Church, Ottawa, before his appointment to Fort William eight years ago.

Obituary

FREDERICK JAMES RUSSELL

WARKWORTH — (ENS) — Frederick James Russell, 66, died today at the home of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Covert of Warkworth, following a short illness.

Mr. Russell was born and raised in Glouster township, Carleton county, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Russell. He moved with his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Covert onto their farm at Oak Heights about 20 years ago. Since his retirement a few years ago he has lived with them in Warkworth. He was affiliated with the United Church.

Surviving are four sisters Mrs. Thomas Covert of Warkworth; Mrs. Elizabeth Christie of Vancouver;

Treat 5,448 Casualties At Coronation

LONDON (AP) — Workmen heaped up mountains of empty bottles, sodden newspapers and ice cream cartons today as they labored to remove the rubbish left by the Coronation.

Weary members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade reported that from early Coronation morning until late Tuesday night they attended 5,448 casualties, of whom 233 were taken to hospitals.

Most of those brought into the 119 first aid stations had fainted during their long wait for the procession to pass.

Arrangements were being made to open Westminster Abbey beginning Friday so people can see the scene of the actual crowning. The replica regalia used in the Coronation rehearsals will be shown.

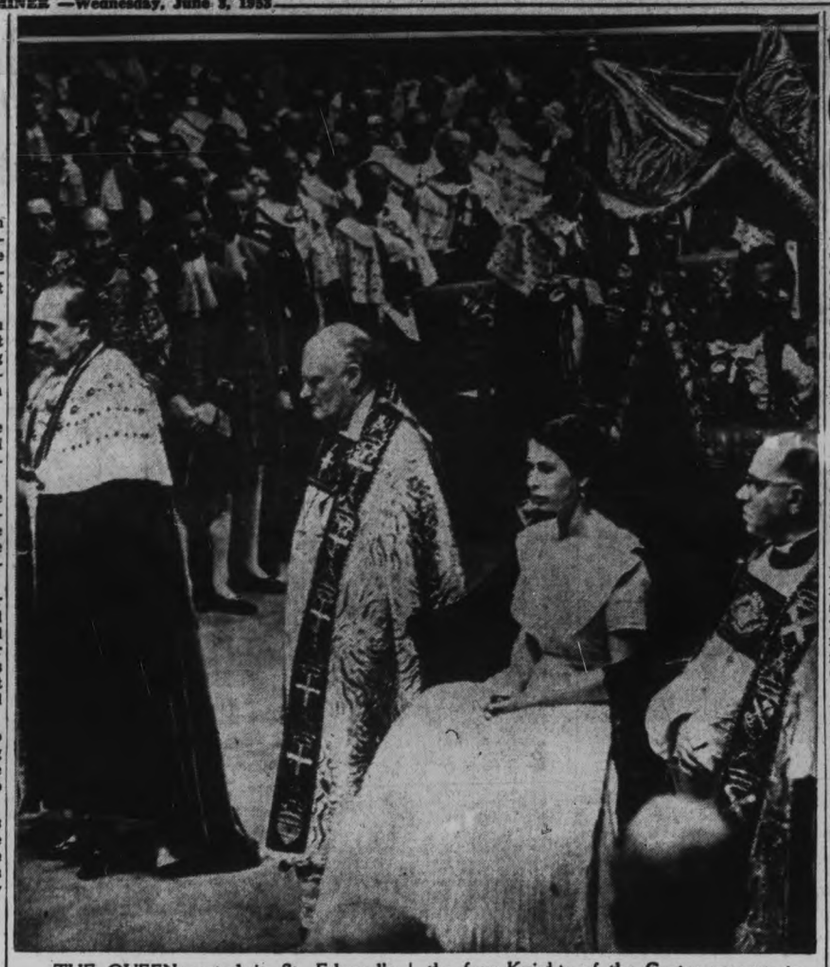
There was an odd touch near the abbey. People moved in and sat down in the paper-littered stands trying to capture in their imagination some of Tuesday's pageantry. The weather at least was the same—it was cold and cloudy.

An army of workers moved into the west end and began taking down stands. They plan to remove in days what it took weeks to erect.

The task of cleaning up London's parks along the procession route was a tremendous one. It will take some time to restore the lawns trampled into a sea of mud by Tuesday's vast crowd.

Theatres Study Cheaper Tickets

NEW YORK (AP)—The Broadway theatre, along with playgoers, may be on the threshold of a new era of cheaper tickets, permission to smoke and a chance to buy a drink.



The city council yesterday passed 22 laws designed to encourage the legitimate stage, chiefly by attempting to attract capital for new theatres. The laws cover amendments to the city building code.

Stage industry people say the measures may lead to a reduction in the price of tickets.

All but one of the measures now go to Mayor Vincent Impelliteri for a public hearing and signature. The law to allow liquor sales in theatres must go first to the board of estimate, and then to the mayor.

Lawyer Visits 2 Atomic Spies

OSSINING, N. Y. (AP)—The lawyer for atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, doomed to the electric chair just 15 days from now, planned to visit them today in the Sing Sing prison death house.

The lawyer, Emanuel Bloch, expected to get details from them about their latest refusal to seek mercy by co-operating with the government.

Bloch said Tuesday in New York that an emissary of U. S. Attorney-General Herbert Brownell offered the pair another chance to confess atomic espionage for Russia.

"We both re-asserted our innocence and said since we are not guilty we cannot tell them anything about espionage," the Rosenbergs told Bloch in a telegram from the prison here.

It was learned later that the federal director of prisons, James V. Bennett, had talked with the Rosenbergs. It was reported he came to Sing Sing, not to urge the Rosenbergs to talk, but to make it plain that the government would lend a willing ear if and when they decided to do so.

Union Jack Burned In Dublin Outburst

DUBLIN (Reuters)—The Union Jack was burned before 250 people in O'Connell street here Tuesday night at a public meeting held by the Anti-Partition League of Ireland.

The meeting was called to protest against the assumption by Queen Elizabeth of sovereignty over a portion of Ireland.

The northern six counties are part of the United Kingdom, though the territory has its own prime minister.

Soldier Wounded Second Time

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Mrs. Rozella Heenan has received word that her son Pte Beverly Heenan, 20, has been wounded and is in serious condition in a Norwegian military hospital in Korea.

According to word received, Pte. Heenan, who has served with the Royal Canadian Regiment in Korea since last July, received shrapnel wounds to the abdomen, left arm and both legs.

PTE. BEVERLY G. HEENAN

This is the second time Pte. Heenan has been wounded since arriving in Korea. On January 5 of this year, he was reported wounded but was later able to return to duty.

Pte. Heenan, whose parents Mr. and Mrs. William Heenan live at 84 Doxee Ave., joined the RCR in July, 1951.

Cabinet Falls In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—The Indonesian cabinet of Premier Wilopo fell Tuesday night.

Wilopo's coalition cabinet had been in office for 14 months, but had been plagued by unrest and threats of a government crisis during that time. One of the toughest problems was a split in the country's military command.

The trouble arose from a Defense Ministry plan to reduce 200,000-man Indonesian army as an economy move. Defense Minister Sultan Hamengku Buwono IX who proposed the move, resigned last Jan. 2. But in the furor over the proposal, control of three of the army's seven divisions was seized by officers opposed to the sultan.

Those opposing the cut include powerful former guerrilla groups who fear they would be weeded out in favor of Dutch-trained regulars.

Unions Organize Lindsay Labor

LINDSAY (ENS)—Ralph Carlin, organizer of the steel workers here claims two more plants have been organized by CIO-CCL unions, and contract talks between the steel workers union and other company have bogged down, waiting for conciliation proceedings.

According to Mr. Carlin, the employees of the Northern Casket Co. have joined the steel workers union, and their application for certification goes to the Ontario Labour Relations board this afternoon. The employees of the Lindsay branch of Silverwoods Dairy have also organized under the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store union, and are forwarding their application to the board. Contract talks between M. J. Fenwick, union representative and the management of the John McCrae Machine and Foundry Co., have bogged down. After three series of discussions, several major points remain in dispute, and the union has applied for conciliation services to the Department of Labour. The two groups have failed to agree on wages, hours of work, legal holidays, vacations, union health, and pension plans, and union security. It is known that the company offered a wage increase of from five to 20 cents an hour, but this was rejected by the union, also that the company proposed continuation of the 48-hour week, also rejected by the union.

Passenger Train Plows Into Freight

MANASSAS, Va. (AP)—A passenger train plowed into a standing freight train near here today. First reports said two of the passenger train crew were killed.

Emergency forces sped to the Southern Railway site near this northern Virginia town at 7:45 a. m. EDT.

About 10 passengers on the passenger train were reported hurt.

Mrs. William Davis

The funeral service for a lifelong resident of Warsaw, Mrs. William Davis, 86, who died Friday following a lengthy illness was held Monday at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Warsaw.

The Rev. L. J. Delaney, minister of St. Mark's Church, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Filer of St. Peter's Church, Hamilton, officiated at the service.

The pallbearers were Ted Rose, Clarence Tedford, Harvey Clifford, Ivan Watts, Victor Clements and George Davis and the flower bearers were Gordon Clifford, Lloyd Carr, Ross Williamson, Hilliard and Joseph Clements, Russel Clostock, James Rose, Russel Tedford, Len, Thomas and Archie Hawthorne, Allan McIntosh, Ralph Edwards, Ralph Nelson and Herb Tucker. Burial was in St. Mark's cemetery, Warsaw.

Mrs. Albert B. Doris

Funeral for the late Mrs. Albert B. Doris of 489 Bolivar St., who died in hospital on Sunday following a short illness, was held today from the Anglesley funeral home to St. Peter's Cathedral. Requiem mass was said by the Rt. Rev. P. P. Butler assisted by the Revs. G. J. Weis and L. M. Bubbery. The Revs. J. F. McGuire and C. McCarney were in the sanctuary.

Pallbearers were Gerald and Bernard O'Toole, R. S. Hull, Frank Gray, John Lucas and Jack Donoghue. Graveside prayers were said by the Rev. R. J. Garvey and burial was at St. Peter's cemetery.

Climbers Toast Queen On Way Down Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters).—Britain's 13 climbers relaxing on conquered Mount Everest today solemnly drank a toast to the Queen while the world outside hailed their feat as the symbol of a new Elizabethan age.

Waiting for them here is a message from the Queen congratulating them on their great achievement in reaching the summit of the 29,000-foot peak.

The Queen's message reads: "Please convey to Col. Hunt and all members of the British expedition my warmest congratulations on their great achievement in reaching the summit of Mount Everest.

Elizabeth R."

News that E. P. Hillary, 34, a New Zealand beekeeper, and the famed Sherpa guide Bhoita Tensing, 39, had reached the top of the world four days ago was flashed to London through diplomatic radio channels to reach the Queen before her Coronation.

Col. John Hunt, 42, leader of the British team, said in his terse message to the British Embassy here: "Hillary and Tensing climbed on May 29. All well."

Full details of how Everest was beaten after more than 30 years of failure will not be known for several days—after Hunt has sent a full report to London.

At the moment, the climbers are huddled together halfway up the peak. They are not expected to reach here before the third week in June.

It is known they left prepared to toast the Queen in brandy on Coronation Day beneath a Union Jack flying from the icy walls of the world's highest mountain.

They had also carried cans of luxury food for a crude banquet in the snow. Conditions permitting, they intended to listen to radio commentaries of the ceremony 6,000 miles away in London.

Hillary and Tensing, who is a veteran of nine Everest expeditions, planted the flags of Britain, the United Nations and Nepal on the summit as the climax of the expedition's second bid.

The first double-pronged assault on May 25 failed about 1,500 feet from the top.

Both the triumphant climbers had been spared hard work on the first stages of the climb to conserve their strength for the last supreme bid before the monsoon arrived to drive the team back.

Hillary, acclaimed as a national hero in New Zealand today, has made four Himalaya expeditions in three years. At the age of 20, he told his mother: "Some day I will climb Everest."

Poker-faced Tensing knows Everest better than any man alive. The "Tiger of the Snows" reached a point 800 feet below the summit — the highest man had then reached — with Raymond Lambert on the first of last year's two Swiss expeditions.

Find Beer In Car; Charge Dismissed

COBOURG— (ENS)—A charge against Douglas Miles of Whitby of having liquor in a place other than his residence, was dismissed by Magistrate R. B. Baxter when Miles convinced the court that a case of beer which police found in the back of his car was being taken to his home in Whitby.

Police on May 16 were stopping cars near the park and found the beer in Miles' car at 10 p.m.

Miles testified that he works and boards here but goes home on weekends. On the night in question he put a case of beer in the car to take home later. He had a date to go to a dance pavilion and as he would be coming in late, he put the beer in the car so as not to disturb his boarding house.

"If I had found you guilty, I am empowered, if I so desire, to have your car seized and sold and the proceeds turned over to the province, not to you," the magistrate said. "As far as I am concerned, such a move is not improbable in a case where liquor is found in a car. There is too much drinking going on in automobiles. Conveying liquor to your residence, does not include side trips to dance halls." he warned.

Campbellford Celebration Features Colorful Pageant

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—More than a thousand local and district residents crowded the fair grounds Tuesday afternoon to witness one of the most colorful celebrations this town has ever enjoyed.

Preceding the Coronation Day pageant, the Citizens' Band led members of Branch 103, Canadian Legion to the cenotaph where President Tom Smith laid a wreath in memory of fallen comrades. The group then marched to the Fair Grounds.

There, as the story of the pageant was unfolded by the narrator, the Rev. John McKibbon, 20 different historical events were pictured on floats, each depicting some phase in the Empire's history. Some 120 people, colorfully and authentically dressed, represented kings, queens, sailors, soldiers and others in all walks of life who helped make Commonwealth history.

The coronation choir, under the direction of George Nichols, rendered many beautiful numbers, including "Land of Hope and Glory" and "There'll Always Be An England," while the Citizens' Band, under Bandmaster Donald Bennett, supplied background and incidental music, as well as many featured pieces. The Havelock Kiltie Band entertained with their popular musical marches before the pageant.

Following is a list of the various episodes and sponsors as they appeared one by one in the staging area:

Act 1—Beginnings of our nation's history—1, King Alfred burns the cakes (St. John's United Church); 2, Robinhood and His Merry Men (the Fish and Game Association, the choir); 3, King John compelled to sign Magna Carta (IOOF and the band).

Act 2—The golden days of Queen Elizabeth—4, Over land and sea with Drake and Raleigh (Kinsmen Club); 5, Into the kingdom of the mind with Shakespeare (Campbellford High School); 6, Good Queen Bess (Seymour East and West Women's Institute); 7, Elizabeth's Merry England (St. Mary's School, the band).

Act 3—The nation's consolidation and growth—8, The Union Jack of a United Kingdom (Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Wolfe Cubs, Brownies, the band); 9, Wolfe plants the flag in Canada (Hospital Auxiliary, the choir); 10, The flag around the world (stage properties, float, the band).

Act 4—The golden thread of all our history — 11, Admiral Nelson and his famous signal (Percy District LOL, the band).

Act 5—The placid days of Queen Victoria—12, The summoning of the young Victoria (Business and Professional Women's Association, the band); 13, The Lady of the Lamp (Red Cross Society); 14, Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee (IODE, choir, band).

Act 6—The tremendous and troubled years — 15, Sir Winston Churchill (Legion, choir, band).

Act 7—The new Elizabethan era —16, Into new realms by rocket and space ship (Campbellford Cloth Co); 17, One world, or none (Home and School Association); 18, What Canada offers its Queen (CWL, choir, band); 19, The royal coach arrives at the Abbey (Rotary Club, the band); 20, A Queen's dedication, and ours, an archbishop, everyman, everywoman (a great company of people, the choir, the band).

Following the pageant, the floats, bands and cast joined in a parade through extensively decorated streets of the town to the Legion Hall.

A dance was held at Edgewater Park and the Boy Scouts lit a huge beacon fire on a high hill overlooking town.

Pictures Sent 18 Minutes After Crowning

NEW YORK (AP)—Newspapers in the United States, Canada and many other parts of the world received first picture coverage of Queen Elizabeth's Coronation Tuesday via Associated Press wirephoto.

The AP's North American network serving hundreds of newspapers was linked with special radio transmitting facilities from London. This 6,000-mile hook-up accomplished unparalleled speed in delivering complete picture coverage of the historic event. It climaxed months of preparation in London and New York.

FAST WORK

A sending machine in AP's new building in London transmitted signals which were relayed across the Atlantic by radio. These signals were transmitted directly into the wirephoto receiving machines at newspaper offices. Fourteen Coronation photos were cleared prior to noon EDT.

The first picture showing Elizabeth wearing her crown was transmitted over AP's combined radio-wirephoto facilities only 18 minutes after completion on this part of the ceremony in Westminster Abbey. This picture, like a number of others, was taken from the British Broadcasting Corporation's television screen in London.

Princess Margaret Prays As Sister Being Crowned

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—Princess Margaret prayed as she watched her beloved "Lillibet" being crowned Tuesday.

And when it was all over she wept.

The red-eyed Margaret held her mother's hand as they drove together in a coach from Westminster Abbey. But to the waving, cheering multitudes on the way she kept smiling.

Undoubtedly she prayed because Lillibet had said she needs everyone's prayers to help her carry out arduous duties—duties that broke the health of their father, and that the nation hopes will inspire a new golden age of greatness.

EYES ON SERVICE

During her time in the abbey Margaret kept her eyes fixed firmly on the form and order of the service.

Her lips moved as the archbishop went through the prayers.

And when the Queen was being invested, never once did Margaret lower her gaze from her sister's calm face.

But since her father's death, Margaret has been devoting herself to religion, attending post-confirmation classes, taking communion regularly but unobtrusively, reading widely about all the faiths.

In the abbey she wore a gown of white satin, short-sleeved, with a tight bodice over a wide, flowing skirt. Silver diamonds and pearls and motifs of broderie anglaise made up the gown's rich embroiders. A diadem in silver and diamonds sparkled against the brownness of her hair.

Prisoner's Wife Mother

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jack Chance, wife of one of the prisoners who escaped from Halton county jail Saturday night only to be recaptured near here Monday, gave birth to a child in a Toronto hospital Tuesday. Police declined to say whether it was a boy or girl. Police said they believe Chance made his desperate bid for freedom along with Vince Dimario Saturday night in an effort to be at his wife's bedside.

Francois Rabelais, celebrated French satirist, died in Paris in 1553.

ONE VET TO ANOTHER—In observance of the ninth anniversary of the Battle of Monte Cassino, Italy, President Eisenhower is presented with Polish artist Felix Topolski's painting of the battle. The presentation was made by Walter Szul, right, of London, chairman of an organization of Polish veterans of the Battle of Monte Cassino.

Bonfires- Fireworks Displays Tribute To Queen

By REUTERS NEWS AGENCY

Mammoth bonfires and displays of fireworks lit up skies throughout the Commonwealth Tuesday night in a blazing Coronation tribute to the newly-crowned Queen.

Earlier, in Korea, thousands of Commonwealth troops jumped out of their front-line trenches in full view of the enemy to cheer the Queen. British and South African planes flew over a dusty valley near the front in "E R" formation.

A chain of bonfires, burning through a soft tropical evening, girdled the British Solomons, New Hebrides and many other South Sea islands as natives engaged in tribal dances, canoe races and mass singing.

A "flying doctor" radio network—operated by foot pedal—spread the Coronation news to lonely bush stations in the Australian "outback" Miners, prospectors and cattlemen who call themselves "the world's loneliest people" heard the news at stations normally used for urgent medical calls.

PLAYS HOST

On the other side of the world, British Guiana played host to visitors from neighboring Brazil for a night of revelry. Georgetown, the capital, was a fairyland city ablaze with 1,000,000 red, white and blue lights.

Across Europe, the celebrations went on—in Paris, Copenhagen, Rome and Berlin. On the African continent, too, white and native inhabitants celebrated.

In Kenya, British and native troops marched side by side in a Coronation parade, but in the British territory of Nigeria young nationalist-minded Africans tore down Coronation decorations on a rampage through Lagos, the capital city.

FREE CANDY

Free candy was handed out to children in many Commonwealth countries and there was something for the grown-ups too, at least for Commonwealth sailors in Japan. There, Vice-Admiral E. G. A. Clifford read an order from the Queen, instructing all British ships in the Far East to "splice the main brace"—meaning to serve up rum.

In Canberra, Australia, 2,000 tots dressed in red, white and blue lined up in a formation to spell out the words "Our Queen." A crowd of 10,000 gathered in front of Parliament House applauded the performance.

AID FOR PORT HURON

Grand Knights Elect Officers

HAMILTON (CP)—The 81st convention of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias and the Grand Temple Pythian Sisters of Ontario ended Tuesday with election of new officers for 1953. During the two-day convention, more than 300 delegates discussed business and future policy.

New grand chancellor of the grand lodge is William Anger of Welland and new grand chief of the grand temple is Mrs. Lou Jackson of Sarnia.

After the elections, immediate past grand chancellor J. P. Bartlett of Sarnia and immediate past grand chief Mrs. Pearl Wallace of Hamilton joined the new executives in signing a proclamation, professing allegiance to the Queen, which was to be sent to London.

Officers of the grand lodge include: Grand vice-chancellor, C. S. Faulknor, Hamilton; Grand prelate, William Fergusson, Stratford; grand inner guard, R. Farrow, Fort William.

Officers for the grand temple include: Grand protector, Marie Lavendar, Oshawa; grand press correspondent, Vera Oakley, Stratford; Pythian Echo editor, Dorothy Fokuhl, Corunna; grand trustees, Margaret L. Paine, Cumberland; Elsie Ball, Fort William; senior supreme representatives, Iva Brechbill, Toronto, and Elsie Walker, Welland; junior supreme representative, Georgina Pollock, Welland, and Louise Snelling, Hamilton.

Selective Breeding Urged For Poultry

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Selective breeding of poultry, cattle and swine to produce immunity to disease can pay off in the millions of dollars.

This was the picture drawn Tuesday by Dr. F. B. Hutt, professor of animal genetics at Cornell University. Dr. Hutt, internationally-known for his work in selective breeding, spoke to the Royal Society of Canada in the section on biological sciences.

The scientist told of research at the university in which almost absolute resistance to pullorum, alias white diarrhoea, was produced in poultry. Similarly research workers in his department had raised a flock of 2,500 birds in which the mortality from a virus infection, known as fowl paralysis, had been reduced to almost zero.

Little Red School House Now Thing Of Past

MONTREAL (CP)—The "little red school house" is fast becoming a thing of the past.

That was the report of delegates to the Canadian Home and School Federation and Parent-Teacher Federation meeting here as they reviewed some of the changes which have occurred in Canadian education.

Among these has been the building of new schools and the elimination of ungraded country schools. C. F. Bruce of Edmonton said that in Alberta alone 700 one-room schools have been closed since 1946. One of the major factors in eliminating the remainder of the small schools was the lack of all-weather roads in the province.

Report Truce Agreement Very Close

Notable Increase Of Optimism Among High Officials

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Communist and United Nations commands were reported today to be very close to agreement on a Korean armistice.

Officially, there was the closest secrecy but it was clear that in high quarters of the government there was very strong confidence that agreement on a truce was at hand.

There was a notable increase of optimism among officials and some indication the latest Red response could be considered as virtual acceptance of the UN proposals of 10 days ago.

MINOR DIFFERENCES

According to this interpretation, the only matters left to be negotiated are relatively minor differences.

The Red reply to the UN plan for dealing with the deadlock over disposition of prisoners of war was received by the government this morning. The Reds presented it to the UN command at Panmunjom last night, Washington time.

Official secrecy covered reaction at the state and defence departments and the White House, but there were indications that a solution was being reached.

The prisoner issue has blocked agreement for many months. It turns on the question of what should be done about prisoners who were unwilling to go home after an armistice.

MADE CONCESSIONS

Ten days ago the U. N. command, under direction from Washington, made some concessions on this point.

It dropped a proposal that 34,000 balky PoWs from the North Korean forces should be released in South Korea as soon as the truce became effective.

It also agreed to a system of majority voting in a proposed "neutral" nations truce commission which would supervise the handling of PoWs after an armistice.

FINEST FLORAL BEAUTY SPOT in the city of Peterborough, according to the general opinion of citizens, is the bed border on the east side of King Edward Park on George St. South end. Planned and planted more than 15 years ago by the late chairman of the parks committee, Alderman Walter J. Stocker, flowering Japanese crab trees have reached their maturity. The tulips are almost through flowering and and iris in their prime.

Discover Way To Replace Used Energy

Discovery Declared One of Most Revolutionary In Plan

ATLANTIC CITY —(AP)— The United States today announced the successful "breeding" of atomic fuel—that is, the production of at least as much, or more, new fissionable material as is burned up in the process of making it.

The development is one of the most revolutionary in the atomic program. It was disclosed by Gordon Dean, chairman of the atomic energy commission, in a speech prepared for the Edison Electric Institute.

Dean cautioned his audience not to assume that economic power from atomic energy is here. But he called the achievement a milestone of progress and said it "holds out the promise of making a civilian atomic power industry even more feasible and attractive in the long range than it has hitherto appeared to be."

WORKED OUT IN NEVADA

The process, Dean said, was worked out at the AEC's reactor testing station at Arco, Idaho. He illustrated it this way:

"To explain to you the impact of reaching this new milestone, I would like to use an analogy, albeit a greatly over-simplified one.

"I would like to ask you to imagine a world in which only 100 gallons of gasoline existed. When that gasoline was used up, gasoline would forever be gone from the earth. But let us imagine that we could make gasoline out of water by burning the gasoline we had in the presence of water.

CAN STRETCH SUPPLY

"Let us say, for example, that by burning up our 100 gallons of gasoline we could change 90 gallons of water into new gasoline, and that thereafter we could, by burning gasoline in the presence of water, always make new gasoline equivalent to 90 per cent of that which we burned.

Fears Air Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg indicated today that U.S. air aid to its North Atlantic allies must necessarily be cut if the U.S. air force goal is changed from 143 wings to 120. The air force chief of staff, who will retire June 30, continued his fight against the Eisenhower administration decision to reduce the air force goal to 120 wings by December 1955.

Presbyterians Name Cameron New Moderator

TORONTO (CP)—The 79th assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Wednesday night named as its moderator Rev. Dr. W. A. Cameron of Woodville, Ont., a former pioneer missionary in the West.

Dr. Cameron, now general secretary of foreign missions, succeeds Rt. Rev. J. A. MacInnis of Orillia, who attended the Coronation as the church's representative.

He was nominated by the Toronto East presbytery at the assembly's opening sederunt. Other nominees were Rev. John A. McMahon of Port Arthur and Dr. A. Neil Miller of Toronto, both of whom withdrew in favor of Dr. Cameron.

Mr. McMahon was nominated by Superior presbytery and Dr. Miller by West Toronto presbytery.

Dr. Cameron's first mission was 100 miles from Saskatoon, an area then in its pioneer days. He was one of the youngest missionaries the church appointed to go west.

In 1925, when the Presbyterian Church was split by the formation of the United Church, he was superintendent of missions in Western Canada. It was at that time that the Methodists and some of the Presbyterians amalgamated.

Presenting Dr. Cameron's nomination, Dr. D. W. Hay of Knox College, Toronto, said the new moderator is a man of "unpublicized integrity."

The opening service was conducted by Very Rev. C. L. Cowan of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Hamilton, who said it is not the business of the church either to fear or to compete with communism.

Dr. Cowan, moderator of the 1949 general assembly, said the church's aim is to express the more abundant life.

Dr. MacInnis, whose message was heard on a tape recorder, said that during his term as moderator he had discovered that opportunities for the extension of the Presbyterian Church in Canada had never been greater.

It is almost inconceivable, he said, that this promise of expansion has to be curtailed through lack of trained workers and finances.

Britons Clamoring Charles Be Made Prince Of Wales

LONDON (AP)—Britain has gone delirious over 4½-year-old Prince Charles, and there is clamor that he be made Prince of Wales—right away. No one appreciated what a lad he has become until he made his unrehearsed appearance at the Coronation of his mother at Westminster Abbey. He wasn't over-awed by bishops with mitres or herald with swords, nor did a hundred cameras and the glare of light dampen his juvenile enthusiasm. History sounding fanfares on many trumpets delighted him.

But what charmed Britain most was that in his young way he had a sense for the solemn moments of deepest religious significance. He was a well-behaved little boy, sitting ever so quietly at his grandmother's side, during the high ceremony of the anointing, and the crowning of his mother.

WOULD ACT NOW

"So let's make him Prince of Wales now," exclaimed many Welshmen, and Londoners echoed approval.

There had been some doubt whether he is old enough to be the central figure of what would amount to a sort of a miniature coronation at the ruin of a vast castle at Caernarvon, Wales.

"But none," said the Daily Sketch today, "who saw how superbly and completely naturally he played his part in the exhausting Coronation proceedings could have been left any doubt on this point."

There has been no Prince of Wales since 1936, when the present Duke of Windsor dropped the title to become King Edward VIII. No one becomes Prince of Wales automatically. The title must be conferred by the sovereign and it is done by the issuance of letters patent.

Welshmen yearning for a prince point out that there is no law, rule or precedent stipulating when the sovereign may issue the papers. One Prince of Wales got his title in early infancy. Others have been invested at the age of about 16.

The Queen may choose her own moment to elevate her first-born, and many Welshmen are suggesting that an excellent date might be July 10, when the Queen will be visiting Caernarvon Castle.

In the Welsh ceremony, the prince, in the presence of the druids and archdruids of Wales, receives a little crown, a gown and a ring. The prince, if he is old enough, usually makes a little speech.

Rain And Hail Damage Crops, Two Casualties

EDMONTON (CP)—The tail end of a series of violent thunder and hail storms lashed the eastern edge of the prairie today.

One man is dead and another missing, and crops, railroads and Coronation celebrations have been washed out by the heavy downpours which saw four inches fall in 24 hours at Brandon and three inches at Dauphin, both in western Manitoba.

Rain fell today in eastern Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Torrential rains which drenched the prairies in the last few days stopped early today in Alberta and western Saskatchewan.

At Lethbridge, hit by a severe rain and hail storm Monday night, no trace has been found of William Harris, a farmer believed to have drowned while crossing the St. Mary river in a motor boat.

A Calgary report said William McIntyre, about 21, died from shock, after falling from his horse into the swollen waters of Nose creek Wednesday.

The weather office said rain of three and four inches in 24 hours is abnormal although June is the wet month on the prairies.

Farmers in the Moose Jaw district reported that an estimated 30 per cent of the seeded crop was under water. Work on fields is expected to be suspended for three weeks.

In the Drumheller district of Alberta, farmers found the heavy run-off of water to have seriously eroded low-lying cropland.

Farther south, hail piled as high as two feet in some small sections of the Lethbridge district and Monday night's lightning killed

Queen Gives State Banquet For Her Guests

LONDON (Reuters)—The white and gold state ballroom at Buckingham Palace, shimmering under six great crystal chandeliers, provided a setting of splendor Wednesday night for the first of two state banquets the Queen is giving for her Coronation guests.

Among more than 250 guests present were Commonwealth prime ministers, including Louis St. Laurent and his wife, members of the British cabinet and representatives of the Commonwealth and overseas ambassadors in London.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh sat at a central table with 36 other guests. On the Queen's right was Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and on her left Prince Axel of Denmark.

On the Duke's right was the Crown Princess of Norway, and Princess Margaretha of Denmark on his left.

DINNER MENU

The menu was tortue claire Sandringham; delices of soles Prince Charles; carre d'agneau a la Windsor; haricot verts au beaurre; pommes nouvelles, salade royale; asperges sauce mousseline; boite de fraise Reine Elizabeth with friandises assorties.

The Queen wore a dress of rainbow tulle in soft shades of pink and pale green with a spray of pink roses lying over the right shoulder and continuing across her bodice and down the left side of the full skirt. She also wore the ribbon and star of the Order of the Garter.

Biggest A-Bomb To Date Exploded In U.S. Tests

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The biggest atom bomb ever exploded in the United States flamed for more than two minutes today over Nevada proving ground. The fireball boiled for more than 30 seconds, indicating an intensity twice that of any previous bomb or device detonated in the desert.

The Hiroshima bomb had a 10-second fireball.

Dropped from an extremely high-flying B-36, the A-bomb flashed and bathed the desert in a ghostly white light for at least five seconds. Then it formed into a brilliant golden fireball.

LAST OF TESTS

Today's blast was the 11th and final of a spring series of tests.

The power of this weapon was probably not less than 50 kilotons. The atomic energy commission previously detonated three devices at Yucca Flats that have had an intensity greater than the so-called nominal or Hiroshima bomb.

A kiloton is the scientists' term for the equivalent of 1,000 tons of TNT. The nominal or Hiroshima bomb contained the equivalent of 20,000 tons (20 kilotons) of TNT.

The previous high power of any bomb dropped here is believed to have been about 30 kilotons. The physical evidence of today's detonation would indicate that its power output was nearly double any previous shot.

The flash was seen in San Francisco, 600 miles away.

But, as sometimes happens, even with the brightest blasts, the shock wave was not noticeable here. The AEC explained that shock waves skip around freakishly due to atmospheric conditions and may hit a given place on one blast, but bounce over it on another.

No troops were involved today, but the air force continued its indoctrination program with a flight of planes over the test site.

Prime Ministers Discuss Far East

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill's efforts to arrange an East-West meeting received the full support Wednesday of eight Commonwealth prime ministers in the opening session of their week-long conference here, authoritative sources said.

The talks today centred on the Far East, the Korean armistice negotiations and the fight against communism in Malaya and Indo-China. Discussions on the economic policies to be pursued by non-dollar members of the Commonwealth will be held later this week.

London papers today recommended the scrapping of the economic plans formulated last December at the previous prime ministers' conference, because they depend too closely on United States co-operation in trade and tariff policies.

"Since the signs now are that, at best, it will be many months before the United States can show whether she will follow any significant part of the good creditor policy for which the Commonwealth hoped, there are new circumstances to consider," the Times of London commented. "With the indefinite postponement of an American response to Commonwealth overtures, there is a renewed danger of drift."

Pirates Trade Kiner To Cubs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs dealt 10 players today in the biggest baseball deal of the year.

Pirates gave up home run king Ralph Kiner, catcher Joe Garagiola, pitcher Howie Pollet and outfielder-infielder George Metkovitch plus cash. They received from the Cubs pitcher Bob Schultz, catcher Toby Atwell, outfielders Gene Hermanski, Preston Ward and Bob Addis, and an option to buy infielder George Freese from Springfield in the International League for fall delivery.

The players were told to change uniforms immediately for the afternoon contest between the Cubs and Pirates.

Kiner, 30, has led or tied his league in homers every year since 1946, a feat not even Babe Ruth accomplished. He is one of the select group of major leaguers who have hit 300 homers.

Heavy Rains Flood Two-Thirds Of Manila

MANILA (AP)—The season's first typhoon swept out to sea tonight, leaving behind battered crops, drenched countryside and two children reported drowned in a rain-swollen river.

The 110-mile-an-hour storm flooded two-thirds of this capital city as it howled across the northern tip of Luzon into the South China sea.

Two children were reported drowned in the Talisay river in east-central Luzon.

Canada's Liquor Bill Up 7%

OTTAWA (CP)—Estimated total retail sales of alcoholic beverages in Canada—the consumers' liquor bill—amounted to $741,000,000 for the year ending March, 1952, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This was $49,000,000, or seven per cent, higher than the preceding year.

Both spirits and wine consumption were down from 1951, while beer consumption rose about six per cent. Decline in spirits consumption was approximately five per cent.

Excise and import duties, validation fees and licences on spirits collected by the federal government during the fiscal year ending in March 1952 totalled $82,097,000, as against $92,218,000 the preceding year.

Woman Flier Sets New Record

PALMDALE, Cal. (CP)—Jacqueline Cochran, flying the same Canadian Sabre jet she flew through the sound barrier, set an international speed record of 670 miles an hour Wednesday over a 15-kilometre straight course near Muroc dry lake.

May 23 Miss Cochran put the jet —built by Canadair of Montreal and powered by an Orenda engine made by A. V. Roe of Malton, Ont. —around a 500-kilometre closed circular course for an international speed record of 590.273 miles an hour.

Earlier last month, in the same Sabre jet, Miss Cochran broke the 100-kilometre record (635 m.p.h.) with a speed of 652.552 miles an hour

That same day she became the first woman to fly faster than the speed of sound—760 miles an hour at sea level under normal temperatures.

Bank Robbery Suspect Held

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Leo Cahill, 29, an unemployed factory hand, was charged Wednesday night with armed robbery in connection with the daylight holdup May 25 of the Royal Bank of Canada at Portland, 26 miles northwest of here.

Cahill was arrested a few hours earlier at his home at Smiths Falls, 35 miles northwest of here.

Cahill's pretty wife, Inez, was charged as an accomplice in the $4,884 holdup.

They will appear in court here Friday.

Police said Cahill and his wife had been under surveillance since the robbery and were questioned within an hour of its execution.

Inspector J. F. Craig of Toronto, of the criminal investigation branch of the Ontario provincial police, said that $4,325 of the bank loot and a German Mauser pistol were found in the Cahill's Smiths Falls home.

GM Suspends Scores

OSHAWA (CP)—An official of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) said today General Motors had suspended "scores" of workers here without pay for one or two days because they took time off Tuesday to take part in Coronation celebrations.

Brig. Lord Dies

WESTGATE, Durham, England (Reuters) — Brig. William Lord, of the Salvation Army, 87, collapsed and died in the street here today.

Elizabeth Continues Tour Visits Chelsea, Hampstead

LONDON (AP) — The Queen toured northwest London today taking the happy celebration of her Coronation to neighborhood streets.

School children, hospital patients in wheel chairs and red-coated Chelsea pensioners—veterans of Britain's past wars—were among the thousands packing the sidewalks along the 20-mile route. All cheered wildly as the Queen waved and smiled.

She rode in a limousine with the top down. The Duke of Edinburgh was at her side.

This was the second of four drives through the capital to mark her crowning in Westminster Abbey. Wednesday the couple drove around the bomb-scarred slum area of northeast London.

Today's round-trip from Buckingham Palace took them to riverside Chelsea, and up to the northern heights of Hampstead.

The Queen and the Duke rode through streets decorated with bunting and the many flags of the Commonwealth and Empire. They were escorted by police cars and motorcycles.

The Queen wore a blue coat and a tight-fitting white hat. The Duke had a brown topcoat. He was bareheaded.

The only quiet moment came outside a church in western Hammersmith. The Queen slowed her auto as she passed and flashed one of her special smiles—for the silent crowd here were all deaf mutes, who had been conversing excitedly in sign language for hours before the Queen's arrival.

119 Children Eat Poisoned Food

MONTREAL (CP)—All but 18 of the 137 children who started out for a picnic at Belmont amusement park and ended up in various city hospitals with food poisoning were returned today to an orphanage at Waterville, Que.

Waterville is in the Eastern Townships near Sherbrooke.

The boys were victims of food poisoning, the result of eating ham and egg sandwiches prepared two days before the outing. The sandwiches were stored in a compartment near the engine on chartered buses. Doctors said the heat and fumes from the engine could have spoiled the meat.

When the children began eating about 5 p. m., some complained of sore stomachs. Shortly other boys began "dropping like flies." Several doctors from nearby were called and city hospitals sent ambulances to the scene.

Later the group was taken to hospitals where stomach pumps were used. Only 18 were kept under observation.

Some religious brothers in charge of the orphans were also affected.

London Still Celebrating

Takes Bus 25 Minutes To Cross Square

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Special To The Examiner

LONDON— Late this Wednesday evening the tumult and the shouting is not over. Some of the Captains and the Kings may have departed, but the people of London and great masses of visitors are still out in the streets.

At 5:45 this afternoon I climbed to the top deck of a London bus near Trafalgar Square heading for the Hyde Park corner. It was 10 minutes before we moved at all and 25 minutes before we got across the Square, timed by the watch, a distance of 250 yards. Just now, at 10 this evening, the cable and wireless company can given me no estimate at all of the approximate time it will take their messenger to come for this copy. Trafalgar Square, Piccadilly, Marble Arch: "They're all jammed tight, Sir."

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, down in the city where businessmen are supposed to be realists, stern-faced black-hatted citizens were lining the streets around Mansion House and the Bank of England for the Queen was to drive by about 4 o'clock. This, mind you, is the day after.

If we went back to last night I could tell you a sorry but inspiring story about trampled feet when half a million or more of us shot the town up around Westminster in mammoth fireworks, and how the London police had to announce over loudspeakers that "the crowd in the Mall before Buckingham Palace is now moving towards the embankment for the fire works and will it please move gently, gently please."

LIKE TIDE OF LAVA

The police spoke as though it were a vast tide of lava that might carry Admiralty Arch and the Horse Guards without pausing. But today's crowds pass understanding. Where do they come from and for what to see? Apparently from all over London and these islands, plus the overseas visitors. The stands and decorations are to be left up for 20 days because bus and train officials from all over the country say they have hundreds of thousands of bookings from people who want to walk the triumphant path.

Probably you heard the rumors I heard in Canada around March: (The coronation seats aren't selling). Today's London papers say that on Mondaly seats were so scarce as to soar to $250 apiece for the posh ones. Canada House, I know, could have sold its considerable quota all over again over a London counter. And this sale took place despite television, despite the announced prospect of cold wet weather.

There can be but one conclusion: This young Queen and all she stands for is surpassingly popular. But more — she is a token of hope. It is dramatic that hope. Churchill, the Archbishop, Masefield, the Cabinet Ministers who have spoken on the subject of the Coronation — all have touched upon the theme that here is a sign and a symbol, a Joan to lead her people.

DISTURBING THEME

It is so universal a theme as to be disturbing, for though it is expressed in positive and optimistic vein it is nevertheless based on some awareness that some such revival and crusade is needed.

It seems the people of these islands think that the Butlers and Churchills and Edens and Attlees are doing a noble best but that the world is none the less no [illegible] England's. So let there be magic or high faith, let there again be some touch to the flame that took light and liberty so far. "The Queen!"

It is inspiring. But it is also a little frightening. It is true that the British party climbed Everest. But O God, to deduce from that that the British can therefore still hold the orb and sceptre of the world — to go that far is to go very far indeed.

Please don't misunderstand me. The British are not claiming the world or boasting it will be theirs. The coronation service was humility itself. The orb stands for Christian power rather than worldly and the sceptre for justice rather than domination. But I think the people of th

Eisenhower Gives Pledge To Avoid Red Appeasement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower inaugurated a new era of presidential contact with the people of the United States Wednesday—pledging on a "family circle" telecast there would be no appeasement of communism and "no risk of a general war." Surrounded by four members of his cabinet, Eisenhower gave these assurances in a report to the country: "We are going to keep our temper; we are going to build our strength."

"We are not going to cripple this nation and we are going specifically to keep up its air power."

"Our effort is to secure peace—and prosperity in peace."

MEETS HEAD-ON

In easy conversational style, and passing the ball repeatedly to his cabinet aides, Eisenhower met head-on the accusations aired in Congress only a few hours before that his air force budget cuts are imperilling U. S. security.

He did more than that: By introducing the TV presidential panel program, with free technical advice from some of the highest-priced advertising experts in the business, Eisenhower gave a new dimension to the "fireside chat" invented by Franklin D. Roosevelt and adapted for radio and television, now and then, by Harry S. Truman.

Eisenhower's audience was estimated at 50,000,000.

NO NEW MUNICH

With a reference to the 1938 concessions to Hitler that sowed the seeds of the last world war and became a symbol of appeasement, the president said:

"There is going to be no new Munich and at the same time there is going to be no risk of a general war, because a modern war would be too horrible to contemplate."

Then he introduced the four cabinet members.

They were Treasury Secretary George Humphrey; Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of health, education and welfare; Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson and Attorney-General Herbert Brownell. Each made a brief speech.

Honor Couple Wed 55 Years

HAVELOCK (ENS)—A family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Toms and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Toms in Belmont township on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Toms were presented with an electric automatic coffee percolator by the family in honor of their 55th wedding anniversary which they were unable to celebrate in April.

A dinner was served at 1 p.m. and the afternoon was spent in visiting and taking moving pictures.

Guests from a distance were Mr and Mrs. James Hume, Mr. and Mrs Gene Post and son David, Miss Delores Post, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Toms of Rochester, N.Y.; Mr and Mrs. Jack Phillips and daughters Darla and Rama, Mr. and Mrs. John Bird of Oshawa; Mr and Mrs. Rae Phillips of Trenton, Mr and Mrs. Donald Toms and son David, Mr. and Mrs. William Packer and sons Donald and Ricky of Peterborough; Mr. Robert Fairman of Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Toms, Mrs. William Ketchen of Havelock.

Reds Repulse 6 UN Attacks

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese and North Korean Reds today repulsed all but one of seven South Korean counter-attacks for key Allied hill positions captured by the Communists.

Units of four Republic of Korea divisions smashed against Chinese clinging to five outposts on Finger and Bloody ridges on the east-central front and North Koreans on portions of Luke the Gook's Castle and Anchor hill in the east.

One outpost was recaptured on Bloody ridge.

All other counter-attacks were hurled back, and at Luke's Castle and Anchor ridge North Korean Reds wound up a day of bitter close-quarter fighting in better positions than before.

The UN command said two Chinese battalions, perhaps 2,500 men, smashed into South Koreans who captured one outpost on Finger ridge and drove the RoKs off again.

$250,000 Fire Razes Stores In Granby

GRANBY, Que. (CP)—Fire Wednesday night destroyed part of the business district of this Eastern Townships centre, burning for almost five hours before doused.

Destroyed were five apartments, two restaurants, a grocery store, a jewelry store and a building containing 500 gallons of paint. Because of the number of places destroyed, no official estimate of damage was available and unofficial estimates ranged from $100,000 to $250,000.

No one was reported injured in the blaze, thought to have been started by youngsters burning wooden boxes between one of the restaurants and the grocery store.

WA Speaker Tells Of United Nations

FAIRVIEW (ENS). — Mrs. K. Simpson of the Local Council of Women, spoke to the Women's Association at the home of Mrs. Fred Brown on some of the work of the United Nations.

She was introduced by the citizenship convener, Mrs. Fred Brown and thanked by the Rev. Morris. Mrs. Carmen Bell presented her with a bouquet of spring flowers.

Mrs. Bruce Heard, leader of Group 2, led the worship service. Mrs. Milton Kidd read the Ccripture. Commentary was given by Mrs. Heard and prayer by the Rev. D. P. Morris, followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Stanley Boyce. Roll-call was answered with something about the Coronation. Roll-call for the July meeting will be some thought for Dominion Day.

Plans were made for the Sunday School convention in Fairview Church on June 10, and for the annual strawberry social on June 25.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Neil Jewell. The meeting was closed with prayer by Mr. Morris. Lunch was served by the hostess and ladies of Group 2. Mrs. Wesley Bell moved a vote of thanks to the hostess.

2,000 School Children Parade As Bancroft Marks Coronation

BANCROFT (ENS)—The greatest parade in Bancroft's history was held Tuesday to mark the Coronation. Two thousand school children from 15 schools, each child waving a Union Jack given by the coronation committee, marched through the flag decked village to the sports ground where a program of sports and entertainment had been arranged.

The parade was led by the 1st Bancroft Boy Scouts followed by A Co'y, H and PE Regt, North Hastings High School Cadets, the Legionettes wearing their attractive white uniforms and blue berets and members of the local branch, Canadian Legion. Music was provided by Madoc town band.

The following schools were represented: Maynooth, Millbridge, Gilmour, Monteagle, Trout Lake, Bangor, Limerick, McClure, Paudash, Highland Grove, Lake St. Peter, Bancroft, Hermon, Birds Creek and L'Amble.

A dedication service held on arrival at the sportsground was conducted by the Rev. O. Johnson, the Rev. Alan Borland and Pastor Esler.

Introduced by M. C. Art Hewitt, Bancroft's reeve, Theo Tryon, welcomed the visitors. Guest speaker, Major the Rev. G. Goforth, MC, introduced by Warden of Hastings Jack Kincaid. Major Goforth recalled his years spent as padre to the H and PE Regt. and said that some of the finest fighting men he had ever met had come from the North Hastings district. In a speech directed primarily to the children he pointed out that overwork in the service of the Commonwealth had caused the death of the late King George VI. and that today the young Queen had dedicated her life to the service of her peoples. "Would it not be a good thing for us each in his own small way to dedicate ourselves to the betterment of our family of nations", he asked. This coronation, the Major continued, had inspired the people and many looked forward to the miracle of a new Elizabethan era.

The ceremonies over refreshment booths on the grounds operated by the Lions' club and Canadian Legion Branch were beseiged by thirsty and hungry youngsters who were entertained during the rest of the afternoon by various sports events, an acrobatic act, a magician and comedy singers.

A baseball game between Centreville and Bancroft rounded off the proceedings and a memorable day was concluded by a coronation dance in the community hall and the lighting of the Boy Scouts coronation beacon on a hill south of the village.

Mortality Rate High At Zoo

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The mortality rate in Sydney's Taronga Park zoo is zooming these days.

Zoo authorities announced today that a female chimpanzee in the park collection twisted the rope of a swing around her mate's neck, then jumped on the swing seat until hubby conked. Keepers tried artificial respiration for an hour without success.

And some vandal hurled a brick into an enclosure housing a kodiak bear couple. The brick hit the male bear, swimming in a pool. His mate rushed into the pool and held the unconscious bear's head above water for 10 hours, but keepers were afraid to enter. In the morning, the exhausted female was still holding her by-then-lifeless 1,400-pound mate. A post-mortem showed death by drowning following concussion.

"By such a process we would quite obviously greatly stretch out our supply of gasoline, but we could hardly expect to stretch it out indefinitely for we would always be making a little less gasoline than we consumed.

"Ultimately we would run out of gasoline before we ran out of water, and all the rest of the water in the world would be useless to us so far as gasoline production was concerned.

"But to pursue our over-simplified analogy, still further, now let us assume that we succeeded in developing a way by which we could produce 100 or more gallons of new gasoline from water for every 100 gallons we burned. Suddenly we would have made it possible for ourselves to change gradually all of the water in the world into gasoline. Our gasoline shortage would have vanished."

WHAT HAPPENED

Dean said that essentially is what has happened at Arco.

Potentially, the achievement opens the way to making use of the world's supply of Uranium-238, which is 140 times more plentiful than the fissionable U-235, as a source of fuel for power or for bombs. Moreover, it may open the way to using all supplies of an element called thorium which is even more plentiful than Uranium-238.

Telling of the process worked out in a special reactor or furnace at Arco, Dean said:

"The reactor is operating in such a way that it is burning up Uranium-235, and, in the process, it is changing non-fissionable uranium (U-238) into fissionable plutonium at a rate that is at least equal to the rate at which the Uranium-235 is being consumed."

NOT HERE YET

He added:

"This news does not mean that economic power for atomic fuels is here. It does not mean that overnight we have suddenly obtained all the fissionable material we want or need.

"It does not mean that uranium can now be regarded as a virtually costless fuel. It is quite possible that the breeding principle will not even be incorporated in the first atomic power plants.

"It may be that some other types (other than a "breeder" type of power plant reactor) will be more feasible from the economic point of view, at least at first and possibly for some time."

Friends, Relatives Celebrate Birthday

HASTINGS—Mrs. Lottie Oliver was guest of honor on Friday, May 29, her birthday, when a shower of miscellaneous gifts was tendered by her friends and a presentation by her nieces and nephews of the Preston family, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Bert Preston.

Miss Kate German carried in a basket decorated in coronation colors and filled with gifts, including money from her brother, Mr. L. E. Stinson and Mrs. Stinson and a handbag from her sister, Mrs. D. E. Merrell. Mrs. Bill Preston of Peterborough read an address and Mrs. Clayton Drury of Cobourg presented an electric tea kettle.

Friends and relatives were present from Warkworth, Campbellford, Cobourg and Peterborough. Mrs. Oliver expressed her thanks. The house was decorated with flags, red tulips, white lilacs and blue iris.

Musical numbers and addresses were presented. Miss Kate German gave a humorous reading and demonstration. Lunch was served on the dining room tables covered with lace cloths and centred with a lovely coronation cake made by Mrs. Alex Merrell, decorated with crowns and colors and a birthday cake made by another niece, Mrs. Clayton Drury also in the coronation colors.

Mrs. Francis Poolman of Peterborough extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Preston and her family. All joined in singing "God Save the Queen" with Mrs. L. E. Stinson at the piano.

Caterpillars To Be Worse During Next Five Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Tent caterpillar infestation in Canada will reach a peak this month and will be considerably worse during the next five or six years, the agriculture department predicted today.

The crawling insects breed in cycles 11 or 12 years long and this is about the sixth year of the cycle, the officials said. Although infestation across Canada had been "heavy" this year, it would continue to increase until the end of the cycle.

Main reason for this rhythmic pattern is a parasitic fly known only by its formidable scientific name of sarcophiga aldrichi.

This fly lives on tent caterpillars. As the tent caterpillar increases, the fly increases, but in greater proportion. Finally, toward the end of the cycle the fly exists in such numbers as virtually to eliminate the tent caterpillar. Then the fly practically dies out of starvation and the cycle begins again.

Tent caterpillars prefer to chew on leaves of aspen and poplar in northern Canada and on elm, maple, ash and oak leaves in the south. They also go after fruit trees.

TO SPIN COCOONS

Later this month caterpillars will spin themselves cocoons and go into the pupa stage. By July they will appear on the scene again, this time as reddish-brown moths with the annoying habit of clustering around street lights and bouncing senselessly against lighted windows.

It is only in the caterpillar stage that they cause damage.

The tent caterpillar appetite is considerable. In Northern Ontario this year it has eaten its way through thousands of square miles of forest. When one area is cleaned out, it migrates.

Order New Trial For Convicted Toronto Youth

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto youth who yelled that he was innocent when sentenced to four years in penitentiary for armed robbery will have a new trial.

Justice Minister Garson has ordered a new trial for Paul Cachia who has served 18 months of his term in Kingston penitentiary. He was convicted by a jury before judge Robert Forsyth in December 1951.

Toronto lawyers Wednesday night said they can recall only one previous case in which the minister has ordered a new trial after the provincial court of appeal had rejected a convicted person's plea.

CLAIMED HE WAS HOME

Cachia claimed he was at home when three men robbed a gas station in suburban Swansea. A man named Goodwin was convicted and sentenced to five years, but police have never charged a third man.

Cachia's appeal was turned down in September, 1952, by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

A probe into the case started a month later when Clifford Magone, deputy attorney-general, received a letter from a woman saying she had evidence that Cachia was not involved in the robbery.

British Isles are praying that this blessed event of Tuesday will somehow be the touchstone that will reassert not only the power and glory of Christianity and British justice but of Britain's ability to enforce and propagate those ideals.

That is a larger order than climbing Everest, the world being what it is today. The Commonwealth can help and must help, for the things that Britain stands for are, by and large, the things of the golden rule. But the Commonwealth prime ministers have begun another meeting this very day and I note that again they are starting out with emphatic pronouncement that nothing that can come before this conference can be final or settled but that every country must decide for itself its own destiny.

Isn't it time, I wonder, that the Commonwealth countries took their independence for granted and began talking about their collective strength rather than their individual freedom? Perhaps I seem to stray, but not altogether. I find a radiant hope in these British people crowding their streets and reaching for their symbol. I find their ideal cannot be within their grasp if they are to attain it alone, for the world isn't that kind of a world any more.

I find that their salvation must be in the Commonwealth, not in themselves. And I find nothing exclusive in this for through the Commonwealth they may attain American and French and other allies and other glories that must now be refused to them as a single nation. And so as a Canadian I am both thrilled and saddened by what I have seen and felt yesterday and today.

VOICE LOSING POWER

The voice of Britain is not yet a voice in the wilderness, but its power no longer matches its goodness. The voice of the Commonwealth could present to the world a veritable fanfare of trumpets such as we heard yesterday in the Abbey, but its members are pretty busy with their solo practices.

Must it remain so until the noise of battle again drowns out our minor discords? The Queen's pictures in today's papers look radiant, for the most part. But one or two betray an honest doubt or even honest fear. That, too, is why she is beloved. But are all her people giving her their best?

three cows. Some areas report that winter wheat and rye fields were wiped out. Others report a loss of at least 25 per cent.

FELT IN CITIES

The effect was also felt in civic residential districts, by industrial firms and transportation companies.

Moose Jaw's rain held off until several thousand persons lined up at the city's exhibition grounds awaiting a display of Coronation fireworks. The deluge that struck before the display plugged storm sewers, causing extensive damage in flooding of basements and commercial buildings.

The Robin Hood Flour Mill at Moose Jaw reported that damage to its business is expected to run into thousands of dollars as a result of basement, mill, office and warehouse flooding. Although the mill still operated late in the day, a closing order was expected because pumps were unable to cope with the inflow of water.

The southwestern corner of Alberta received the highest count of rain. Taber reported 4.9 inches, and High River, 2.18.

Two railway washouts were reported by the Canadian Pacific Railway at Spring Coulee and Frontier near the Saskatchewan border.

Living Cost Index May Drop

Meat, Butter Prices Show Decline, Rents Going Up

OTTAWA —(CP)—Living costs—down five months in a row—may be in for another dip. The Bureau of Statistics' survey for April likely will be published Friday. Indications are it may show some further weakening in food prices, leading to the sixth consecutive monthly decline in living costs.

For months now, lower food prices have been the main factor in trimming the consumer price index which reached its peak of 118.2 in December, 1951.

The new prices yardstick, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, made its fifth consecutive decline in March, dropping one-fifth of a point to 114.6 from 114.8 in February.

MEAT, BUTTER DOWN

Prices were down for fresh meats, butter and potatoes, taking the punch out of rising rents to widen the crack in consumer costs.

In the space of five months, the index had dropped 1.5 points. This total drop fell short of the 2.3-point sag in the first four months of 1952, but it trimmed the consumer index to its June, 1951, size.

The new index came into use last fall after several years of development. The experts worked out a series of figures, estimating the level of the yardstick back through the years.

On that basis, the five-month drop was the most prolonged since a continuous eight-month decline in 1932.

In March the food sub-index dropped to 110.9 from 111.6. This compared with the high of 122.5 in November, 1951.

RENTS CLIMBING

Rents, on the other hand, continued to climb. The shelter column, under the impetus of rising rents, advanced to a peak of 122.7 from 122.5. A year ago it stood at 122.5.

The old cost-of-living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, also slipped during March, dropping three-tenths of a point to 183.9 from 184.2. Lower food prices toppled the impact of higher rents. This was the second consecutive drop for the old yardstick which reached a peak of 191.5 in December, 1951.

Is there a difference in Tissues?

Yes Ma'am...

Only Interlake gives you luxury tissue at a moderate price. Three Municipalities Seek To Set Up New School Area

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Percy township council decided on Monday evening to join with Campbellford and Seymour to attempt to form a detached school area. The three councils will present the request to Counties' Council when it meets in Cobourg this month.

The three councils are protesting the construction of a high school in Brighton, which will accommodate 370 students at a cost of $500,000. The construction of the school in Brighton would add one-and-one-half mills to the taxes of Percy, Campbellford and Seymour ratepayers, for the next 20 years.

Campbellford at present has a modern high school that is quite adequate it is claimed for the needs of the district, and does not favour paying over $100,000 as its share of a school in another community.

Free 7 Leaders

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — French authorities Wednesday released seven Tunisian labor leaders from exile in the southern desert area. Some had been in custody since the slaying last month of Chedli Kastally, deputy mayor of Tunis. Their release was part of a general amnesty program announced after the May municipal elections. Still being held are 122 others.

Rare Catch

PLEASANTDALE, Sask. (CP)—A rare white muskrat, caught in this district by John Coyle, was purchased by the Provincial Museum in Regina.

Bancroft High Has Open House

BANCROFT (ENS) — A large number of visitors enjoyed a display at the North Hastings High School open night held last Friday. High spot of the evening was a fashion parade when gowns and other items of apparel made by the home economics pupils were modelled by 20 students and commented upon by Harodeen Watson and Joanne Jenkins.

Various experiments were shown in progress in the chemistry and physics laboratories and students' work in wood, tin and copper attracted attention.

Grade 9 students held a cartoon display and other grades demonstrated crochet and embroidery work, map making and commercial typing.

An exhibition basketball game was held in the gym and colored slides of school activities were shown by teacher W Morrison.

Civic Service And Parade At Lakefield, Coronation Day

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Citizens honored Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth on the occasion of her coronation with a civic service and parade on Tuesday.

Forming at the Sea Scouts' Ship, the parade moved off at 11 a.m. and proceeded via Queen St. to Memorial Park for the service. In the parade were members of the Canadian Legion, Branch 77, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, the Lakefield district high school band and cadets, Girl Guides, Brownies, Cubs, Scouts, children of the public school and members of the Lakefield Volunteer Fire Department in one of their trucks.

In the official party were Revee William C. Grant, the Rev. L. J. Delaney of the Church of St. John the Baptist (Anglican), the Rev. J. Arthur Stced and Gordon K. Fraser, MP. They were escorted from the council chamber to the stand by standard bearer, Mrs. Vivien Payne, of the Ladies' Auxiliary and Bugler John Milligan.

Mr. Delaney offered prayers for Her Majesty and Mr. Fraser addressed the assembly on the significance and importance of the coronation ceremony

Reeve Grant read the proclamation of the coronation and those assembled offered their homage thus, "We do become your liege men of life and limb and of earthly worship, and faith and truth we will bear unto you, to live and die against all manner of folks. So help us God. God Save the Queen." The National Anthem closed the ceremony

The parade then re-formed and proceeded via Queen St. to Water St., up Water to Bridge St., past the Cenotaph, then to Queen St. and back to the ship.

Parade Marshals were Everett G. Sloan of the public school and J. Edward Stevens, principal of the high school.

1,000 Children Take Part In Junior Police Games

COBOURG (ENS).—The cops were kids again and the kids had a great time with the cops when the OPP and RCMP staged the 1953 junior police games Wednesday afternoon at the park.

One objective of this annual sports day is to enable the boys to realize that the police officer is not a man to crack the whip over juvenile offenders but a man who understands boys because he was a boy himself once and wants their confidence.

Provincial police numbered 15 and came from Brighton, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Campbellford, Lindsay, Belleville, Peterborough and Fenelon Falls. They were assisted by six RCMP of whom two were from Cobourg and four from Toronto. Starter was Provincial Constable Ray Kowl of Belleville and chief timer was Corporal Russ Pollard of Peterborough.

School children were present from the Cobourg Boys' Training School, the public and separate schools of Cobourg, Port Hope public schools and from about 24 rural schools in Northumberland and Durham. It is estimated that more than 1,000 children took in the afternoon of sports. Art Ravensdale, well-known athlete of Cobourg, announced the events. The CKEY special events car was on hand and made a tape recording for a future broadcast.

RECORD TIME

Constable Lyle Erskine of Cobourg, who was in charge of the free ice cream canteen, estimates that the fastest time recorded for the day was when it was announced that the canteen was open and upwards of 500 kids made a rush for the spot.

The school which won the greatest number of points was Central Public School of Cobourg with 34 points. Olley Taylor, secretary of Cobourg Chamber of Commerce, presented the cup to George Keeler of Grade 7, as representative of the school. In the draw for the boy's bicycle donated by Harvey MacFarland, eight-year-old Alex Ferguson of Baltimore was the winner.

Following were the results:

50 yard dash, 10 years and under—Jim Hope, Cobourg Central Public School; Garfield Bradshaw, Grafton, and Nils Lovenark, Port Hope. Standing broad jump, 12 and under—R. Smith, Baltimore; Gordon Ewart, Cobourg, and a boy from the Training School. High school, 220 yard dash—Jim Campbell, Cobourg Collegiate, D. Rutton, Port Hope Collegiate and William McDonough, Cobourg Collegiate.

75 yard dash, 12 and under—Leonard Ferguson, The Gully School; a boy from the Training School and J. Chappelle, Grafton public school; 100 yard dash, 14 and under—two boys from the Training School were first and third and W. Howard of Cobourg Central was second; base running contest—Broomfield, Cobourg Collegiate, 1st, and two boys from the Training School 2nd and 3rd; 75 yard hurdle, 12 and under—Gordon Ewart, Cobourg; J. Fenton, Port Hope, and J. Chappell, Grafton; running broad jump, 10 and under—Jim Hope, Cobourg; W. Stevens, SS 11 and W. Arbuckle, Cook's School; ball throw, 10 and under—O'Brien, Port Hope, Forest, Cobourg Central and Searanke, Cobourg Central. 880 yards, 14 and under—Warren Howard, Cobourg, George Keeler, Cobourg, and John Waldon, Port Hope.

220 yards, 10 and under—D. Arbuckle, Cook's School, Jim Hope, Cobourg, and a boy from the Training School; 440 yards, 12 and under—Maughan, Coldsprings, Ferguson, Gully School, and boy from the training school; 100 yard hurdle, 14 and under—J. Waldon, Port Hope, a boy from the Training School, 2nd and B. Somerville, Cobourg Central; sack race—Lapp, Grafton, Cooper, Cobourg and Minifie, Baltimore; three-legged race—B. Symons and B. Retalick, Dr. Power's School, Port Hope, G. Baptist and K. Baskey, Dr. Power's School, Port Hope, J. McMahon and D. Doyle, St. Michael's, Cobourg; 220 yard relay, 10 and under—Dr. Powers' School team, Port Hope, Cobourg Central, 2nd and Grafton Public, 3rd; high school 880—R. Kelley, Port Hope, R. Shortreed, Port Hope and Dors Carlson, Cobourg; 440-yard relay, 12 and under—Dr. Powers' School, Port Hope, Cobourg Central, and the Training School; 440 relay—Cobourg Central, Train. School, and Port Hope, running broad, 18 and under—A. Round, Cobourg.

May The Flags Fly?

The city looks festive with its Coronation decorations. While the day itself has passed, June is still Coronation month: witness the fact that in England all school children have been given a two-week holiday to prolong the joy and give the occasion due celebration. At the end of June comes Dominion Day, July 1st, Canada's birthday, when Peterborough has another cause to put out flags. May not the lights, banners, buntings and some shop and home decorations which will stand the strain, remain until July 1st, or even July 4th, by which time our American visitors will have arrived? It would be pleasant to greet them festively with Union Jacks, Canadian Ensigns and red, white and blue. They themselves will probably be pleased to see how Peterborough faced the Coronation.

What Price Peace In Korea?

The truce negotiations at Panmunjom were suspended while the United States took stock of the opinion of its U.N. allies there, prior to making new proposals to the Chinese Reds and North Koreans. New ones were obviously necessary if the U.N. front were not to be disrupted. The American negotiators had been laying down stiffer terms than the United Nations had suggested, and U.N. (apart from the U.S.) was properly miffed. Now new secret proposals, more in line with U.N. direction, are being designed. The secret is sufficiently open for the South Korean government to object violently. It seems that the U.S. is ready to compromise on the terms and the South Korean government has got wind of it. No peace without a united Korea, they have shouted—meaning they want all Korea.

If the U.S.A. and U.N. were to follow this policy our forces in Korea would be guilty of the same kind of aggression as the North Koreans. It was to stop North Korean aggression into South Korea that U.N. (and the U.S.) went to war. They have stopped it. Now the South Korean government (not, we think, the majority of South Korean people) want U.N. and the U.S. to invade North Korea. This may be politically desirable, in some ways, for a partitioned country is always a restless country, where troubles may develop over night. Tactically, U.N. would be foolish to send its troops, even if it could do so easily, right up to the border of China. The threat of this brought China into the war in the first place. What peace could result from western troops sitting at China's door? They would have to stay there many decades, for certainly the South Koreans could not hold the line alone, despite their recent displays of bravery and military skill and organization.

A truce in Korea must not be made to depend on unification (under South Korea and U.N.) of that unhappy peninsula. The war has already been very messy, very costly. Total casualties to date have been 2,303,550, with U.N. casualties of 406,550 and Communist Chinese losses of an estimated 1,897,000. The South Korean losses have been 183,000, the United States casualties almost 125,000. This is bloodshed on a major scale. The price of peace must not be made higher.

Self-Rule And Self-Will In Nigeria

During the Coronation celebrations there were anti-British demonstrations in Nigeria, a land which is advancing toward self-rule and which contains people who do not think that the advance is fast enough. But, as on many another occasion of this sort, the British are not yet convinced that self-rule would be possible in Nigeria, there is still too much individual self-will there, and that quality mixes badly with democratic government.

Nigeria is about three-quarters the size of Ontario, and has a population of 24,000,000, of whom about 5,000 are white people chiefly engaged in trade. The standard of living is better than in many parts of Africa because the Nigerians are principally farmers, and own their own land. They have a large measure of self-government now, and as the white population is too small to elect any effective number of men to its regional and central legislatures they are already well on the way toward governmental independence.

However, there is a division in Nigeria which causes much trouble. The southern part of the country is inhabited by Christian and pagan Negroes, numbering about 13,000,000; the north is peopled by Moslem Negroes, numbering 11,000,000. The southern section wants complete self-rule by 1956; the northerners are afraid that this would work hardly upon them, and they want a partition of the country. Result: uproar and riots in which several people have been killed or hurt.

Britain is willing enough to grant self-rule to Nigeria, but Britain is not anxious to do anything which will create two states which will certainly wrangle and possibly war with each other. The Negro temperament is excitable and can become fanatical in political disputes. If the task of reconciliation can be achieved by 1956, it will be a miracle of diplomacy.

Canadian Ships In Coronation Review

On June 15th a traditional grand naval review will be held at Spithead (off Plymouth) to honour the Queen and celebrate her Coronation. Among more than two hundred ships will be a Canadian flotilla, a small one but fully representative of the Royal Canadian Navy.

The six ships will be the aircraft carrier Magnificent, the cruisers Ontario and Quebec, the destroyer Sioux and the frigates Swansea and La Hulloise. Also included will be the Department of Transport's new icebreaker the D'Iberville, the first time English waters have ever held an icebreaker. The Sioux is a veteran of the Korean war. The Swansea and La Hulloise were built in Canada during the Second World War and served on the Atlantic. The Maggie has had a chequered career in service and accidents but remains our chief capital ship. The new icebreaker was designed and built in Canada.

Also under the Queen's review will be ships of many other nations—including a Russian vessel.

Congratulations To The Montreal Gazette

We are grateful to the Montreal Gazette for a handsome book, designed, printed, engraved and bound in its own plant, describing its 175 years of history as an important Canadian newspaper. The origin of the Gazette was romantic; a French printer, named Fleury Mesplet, quitted the oppressive atmosphere of pre-Revolutionary France for London, where he met Benjamin Franklin, who urged him to go to Philadelphia to be a printer; Mesplet did so, but the attractions of French-speaking Montreal were strong, and when the American Revolution broke out, Mesplet was sent there to publish a paper which would persuade the French to join the Revolutionary cause. Odd indeed that one of the most intelligently Conservative papers in Canada should have begun as a revolutionary sheet. But the history of most newspapers contains some freakish strain.

Every newspaperman in Canada admires the Gazette, and we offer it our warm congratulations of 175 years of public service.

Belated Honours

A cricketer, a jockey, a dress designer, politicians, merchants, soldiers and personal servants of the Crown have been honoured by the Queen on the occasion of the Coronation. The arts have been given recognition, too. Alastair Sim, actor, was made a Commander of the British Empire (C.B.E.). Benjamin Britten, composer, has been named a Companion of Honour (C.H.).

Two awards of sovereign grace seem as belated as they are richly deserved. The fine old poet Walter de la Mare—he is now eighty—has at long last been given royal recognition. He has been made a member of the Order of Merit (O.M.). Since de la Mare's name and fame were established forty years ago, one wonders if it is an Old Man, rather than artistic merit, which has been recognized in the O.M. Another belated honour is the knighthood to John Gielgud, who has been supreme on the British stage for twenty years. If knighthood is conferred for great acting and not good conduct surely Gielgud should have been Sir John a decade ago.

NOTES AND COMMENT

In Edmonton somebody is taking a census of mosquitoes. Amid, we presume, a hum of activity.

"Boy's Appearance Embarrasses Girl", says a headline, but that is nothing compared with what his non-appearance may do to her.

A female reporter described the Queen's gown as "made of cobwebs sprinkled with dew"—and when a dressmaker puts her shears into a bolt of that she needs a steady hand.

"Tonsils are being removed by the dozen in St. Thomas," says the Times-Journal of that city. In lesser settlements, such as Peterborough, we still remove them by the pair.

Women are women the world over. An Australian woman who was swept off her feet on to the cowcatcher of a locomotive and carried a mile to the next station said she worried during the trip—worried for fear that she looked ridiculous.

The Man Of Big Dreams

By HARRY FRANKLIN

THE RHODES Centenary Exhibition, which has emerged from a crescendo of hammering, opened last Saturday. As with all exhibitions, the preceding weeks were a rush to get finished on time: but the race was successful, and there were only small lacunae within the pavilions, invisible to all but the initiated.

The Exhibition has an attractive form, from the skylon surmounted by a globe of the world to the dome over the Hall of The Rhodesias. In colour and in modernistic decor, the influence of The Festival of Britain is evident, although the scale is smaller. But it is undeniably good.

✧ ✧ ✧

DESPITE the model African village and the mildly exotic atmosphere of the pavilions of other nations' African colonies, the Exhibition is essentially British. Its emphasis is on progress, on industry and commerce; on Rhodesian colonial history and achievement. This is undoubtedly as Rhodes, whose birthday a hundred years ago is now commemorated, would have wished.

✧ ✧ ✧

A STATUE of Cecil John Rhodes, in beckoning attitude, as though inviting new immigrants to intensify the civilising power of England in which he so profoundly believed, stands, appropriately, at the entrance to the Diamonds Pavilion. He looks directly across at the hall which houses the golden exhibits of the Transvaal Mining Corporation. But he looks too, as he did in life, beyond the wealth of diamonds and gold, wealth which was necessary to him merely as a means to the achievement of his aim, the straightforward aim of a determined Imperialist: "We are the first race in the world, and the more of the world we inhabit, the better it is for the human race."

✧ ✧

TIMES CHANGE; but a man must be judged by the standards of his times. By any judgement, Rhodes must be accounted great. There is much that would have pleased him here under the skylon. Yet he was never one for outward show. Perhaps the sight of the rolling plain beyond the park and the distant kopjes (hills), under a sky whose immensity of blue the smoke of the city called Bulawayo—"The Place of Slaughter"— can scarcely stain, would have delighted him most. In some things he might have been disappointed; in others, perplexed. His statue is rightly placed with its back to "Pleasureland." His purpose was too serious for this kind of fun, and the whirl of the "Flying Saucer" or the bangs of the "Rocket Ride," he would have regarded as insane. The unlikely looking structure of the Paris nightclub, tucked away on the left bank of a stream, would not have drawn him, except, possibly, as a source of good vintage champagne for his friends.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONE can imagine him glancing from the decorative walls proclaiming the presence of Angola, Mozambique, the Congo and French Equatorial Africa, up to the skylon globe and muttering glumly: "All that should have been painted red." The evidence of progress exhibited by Rhodesia Railways would have drawn perhaps a qualified praise—"the line should have reached Cairo by now." But a study of the Central African Airways display, bringing the realisation of a pan-African transport system beyond the dreams of this highly transport-conscious Empire-builder, would have been ample compensation.

✧ ✧ ✧

HE WOULD perhaps have paid most attention to the remarkable achievement of miniature engineering, shown by the copper mines of the North, watching with fascination modern mining methods— from ore extraction to refining— in startling contrast to the early methods used in his South African mines. Gold, not copper, he expected to be the greatest wealth of the Rhodesias. He would have noted happily the growth of industry and commerce and of his own British South African Company as evidence of much hard work, the quality he most admired.

YET RHODES, in discussing his scholarship plan with his solicitor, said: "I'm all against letting the scholarships merely to people who swot over books, who have spent all their time over Latin and Greek. But you must allow for that element, which I call 'smug,' and which means scholarship. That is to stand for four-tenths." Would he have classed the Theatre Royal, the greatest feature of this Exhibition, with its staging of the Sadler's Wells ballets, John Gielgud's Shakespearian Company and John Barbirolli's Halle Orchestra as "smug?" There were times when he appeared to show a secret admiration for the graces which he himself neglected. Certainly "long-headed Cecil" would have approved the Theatre Royal as giving the Exhibition its main chance of paying its way. And the Rhodes of grand designs would have admired it as the biggest single-floor theatre in the world . . .

(*Rhodes left behind him a will in which he allotted the bulk of his vast wealth for the purpose of founding scholarships at Oxford, each worth three hundred pounds a year, to be held by students from every important British colony, and from every State and Territory of the United States of America. Shortly before he died, he added a certain number of scholarships to be held at the disposal of German students).

✧ ✧

"MY NAME will live for four thousand years," Rhodes once announced in matter of fact tones. That is too long a period for prophecy. In the Court of Rhodes wherein his life unfolds in a fascinating array of photographs, letters, treaties and cartoons, the eighteen-eighties seem already far away. The name of this extraordinary young man, farmer, financier, politician, Empire creator, who never lived to be fifty, will live long. It will live the longer if those for whom he opened the road will follow the greatest of his maxims.

✧ ✧ ✧

"Equal rights for every civilised man," were his words, which he further defined, liberally if quaintly: "A man whether white or black, who has sufficient education to write his name, has some property or works, in fact, is not a loafer." He understood Africans: they loved him. He would have been contemptuous of the fears of any Rhodesians who see in that maxim their own destruction. He would have warned them that in it lay their only safe future and the hope of that New Federation for which he, to, would have striven.

A BOW-ON VIEW of H.M.S. Victory, flagship of Admiral Lord Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar in 1805. This famous ship now lies at Portsmouth in Southern England.

The Queen Reviews Her Fleet

By UNA LASCOT (UK Information Office)

JUNE 15 promises to be a day of thrills for the naval town of Portsmouth on the south coast of England. The Coronation naval Review is being held at Spithead— the narrow sea-channel which runs between Portsmouth and the Isle of Wight— and nearly 200 ships from the Royal Navy, as well as others from other Commonwealth Navies and from the Fleets of other countries, will form the biggest gathering of warships ever seen in times of peace. Added to these will be many ships from the Merchant Navy and the fishing fleets.

From H. M. S. Surprise a despatch vessel of Britain's Mediterranean Fleet, Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Admiral of the Fleet the Duke of Edinburgh, will inspect huge aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, frigates, minesweepers and submarines —and all the latest wonderful devices and improvement on these craft which have been invented by United Kingdom engineers and scientists. There will also be a fly-past of hundreds of naval aircraft, including jet fighters and helicopters. Britain's battleship, the Vanguard, will be there, too, and many sightseers watching from nearby boats or from the Portsmouth seafront, will admire the powerful outlines of this famous ship which carried the Royal family on their tour to South Africa in 1947.

IT SEEMS a far cry from the 42,500 tons Vanguard of to-day to those little wooden warships of long ago, but right in Portsmouth Harbour, only a short distance from the Coronation Review, visitors can step all that long way back into history. There, berthed in the oldest graving dock in the world, lies the ancient wooden Victory, that same Victory in which Britain's greatest of all Admirals, Lord Nelson, lost his life in the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805.

Nearly 200 years old, the gallant little vessel has withstood the tests of time and weather, battles and collisions —and even a bomb, dropped during the last war, failed to do more than make a hole a few feet wide in her tough old timbers! She took six years to build, from 1759 to 1765, and thousands of oak trees from English forests were used for her timbers, secured together by great copper bolts —some of them six feet in length. She was a triumph of the workmanship and skill of shipbuilders of her day, and cost nearly £67,000. This seems a small sum compared to the £11,000,000 cost of the Vanguard but it was considered an enormous amount for a ship at that time.

However, the Victory proved herself worthy of all the skill and money expended upon her, for she has had a long and glorious career. She fought in many battles, and under many admirals, and was already 40 years old when Nelson had her refitted as his flagship. After his death the Victory saw seven years' further active service, and remained afloat in Portsmouth Harbour for the next 110 years— more than twice the average lifetime of a wooden ship! For part of this time she was used as a training school for young seamen, and in 1903 was accidentally rammed by a battleship which was being towed out of harbour. This, too, she survived, but when at last she was beginning to leak and to show signs of her age, it was decided that such an interesting naval relic should be saved for the nation. She was repaired and restored to her old Trafalgar appearance, a handsome romantic-looking ship with her black and yellow sides, 52 red-painted gun ports and towering masts.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOW the Victory is open for all to see, a memorial to Lord Nelson and the Royal Navy of his time. Hundreds of thousands of people visit her every year, as she lies there quietly looking on at this strange new world of steel battleships and gigantic aircraft carriers. Young and old, the visitors find it fascinating to tour her decks while a sailor guide recounts for them the thrilling story of Trafalgar. They see the brass plate on the deck where Nelson stood when he was wounded, and the poop from which his famous signal "England expects that every man will do his duty" was hoisted to the masthead.

With bent heads (for the head-room between decks is very limited) they examine the guns, the manger where livestock was kept, the one stove on which meals were cooked for 850 officers and men, and the chain pump which was the only mechanical device on board; they see the quarters where Nelson ate and slept, and pause in reverence at the narrow, dimly-lit cockpit where the great Admiral died.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour . . . I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him . . .. Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me. (Isa. 43: 3, 6,7,10.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God . . . Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us. (Ps. 90: 1,2,16,17.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him. (Luke 20:37,38.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence. But we will bless the Lord from this time forth and for evermore. Praise the Lord. (Ps. 115: 17, 18.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"It is a positive delight to meet a man you feel you can trust," remarked the individual with the high forehead.

"Oh, I don't know. I prefer a man who pays cash," replied the man who kept the grocery shop.

✧ ✧ ✧

At the breakfast table he was relating to his wife an incident that had occurred at the club the previous night. The chairman had offered his bowler hat to the member who could stand up and truthfully say that during his married life he had never kissed any woman but his wife.

"And would you believe it, Mary, no one stood up!"

"George," said Mary, "why didn't you stand up?"

"Well," he replied, "I was going to, but I look so awful in a bowler hat."

✧ ✧ ✧

Down in a rural community a road gang, their number sadly depleted by the attractions of a country fair playing nearby, was trying to repair a rutty highway. Presently, into the foreman's ken walked a bedraggled, bewhiskered gentleman of the road. The foreman wondered if he could persuade the Weary Willie to do a little work for him.

When the tramp came abreast of the workers, the boss held up a shovel and called out to him, "Can you do anything with this?"

Weary Willie grinned.

Without appreciably slackening his pace, he rejoined, "Yep, I can fry ham on it!"

Henry Ford's Spelling

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

Henry Ford derided history as "more or less the bunk," but he was a miser in collecting and keeping it. An enormous mass of historical material, numbering not less than 5,000,000 documents and 25,000 photographs accumulated in his 55-room house in Dearborn, Mich., and scholars will spend years evaluating them as a record of life in the first half of the twentieth century.

Among them are many papers revealing the man, rather than the times in which he lived. They prove, among other things, that Henry Ford never bothered to take spelling seriously. He wrote that his earliest engine, built at the age of 10, did not develop "mutch" power, and that its fuel was "cole." During World War II he expressed his "pitty" for warmongers. His many abbreviations might drive a conscientious proofreader crazy.

But Henry Ford could have said—perhaps he did say it—that he could hire good spellers for less than he paid his factory workers.

Holiday For Two

(London Times)

The Queen has approved a proposal by St. Ives, Cornwall, that the town should offer a fortnight's holiday to two deserving people, using for the purpose the money which would have been spent on a formal illuminated address to Her Majesty on the occasion of her Coronation. The town council will instead convey the loyal good wishes of the people of St. Ives by telegram.

Senate Committee Approves Bill To Authorize Seaway Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate foreign relations sub-committee Wednesday approved by a 6-0 vote a bill to authorize U.S. participation in the St. Lawrence seaway project.

The bill would allow the U.S. to join with Canada in constructing a 27-foot channel in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence river.

Chairman Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) said he will soon call the measure up for action by the full committee.

Wiley told reporters after the closed meeting that he and Senators Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.), John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.) and Theodore Green (Dem. R.I.)—all who attended—voted for the bill. In addition, he said he cast favorable proxies for Senators Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) and Charles Tobey (Rep. N.H.M.).

NO VOTE TAKEN

Wiley said no vote was taken on an amendment by Humphrey to expand the measure to include provisions for 27-foot connecting channels in the Great Lakes west of the International Rapids section of the river.

President Eisenhower has announced his approval of the plan for the U.S. to join with Canada in building the deep waterway.

The bill approved Wednesday would authorize creation of a St. Lawrence seaway development corporation to work with Canada in construction and operation of that part of the project in U.S. territory.

A WORLD HE LEFT—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor seem to be completely absorbed by the television screen that carries the coronation scenes to Paris, France. The Duke, uncle of Queen Elizabeth II, is getting a close up of the ceremony he gave up along with the British kingdom for his wife who sits next to him.

See Improvement Boy's Condition

The condition of Jimmie Langford, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Langford, Warkworth, is satisfactory, according to hospital officials today.

In the absence of his parents, who left him in charge of young relatives Jack and Lillian Russell, Jimmy poured some gasoline on the kitchen fire on Saturday morning. His clothing ignited and he ran outside and beat the fire out. Meanwhile, some of the furniture and floor covering was afire in the kitchen and he extinguished that, too.

Jack Russell reported the incident to neighbor Charles Killingbeck who took the lad to Dr. F. B. Brintnell of Warkworth. Jimmie was treated for burns and on the arrival of his parents from a motor trip, it was found that he required hospitalization and was brought by them to Peterborough on Monday.

Lay Water Pipe To Wading Pool

The Peterborough Utilities Commission has agreed to lay pipe required to supply water to the Lions Club wading pool in Nicholls Park.

This will entail laying 200 feet of four-inch main north on Rogers St. from the Dufferin St. main and 200 feet of two-inch copper pipe thereafter to the pool.

Cost of the main is estimated at $866.81 and of the pipe $530.55.

Wail To Wails

CALGARY (CP)—The old No. 5 fire hall here, which for years resounded to the wail of fire sirens, will hear wails of a different sort. The city health department has converted it into a clinic for infants.

Gazette Has 175th Birthday

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Gazette Wednesday celebrated its 175th birthday.

The Gazette was first published June 3, 1778, under the name of La Gazette du Commerce et Litteraire. The founder was Fleury Mesplet, a printer brought to North America under the auspices of the rebelling United States.

In 1775 when Montreal fell to the invading Americans the United States Congress decided to send a printer to Montreal who would, they hoped, convince the inhabitants their best interests lay with the revolution.

When Mesplet arrived in Montreal from Philadelphia, invading American forces were being driven back. Not free to escape with his patrons because of his cumbersome presses, Mesplet remained in Montreal.

The first issues of La Gazette were written only in the French language and only contained literary pieces—no news and no advertisements.

To improve circulation, the paper later appeared in both French and English. Later still it switched to the English language only.

Mt. Everest Climbers Use Canadian Sleeping Bags

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian sleeping bag designed to beat the Arctic cold was part of the equipment of the British team that conquered Mount Everest last week.

The bag, an elaborate affair of overlapping zippers and down-filled nylon, was designed by Fred van Veen, 44, of Ottawa and was one of 46 Canadian products winning this year's design merit awards in industry sponsored by the National Gallery.

The 8½-pound bag was tested on the world's highest mountain in 1951 and 1952 by Everest reconnaissance expeditions under Eric Shipton. For this year's successful climb, the British team under Col. John Hunt ordered 12 of the bags from the Ottawa firm (Howard's Bedding Ltd.) which manufactures them.

OVERCOME BIG PROBLEM

D. W. Buchanan of the gallery's industrial design division said the sleeping bag had apparently overcome one of the main problems of Everest climbers—exhaustion from the biting cold at night.

For the last two years the bag has been standard equipment for the RCAF's Arctic pilots, tucked into their Arctic survival kits with emergency food and other equipment.

It can stave off temperatures as low as 50 degrees below zero with its double covering, the outer of nylon and the inner of wool.

200 Windsor Painters Out On Strike

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Some 200 painters in the Windsor area, members of local 149, International Painters and Paperhangers Union, (AFL), went on strike Wednesday for higher wages.

A union spokesman said the men have been attempting to get a new agreement with the contractors for the last year and a half.

They seek $1.80 an hour. They now receive $1.65.

The men also said they are the only unit of the building industry not on the 40-hour work week. A spokesman for the contractors said the present 44-hour week was put into effect at the request of the union.

Boy 17 Driving School Bus

OSHAWA (CP)—Magistrate Russell Locke said Wednesday the Pickering district high school board will have to decide whether a 17-year-old boy should be allowed to drive a school bus. "It strikes me as something tragic," he said.

The boy, Kenneth Beer, of Brougham, employed by rural bus lines, was fined $25 and costs or 10 days in jail for careless driving. He said in court the speedometer wasn't working when the bus crashed into the back of a car driven by Mrs. S. Huster in Ajax April 24.

"Only by the grace of God the driver of the car and the five children in it were not killed,. . ." magistrate Locke said.

Recreation Expert

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Ed Kelter, a Nelson resident until 1947, will return next fall as district superintendent of recreation. He nas ju just completed an assignment as provincial recreation divisional superintendent on Vancouver Island.

Stop! You don't need to scrub and rub like that to get your wash sparkling white. Washing can make clothes clean, but only Blue can make them really white. Scientists have proved that true whiteness is made up of all the seven colours of the rainbow and if blue is missing, white turns to dingy yellow. That's why washing needs that last rinse with Blue to replace the missing blue rays and restore sparkling whiteness. So put a dash of Blue in the rinse water to get your wash really white. And here's good news! Blue is completely harmless to even the finest of fabrics. Costs just a few pennies a month to use, too!

Yes, for the whitest wash, use RECKITT'S BLUE.

A Tip For June Brides (and all their wedding guests!). You should be walking on air at your wedding—so be very sure your days of trousseau-shopping won't leave you with painful corns. So hurry, all you lovely brides . . . ask for Blue-Jays with Phenylium at your favourite drug counter today.

Gorgeous George In Draw With Big Bobo Brazil In Main Bout Of Mat Card

The Orchid Man came and went here last night, leaving a delicate odor behind as he moved off in his purple Cadillac after drawing with Bobo Brazil in the main mat bout at the Brock Arena. He left behind a flustered local hair-dresser who was called in to comb out his golden, marcelled hair just before the bout. He also left a lot of gold-plated bobby pins —he calls them Georgie pins —with a number of fans, tossing them from the ring before his match. But he took with him his valet (striped trousers and cutaway coat) with the insecticide spray used before his entrance into the ring, and he took his breath-taking coronation robe. He was a colorful character.

IN PUCK DRAFT—Bob Gardner of the local junior "B" Oddfellows has been claimed by Windsor Spitfires in the OHA junior "A" draft for next winter. No other Peterborough boys have been claimed so far, but several may be later as five, from here attended a tryout camp in Detroit last spring and some will be taking in the Wings' camp up north in September again.

COULD WRESTLE

Despite all the trimmings, the 210-pound Gorgeous George proved quite a wrestler in his go with Bobo Brazil, scaling 250. George won the first fall in 14 minutes with a shoulder stand, using the ropes for leverage. The big Negro came back to even it up in just four minutes with his special paralyzing grip, the "cobra twist", Referee Sam Gotter stopping the round. Both were counted out of the ring in 11 more minutes with Bobo busy bonking his nibs over the noggin with the Brazil bean.

Bobo was bigger, stronger and more popular by a long shot, except to Gotter and George when he gave them the cocoa treatment. He took a lot of abuse as the wily Californian pulled his snide tricks so smartly that the ref usually was panning the indignant Negro for illegal entanglements. But George also was quite a wrestler and very fast. He stalled and strutted and faked at times, but could move in like a snake to fling husky Bobo around every once in a while. Of course, he was well looked after by his man between rounds, what with smelling salts, rubdown, sip of this, and so forth. He put on quite a show.

TIM WON IT

Timothy Geohagen won the semi-final in 24 minutes over unpopular Nanjo Singh, weighing 235 to Tim's 226. The squat Hindu, who knew more than just rope tricks, was disqualified by the referee for knocking Gotter down twice as he tried to break an illegal choke hold. Nanjo played it real rough throughout, using feet, knees, fists, fingers and even his teeth once to bite the Irishman's arm. The salaaming villain was slammed several times, too, by the Irisher in a rough joust which saw a lot of action, even the ref being pinned once under the pair.

Genial Pat Flanagan took Howard Cantonwine in 18 minutes of the prelim with flying drop kicks. Pat took an early beating from the 251-pound Howard (Flan went just 231), as Cantonwine had a fancy assortment of choke holds, and he argued bitterly when the ref made him break them. When chased, Howard scrambled through the ropes for sanctuary, but speedy Flan finally caught up with him. He remarked later: "I thought I could lick that old guy, but he's pretty good at wrestling." When told this, the balding but youngish Pat said something that sounded like: "Grrrrr!"

Draw Horses For Derby

KITCHENER (CP)—Two Kitchener residents and a Waterloo man have drawn horses in the Irish Sweepstake to be run Saturday at Epsom Downs in England. Roy Hoch of Kitchener has a ticket on Oakley Lad and Robert Jordan of Waterloo has one on Victory Roll. Paul Steffen of Kitchener also drew a ticket on a horse.

Pats Lose, 14-7 In OLA Fray To Long Branch

Long Branch lacrossers took a 14-7 OLA junior "A" victory over the Peterborough Pats in Long Branch last night. The Pats, under Lou Vitarelli—since Coach Doug Miller, Jr., is out of town—were shorthanded, several good players being unable to make the trip. They used but 11 men and found the Long Branch pitch hard to play on.

Pats led in the first quarter, but gradually tired and the husky homesters had an edge from there on in a game that threatened to be rough at times. In the last quarter, Daniels of Peterborough drew a minor penalty for tripping and had a misconduct tacked on to it for talking back to the referee.

The Ruse brothers were outstanding for the winners, while Bob Allan was strong on the attack for Pats, and Ray Hill did well in goal, despite the loss. The Pats didn't look out of their class and are expected to take this team when they meet here. Brampton opposes the Pats this Saturday night.

Pats: Goal, Hill; defence, Hobart, Howe; centre, Allan; wings, Brioux, Farley; rover, G. Smith; alternates, Daniels, Bloom, McDougall, O'Reilly.

Long Branch: Goal, Anderson; defence, Coleman, Rawson; centre, Walton, wings, L. Ruse, Passmore; rover, McLintock; alternates, Smith, Crane, P. Ruse, Giroux, Tomchisen, Neave, Russeau.

Referees, S. Milne and W. Smart.

3 Canadian Records Smashed In Track Work

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Track and Field Club members smashed three Canadian records Wednesday night, lowered a track mark and equalled an Ontario record in the Toronto and district inter-club championship series inaugural meet at Varsity Stadium.

Norm Williams clipped four seconds off the Canadian junior 120-yard low hurdle mark and equalled the provincial record of 13.9 seconds in the men's open 120-yard low hurdles.

The Canadian junior one-mile relay team record was broken with a mark of 3:23.7.

Shirley Eckel won the women's open 60-yard hurdles event in 8.4 seconds, eclipsing the old record of 8.7.

Cliff Hardy won the junior men's 150-yard dash in 15.7 for a track record.

Phillies Have Sold Stuffel To Memphis

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night announced they sold Paul Stuffel, 26-year-old righthanded pitcher, outright to Memphis of the Southern Association.

Phillies president Robert Carpenter didn't disclose the sale price but it was understood to be approximately the $10,000 waiver price.

Pitching: Paul Lapalme, Pittsburgh Pirates, pitched the Pirates into sixth place with a 1-0 seven-hit shutout over Chicago.

Batting: Gus Zernial, Philadelphia Athletics, hit two home runs and drove in half of the Athletics' runs in a 10-7 triumph over Detroit.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Probably Peterborough ball officials who are running the local junior Liflocs in the intermediate Lakeshore League are on the right track toward a revival of senior baseball here within a year or two. Certainly the old COBL, reduced to three clubs last season, has folded flat. Kingston players get by with a four-club senior city loop, while Belleville players are scattered about in the Bay of Quinte and Lakeshore Leagues, playing intermediate ball. Former Petes' senior (who won the COBL in '52) have hied away to play for Lindsay in the lakeshore setup. Oshawa is finding the road rocky in the senior Intercounty League of Western Ontario.

* * * * * *

Oshawa scribe wrote recently "There's something the matter with Oshawa ball fans. This city used to be one of hottest baseball centres in Ontario. But lately the local fans are not warming up to the game as they should. It costs money to keep a team operating in the Intercounty League and it's just as simple as this — if the Merchants fail to make a decent financial showing this season, it will be the end of senior ball in Oshawa. They'll not be operating next year if the current disinterest of the fans continues." We don't know what the answer there is unless it's that fans prefer to see local talent in the lineup, rather than imported pros from across the line. And we still think our Liflocs will bring back senior ball here soon.

* * * * * * *

Time For Petes To Go

Coach Bob Thorpe won't spare the whip on the Pete's senior lacrossers from now on. They've got to resume their winning ways right away to keep pace with the leading St. Kitts, second-place York and with Fergus, now tied for third with Peterborough. True, they're all bunched closely, but one or the other could hit a hot pace and pull well out in front of the pack. It could be the Petes, if they start to roll up to form from here in. They have a stiff test against St. Catharines Athletics here Friday and that'll be a game worth seeing. The Mann Cup champs can take it if they shoot the works, but the A's won't be giving anything away. A real scrap. Let's go, gang — only the game fish swim upstream.

* * * * * * *

Sportswriter of St. Catharines says "Ike Hildebrand first gained national prominence in lacrosse in 1944 when he came east with the challenging New Westminster Salmonbellies. In a torrid series, the Athletics defeated the westerners three games to two. Despite defeat, Salmonbellies received some consolation when the 16-year-old Hildebrand was named as the outstanding player in the series. As far as we know, he was the youngest player to be so honored. Standing just five feet eight inches, Hildebrand is a tought litle performer who has more drive than a bulldozer.". Yes, the Petes' ace forward—and AHL puck star at Cleveland in the winter — is having another fine OLA season.

Perfumed Pro Grappler

The pro mat ring sprouts some odd characters, among whom Gorgeous George must rank himh. He arrives in town in a purple Caddy with chauffeur. He has a hair-do for his golden, marcelled locks. His valet sprays the ring beforehand to purify things. Ultimately, the Orchid Man arrives to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance" bedecked in his new coronation robe, a fabulous arrangement of fabric. After tossing his gold-plated hair pins to the fans and strutting about a bit, he proceeds to prove himself quite a wrestler, a rough guy and a smoothie on the mat. However, the best he could do here last eve was to get a draw with Bobo Brazil, both being counted out of the ring finally. After quite a show, Tim Geohagen took Nanjo Singh in the semi-windup, and Pat Flanagan won the prelim o'er Howard Cantonwine.

A Canadian Press dispatch this morn from Kitchener lists 29 young players claimed by the OHA junior "A" draft. One lad mentioned is Bob Gardner of the local junior "B" Oddfellows, claimed by the Windsor Spitfires. That may be for "B" competition as Detroit Wings are transferring their junior "A" club from Windsor to Hamilton this year. Last Easter, five Peterborough boys—Gardner, Bud McDougall, Larry Ball, Jack Kane and Jerry Frizzelle—took in the Wings' tryout camp at Detroit. Some, if not all, will get a bid to take in their fall camp at the Soo in September and may catch on somewhere in the Detroit organization. Apparently, Gardner caught the eye of Windsor officials and is being claimed. IOOF-ers should be recompensed financially for his loss.

Peterborough Player Gardiner Claimed By Windsor Spitfires

KITCHENER (CP)—Twenty-nine players have been claimed in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A draft.

Kitchener Greenshirts sought five players and obtained three of them without competition. They will have to draw against two other clubs for the other two.

Players granted Kitchener are Maurice Forget of Timmins Lions Juveniles, Ross Golden of Toronto Downsview minor midgets and Paul McPherson of Stratford's Junior B team.

Donald Mousseau of Timmins Lions was also drafted by Kitchener but Guelph Biltmores and Porcupine Combines of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association also seek him.

Kitchener, Windsor Spitfires, Noranda Toilers and Kirkland Lake have all sought George Lamieri of Downsview midgets.

WILL CONDUCT DRAW

A draw to determine who gets the players sought by more than one club will be conducted at Barrie on Friday when the OHA Junior A council meets.

Claims granted in the open draft include:

Augustine Badali of Kirkland Lake from Toronto downsview; George Boljkovac by Porcupine Combines from Schumacher Lions; Frank Butler of Timmins juveniles and Grant Butler of Dundas Junior By by Guelph Junior A. Robert Gardner by Windsor Spitfires from Peterborough Junior B.

Gary Goodale by Guelph from Dundas; John Hendrickson by Windsor from Midland juveniles; Harold Hodgson by Oshawa from Stouffville; William Make by Guelph from South Porcupine Juveniles; Ross McTavish by Windsor from Lucan; Earl Mortimer by Windsor from Walkerton; Gordon Onetsky by Toronto Marlboros from Timmins juveniles; Walter Pare by Guelph from South Porcupine juveniles; Robert Rogers by Windsor from Simcoe.

Canadiana To Invade Tracks In U.S. Soon

TORONTO (CP)—Canadiana, the country's champion three-year-old filly, will be sent to the United States soon to start campaigning on American tracks.

The bay thoroughbred, who won the 94th renewal of the $20,000-added Queen's Plate here Tuesday, is well booked for stake races. Her first big one is the $25,000-added Gazelle Stakes June 24 at Aqueduct Park in New York.

The departure of Canadiana, owned by industrialist E. P. Taylor of Toronto, will leave the three-year-old division in Canada wide open among the horses that finished behind her in the 1⅛-mile plate run. Many plate-entrants will go to the post in the Quebec Queen's Plate.

Norwood Gains Triumph Over Woollens

Norwood trounced Woollens 18-3 in an Industrial Fastball League fixture last night, scoring most of their runs in the last few innings to break up a fair game. They uncorked a hard-hitting attack while the losers' pitching faltered and their defensive play fell apart in the later stages. Payne on the Norwood mound scattered eight hits and fanned eight in a good slab showing, his support generally being good.

Teams:

Woollens—Weichorek ss, Crampton 3b, Maudsley 1b, Nokes c, Hughes lf, Schell lf, Drury 2b, McMillan rf, McIlvain rf, Borland rf, Smith p, Coughlin p.

Norwood— Lockhead c, Payne p, R. Garden ss, Cole rf, Fredericks cf, LaBrash 2b, W. Garden 1b, Wilford 3b, Rusaw lf.

Umpires—Puffer and Stevens.

Westend Boys Get Win Over East City

Westend bantams pulled out a 6-2 exhibition baseball win over East City last evening as W. Rowe threw two hit ball and fanned 11 in seven innings. However, he walked nine. Anthony hurled five innings for the losers, giving three hits and three walks as he whiffed six. Foley finished, allowing two bingles and a walk as he struck out two. Their mates booted three in fair fielding as the winners kicked only one in a smart showing. Westenders scored two each in the first, third and fifth heats, as East City got one in the third and another in the fifth.

East City—Driscoll, lf; Dinsdale, 2b; Dorrington, ss; Tetlock, 1b; Armstrong, c; Crowder, cf; Maher, cf; Paul, 3b; Greenley, 3b; Playford, rf; Foley, p; Anthony, p.

Westend—Gilders, 2b; Kinlin, c; Patterson, ss; Griffin, 1b; W. Rowe, p; Stevenson, 3b; B. Rowe, lf; Whitehill, cf; Morley, rf; Graystock, cf; Casey, 3b.

Umpires — Calladine, Gilders and Bacon.

Seabrook And Bill's Take Civic Loop Tilts

Seabrook Electric defeated Busmen 17-5 in the opener of Wednesday's popular men's Civic Softball League twin bill at the East City Bowl; while Bill's Lunch took the nightcap 6-3 over Fairviews. As the schedule progresses the pace grows hot; and now Seabrooks' share too spot with Bill's each with two wins to date, against no defeats.

Closely following the loop-leaders with a single win and no losses are the snappy Post Office crew and the dangerous IOF nine; Police and Bell have a single loss, while Busmen and Fairview bring up the rear with twin losses.

NEAT HURLING

Conroy twirled eight-hit ball for Seabrook's in the opener opposing Jerry Driscoll; and the winners again staged a slugfest to win easily as in their first outing against Fairviews when P. Brennan, Hank Russelle, Harris Conroy, Galley, Montgomery, et al, looked impressive.

Peters hurled for Bill's in the afterpiece, a much closer duel, opposing Jack Edmiston, and he received some nice hitting from his mates Pagett, Smith, Evans, Hewie and Brierly, to edge out a neat triumph. The fielding of Collins, Smith and Hewie featured for the winners. For the losers hits were scarce; but W. Fowler, N. Fowler and Edmiston each hit one.

Monday finds Post Office against Bell; and Police opposing IOF.

Halfback Bob Smith To Stay With Detroit

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union received word Wednesday that halfback Bob Smith has signed for another season with Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

The information was received from the Detroit halfback in a telephone call to coach Frank Clair of Argos. Smith spent a day in Toronto recently and returned to Detroit to decide whether to accept Argos' offer or continue with the Lions.

Scottish Lose To UEW In Soccer Go

UEW soccer team blanked Canadian Scottish 5-0 here last night in city league play at Morrow Park. Play was very even for a time, moving up and down the field, with the Scots having first crack at goal, but the UE goalie was good. The first corner also went to the Scots, but their opponents cleared up the field.

Holroyd made a neat solo run, and passed to Smith, but he just missed the upright. UE then got a corner and Hoyle headed into goal with Smith finishing it off for the first marker. Boyd made a run up the wing but Mundy cleared. Hoyle scored No. 2 with a nice shot.

In the second half, play was midfield for a time but Strong almost got one but was stopped by the goalie. Holroyd centred from the wing and Strong counted one for UE. The latter defence was too strong for the Scots, and Knyston scored one more for the winners, with Croll finishing the tallying from a penalty.

Yankees Trample White Sox 18-2 In Biggest Rout

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

If the rest of the American League doesn't run for cover now it won't be the fault of New York Yankees. The other seven clubs have been warned—in the boldest possible terms—that the Yankees are dead serious about winning their fifth straight pennant and woe unto anyone brash enough to oppose them. This probably isn't the best team ever to wear Yankee livery but it towers over its current opposition to such an extent that even the most ardent Yankee haters would be hard put at the moment to pick another club with a real solid chance of staying on even terms with New York.

The doubters can examine the remains of Chicago White Sox.

The Sox and Cleveland were the pre-season choices to top the Yankees, if the Yankees could be stopped. The Indians folded at the mere sight of the Bronx Bombers but the White Sox, after losing their first encounter, bounced back to win four in a row from New York—a serious mistake.

MAKE AMENDS

When the world champions move into Chicago Tuesday for a three-game series they were ready to make amends. They did.

Tuesday night they stopped the Sox 4-3. Wednesday they trampled them 18-2 in the biggest rout of the season in either league. Four Chicago pitchers were mauled for 19 hits.

Riding a six-game winning streak and holding a fat 5½-game edge over the runner-up Indians, the Yankees wind up their business in Chicago today and move on to St. Louis for four games.

The Indians slipped another notch back Wednesday night when Boston came up with three runs in the top of the ninth for a 4-3 decision.

Philadelphia Athletics whipped Detroit Tigers 10-7, dropping the Tigers 20 games behind New York. Gus Zernial hit two home runs and drove in half of the A's runs. Washington beat St. Louis 3-2 in 10 innings in the other American League game.

MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT

Milwaukee made it two straight over Brooklyn on the Dodgers' home grounds 14-9. The victory stretched the Braves' National League lead to 1½ games.

The Phillies split a twilight-night doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals, winning the second game 6-5 and losing the opener 5-3. New York Giants trounced Cincinnati 11-3 and Pittsburgh moved into sixth place with a 1-0 decision over Chicago.

The Red Sox' triumph over Cleveland broke their four-game losing streak. Trailing by two at the start of the ninth Boston put together a pair of singles with a double by George Kell for one run and picked up two more on Sam White's single.

PITCHERS IN ACTION

The Milwaukee-Brooklyn melee saw 11 pitchers in action with the hitters treating almost all of them like batting practice tossers.

Andy Pafko and Jim Pendleton, both peddled by Brooklyn during the winter, homered as Milwaukee scored five runs in the eighth.

The Cardinals managed only six hits off Curt Simmons and two successors in the first game but the blows included home runs by Steve Bilko and Rip Repulski plus a triple by Repulski and a double by Del Rice. In the nightcap Connie Ryan singled home Tommy Glaviano with the winning run in the eighth after Glaviano had tripled.

Warren Hacker lost his eighth straight at Pittsburgh. He gave up only five hits to seven by Paul Lapalme of the Pirates but Pittsburgh got the only run as Pete Castiglione singled home Ralph Kiner in the fourth. The victory moved the Pirates into sixth place.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

SpringfieldDrops Sixth Straight, Bow To Orioles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bruce Edwards' Springfield Cubs will suffer the ignominy of being forgotten as contenders for the International Baseball League pennant unless they start hustling.

To date the Cubs have lost 24 of their 35 games. They dropped their sixth straight Wednesday night, a humiliating 12-1 setback at the hands of the sixth-place Baltimore Orioles. The Cubs now are 12 games behind first-place Montreal.

Jack Sanford of Baltimore hurled a brilliant one-hitter to turn in his sixth victory against four losses. Sanford also whacked two doubles, good for two runs.

ROYALS DEFEATED

Denis Seeder (4-3 allowed Montreal only three safeties, to hand the Royals an 8-3 defeat, which gave Rochester Red Wings an even split in a four-game series. The Royals used three hurlers, with starter Bob Alexander (4-3) the loser.

The win also cut Montreal's lead over the second-place Wings to ½ games.

Syracuse shaded Ottawa Athletics 5-4 in a game played under protest by the Chiefs of a fifth-inning ruling by third-base umpire Les Sylak. But the protest will be dropped, as the Chiefs won. Art Hartley gave up seven hits for his fourth win against one loss.

Righthander Paul Foytack stopped Toronto Maple Leafs' winning streak at three games, pitching Buffalo Bisons to a 2-0 shutout with a six-hitter. He fanned five in winning his first game of the season.

Yankees Trample White Sox 18-2 In Biggest Rout

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

If the rest of the American League doesn't run for cover now it won't be the fault of New York Yankees. The other seven clubs have been warned—in the boldest possible terms—that the Yankees are dead serious about winning their fifth straight pennant and woe unto anyone brash enough to oppose them. This probably isn't the best team ever to wear Yankee livery but it towers over its current opposition to such an extent that even the most ardent Yankee haters would be hard put at the moment to pick another club with a real solid chance of staying on even terms with New York.

The doubters can examine the remains of Chicago White Sox.

The Sox and Cleveland were the pre-season choices to top the Yankees, if the Yankees could be stopped. The Indians folded at the mere sight of the Bronx Bombers but the White Sox, after losing their first encounter, bounced back to win four in a row from New York—a serious mistake.

MAKE AMENDS

When the world champions move into Chicago Tuesday for a three-game series they were ready to make amends. They did.

Tuesday night they stopped the Sox 4-3. Wednesday they trampled them 18-2 in the biggest rout of the season in either league. Four Chicago pitchers were mauled for 19 hits.

Riding a six-game winning streak and holding a fat 5½-game edge over the runner-up Indians, the Yankees wind up their business in Chicago today and move on to St. Louis for four games.

The Indians slipped another notch back Wednesday night when Boston came up with three runs in the top of the ninth for a 4-3 decision.

Philadelphia Athletics whipped Detroit Tigers 10-7, dropping the Tigers 20 games behind New York. Gus Zernial hit two home runs and drove in half of the A's runs. Washington beat St. Louis 3-2 in 10 innings in the other American League game.

MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT

Milwaukee made it two straight over Brooklyn on the Dodgers' home grounds 14-9. The victory stretched the Braves' National League lead to 1½ games.

The Phillies split a twilight-night doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals, winning the second game 6-5 and losing the opener 5-3. New York Giants trounced Cincinnati 11-3 and Pittsburgh moved into sixth place with a 1-0 decision over Chicago.

The Red Sox' triumph over Cleveland broke their four-game losing streak. Trailing by two at the start of the ninth Boston put together a pair of singles with a double by George Kell for one run and picked up two more on Sam White's single.

PITCHERS IN ACTION

The Milwaukee-Brooklyn melee saw 11 pitchers in action with the hitters treating almost all of them like batting practice tossers.

Andy Pafko and Jim Pendleton, both peddled by Brooklyn during the winter, homered as Milwaukee scored five runs in the eighth.

The Cardinals managed only six hits off Curt Simmons and two successors in the first game but the blows included home runs by Steve Bilko and Rip Repulski plus a triple by Repulski and a double by Del Rice. In the nightcap Connie Ryan singled home Tommy Glaviano with the winning run in the eighth after Glaviano had tripled.

Warren Hacker lost his eighth straight at Pittsburgh. He gave up only five hits to seven by Paul Lapalme of the Pirates but Pittsburgh got the only run as Pete Castiglione singled home Ralph Kiner in the fourth. The victory moved the Pirates into sixth place.

SpringfieldDrops Sixth Straight, Bow To Orioles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bruce Edwards' Springfield Cubs will suffer the ignominy of being forgotten as contenders for the International Baseball League pennant unless they start hustling.

To date the Cubs have lost 24 of their 35 games. They dropped their sixth straight Wednesday night, a humiliating 12-1 setback at the hands of the sixth-place Baltimore Orioles. The Cubs now are 12 games behind first-place Montreal.

Jack Sanford of Baltimore hurled a brilliant five-hitter to turn in his sixth victory against four losses. Sanford also whacked two doubles, good for two runs.

ROYALS DEFEATED

Denis Reeder (4-3 allowed Montreal only three safeties, to hand the Royals an 8-3 defeat, which gave Rochester Red Wings an even split in a four-game series. The Royals used three hurlers, with starter Bob Alexander (4-3) the loser.

The win also cut Montreal's lead over the second-place Wings to 2½ games.

Syracuse shaded Ottawa Athletics 5-4 in a game played nder protest by the Chiefs of a fifth-inning ruling by third-base umpire Les Chylak. But the protest will be dropped, as the Chiefs won. Art Hartley gave up seven hits for his fourth win against one loss.

Righthander Paul Foytack stopped Toronto Maple Leafs' winning streak at three games, pitching Buffalo Bisons to a 2-0 shutout with a six-hitter. He fanned five in winning his first game of the season.

Single Stroke Victory For Gerry Kesselring

BURLINGTON (CP)—Gerry Kesselring scored a one-under-par 141 over 36 holes of the hazardous Burlington golf course Wednesday to give him a single stroke victory over Bruce Castator of Toronto Summerlea in the first Willingdon Cup trials.

The Kitchener golfer, playing in a foursome with Phil Farley of Toronto, Nick Weslock of Windsor and Collin Sharp of Burlington, scored a two-under-par 69 in the morning round and a 72 in the afternoon to lead the field of 95.

Weslock's flier into the trees on the 14th got him into trouble and a disastrous hook into a sand trap cost him the match. He finished with a 144 to tie with Moe Norman of Kitchener for third place.

NORMAN SURPRISE

Although Castator's 142 gained him a close second, it was Norman, Kesselring's Rockway clubmate, who surprised the gallery. Not conceded a place among the first 10, Norman played the final 18 flawlessly for a 71 and a 14 total.

Oakville's Jack Davison turned in a 145 for fifth place. To do it he had to come up with a nifty one-under-par 70 in the afternoon, following a mediocre 75 in the morning. Phil Farley was sixth, one stroke behind.

Sharp, district amateur champion last year, was out of the running after an erratic 82 in the round.

Tony Matlock of Kitchener shot 76-74—150, Jack Nash of London Hunt 79-72—151, Grant Shirk of Kitchener 75-76—151, W. R. Parks of Oxford 80-72—152 and Dick Riorden of Kitchener 76-77—153.

The second qualifying round for the Willingdon Cup team will be played at Toronto Scarboro next Wednesday.

Car Hits Train Seven Killed

CHICAGO (AP)—A mother, her three daughters and three granddaughters were killed Wednesday night when their automobile crashed into a Michigan Central Railroad passenger train.

Another grandchild and a neighbor girl, also passengers in the car, were injured. All were residents of Chicago.

The train, the Canadian Niagara en route to Detroit, was delayed an hour.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Catherine Zawacki, 60, her daughters, Mrs. Irene Skala, 22, reported to have been the driver; Mrs. Genevieve Kovack, 26, and Patricia Zawacki, 18, and her granddaughters, Barbara Davis, 11, Arlene Zawacki, 7, and Jacquelihe Kovack, 5.

New Correspondent

PANMUNJOM (AP)—An Italian Communist correspondent appeared at Panmunjom today for the first time since armistice negotiations began nearly two years ago. He is Ricardo Longone, correspondent for the Italian Communist newspaper L'Unita. His appearance brought to four the number of Communist correspondents in addition to Chinese and Koreans.

SANCTION TITLE BOUT

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Boxing Federation Wednesday sent word that it has reversed its previous stand and will sanction next Monday's fight here between Arthur King of Toronto and Armand Savoie of Montreal for the Canadian lightweight championship.

The bout will also be for the British Empire lightweight title. Savoie will place his Canadian title on the line and King, who fights out of Philadelphia, will have his British Empire crown at stake.

Gene Letourneau of Québec City, CBF national commissioner, previously had refused to sanction the 12-round bout for the Canadian title on the grounds that King no longer is a Canadian citizen.

Following representations by Merv McKenzie, Ontario Athletic commissioner, McKenzie received a telegram from Letourneau sanctioning the bout.

McKenzie had informed the CBF official that King is a Canadian citizen and that he is a resident alien of the United States.

WELCOME HOCKEY TEAMS

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers junior and senior "A" hockey teams were officially welcomed into the Ontario Hockey Association at a gathering of city officials, league executives and sports writers Wednesday.

Seniors will be coached by George Redding, whose record of seven OHA titles in eight years still stands. Ken Soble owns both franchises.

✦ ✦ ✦

EARL GIVES TAYLOR HORSE

TORONTO (CP)—The Earl of Derby has donated Espalier, one of his most promising two-year-olds in 1951, to E. P. Taylor's National Stud Farm Limited for stud purposes in Canada, Taylor said Wednesday. He said Espalier, a four-year-old bay, has been leased to Attorney-General Lucien Maynard of Alberta for three years and then will stand at National Stud Farm at Oshawa.

✦ ✦ ✦

RIDLEY CRICKETERS WIN

AURORA (CP)—Ridley College of St. Catharines won the Little Big Four cricket championship Wednesday, defeating St. Andrew's College. Ridley players were all out for 78 runs and SAC all out for 31. John Swinchatt was Ridley's best batsman with 20 runs; Doug Grant scored eight not out for SAC. Drynan took six wickets for eight runs for Ridley.

✦ ✦ ✦

SAWCHUK HAS OPERATION

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—Terry Sawchuk, goaltender for Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, was reported in "good" condition Wednesday following an appendectomy Tuesday. Sawchuk, winner of the Vezina Trophy and on the NHL all-star team last year, was admitted to St. Boniface Hospital Monday.

3-D Ads Now

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — The Waukesha Daily Freeman said today it will publish the first three dimensional advertisement in newspaper history in its Friday issue. Polaroid glasses will be provided with each newspaper. The ad will run in color.

Aussie Showing Not Inspired

LONDON (Reuters)—The australian tourists batted a 325 first innings against Sussex Wednesday, but apart from a strong performance by Colin McDonald (106) and Neil Harvey (82), the Australian scoresheet was not impressive.

In county matches Glamorgan batted slowly all day to tally 353 for four against Essex.

Nottinghamshire put Worcestershire all out for 70 and then replied with 180 for seven.

Close-of-play scores Wednesday: Australian tourists 325, Sussex 27 for no wicket.

Somerset 277 for four vs Middlesex.

Derbyshire 107, Surrey 78 for four.

Cambridge University vs Northamptonshire, no play, rain.

Yorkshire 54 for one vs Leicestershire, rain restricted play.

Worcestershire 70, Nottinghamshire 180 for seven.

Glamorgan 353 for four vs Essex.

Warwickshire 185 for nine vs Lancashire.

Oxford University 325 for five declared, Hampshire 13 for no wicket.

Molasses Halts Traffic

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP)—That old saying "as slow as cold molasses" held true Wednesday night. Traffic was tied up over a large section for three hours when a 5½-ton open-top tractor trailer, loaded with molasses, overturned. There was so much molasses over the road that a snow plow had to help clean it away.

Attends Service

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A retired minister celebrated his 100th birthday by going to church on a stretcher. Dr. George Summey attended services Wednesday at the Third Presbyterian Church here, where he was pastor from 1903 to 1928. He was confined to hospital almost two years ago.

Canada In Second Place At Golf Meet

MONTREAL (CP)—Little Tony Cerda showed the way to an array of crack golfers from five continents in assuring Argentina the championship Wednesday in the inaugural of the Canada Cup international twosomes.

It was a popular victory for Argentina but the welcome surprise of the two-day tournament—and a tremendous boost for the game in this country—was Canada's second-place finish.

Tony shot a two-under-par 70 over the Beaconsfield course in each 18-hole round. His 140 total was the only sub-par for the full distance among the field of 24 making up seven twosomes. Big Roberto de Vicenzo totalled 147.

LEONARD-KERR COLLABORATE

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Bill Kerr of Montreal collaborated for 297, 10 strokes behind the winners but good enough to shake free from Australia and the England-South Africa combination for runner-up. Leonard's 144, topped off with a 70 Wednesday, was second low medal to Cerda's score and even par for 36 holes.

It was a close struggle for second place. Ossie Pickworth and Peter Thompson gave Australia 298, and Harry Weetman of England and Bobby Locke of South Africa teamed for 299.

The United States, away to a poor start in the first round, had to settle for fifth place with 304. Germany was sixth with 312 and Mexico last with 320.

In his one-man sub-par achievement, Cerda outclassed such stars as Locke, Julius Boros, U.S. Open champion; Jim Turnesa, U. S. Professional Golfers' Association champion; Weetman, British masters champion, and the Australian pair.

BATTLES WIND

Cerda battled the wind Tuesday to post his 70 first. When he was paired with Locke in the second round, many through the methodical South African would wear Tony down. At the half-way mark Argentina had only one stroke lead over the Locke-Weetman team.

But Cerda didn't falter. It was Locke who was fighting to get back to par figures. His strong irons game was off enough to make him take a pair of 39s Wednesday for 78. Tony went over par at three holes but he had five birdies.

Weetman came home in 36 but his outward nine of 39 gave him a 75 and with the England-South Africa pair slipping, Canada moved in. Kerr sank an eagle three at the par-five sixth, placing his second shot 10 feet from the pin. He was out in 35 but took 39 coming back for a 74 total. Leonard went out in 37 and then gathered in three birdies and six pars for a 33 on the last nine and his 70 total.

It was the brilliant nine-hole display, equalled only by Boros, that assured Canada of second place. For a while Pickworth's sub-par golf kept alive Australia's hope for second place. He shot two 35s. Thomson finished with 73. Then Leonard settled it.

Although the American team was practically out of contention starting the final round, Boros made a great attempt to make up lost ground. An eagle three at the 18th helped him to a 70 for the day, against 80 on Tuesday. Turnesa, also starting with 80, cut six strokes off that figure on his second round.

U.K. Surprised At Billing

LONDON (Reuters) — Surprise was expressed here today that the fight between Arthur King of Toronto and Armand Savoie of Montreal, in Toronto next Monday is being billed for the British Empire lightweight title as well as for the Canadian championship.

King was the former holder of the British Empire championship but was deprived of his title by the British Boxing Board of Control last September, when the board declared it vacant.

The board announced at the time that they had received no reply to a letter sent May 22 to King warning him that if he did not agree to meet a logical contender within 60 days, they would declare the title vacant.

Frank Johnson, British champion, now is recognized as the British Empire title holder by the BBC.

He travelled to Australia early this year and stopped Frankie Flannery, Australian champion, in a fight for the vacant title.

Human Relations Big Problem Yet To Be Solved In Africa

By A. T. STEELE
(New York Herald Tribune News Service)

MADRID.—After travelling up, down and across Africa, one is tempted to write with glowing optimism about the continent's future. Nearly everywhere there are signs of growth and development. Africa is astir with new projects, some of impressive magnitude.

Unhappily, these material gains are overshadowed in some regions by racial discord. The simple truth is that the biggest problem in Africa today is the problem of human relations. It seems incredible that the white man, despite all the technical skill, administrative talent and capital he has poured into Africa, still is unable to produce a formula for enduring harmony between the black and white races. Until [illegible] formula is found and proved, all predictions about Africa's future will have to be conditioned with caution.

WHITE HIGHLANDS

Consider Kenya, for example. Two years ago, that British colony seemed an idyllic sort of place for white settlement. It had just about everything conducive to the white man's comforts—a balmy climate, fine hunting and fishing, plenty of cheap labor and, finally, the so-called White Highlands, an area of 12,000 square miles (excluding forests) reserved exclusively for the white bwana's use. Kenya was a place where a fellow of modest means could live like a country gentleman.

It goes without saying that Kenya is not as pleasant a place as it used to be. A few weeks ago, in Nairobi, I heard the wife of a white settler sum up the situation in a few disgruntled words. Shifting the revolver on her hip to a more comfortable position she remarked, crossly: "These Mau Mau chaps are spoiling everything."

What the doughty lady was really saying was that the day is past when the white man can have everything his own way in Africa. For whether it is the savage Mau Mau revolt in Kenya, the passive resistance movement in South Africa, the anti-Federation agitation in central Africa, or the demands for self-rule in the Gold Coast and Nigeria, all are symptoms of the same thing—the growing political awareness of the African peoples.

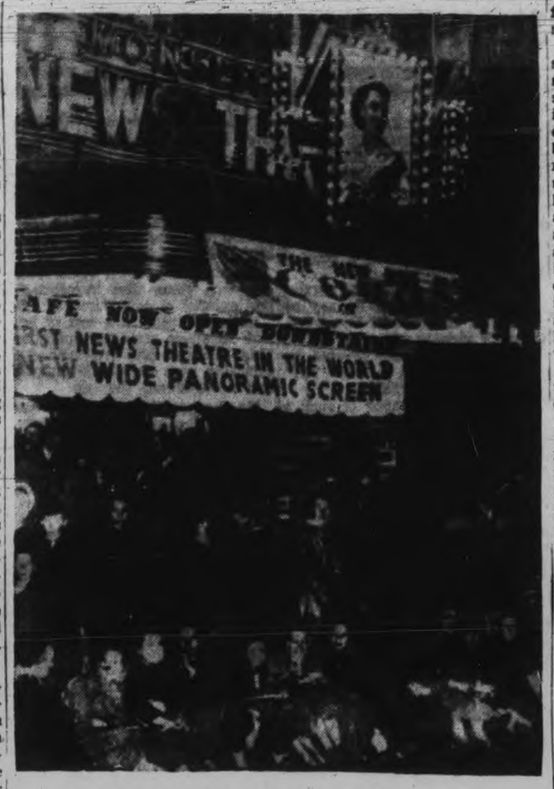
It is not easy to generalize on the situation in Africa. It is after all, a vast continent, with a great diversity of climates, peoples and political systems. The peoples south of the Sahara—the ones we are concerned with in this article—are in all stages of development from the primittive bushman of Southwest Africa to the considerably more advanced Negroes of, say, the Gold Coast.

VARIOUS APPROACHES

And each of the colonial powers—Great Britain, France Belgium, Portugal and Spain—has a different approach to the African problem. Generally speaking, Britain is the most liberal of the five in its colonial policy, though it is necessary to draw a sharp line of distinction between the Englishman at home and the Briton who has settled down for keeps in Africa. The former is likely to be pretty broad-minded in his attitude toward the Africans, the latter narrow but hard-headed with a tendency to judge the African more by his faults than by his virtues.

Although the French and the Portuguese are probably less color-conscious than the British, they are a good deal sterner in dealing with political opposition from the African side. The French will tolerate political change only within the framework of the French Union. And Portuguese colonial policy, too, is based on the view that Portuguese possessions must remain forever Portuguese.

Within these limits, the French give privileges to a small elite class of educated, pro-French Africans. And the Portuguese, for their part, have a similar satellite element called the "assimilados," or civilized Africans, who enjoy the same rights under the law as the white Portuguese. Through this shrewd technique of playing up to the educated few, the French and Portuguese have found it easier to maintain firm control over the uneducated masses.



The Belgians in the Congo do things a little differently, but they are firmer than the British in their handling of the Africans, and in their control of political movements. They are ahead of the other colonial powers, in the housing and social services provided for African workers.

MOST LIBERAL POLICY

It is a bit ironic that Britain, with a more liberal colonial policy than the others, should be having the most trouble with her African wards. But the changes that are taking place in the Gold Coast, in Nigeria and in the Sudan are almost certain to generate similar movements elsewhere. It can hardly be doubted that the French, the Portuguese and the Belgians will also, sooner or later, have to face a showdown with African nationalism.

The eruptions of last year have shown that African nationalism is no longer a problem that can be shrugged off lightly. The upsurge is, to be sure, still spotty and rather uncorrelated. But despite setbacks in countries like South Africa, where the draconian measures of the Malan government may keep the black man down for quite a few years, there can be no doubt about the trend in black Africa as a whole. The African, though still immature in many ways, is coming of age politically. He is increasingly restive under white dominance. And he knows that in the long run his superiority in numbers will be decisive.

In Africa south of the Sahara there are roughly 150,000,000 people of color and fewer whites than are to be found in Chicago. And more than 2,000,000 of the fewer than 3,000,000 whites in this vast territory are concentrated in the southern tip of the continent—that is, in the Union of South Africa. Even there, they are outnumbered by the colored people by more than four to one. White immigration will perhaps reduce the lead slightly in some places. But in no territory, including South Africa, is there any prospect that the whites can ever gain a numerical superiority.

Week-Long Talks

ATHENS (Reuters) — Week-long talks among the Greek, Turkish and Yugoslav general staffs opened today.

The talks are the first among the three countries since the three-power Balkan pact came into force last week. A common study of defence problems is the chief clause of the five-year treaty of friendship and co-operation.

Big Dragon Parade

HONG KONG (AP)—The mainland portion of this British colony on the doorstep of Communist China celebrated the Coronation today as 500,000 persons jammed the streets of Kowloon for a dragon parade. The parade featured a 180-foot dragon snaking through the streets.

Comes For Treatment

HAMBURG (AP)—Foreign Minister Hussein Fatemi of Iran arrived here by air today for medical treatment of a gunshot wound he received in a Tehran assassination attempt early last year.

Amid Bales Of Hay Minstrels Present Show In Omemee

Omemee gave the coronation a Canadian valediction Wednesday evening when an enthusiastic company of talented amateurs presented a modern minstrel show in the village's Coronation Hall—named for the 1911 coronation of George V. The auditorium was packed with people; and the Village Council had provided a good transformation of the stage. A new $600 stage curtain was in place, new lighting had been built in, and the stage ceiling lowered to provide better acoustics. The "Pigeon River Minstrels" did the rest.

There were twenty black-faced entertainers in the show, with interlocutor Scott Young arrayed for the occasion in grey hair.

The setting was unusual for a minstrel show. Bales of hay decked the stage and provided varying elevations for the performers. A fascinating back-drop had been painted. These, the colored lights and dimming rheostat made for some effective scenes.

There were many amusing skits and the actors had a pleasing air of informality. The choruses were vigorous, rhythmic and popular. Hits of the evening were local allusions, a quartet doing "Dry Bones" with a real skeleton as silent partner, and a hilarious trot-out of a big falsetto-voiced baby in a pram, sucking a quart bottle of milk and wielding an axe. Among the stage properties were an enormous length of shoes and real eggs which made a good mess in a couple of straw hats.

Among the stars were Harry Smith, Bill McKenzie, Keith Morden, Tim Stephenson, the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt and Bill Weir. They were the end men and chief choristers, along with lyric tenor Sherman Harrison.

The singing was especially good, both in solo and group, and in chorus. The chorus were: Don Blakey, Art Weir, W. Callingham, Earl Bulbeck, Ron Bullock, Jack

Surviving Siamese Brodie Twin On His Own Now

By ROBERG GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP)—It's up to Rodney now.

Medical science has nearly finished the history-making role it played in separating the Brodie Siamese twins—and in keeping one of them alive.

From now on, Rodney Dee Brodie will be traveling largely on his own along the uphill road his parents pray will lead to a normal life.

Television in the United States provides a glimpse of Rodney tonight with films taken last week.

The TV viewers will see a happy, smiling youngster, who greeted the photographers with a loud "Hi!" and a wave of his rattle.

It was the deep hope of such a normal life that prompted his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brodie, to consent last winter to an operation never before successful.

After the twins, joined at the head, were separated in a 12-hour and 40-minute operation Dec. 17, the first task was to keep both or one alive.

Twin Roger Dee died 34 days later without regaining consciousness.

Rodney teetered for two months between life and death. Then on March 11 came his 20th and most crucial operation. Surgeons succeeded in covering his exposed brain with skin grafts.

The danger of fatal brain infection was gone. The 20-month-old boy entered a new phase of life.

Rodney developed a sort of left-side paralysis after the operation. This condition has improved considerably with the aid of physical and occupational therapy.

He faces still more major surgery in a few months when doctors build a hard skull top of bone, plastic or metal to be inserted under the skin on his head. This will have to be replaced as he grows older and his head becomes larger.

When the top is in place, Rodney will have the physical equipment for reasonably normal life. He has hair on the front half of his head, transplanted from above his ears. There are deep scars along the sides of his head. Doctors say these will fade.

Rodney likes music, crawls, plays with toys and jabbers a few words to doctors, nurses and playmates in his ward at the Illinois Neuropsychiatric Institute.

Krilium SOIL CONDITIONER — Folium

Turns problem clay soil overnight into loose, porous, easily-worked "friendly soil". One treatment lasts for years. Prevents hard-packing and crusting, allowing germinating seeds to form strong healthy roots and to emerge freely and plentifully.

After Krilium treatment soil is easily cultivated, weeds pull out with no effort. Your hours in the garden become a pleasure with the elimination of back-breaking hard work — and results will surprise you.

Folium balanced plant food is a water-soluble powder on the 20-20-20 formula, (nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash). It is immediately and completely absorbed through leaves and roots, does not have to be "worked in". Use as a starter solution when seeding and when setting out plants. Stimulation is immediate and when most vitally required. Ease of application is a feature of Folium. Can be applied with sprinkling can or hose with siphon attachment.

ABBEY PROCESSION—Queen Elizabeth, flanked by her maids-of-honor, leaves Westminster Abbey following her Coronation.

Youngster Dies On Way Home

BARRIE (CP)—Eight-year old Bobby Arnott died in his mother's arms after a weekend of picnicking and fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Arnott of Barrie were concerned when Bobby did not show his usual liveliness and Mrs. Arnott had a feeling the lad was dying. Doctors confirmed her fears.

The parents, Bobby and his 11-year-old brother, Billy, went out for the day Sunday. Bobby was worse Monday and he was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Specialists diagnozed a malignancy and told the parents the boy would live only a short while. They made arrangements to take him home. As the car travelled along the highway Tuesday night Bobby died.

Label Comic Books Education Saboteurs

MONTREAL (CP)—Comic books and television were labelled Wednesday as "saboteurs" of education by delegates at the annual meeting of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation.

Canadians spend hundreds of millions on teaching, delegates said, and the least that could be done is to have the comic books written in "good English." Comics, the delegates said, are teaching the children the wrong kind of words at the most impressionable age.

Japanese Face Huge Deficit In Foreign Trade

By MAC R. JOHNSON
New York Herald Tribune News Service.

TOKYO— Free-spending Japan is moving blithely down the path to a $1,200,000,000 foreign trade deficit for the calendar year 1953.

And for the first time since the three-year-old Korean war began, the special dollars which came from procurement for the United Nations forces Korea and from the United States security forces in Japan will not be enough to bridge the gap.

But the man in the street does not seem to know about it, the Japanese press is not alarmed about it, and the new, unstable government of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida is not doing anything about it.

During 1952, Japan exported $1,271,000,000 worth of goods and imported $2,027,000,000 worth for a trade deficit of $756,000,000.

However, procurement for the Korean war and the defence of Japan, and money the American and other Allied troops spent individually in Japan totalled $861,000,000, which handily covered the deficit.

MUST EXPORT TO LIVE

But the trouble signal now is flying for a country that must export to live. For the first four months of this year Japanese imports have been steadily rising and her exports dropping.

Japan has exported only $377,000,000 in goods in this period while spending $764,000,000. If this dangerous trend continues, economists say that Japan's foreign trade will be $1,200,000,000 in the hole by the end of this year.

American and Allied orders are expected to total $700,000,000 to $800,000,000 this year. That would mean that even with windfall buying by the Allies—mostly the United States — Japan by the year's end will have to dig into its reserves for some $400,000,000 to balance its trade accounts.

One reason for the growing trade imbalance is the inability of Japanese industrialists to compete on the foreign market. Their prices for steel, aluminum, copper products, textiles, cement and commercial fertilizers are higher than the prevailing international levels.

OBSOLETE PLANTS

This is due not only to obsolete and inefficient plants and equipment, but to the backwardness of management which is away behind the times in quality control, cost-accounting practices, marketing research and the styling of goods for particular markets.

In addition, manufacturers find the domestic market is more profitable and attractive than the export field. That, economists say, may be good for individual manufacturers, but it hurts the nation as a whole.

There are ways to correct the situation, economists add, but it is up to the Yoshida government to lead the way.

They suggest that the government might provide credits for the modernization of factories. In addition, it could control imports and could allocate raw materials, favoring firms that manufactured for export. Credit controls could be imposed, favoring firms which support the national economy. There could be tax incentives for those who modernize their plants.

But austerity is politically unpopular in Japan, and the Yoshida government is weak. Mr. Yoshida's party has only 202 seats in the House of Representatives which is 32 short of a majority. The party is in power only because another conservative party, the Progressives, have offered support. However, that support is yet to be tested, and the Yoshida government could be toppled any time the Progressives withdraw from it.

2 Toronto Men On Trial In Gold Case

SARNIA (CP)—Two Toronto men who fled the United States in 1951 while out on bail on a charge of gold smuggling went on trial here Wednesday on another charge in connection with the case.

Eugene Volpe and Jack Pearl, both 41, pleaded innocent to a charge of possessing stolen gold in Sarnia Oct. 11, 1951, one day before they were arrested in Detroit.

U.S. authorities laid a charge of gold smuggling against Pearl an Volpe after their arrest. They were released on bail and authorities said they returned to Canada.

Gold smuggling is not an extraditable offence in Canada and the illegal possession charge was laid by Attorney General Porter of Ontario.

ARRESTED PAIR

U.S. custom officials, posing as prospective buyers, arrested the pair together with Joe Contino of Chicago. In Detroit, Contino pleaded guilty to gold smuggling and was fined $500 and given suspended sentence. Contino will be a crown witness.

Crown attorney S. A. K. Logan told the jury that the Crown's evidence was mostly circumstantial. He said he would attempt to prove that the two accused crossed the border with $10,788 worth of gold, believed to have been stolen in Northern Ontario.

Joseph Sedgwick of Toronto, Pearl's counsel, criticized the crown for failing to produce the actual gold alleged to have been the subject of the transaction.

The trial is continuing.

Restrict Use Garden Hose Lawn Watering

There may be some restriction in the use of garden hoses for watering lawns in Peterborough this summer.

This was announced by General-Manager W. Howard Powell at Wednesday's meeting of the Peterborough Utilities meeting.

Mr. Powell told the PUC that there had been a delay in arrival of equipment to be installed in the new filtration plant. As a result, he did not expect the filtration plant would be in use even by the first of August.

He said he thought a restriction of lawn watering was preferable to supplementing water from the filtration plant with water taken directly from the river and treated with extra chlorine.

Freed On Attack Charge

SIMCOE (CP)—Ross Furler and Leighton Winters, both 21, of Port Dover were acquitted Wednesday of a charge of assault with intent to commit rape. Police alleged a 19-year-old girl was attacked Feb. 2 in the grounds of the Norfolk General Hospital.

CORONATION TV FILMS FLOWN BY RCAF—First films of the Coronation are handed over at RCAF Station, St. Hubert, on the arrival of an RCAF CF100 Canuck Jet fighter, which streaked down from Goose Bay, Labrador, on receiving the films from an RAF Canberra Jet bomber. With a helicopter standing by with vanes turning, the films were immediately transferred; the helicopter landing on the roof of an adjacent building to Radio Canada in Montreal and the films shown on TV screens shortly after. Seen handing over the films are Flight Lieutenant Phil Etienne, Pilot, of Montreal, and Flight Lieutenant Russel Baxter, Navigator, of Valois, Montreal.

Find Fragment Of Peary Flag In Arctic Area

OTTAWA (CP)—A fragment of the United States flag that first was planted on the north pole has been found in the far Arctic by two young Canadian scientists.

With the historic piece of blue silk, the explorers found records of one of Admiral Robert E. Peary's polar expeditions on America's northernmost mountain 400 miles south of the pole.

Canada's defence research board announced Wednesday word of the discovery from its two scientists, who have been investigating the ice shelf bordering the northern coastline of Ellesmere Island, where Peary jumped off for the pole.

FOUND ON MOUNTAIN

The cache was found on Cape Columbia mountain by Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith, 30, of Ottawa, a glaciologist, and Robert Blackadar, 23, of Ottawa, a geologist.

In a letter written May 22 and just received by the board, Hattersley-Smith wrote:

"From the summit of Cape Columbia peak we recovered Peary's 1906 records and a piece of the silk ensign which three years later he flew at the north pole. The record looks as if written yesterday."

Millbrook News

Mrs. John McKnight, Mrs. Ethel MacMillan and Mr. George Raynes visited friends in Port Perry over the weekend.

Mrs. R. C. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. T. C Boon and Marybeth of Kitchener, were guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. Alex. Gilbert and Mr. Gilbert recently.

The Rev. and Mrs. Herman McConnell of Victoria, B.C., are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Bruce Ingham and family.

Essex Scottish Reunion

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Essex Scottish Regimental Association will hold a reunion June 20 for former and present members of the regiment. Roy Tobin, chairman of the roll call day celebration, said registration will start at noon. Maj. Joseph Cardy, wartime padre for the regiment who recently returned from Korea, will be speaker at a banquet.

Rain Slows Seeding

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Elgin county farmers will grow their largest crop of sugar beets this season if they can get them sown. Growers said Wednesday the weather has been so wet that only about one-third of the planned acreage has been seeded. Corn and bean growers have also reported difficulties in getting their seeding done.

$40,000 Fire In Fergus Stores

FERGUS (CP) — Fire raged through two stone buildings in Fergus' main business section Wednesday night, causing damage estimated at $40,000. Two stores and the local branch of the Orange Lodge were gutted.

A fire wall protected several apartment dwellers and a grocery store in a building adjoining one of the fire-swept stores.

The fire, believed to have started in the basement of Elmer C. Matthews' Canadian Tire Corporation store, gutted it and James MacQuarrie's barber shop next door, and the Orange Lodge above the barber shop.

Toronto Artist Stanley Turner Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Stanley F. Turner, 69, widely-known Toronto artist, died suddenly at his home here Wednesday.

A native of Aylesbury, England, he came to Canada when he was 18. He reached fame in 1918 with his work, Whizbang Corner, one of Canada's official war memorials.

An associate of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, he has pictures hanging in the Canadian National Art Gallery at Ottawa.

Ambassador Denies Welcoming Pupo

OTTAWA (CP)—Cuba's ambassador to Canada, Delein Pupo, Wednesday denied that he welcomed Cuba's ex-president Carlos Prio Socarras in Montreal last week at a political conference.

"I haven't been in Montreal in over a month," he said.

A report from Havana, Cuba, said presidential secretary Andres Domingo announced that dismissal proceedings have been started against Pupo and consul-general Guillermo Espinosa, for having welcomed Prio and other Cuban politicians at the conference.

Canadian Airwomen

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP)—Twenty-eight RCAF airwomen arrived for service at the RCAF No. 1 fighter wing here and the supply base at Langar. Others are serving in Europe, but this was the first time since the Second World War that Canadian airwomen came to England.

OTTAWA CELEBRATES—A page from English tradition was taken by the city of Ottawa during the capital's Coronation day ceremonies. Acting Mayor Dan McCann promises safe passage through the city's streets to the Queen's representative, Governor-General Vincent Massey, as the latter leaves Government house in the state landau for Parliament Hill. Seated opposite Mr. Massey in the carriage is his aide-de-camp, Capt. Nicholas Eden, son of Britain's foreign secretary. City clerk Nelson Ogilvie, on the right, holds a scroll pledging the city's loyalty to the newly-crowned Queen.

Mexican Police Bare Red Plot

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's largest newspaper, Excelsior, reported today that Mexican police have uncovered a detailed Russian plot aimed at Communist seizure of power in Latin American countries.

Success of the plot, it said, would turn Mexico, Central and South America into "another Poland and Czechoslovakia."

The independent newspaper quoted authoritative police sources as saying Mexico is a centre of Russian efforts to build up fifth columns throughout Latin America. Mexican Communists and political exiles from other countries were reported aiding in the plot.

Excelsior said its police sources reported the Russian embassy here controls 32 cells working throughout Latin America.

Mexican authorities caught one Red agent several months ago, the newspaper says. He carried detailed maps of the Pacific Coast and was turned over to the U. S. federal bureau of investigation.

Visitor To Omemee Heads 5 Generations

OMEMEE (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith had as guests last weekend Mr. Smith's father, John Smith; his brother William, and sister Mrs. C. A. Allen, all of Huntsville, and another sister, Mrs. Ella Kring of Lansing, Mich.

John Smith, who is 88, made the trip in order to be united with his four living sons and daughters. Altogether he has 62 living descendants four children, 21 grandchildren, 35 great grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren.

He was unable to join Robert Smith's branch of the family in a reunion last fall as head of the five generations. Twenty-three of his descendants are of that branch and include the two great-great grandchildren.

Jules J. Ethier

MARMORA (ENS)—The funeral of Jules J. Ethier, who died at Deloro on Friday, took place in Belleville on Monday.

The cortege left the Pinkston funeral home for St. Michael's church, where requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Buckley. Burial took place in St. James' cemetery, Belleville, with the Rev. J. J. Brennan officiating.

Pallbearers were chosen from the staff and employees of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co., of which Mr. Ethier was an employee for over a quarter of a century. They were Charles T. Nicholson, Michael J. Corrigan, John McCrodan, Sidney Sandham, John Aitchison and Harry Loveless.

Malik Sees Churchill

LONDON (Reuters) — Jacob Malik, Soviet ambassador to Britain, had a half-hour meeting today with Prime Minister Churchill at 10 Downing street. The meeting took place at Malik's request, but silence about the topic encouraged speculation that it might have had some connection with proposals for an East - West meeting, which Churchill is known to favor.

Found—One Coronet

LONDON (AP)—They cleaned up Westminster Abbey Wednesday night and found a glittering reminder of the Coronation parked under a chair—a diamond-encrusted coronet. Authorities believe it is the one which the Countess of Carrick lost in the abbey when she left hurriedly after being taken suddenly ill during the ceremonies. Lady Carrick has been asked to drop around to the police station and identify it.

DECORATIONS DISAPPEAR

The shields and penants that have decorated the main streets of Peterborough for the past week in honor of Queen Elizabeth's Coronation are now being taken down by the Fire Department.

STREET DECORATIONS

The colored lights and pennants used as Coronation decorations in the business section will remain until Monday when they will be taken down, it was decided by the Peterborough Utilities Commission Wednesday.

PLAN NEW GAS PLANT

The Peterborough Utilities Commission has engaged the D. H. Thorburn Gas Machinery Corp. of Hamilton for $500 to prepare plans and specifications for a new propane gas plant here.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Harold L. Garner, immediate past president of the Air Cadet League of Canada, will be among those from Canada attending the United States Civil Air Patrol conference in Cheyenne, Wyoming, June 5 and 6.

NEW DIAL NUMBERS

New telephone numbers for some 180 residents of the Bridgenorth area came into effect and use Wednesday. The area affected extends north from the fifth line of Smith township. Dialing continues from the Peterborough exchange directly.

SUBSTATION SITE

The Peterborough Utilities Commission Wednesday authorized payment to the city for purchase of a lot for the proposed new substation in the area of the Queen Elizabeth subdivision. The lot is on the north side of Bellevue St., 240 feet east of Highway 7, adjacent to the old Smith township fire hall.

Turn First Sod For Plant To Make Trailers

With H. B. McGinness at the wheel of the bulldozer, the first sod was turned today for the new H. B. McGinness Ltd. factory on Highway 7, just opposite Club Aragon. Actual construction of the building will start next week and within six months the company will move in.

Instead of the usual spade to turn the sod, Mr. McGinness rolled the first sod away with a small bulldozer. He was assisted in the opening ceremonies by Ald. Douglas Miller, acting mayor, Ald. John Dewart, chairman of city council's manufacturers' committee, and by Arnold Steele contractor.

Mr. McGinness explained that the first of two buildings to be constructed will have a frontage of 108 feet and a depth of 265 feet. The front will be a two-storey office building while the factory will be in one storey to the rear of the office.

The building will have no basement, but will be built on footings. It will be of laminated beams, cement blocks and light-colored brick.

Mr. Steele said he plans to get started next week on the construction, probably removing sod and then laying the footings. Plans call for complete construction within six months; the building will be ready then for the company to move in.

An increasing number of orders during recent years had given the company "growing pains", required a new location where the company may expand.

Besides the building just started, the company also plans a second building, 100 feet by 40 feet, just east of the new building, next spring.

The company's 40 acres will allow ample space for storage of trailers until delivery can be made.

Mr. McGinness bought out the old Fitzgerald and Co. carriage works on McDonnel St. in 1932, but it wasn't until 1935 that the company was named H. B. McGinness Ltd. At first manufacturing buses, truck bodies, refrigerating units, bread and milk wagons, the company is now manufacturing only trailers.

FIRST SOD WAS TURNED today on the new H. B. McGinness building on Highway 7, opposite Club Aragon. Work on the building will begin next week under general contractor Arnold Steele of Peterborough, and the building will be completed within six months. The company also plans a second smaller building which will be built next spring. Owner H. B. McGinness (right, lower photo) turned the first sod with a bulldozer. With Acting Mayor Douglas Miller, Ald. John Dewart, chairman of the city council's manufacturers' committee, and Mr. Steele, Mr. McGinness looks over the plans. A sketch of the new building is shown at top.

Protest Removal Of Decorations

Some protests have been raised by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce to the taking down of Coronation decorations that have lined city streets for the past week.

It was felt by the chamber that some of the decorations could have been left until June 15 to make the city more attractive to tourists.

The Fire Department are at present taking down the pennants that line the main thoroughfares; and the Utilities Commission plan to remove the colored lights Monday.

As yet the Chamber of Commerce hasn't decided when they will remove the shields, which are the property of the chamber.

According to PUC officials they haven't been asked by the chamber to leave up the colored lights. They are removing them Monday to avoid the maintenance problem of replacinng burnt-out bulbs and to prevent them from being damaged.

Thief Gets $600 Overnight At Gas Station

Slightly over $600 was found missing from the Keith Innes Service Station on Charlotte St. early this morning by the proprietor. It had been taken during the night from a drawer in the office.

The day's proceeds were kept in the locked drawer while an additional $100, untouched by the thief, was kept in a nearby safe.

Entrance to the station was gained through a back window. Another window was first broken and the second window unlatched through the first.

THEFT COINS

The thief then went to the drawer, pried the hasp of a lock off with a screwdriver, then helped himself. He left, besides money in the safe, 30 cents in the till and two rolls of nickels in the drawer.

According to Mr. Innes, a passerby would be unable to see into the service station to detect a thief.

None of the expensive tools of automotive equipment kept in the office was taken.

Discovering the theft on his arrival at the station this morning, Mr. Innes called police who are continuing investigations.

Fresh Meeting Seeks End To Quaker Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Union and management of the strikebound Quaker Oats plant at Peterborough met here again today with a conciliator of the Ontario labor department. Officials said it was too early to say how the talks were going.

Meetings began Wednesday with conciliator James Hutcheon. Some 350 employees, members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), struck April 22 for higher wages.

Frank Hughes, 68, Dies In Hospital After Crash

Frank Hughes, 68, Wallis Drive, Peterborough, died in Civic Hospital Wednesday following a two-car accident Tuesday night at Park and Lansdowne Sts. Hughes received a double fracture of the right arm, an injured back and undetermined head injuries in the crash.

His wife, also taken to Civic Hospital, is "as well as can be expected," according to authorities there.

She is under treatment for a fracture of the right leg, lacerations and abrasions. Driver of the second car involved, John Murphy, 18, of 289½ George St., was released after treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital for lacerations and a possible arm fracture.

Hughes died less than a day after the crash which occurred in Coronation rush traffic. He had been driving west on Lansdowne with his wife a passenger when he was in collision at the intersection with Murphy's car, northbound on Park.

THROWN FROM CAR

The driver was thrown from his car by the impact.

Rushed to hospital in critical condition by Nesbitt's Ambulance, Hughes died 21 hours later.

The driver was passing through the intersection with a green light when Murphy's car entered from the south. They collided near the center.

Hughes' car was turned around and pushed into the northwest corner while the youth's 16-year-old car went past the intersection, slewed around, and came to rest at the west curb.

According to the youth his brakes failed just prior to the accident.

Police Chief John Thompson said this morning, that charges, probably faulty brakes and careless driving, would be laid. No inquest will be held into the death of Hughes, Coroner Dr. Herbert Young said.

Force of the impact was illustrated in estimated damages to the two cars. Murphy's vehicle was damaged to the extent of $450 and Hughes', $700.

Labor Councils Plan Holiday

Plans were made Wednesday night for executive of the Trades and Labour Council (AFL) to meet with the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CIO) to plan celebrations for Labor Day in the city.

The two executives will discuss the holiday and plans will be announced soon.

The council also decided to send its secretary, Henry Nokes, to the Trades and Labour Congress convention in Ottawa in August. Delegates from similar council's in cities throughout Canada will attend the convention.

The Peterborough council was thanked personally by five guests from Toronto for their help in organizing recently the Peterborough DeLaval Company. These visitors were: Alex White, presided of lodge 717, International Association of Machinists, A. V. Roe Co., Toronto; Tom Johnstone, chief Stewards 'chairman, A. V. Roe Co.; Harry Gallanger, lodge finance secretary, A. V. Roe Co.; Pat McQuade and Dan Dean, grand lodge representatives from Toronto.

2,000 Hogs Dead

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of hogs dead or destroyed in southwestern Ontario's hog cholera outbreak has passed the 2,000 mark with the spread of the disease to three new farms, the agriculture department reported today. Twelve counties are affected.

The department said the new cases are at Woodstock and Bright, in Oxford county, and Stratford in Perth county. All cases have been traced to community sales barns.

Transite Pipe Again Meets With Opposition

Commissioner Dr. G. R. Langley at Wednesday's meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission charged that criticism of transite pipe for water mains was "part of the sales policy of the cast-iron pipe people" and that municipal officials had been "filled up with a lot of lies" about the merits of transite.

The charges were made following the commission's authorizing Chairman Fred Hills and General Manager W. Howard Powell to execute the agreement with the city to build a water main to Downer's Corners.

ASKS ABOUT TRANSITE

"I suppose you're going to use transite pipe on the job," Dr. Langley said to the general manager.

"I have no preference except that they told us at the municipal convention not to use it," Mr. Powell said.

"I'll bet it was said on the side," Dr. Langley said.

"No, sir."

"Why isn't it used in Scarboro township where the Johns-Manville Co. is located?" the chairman asked.

"I haven't the figures with me but, if my recollection serves me, they installed 20,000 feet of transite there," Dr. Langley said.

"No, I think they used iron pipe," Commissioner Richard Raine said.

SLEDGE-HAMMER TEST

"The trouble is that a man from one municipality doesn't use it because another man says he doesn't use it," Dr. Langley said. "We've put this matter off and put it off. The thing to do, as I suggested before, although The Examiner chose to treat my suggestion flippantly, is to go to the Johns-Manville plant and test it with a sledge-hammer.

"Transite is said to be delicate and has to be handled with extraordinary care. All I'm asking you to do is give it a fair test. I wish you could hear the rumors I hear about why it is criticized. I would repeat them here but I haven't the facts to back them up."

"We got an engineer's opinion from Gore & Storey," Mr. Raine said.

"Unfortunately, engineers, like other professions, are prejudiced and I'm afraid they were prejudiced," Dr. Langley said. "Woodstock saved possibly 15 per cent and Brantford 10 per cent in the costs of installing transite. I have a list of users here."

"You wouldn't want to use it in a main, would you?" Mr. Raine asked.

"Absolutely!" Dr. Langley said.

"Possibly I'd use it on a sideread but I wouldn't want to use it in a main," Mr. Hills said.

"I guess we'll have to have a change in the commission before we use transite," Dr. Langley said.

"Could be," Mr. Hills said.

In a telephone conversation with The Examiner following Wednesday's meeting, Dr. Langley quoted from The Weekly Enterprise, published in Scarboro, a story dated May 21:

"Scarboro's Marino Construction Co. is presently installing transite pipe water mains, made by Johns Manville Co., in Scarboro to serve residents in the West Hill area.

"The contract calls for 42,610 feet of pipe to be used for a supply line along Kingston Rd. and for laterals along streets running on either side of the double-lane highway. The project is the responsibility of Scarboro Public Utilities Commission of which Arthur O. Leslie is chairman and Ron Harrison is manager."

Endorsation Of Operation Of Pari-Mutuel Machines At Morrow Park Discussed

Members of City Council Steer Away From Approving Operation Of Machine At Harness-Horse Meets

City council spent half an hour Wednesday night assuring themselves that a Peterborough Turf Club session of harness horse-racing with pari-mutuel accommodation for betting did not cross the line of their authority and jurisdiction. Their conclusion was that the proposed twilight race meet Saturday, June 20, was a matter of interest and responsibility for the Turf Club and the directors of the Peterborough Exhibition.

And so they told the Turf deputation of Andrew Price, Jack Thompson and Don McGillis that with the sanction of the government of Ontario and warrant of charter nothing more was needed. Ald. A. B. Burrows commented that there was a moral aspect to race track betting, thus injecting a note that was probably in the council's mind from the beginning. It was a discussion which apparently warned against the sticking out of official necks where they need not venture.

SEEK GOODWILL

Mr. McGillis frankly said the Turf Club did not wish to ignore the council, and brush them aside. Besides, it would be well to have the goodwill and favor of the council if any squawks were heard, and "there may be some" Mr. McGillis said.

"I don't want to make 15c out of the racing with betting, but I can tell you the Exhibition Board is in the red and as one of the directors I'd like to see us get some money that we need. It seems to me that with a lot of people looking at television these days, something different has to be done to attract them. This is different and it is legal and we have the charter from the government of Ontario behind us."

Mr. McGillis was the voice of the Exhibition Board, and Andrew Price and Jack Thompson urged approval of the meet by the council.

GOV'T TAKES PERCENTAGE

"I don't know how it could be run better," Mr. McGillis said. "The government sends four men here from Toronto, and they practically run everything. They are here and they take a percentage of the gate and betting."

At the very outset of the discussion, Ald. Gordon Farquharson posed the main question: "Do they need the consent of this council?"

Criminal Case Set Over To Next Sessions

John Randolph Brown, 44, formerly of Lake St. and now a resident of Oshawa, will stand trial at the next general sessions of the peace on a charge of carnal knowledge involving a 15-year-old Peterborough girl.

At 4 p.m. Wednesday a grand jury, consisting of 11 men and two women, brought in a true bill against Brown, indicating that they believe he may have been guilty of the offence and in any case should stand trial. The indictment was for carnal knowledge, attempted carnal knowledge, and indecent assault.

Brown, a steamfitter by trade, is free on $2,000 bail. Trevor Clarke, counsel for Brown, asked that the trial be traversed to the fall sessions. This was agreeable to Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, QC.

It was the only criminal indictment considered by the grand jury.

EXPECT REPORT

At 3 p.m. today they are expected to bring in the grand jury report after making an inspection of public institutions in the County of Peterborough. Judge John de N. Kennedy, presiding at the general sessions, suggested that they inspect the jail Wednesday afternoon and later in the day and early today they could look over any public buildings in the county that they wished.

Sydney J. Black, city alderman, was foreman of the grand jury. Others were Edmond Border, 124 Rubidge St.; Ernest Bolton, Douro Township; Robert A. Grafstein, 623 Homewood Ave.; Frank Gillespie, 275 Thomas St.; Fred Kempt, Norwood; Joseph Morrison, Otonabee Township; Roy McColl, North Monaghan Township; Orville McConkey, Otonabee; A. B. Preston, North Monaghan; John Londerville, North Monaghan Township; Mrs. Shirley Oliver, Otonabee; and Mrs. Alice A. Wilson, 512 Aylmer St.

The petit jury, chosen Wednesday morning, have been dismissed until Tuesday morning when they will hear a civil action. The rest of the panel have been dismissed outright as there are no other cases for trial.

Charge Against Vacant Lots Part Of Cost Of Water Mains

The possibility that the Peterborough Utilities Commission might charge owners of vacant lots for the cost of installing new water mains when PUC services were requested was discussed at Wednesday's commission meeting.

The present policy is to charge water users 11 per cent of the cost of new installation for 15 years. If Wednesday's suggestion by Dr. G. R. Langley were adopted, half that charge would be made against owners of lots which were not serviced but were located in areas where new water mains were installed.

The question came up when two applications were heard for installation of new services: one from the Westbrook Co. for services to the subdivision on the former Stewart farm in North Monaghan township opposite Civic Hospital and the other from Schneider-Alexander Ltd. for the Cordach subdivision on Park St.

MUST BE ANNEXED

The commission notified city council that water and electricity would be available for the Westbrook subdivision, provided the property is annexed by the city and provided also that the company agrees to financial terms laid down by the commission. The Schneider-Alexander application was approved with charges to be fixed later.

It is the commission's policy to lay new mains only where returns from consumers, at the rate of 11 per cent of the cost for 15 years, will pay for the cost of installation.

Dr. Langley pointed out that, in some cases, development of new areas proceeded irregularly with houses scattered over a wide area. This did not permit an adequate return from consumers to pay the cost of installation. He suggested that if owners of lots which were not serviced were charged half the present rate it would enable the PUC to provide services to more areas which were being developed.

APPLY TO NEW AREAS

The policy would apply particularly to new areas where all the lots were not built on but, in any case, Dr. Langley pointed out, the construction of water mains would enhance the value of adjacent properties whether built on or not.

XXVI

And so we come to that fateful last day of January, 1952, when the King stood at London Airport waving his daughter good-bye as she and the Duke of Edinburgh set off on their flight to Africa and the Commonwealth tour they were undertaking in his place.

For 40 minutes the King stood bareheaded in a biting, wintry wind, and after he had waved what was to be his last good-bye to his daughter, he followed her plane with his eyes until it was no more than a faint speck in a gray sky.

Who knows what feelings were in his heart when at last he turned away—and what were the feelings in the heart of his daughter as she sped across the world on her Royal mission?

Twice within six months Princess Elizabeth had been called upon to endure parting from her father after a grievous operation, for which the nation's prayers were asked, when all her instincts as a daughter must have cried out to stay by his side.

This time, Princess Elizabeth was never to see her father alive again.

All over the world newspapers carried stories of the progress of the Atalanta, Princess Elizabeth's airplane, and her safe arrival in Africa, where she was met by 400 African chiefs resplendent in plumed headdresses and leopard skins.

The hearts of millions of ordinary men and women going about their humdrum tasks were daily warmed by the happy, carefree pictures of the Royal couple in their informal moments in the first few days of their great tour.

Pitcures of the Princess with her camera eagerly "shooting" lion, stalking through the jungle while a nearby guard moved with his rifle at the alert; pictures of her and the Duke of Edinburgh in the Royal Lodge—the wedding gift of the people of Kenya—joyous, unworried pictures, like those of any young married couple, of the Princess and husband enjoying the peace and beauty of their home.

But the sands of time were ebbing fast . . .

In Britain, King George was at his beloved Sandringham, scene of his birth, living a country life. The Queen and Princess Margaret were with him. Daily he enjoyed one of his favorite sports, shooting, with a few chosen friends from among his neighbors.

Tuesday, Feb. 5, was a particularly lovely crisp winter's day in Norfolk, and the King enjoyed one of his best day's sport. That evening he made arrangements for the next day, and before she said good night to him Princess Margaret suggested that he might like to make an early start in the morning.

The King went to bed and his valet brought him his usual night-ap, a cup of hot chocolate. The King wished him good night in a cheerful voice and settled to read a book.

✦ ✦ ✦

Across the world, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were spending the night in the picturesque Treetops, a four-room hotel some distance from their Royal Lodge, which is built in a giant fir tree overlooking a water hole so that its visitors may observe animals by night.

The Princess arrived wearing a bush shirt and brown slacks, and was afforded a magnificent spectacle of the big game of Kenya. When she arrived at the beginning of the forest trail she heard that no less than 40 elephants were gathered around Treetops. And later when she arrived at her "hotel" she was asked to climb the ladder slowly so as not to disturb one elephant who was by a pool only 10 yards away. Thirty-five elephants and 11 calves appeared while the Royal party were having tea, and after dusk eight rhinos were spotted.

It was around midnight when the Princess retired.

After breakfast next day she delayed her return to the Royal Lodge for an hour, enjoying the first sunlit moments of the African morning, amusedly watching the antics of a family of baboons which had climbed to the Treetops windows and were grabbing slices of sweet potato laid on the sills. Then she and the Duke set off for the Royal Lodge, unaware of the terrible news which awaited them.

✦ ✦ ✦

On that morning Feb. 6 there was silence in the King's bedroom at Sandringham. His valet, entering with his usual cup of tea, could not rouse him. Beside his bed, its bookmarker set, lay the book the King had been reading when he fell asleep some time before midnight.

At 10:45 a.m. the news of his death was announced.

And in one of his most moving broadcasts, Mr. Churchill revealed that the King had known that from day to day his life hung by a thread:

"The King walked with death as if death were a companion, an acquaintance whom he recognized and did not fear.

"In the end death came as a friend, and, after a happy day of sunshine and sport, after 'Goodnight' to those who had loved him best, he fell asleep as every man or woman who strives to fear God and nothing else may hope to do."

Truck Driver Is Acquitted

Though "inclined to doubt" the accused's evidence in a careless driving hearing Wednesday, Magistrate W. R. Philp dismissed a charge against Edward Ballantyne of RR 1, Peterborough following a lengthy trial.

The charge stemmed from an accident involving Edward Dafoe of 238 Margaret Ave., and the accused on May 4 at the intersection of Benson Ave. and Bennett St. There being no stop signs at the corner, argument was based on right-of-way and who had it.

Appearing for the crown, Dafoe and his wife testified about seeing the truck 75 feet from the corner while they were only 25 feet away Dafoe braked on the gravel road and stopped, he said, before Dafoe's car entered and claimed right-of-way. Furthermore he was only driving 20 or 25 miles per hour.

This testimony was corroborated by other defence witnesses, Douglas Loucks and William Clarke.

With the reference to Ballantyne's explanation of the accident from the witness box, Magistrate Philp told the crown insufficient evidence was presented and dismissed the charge.

According to the witness, Ballantyne's truck was doing about 40 miles per hour when he first spotted it. It was driving north on Benson while Dafoe was going west on Bennett.

City Constable Bert Howden established the point of impact 10 feet out in the intersection, contrary to Dafoe's evidence.

Ballantyne testified his truck was already into the intersection two feet into the intersection where he was hit by the truck.

Canada To Contribute 124 Army Trucks

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will contribute a total of 124 army trucks to four European countries this month under its North Atlantic mutual aid agreement, the army announced Wednesday. Sharing in the mutual aid donation will be France, Holland, Norway and Belgium.

The trucks are of the three-ton and 15-hundredweight variety, known as the "workhorses of the army."

All Four Political Parties Assured Of CBC Time

OTTAWA (CP)—All four national political parties are virtually assured of free time electioneering privileges on CBC networks in the next general election campaign unday by th CBC board of governors.

The board's main stipulation is that the national parties—which include the Liberal, Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit—nominate at least 66 official candidates spread across at least three provinces.

National parties with no representation in the Commons may also get some free time political broadcasting privileges if they meet the 66-candidate regulation, the board said.

This might leave the way open for such parties as the Labor-Progressive (Communist) group to invade the networks, but the board did not name this party specifically.

In addition, the board said it will allot free time to new national political parties "to bring to listeners an adequate presentation of the party's program and policies."

The time to be allocated to new parties "will be over and above the amount given to the existing national political parties."

It was impossible to lay down an exact definition of a national party, the board added, but it suggested the party should have:

REGULATIONS

1. Policies on a wide range of national issues.
2. A recognized national leader.
3. A country-wide organization established as a result of a national conference or convention.
4. Candidates in at least three provinces and a minimum number of 66 officially nominated candidates in the election campaign.
5. Representation in the House of Commons. Those without representation will get free network time if they fulfil the other provisions.

Reduce Charge Drunk Driving, Nerves Said Bad

Although he and a second witness attributed his alleged intoxicated condition to nerves, Harold McConnell of Hastings was fined $75 and $5.00 costs in Magistrate's Court Wednesday on a reduced charge of drunk driving.

After police officers testified the accused appeared drunk during investigations of a car accident May 9, McConnell explained "I was dazed . . . I daresay I gave the impression I was intoxicated."

HAD SOME BEER

This followed testimony of the defendant that he had consumed two pints of beer three hours prior to the accident and two glasses one hour before.

The accident occurred on Otonabee St. in the early evening. Investigating city police Constable Ted Stevens found the accused's truck straddling the centre of the road while a second car, bearing the marks of a rear end collision, was parked directly in front of it.

Found in his vehicle, McConnell smelled strongly of beer while his eyes were red and bloodshot, according to the constable. PC Gerald Emmons testified the defendant was "bleary-eyed."

EXPLAINS ACCIDENT

McConnell explained the accident for the court's benefit; how the line of traffic he was about to pull into suddenly slowed and how he crashed into the rear of a car. Bad nerves which always showed up in time of stress were responsible for his actions following the accident, he said.

In the light of the evidence, Magistrate W. R. Philp reduced the original charge of drunk driving to impaired driving.

3 Coronation Babies

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Three babies were born in the Woodstock district on Coronation Day. A boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skinner of Woodstock, and girls to Mr. and Mrs. John De Vries of Beachville and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Payne of Ingersoll.

Ready To Start Bursary Plan

TORONTO (CP)—The Atkinson Charitable Foundation today announced it will inaugurate a province-wide university bursary program to become operative during the 1953-54 academic year.

Aimed at encouraging university enrolment of secondary school honor graduates for whom higher education is impossible without financial assistance, the program has been endorsed by the six Ontario colleges participating. They are the University of Toronto, Queen's, McMaster, Western, Carleton College and the University of Ottawa.

Awards will be made on the basis of $400 for students living away from home and $200 for students living adjacent to the university.

Royal Link

OTTAWA (CP)—The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Milne have an affinity for the Queen. The first, Elizabeth Anne, was born Oct. 15, 1951, the day the Queen, then a princess, came to Ottawa. The second child, a boy, arrived Coronation Day.

Notes On City Council

City council Wednesday night:

Appointed Bert O. McLeod to the Civic Arena committee of management, succeeding James E. Gillespie, who retired.

Approved the acceptance by City Clerk Outram as property manager the low tender of Smith Brothers at $479 for painting the exterior woodwork at the Fire Hall.

Authorized the property manager to write John Russelle requesting him to remove logs "which he has stored on city property" on the west side of Water St., north of Mill St., by June 20.

Notified officers of the Family Court "that due to the increased office space they are now using on the ground floor of the City Hall, their annual rental will be $607."

Authorized City Clerk Outram to buy a Lix Wall washing machine at $250 for use in the City Hall, with the necessary cleaning compound.

Received a letter from the Minister of Labor announcing that R. V. Bradley has been appointed to confer with the Peterborough Civic Employees Federal Union and the council's negotiating committee "in an endeavour to effect a collective working agreement between them."

Received a cheque for $1,500 from the Civic Arena Committee to be applied on the account of the Arena debt to the city.

Endorsed a St. Thomas resolution asking the Ontario government to increase the statutory hospital rate for the care of indigent patients.

Gratefully acknowledged a cheque for $6,223.48 from the Board of Governors of Peterborough Civic Hospital as an unbudgeted excess received by the hospital from the Ontario government as a grant for indigent patient costs.

Received a letter from the Local Council of Women approving City Council's rejection of the $20,500 tender for Queen Mary Hospital, and urging that the building be not sold for less than its excess value of $36,000.

Referred to the finance committee a proposal of the Peterborough and District Labor Council requesting that this city's aldermanic voting procedure be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal elections in December.

Received a letter from C. B. Neal, president and general manager of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., expressing appreciation of the council's resolution of congratulations and good wishes on the recent occasion of the company's 25th anniversary in Peterborough.

Thanked the Ontario Department of Health for a $1,167.93 cheque as a donation toward the cost of the city's operation of the provincial laboratory at the City Hall from April 1 to June 30, 1952.

Authorized City Clerk Outram to interview representatives of all the oil companies for information as to how their business would be affected by enforcement of the bylaw requiring gasoline storage tanks to be placed underground.

Directed City Solicitor Huycke to prepare bylaws for the annexation of the property bought by H. B. McGinness Ltd. on the Otonabee side of No. 7 Highway, east of Downer's Corners, for a manufacturing site.

Also requested Mr. Huycke to prepare a bylaw for the annexation of the farm and home property sold by Hugh Stewart to the Westbrook Company of Toronto, north of Civic Hospital, for a housing subdivision.

Passed a bylaw authorizing the execution of an agreement between the city council, the Board of Health, Board of Education and Trustees of the R.C. Separate Schools providing for the assumption by the Board of Health of its services to all the schools in the city.

Granted a peddler's license to W. H. Chambo, 993 Ford Ave.

RICHARD M. FULFORD, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. Fulford, will receive his Doctor of Dental Surgery degree Friday at the University of Toronto convocation.

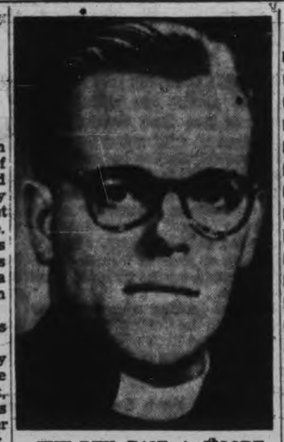
MANILA (AP) — Fire swept through two commercial blocks in Cebu City, seaport south of Manila, tonight with damage estimated by police to be at least $1,500,000. Several store owners were injured trying to save their goods.

First U.S. Jets At U.K. Base

FAIRFORD, Eng. (CP)—Fifteen B-47 jet bombers, each capable of carrying an atom bomb, arrived here today as the advance party of the first United States jet bomber wing to arrive in Europe.

The six-engined turbo jets screeched to a halt with parachutes billowing from their tails after a 3,120-mile non-stop flight from Limestone, Me.



By Friday night all 45 bombers in the wing will have arrived.

The first plane in, piloted by Col. Richard McCoy, 47, took five hours, 53 minutes for the flight, an average of better than 550 miles an hour. McCoy, an RCAF fighter pilot in the Second World War, commands the wing.

The B-47s, which will eventually replace the slower B-29s and B-50s, will be stationed in England on rotational periods of three months.

Brig.-Gen. James Selser, commander of the U. S. 7th air division here, said the B-47s will add tremendous potentiality to the U. S. air force "at a very strategic time because of what we know of Russia's air capabilities, both offensively and defensively."

Each bomber flew the Atlantic fully equipped for action and dropped a dummy A-bomb at a halfway mark. They carry a crew of three.

THE REV. PAUL A. MOORE, BA, LTh, was ordained a priest in the Anglican Church by the Bishop of Niagara in Hamilton. He will take up duties in St. Catharines at the mission church of St. Columba. He is a son of Mrs. B. C. Graham, 399 Walton St.

Young Actress Makes Terms With Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Most young actresses would almost break their necks to land a movie contract. Not Geraldine Page. She passed up Hollywood offers until she could come under her own terms.

Geraldine's story is a lesson in perseverance. She was a Chicago girl who wanted to be an actress. She went about it methodically enough, playing seven years in little theatres in Illinois.

After a number of ups and downs, mostly downs, she landed a role in Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke," which was being done by a little outfit in New York's Greenwich Village called the Circle in the Square. She and the show were a hit. Critics came to the little theatre and went away to write rave reviews.

SCOUTS CAME

The talent scouts from all the studios also came. Each had an interview with Geraldine and each got the same answer.

"I don't want to tie myself to any movie contract," she told them. "Wait until I make a big name for myself on Broadway. Then I can come to Hollywood on my own terms, instead of signing my life away."

The actress now recalls that "they looked at me as though I were crazy."

This season she appeared on Broadway in "Mid-Summer." The show was a failure, but it established Geraldine as the brightest new star of the theatre. She tied with Shirley Booth in the critics' vote of the best performance by an actress during the season.

CAME TO TERMS

She then came to terms with Hollywood. Her own terms, that is. She signed a deal with Charles Feldman that gives the stage top priority in her future plans. Her first picture will be "Hondo' with John Wayne. She plays a pioneer wife, the only woman in the cast. The picture will be made entirely on location in Chihuahua, Mexico.

My first view of Geraldine was not too impressive. She was testing for her picture role and was decked out in a frumpy mother hubbard. She had frizzy hair and wore glasses. Not much glamor there.

But when she took off the cheaters and began talking, I realized what a fascinating personality she is. She has a compassionate face and talks in a provocative manner. In the midst of a serious discussion, she is liable to say, "my face itches; they told me not to touch the makeup but I can't help it, it itches!"

EARLY ROYAL

A royal palace existed at Westminster at least as early as the reign of King Canute, who died in AD 1035.

More Careful Inquiry Urged For Immigrants

STRATFORD (CP)—A coroner's jury investigating a murder-suicide recommended Wednesday night a more thorough investigation into the background of immigrants before they are admitted to Canada.

The jury was investigating the death of Bronislew Milart, a Polish war veteran who died of self-inflicted razor wounds following the ax murder of Mrs. Florence Lupton.

The murder-suicide occurred May 21 on the Lupton farm home on the Embro road.

Milart was employed as a hired man on the farm.

George Lupton, husband of the dead woman, told of finding his wife lying on the kitchen floor and a few seconds later seeing Milart at the top of a stairway with ax over his shoulder, "acting like a wild man."

The jury investigating the death death of Mrs. Lupton found that she was killed by an ax wielded by Milart.

Just naturally better!

Plan Council To Resist Commercial TV

LONDON (Reuters)—Five well-known Britons today announced plans for a "national television council" to "resist the introduction of commercial television in this country."

Signers of a letter to the Times announcing this included Viscount Halifax, wartime ambassador to the United States, Lady Violet Bonham-Carter, vice-president of the Liberal party, and Tom O'Brien, secretary of the National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employees.

Television now is a monopoly of the BBC, which transmits over one channel during the late afternoon and evening. But the government has announced its intention to permit private and sponsored TV as soon as the pressure of rearmament eases enough to make required materials available.

30 APPLICATIONS

About 30 applications have been made for TV broadcasting licences.

The Labor party has opposed private operation but the Conservatives believe there should be competition.

The tabloid Daily Sketch says in an editorial that in Tuesday's Coronation televasts "not a word, not a picture was wrong."

"But how wrong it might have been," the editorial said. "In the United States, the Coronation was by courtesy of the advertisers."

"After Tuesday's wonderful feat, the people will say 'no sponsoring at any price.'"

The Daily Express expressed another view. It said "the achievements of the BBC on Tuesday would have been more pronounced still if there had been some competition."

Red China Offers UK Fat Trade Deals

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China is offering Britain fat trade deals of up to $2,250,000,000.

The offers have been extended by propaganda publications, but they are accented enough to make it look as though Peiping really means them.

It could be another manoeuvre aimed at widening the breach between Britain and the United States on the touchy China trade issue. Or it could be evidence that the Allied embargo is pinching Red China.

Certainly it is a change in tune for Communist propagandists.

One year ago all non-Communist foreign trade was scorned as imperialist poison which China no longer needed.

CHANGING TUNE

Four months ago Red propagandists asserted the Western embargo was a failure because it had taught China how to get along without imperialist commerce.

Now, the Reds are talking about the benefit of British-China trade and its long history and rich potential.

For example the pro-Communist weekly, Economic Bulletin, published in Hong Kong, dangled this bait:

"China is in a position to develop trade with the capitalist countries to the extent of $1,500,000,000 to $2,250,000,000 per year."

A commentator in the Peiping People's Daily was quoted by Peiping radio as saying:

"The U. S. will not open its domestic market on favorable terms. A growing number of business and political spokesmen in British and other countries have come to realize that the only way out for them is to adopt an independent trade policy, oppose the American blockade and promote equal and mutually beneficial trade relations between East and West."

NEED IMPORTS

The Economic Bulletin noted the British commerce with China had increased slightly in recent months, but said it was only a dribble compared to what it could be.

It said China's five-year-plan of industrialization had "created needs for imports from capitalist countries."

Accident Victim Piped To Grave

The funeral service for James Ross Jr., eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross of Detroit who died Sunday from a concussion received in an auto accident was held Wednesday at the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. B. S. Morwood, minister of Mark St. United Church officiated. The pallbearers were: Delbert Dorrington, Darrel Greenley, Lawrence Dack, Peter and Charles Dorrington and Robert Paul; all of Peterborough. Piper Robert Bannon of the CGE Pipe Band and Fred Robson of the Peterborough Pipe Band played at the service and at the cemetery. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Lovely Souvenir Of Coronation Prepared

A beautiful and enduring momento of the coronation was provided Belleville residents Tuesday in the form of a souvenir program of the events celebrating Coronation Day in that city.

A copy of the program was sent to The Examiner by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Printed on heavy glossed paper, the folder contains a charming lithographed portrait of Queen Elizabeth II, reproduced in full colors on the front cover. Her Majesty is shown wearing a white satin dress; embossed with a blue and gold filagree pattern. On her head is a diamond tiara, while a diamond necklace and pendant are suspended about her throat. Fixed to a blue sash draped from her shoulder is the star of the Order of the Garter.

Inside the program of all the day's activities printed in graceful script, Old English and standard type, and including the order of the drumhead service conducted on the Belleville Armouries lawn on Tuesday morning. Included is a form of litany and the prayers of dedication of all those present.

The printed program is an outstanding example of the printers' and lithographers' arts and a worthy memento of an historic occasion.

Child Kicked On Head Suffers Concussion

CAVAN (ENS) — Allen Armstrong, age 2, of Cavan Township, is reported to be in good condition today in Civic Hospital recovering from a concussion suffered Sunday.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Armstrong of the seventh line, Cavan. The mishap occurred Sunday when the children and Mr. Armstrong, accompanied by visitors, went to see the Armstrong stables. The children were left playing beside the stable door. One of the horses from a nearby pasture entered the yard and started to lick a block of salt. Young Allen ran up behind the horse and startled the animal, which began kicking and struck the boy on the head, knocking him unconscious.

Dr. M. E. Hobbs of Millbrook was called and he rushed the boy to the Peterborough Civic Hospital, where it was disclosed that the boy was suffering from concussion.

Claim Soviet Doctors Bring Dead To Life

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio claimed Wednesday that Soviet doctors have brought back to life hundreds of people several minutes after they were pronounced dead.

Soviet scientist Vladmir Negovsky has published a booklet in Moscow asserting that "there are hundreds of people in the country who have been returned to life by the skill and mastery of Soviet doctors," the broadcast heard in London siad.

Soviet scientists are finding effective methods to restore to life human beings who are dying or already have been dead for a few minutes," the booklet is quoted as saying.

CITE CASE

Negovsky's treatise, discussing "the restoration of the vital functions of the organisms in the state of agony or clinical death," cited the case of a 24-year-old girl brought back to life.

"The girl was brought to the medical institute in Stalino with her heart no longer beating, and after breathing had stopped for four or five minutes," Negovsky reported.

"The doctors immediately began their fight to return the girl to life. They gave her a drug and an infusion using a special apparatus. Heart action was immediately restored and soon normal respiratory action set in."

Negovsky's description of the girl's treatment indicated Soviet methods were similar to those used in Western countries.

Omemee School Pupils Celebrate Coronation

OMEMEE (ENS)—An impressive Coronation program was carried out by Omemee school on Monday afternoon on the southern slope of the school grounds overlooking Pigeon River with parents and Home and School members present.

A sacred service was conducted by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, assisted by the Rev. C. Richmond, while two Boy Scouts stood by with the scout flag and Union Jack and two Wolf Cubs with smaller flags.

A demonstration by a group of grade 1 and 2 children of the significance of the coloring and arrangement of the flag was followed by a choral number by grades 3 and 4 "Do Your Duty."

By the question and answer method a complete description of the Coronation procedure was given by boys and girls of grades 5 and 6. This was introduced and closed by a Coronation song.

Representatives of grades 7 and 8 spoke on the British Commonwealth of Nations, each covering one country of the Commonwealth.

The concluding number was "Land of Our Birth" by a high school student.

Of Interest to Women

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cupboard Cleaning Spree Results In Fruit Cake

If I am going to tell you about this cake we made I might as well confess at the outset that what we were doing in the first place was cleaning the cupboards.

We found Brazil nuts, glace cherries, cocoanut, raisins and currants, so decided that they were a pretty fair beginning for a fruit cake. What with a can of cubed pineapple and a can of lemon juice to add interest to the proceedings we quickly finished the cupboards and started looking through the fruit cake recipe file.

By that time the big bowl was under the beater and the shortening was being creamed and here's the recipe—for a wonderful light fruit cake—a good keeper too if you haven't too many hungry samplers hovering around.

SUMMER FRUIT CAKE

One-half cup each good shortening and butter (1 cup shortening altogether), 1¼ cups sugar, 1 teaspoon each vanilla, almond extract grated lemon rind, 4 eggs, ¾ cup sliced glace cherries, 1 cup cocoanut, ¼ lb. sliced Brazil nuts, 1 cup light raisins, ½ cup each washed and dried currants and sliced dates, generous ½ cup drained ½-inch pineapple cubes (canned), 2½ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice. Sift the flour and measure it and sift it with the baking powder and salt. Prepare the fruit separately and dredge it with ½ cup of the sifted dry ingredients. Cream the shortening and butter until light and fluffy and gradually add the sugar to it while creaming, until both are very light and fluffy, then add the lemon rind. Beat the eggs until light and lemon-colored — this takes about 5 minutes, then beat them into the creamed mixture. Now add the dry ingredients alternately with the floured fruits and nuts, folding in carefully until fruits and nuts are coated with the batter. Add the lemon juice. We used a 10-inch tube pan for this, but the medium-sized and small-sized standard fruit cake tins are just the right size for this batter too. Butter the pans, and line them with 3 thicknesses of waxed paper and butter again. Tuurn batter into pans. Bake in slow over of 275 deg. Fahr. Ten-inch tube pan requires nearly 2½ hours; medium-sized square pan 2 hours; small square pan 1½ hours. Allow to stand in cake pans for 5 minutes after removing from oven. Cool on cake rack.

It was our intention to store this cake for our summer entertainment, but a certain tall young man decided he should sample it. Surprisingly enough it sliced without any crumbling. Secretly I was delighted to taste it myself, so I could speak with authority on flavor and texture to you. The combination of fruits and nuts and flavors seems the perfect one to me. I hope you try it and have better luck than I did in salvaging some of it for future reference.

SUMMER FRUIT CAKE No. 2

(We used green and red glace cherries in this and used it as a sort of Coronation cake — filled with jewels as it were—on Coronation Day to serve with tea.)

One cup shortening—part butter or margarine, ½ cup shredded almonds, 1½ cups sliced fresh glace cherries—½ red and ½ green are pretty—2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each vanilla, lemon extract, almond extract, 1¼ cups sugar, 4 eggs, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup milk. Mix same as Summer Fruit Cake above—adding the milk after the lemon juice at the endd. Bake at 30 deg. Fahr.—a slow oven—for about 1½ to 1¾ hours if using 1 large-sized Christmas cake tin. It should be paper-lined and buttered of course.

300 Take Part In Stirling Festival

STIRLING (ENS)—More than 300 contestants took part in the music festival held Monday in St. Paul's United, St. John's Anglican and St. Andrew's Presbyterian churches.

A lunch counter was set up in St. Paul's lunch room to serve those from out of town.

Silver and bronze awards were presented to the winners at the close of each class. Gold medals were presented at the "Stars of the Festival" concert in St. Paul's Church in the evening.

PRESENTATION TO Miss Margaret McIntosh from the teachers of PCVS in the past 31 years she has been on the staff was made Wednesday evening at a dinner in her honor at the Kawartha Country Club. Miss McIntosh is seen at centre receiving her gift from Mr. James McNabb. At her right is Mr. C. S. Browne, principal at PCVS. Highlight of this occasion was the piping the guests to dinner in honor of Miss McIntosh's Scottish ancestry. Piper at the left is Grant Earl and at the right is James Wilson, both of CGE Pipe Band. Miss McIntosh is transferring to the staff of Kenner Collegiate in September.—

Miss 'Mc' Tendered Farewell By PCVS Staff And Ex-Staff

Miss Margaret McIntosh, a proud Scot, was piped to a seat of honor for dinner with fellow teachers and ex-teachers of PCVS on Wednesday evening at the Kawartha Country Club.

Miss McIntosh was being tendered a farewell by her associates and friends during 31 years on the staff of PCVS, and no greater thrill could have been added to the occasion than the skirl of "Bonnie Dundee" as the pipers led a procession to the dining tables.

"When I heard the pipes I marched with my ancestors" said Miss McIntosh in expressing her happiness. "This has been an evening that will warm the cockles of my heart many times in memory."

The pipers entertained after dinner with several numbers and a request from Miss McIntosh for "Blue Bonnets of Scotland." They began with the stirring "Road to the Isles", then followed "Where, Where Is My Hi'land Laddie Gone," "MacDougall's Lament" and a medley of Scottish songs.

Estimation of Miss McIntosh's service to PCVS was expressed by Principal Mr. C. S. Browne. "She is one person I feel is irreplaceable" he said. "In my opinion no person has made a greater contribution to education in the 126 years of secondary school teaching in Peterborough.

"We are letting her go to the Kenner Collegiate staff for the remaining years of her teaching experience because we think so much of her" Mr. Browne explained. Miss McIntosh came to PCVS to teach Latin and as the physical education director. Latterly she has been teaching only Latin and as conditions are now with the new collegiate in the city there would not be sufficient classes for her at PCVS another year.

Rather than ask Miss McIntosh to prepare to teach another subject after 31 years, Mr. Browne arranged her transfer to Kenner with principal Dr. Eldon Ray who had formerly associated with her on the PCVS staff and was well acquainted with her qualifications.

"I am particularly pleased to have connection with the school that bears the name of a man I regard highly," said Miss McIntosh. "Dr. Kenner always gave me such wise counsel when I was on his staff."

Mr. Browne said that one of Miss McIntosh's most important attributes was her tolerance. "She is the type both pupils and teachers are fond of."

Mr. James McNabb, another Scotsman, incidentally, was given an opportunity to express the feeling of younger members of the teaching staff toward Miss McIntosh. "There is no doubt we will miss her" he said. "She has been progressive, but with a tempering influence which we needed, always having in mind the standard of the school."

Gift from the teachers, a lovely piece of Doulton china, "Belle of the Ball," was presented to Miss McIntosh in a box trimmed with strips of the McIntosh plaid and a sprig of heather.

Miss "Mc" was deeply touched as she said "Thank you for all your kindness in coming and for your gift." She added: "Of course I'm sorry to leave PCVS—I've made a lot of friends there and I have a great many pleasant memories of my associations, but I'm looking forward to my new associations."

Mr. Browne and Miss McIntosh have been friends since their high school days in Vankleek Hill where they lived on the same street and played tennis together. Others at the head table were the teachers who have been longest associated with Miss McIntosh, several of them now retired, Miss Madge Lees, Miss Helen Gerrard, Mr. V. R. Henry, Mr. H. H. Graham, Mr. J. C. Rutherford and Miss Amelia Thompson.

The dinner arrangements were made by Miss Genevieve Fowler, Miss Margaret White, Miss Thompson, Mr. Howard David, Mr. Alex Shearer and Mr. A. Weames of the PCVS staff. All teachers who have been on the staff since Miss McIntosh joined in 1922 were invited. The guests, including wives and husbands of teachers, numbered 80.

CWL Holds Coronation Tea

A lovely Coronation Tea was held by St. John the Baptist subdivision of the Catholic Women's League on Wednesday afternoon in the school auditorium. General convener Mrs. George Malony Sr. and president Mrs John Duignan received the guests.

The decorations which featured flags, bunting and flowers, were in charge of Mrs. Fergus O'Connor who carried out her designs in the colors of the Union Jack.

Mrs. Gordon Doherty was in charge of the tea table which was covered with a beautiful handmade cloth and centred with a miniature royal cooach and the eight Windsor greys. This was mounted on a purple and gold pedestal with a picture of Queen Elizabeth II in the background. Silver candelabra with purple and gold tapers and shining silver tea services completed the table arrangement.

The small tea tables which accommodated the guests were attractively laid and each had an original centrepiece in the coronation theme Attending these tables were Mrs. Reg. Leether, Mrs. L. Fox, Mrs. John Cairns, Mrs. E. Sullivan, Mrs. J. Henry, Mrs. F. O'Connor, Mrs. Reg Mongraw, Miss Frances Collins, Mrs. J. Healey, Mrs. Lawrence Collins, Mrs. T. McGarrity, Miss Barbara Doleman, Mrs. J. L. Farrell and Mrs. J. Coleman.

Mrs. V. J. Anglesey and Mrs. E. Woodhouse replenished the plates on the serving table.

Tea pourers were Mrs. Frank Gulfoyle of St. Peter's sub-division, Mrs L. Armstrong of Immaculate Conception, Mrs. Leo Martyn of Sacred Heart and Mrs. Florence McCarthy, Mrs. W. J. Grady and Mrs. B. Monaghan of St. John's.

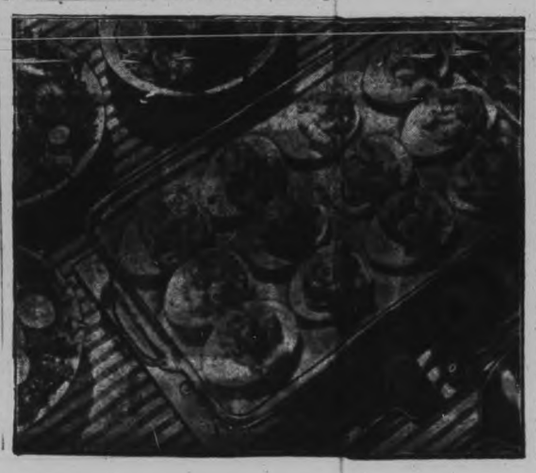
Mrs. J. Quirk was treasurer at the door and Mrs W. I. Blair was in charge of publicity of the tea.

A fruit cake donated as a draw prize by Mrs. Maloney was won by Mrs. J. Connelly of Rink St. Other draws were won by Mrs. Reg. Mongraw, Mrs. W. J. Grady, and Mrs L. Marsh.

Mrs. E. Sullivan played several piano selections during the tea hours.

Devil Eggs – And Bake In A Mushroom Sauce

For lunch on a June day, spread the sunny atmosphere at your table. How? With peppy deviled eggs, baked in a sauce of cream of mushroom soup.



This is a luncheon dish you can practically fix while you prepare breakfast. That is, you can cook the eggs then. And later, devil the yolks with zippy seasonings. Some tips on the eggs will help to give best results. Have the water simmering instead of boiling as eggs cook. Otherwise they may be tough. Cool the cooked eggs quickly by running cold water over them; this helps prevent yolks turning dark. And cool eggs are easier to shell and to cut.

Eggs baked in mushroom sauce, with a generous sprinkling of cheese, have real melt-in-your-mouth flavor. A crisp salad of greens, radishes and cucumber accompanies the eggs nicely. Last course, rhubarb betty with cream.

Baked Deviled Eggs with mushroom sauce.

6 hard-cooked eggs, cut in half lengthwise.
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Dash salt and pepper
Dash Worcestershire sauce
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed cream of mushroom soup
¼ cup milk
½ cup shredded, sharp process cheese

Blend eggg yolks, mayonnaise, mustard, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce; stuff into egg whites. Place eggs in a small shallow baking pan. Blend soup and milk; pour over eggs; sprinkle cheese on top. Bake in a moderate over (375 deg. F.) about 30 minutes or until lightly browned. 6 servings

DOROTHY DIX:

Erring Husband Continued Philandering For 24 Years

DEAR MISS DIX: I was married at 19, and two years later my husband began going out with other women. I became a nervous wreck, and finally began drinking. I know it's a poor excuse, and it cost me my happiness. My husband continued to have affairs with others, sometimes leaving me, then begging to be taken back, which I always did. I have long since given up drinking, but he hasn't given up his pursuits. Now, he says he is so much in love with a girl that he wants to divorce me. I love him so much I can't bear to give him up. What shall I do? I am 45, but look much younger, and in spite of everything have always managed to keep my appearance. We have four children, two married, two single.—L. M. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

LET THIS PHILANDERER GO

ANSWER: You have put up with an unfaithful husband for 24 years, yet you still expect to find happiness with him! Your own lapse from grace was unfortunate, but you can be thankful it was of short duration, and that you overcame the weakness. It's doubtful if this had anything to do with your husband's continued infidelities. He might blame you, but if he didn't have one excuse, he'd find another. He is incapable of loyalty, honesty or decency—a fact that must surely be evident to you after all these years. You can probably keep him by refusing the divorce, but happiness with him won't come until he ends his philandering. Letting him go would bring peace of mind, which you'll never have otherwise.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 16 and in the last year of high school. In the past year I have been going to a church other than that in which I was raised, and would like to join it. My mother, however, objects. Do you think I would be right in going ahead, anyway.—A READER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It would be best for the present if you continued attending your family's church. You are too young to make so serious a decision. By the time you are 18, if you still hold the same opinion, discuss the matter again with your mother, and also seek the advice of your present clergyman, and one attached to the church you favor.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Though I'm 13, my father persists in punishing me as if I were a child. At my age a girl is grown up and shouldn't be expected to obey her parents at all times. Last week I had to stay in for several days because of disobedience. I sneaked out to a party I had been forbidden to attend, and when I came home Dad was waiting for me. He said it wasn't the first time I had pulled the same trick (which is true), so he proceeded to spank me. That's the first time I've been punished like that since I was a child.—J. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Hurrah for Dad! A father who refuses to be bamboozled by his teen-age daughter deserved an accolade. Too many parents laugh of incidents like this, instead of taking drastic steps.

If you persist in acting like a child, you deserve a child's punishment. Believe me, there's nothing adult in sneaky dating. And remember, the Commandment doesn't specify that children honor their parents to the age of 13. There's no age limit set.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What is the correct way for my son to address his uncle, who is a dentist? One nephew calls him "Uncle Doc." It doesn't sound right to me. I prefer "Uncle Ted."—MRS. C. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Right you are! "Uncle Ted" would be correct.

Britons Return To Earth After Big Spree

LONDON (CP)—Britain sank slowly back to earth today.

John Bull realized that though the melody may linger on, the bands have stopped playing.

With a more sober eye, he took in the debris left in the wake of Tuesday's £100,000,000 spree heralding the arrival of the new Elizabethan age.

Some laughed. An evening news cartoon showed sweepers digging into mounds of rubbish around the base of a Trafalgar Square lion. One sweeper says: "If SOME people had reached the top of Mount Everest, those Abominable Snowmen would be shifting toffee-papers and ice-cream cartons right now."

A David Low cartoon in the Manchester Guardian, entitled "Morning After," showed a stern face labelled "Reality" talking from a television set, leaning drunkenly in a corner before a sprawled group of revellers.

The London Times, in an editorial, allowed that the people had earned a holiday. "But," it added, "all holidays must come to an end. The stands have to be dismantled, the decorations removed, and the plain world bared once more. It is not a moment too soon. The British people have had a holiday from reality long enough."

"This great nation . . .can give to the words 'Elizabethan Age,' a new meaning: Christian values re-established, morals reasserted, conscientiousness revived, energy renewed, and national unity restored. The coronation ceremonies will have meant little if they do not mean this."

After days of little but Coronation news in their papers Londoners again were reading about the everyday world—more trouble in Kenya, the political crisis in France, another in Israel, murders, atomic tests in Nevada, rocket tests in Australia.

Plans were being made for a gigantic rummage sale—a b h e y chairs, stools and carpets, brocade, plastic helmets and roses, eight pairs of lions and unicorns, each weighing 500 p o u n d s, wooden crowns, tassels, poles, chicken wire and the 40-foot-high cage around Eros' statue in Piccadilly Circus, possibly suitable for a pet giraffe.

J. Brown Heads Bancroft Lions

BANCROFT (ENS) — A new slate of officers was elected at the Monday night meeting of the Bancroft Lions held at Hotel Bancroft.

They are: President Jim Brown; 1st vice-president Art Tomsett; 2nd vice-president Ellis Mather; 3rd vice-president Reg Wiggins, secretary Art Hewitt; treasurer Chet Wark; tail twister Ray Tomkins and Lion tamer Reg Wallis. New directors are John Hawkins and Bob Kellar.

On recommendation of Gordon Minty of Peterborough YMCA, who was present at the meeting, it was decided to engage a Peterborough boy, Scott Pearton, as swimming instructor for the season.

Welfare committee chairman Alec Smith announced that glasses had been made available to certain needy children and that free eye examination would be arranged in six more cases.

Baseball committee chairman Benny Shapiro said actual work on the new baseball ground was proceeding well.

Buckhorn WI Hears Dr. T. E. Currier

BUCKHORN (ENS)—The Women's Institute met in the Community hall on Monday evening. President Mrs. H. Shearer was in the chair. Mrs. T. Mason introduced the guest speaker, Dr. T. E. Currier of Peterborough. Dr. Currier discussed "Mental Health" and answered questions. Mrs. R. Chesney thanked the speaker and lunch was served by the committee in charge.

During the business Mrs. J. Hill and Mrs. G. Bolton reported on the banquet of the Children's Aid Society that they attended in Peterborough.

Arrangements were made for the coming bazaar and tea. The secretary was instructed to extend an invitation to Mrs. Moore to attend the August meeting. Details concerning transportation to the district annual at Trent River in June were completed.

Mrs. Wilcox gave an interesting demonstration on folding table napkins and Mrs. B. Hall's name was drawn to give the next demonstration.

Always Home

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (CP)—The "United" soccer team in the New Zealand senior reserve competition has been granted permission to play all its matches at home. All members of the team are inmates of the Paparua prison.

Candidate Says Debt Paid To Society

VANCOUVER (CP)—John Perdue, president of the British Columbia Social Credit League, said Wednesday night that a "foolish mistake" he made 25 years ago while seeking work got him into trouble with the law.

He said he had paid his debt to society and is confident the people of the province will "place Christian principles before political expediency."

Mr. Perdue, a candidate in Mackenzie in the June 9 provincial election, made his statement in a radio broadcast from a Vancouver station. He was replying to a charge made by Dr. W.N. Kemp at a political meeting that Mr. Perdue "has been convicted on more than one occasion of obtaining money under false pretences and similar crimes in Vancouver." Dr. Kemp is running as an Independent in Vancouver-point Grey.

Mr. Perdue said he came to British Columbia from Ontario 25 years ago, had difficulty getting a job, and "foolishly" used a licence obtained from a friend for a job for which he was qualified but unlicenced.

He said:

"I received $50 in advance as expense money for the position, and proceeded to buy clothing and other items necessary to undertaking the job. But before I could start work it was found out that the licence was not mine and I was charged with obtaining $50 under false pretences.

"Because I did not have the money to return, I was sentenced but later I was unconditionally released without having served my full time. This was 25 years ago and I have paid my debt to society."

Mr. Perdue said he is returning to Mackenzie to continue his campaign. He repeated a statement made Monday that he has called an early meeting of the board of the Social Credit League and "if it is the opinion of the board that I am detrimental to the movement in any way, I shall immediately tender my resignation as president. . ."

Ex-Hamilton Woman Honored By Queen

LONDON (CP) — Mrs. Ronald S. Cumming, a native of Hamilton, Ont., was made a Member of the Order of the British Empire in the Queen's June 1 honors list, it was learned today.

Mrs. Cumming received the honor for service under the auspices of the Victoria League, where she is chairman of the literature committee.

Her mother, Mrs. William Hendrie, lives in Hamilton. Two brothers, George and William, live in Hamilton and Toronto. Mrs. Cumming left Canada 28 years ago.

The Victoria League's Canadian counterpart is the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, with which the league is affiliated.

Endorsation

Gradually a negative answer emerged and when the members convinced themselves of their opinion they simply told the deputation the twilight meet was not their affair.

Mr. Price explained the charters in the province, six of them that permit betting on the gigs. "We feel we should have the permission of the council rather than take it all into our own hands. These race meets are operating in many western Ontario towns, and have been for some years: New Hamburg, Woodstock, Stratford, Tillsonburg, Strathroy."

CONTROVERSIAL SUBJECT

"I'd like to help the Exhibition board, but race track betting is a controversial subject, and before I'd go farther I'd want full information about the legal aspects," Ald. Burrows said.

With gathering certainty that the Orpen Syndicate charter, purchased some years ago from local interests, covered the legal phases of the meet, the council was veering toward "no action".

Said Ald. Syd Black: "I don't see what we could do to stop it, if we wanted to, if they have the sanction of the provincial government."

Mr Price said the session would be frome 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. (Premier Leslie Frost has held out in his opposition to night racing with the betting machines.)

Mr Thompson provided other information and remarked that the council might go out of their way a bit to give permission for the racing.

Ald. Black said: "Let the Turf Club and the Exhibition Board settle it between themselves, so long as we don't get embroiled in it."

As to Ald. Burrows lifting of the eyelid, figuratively, about the element of morals, City Solicitor Huycke commented: "You don't need to worry about that. Any moral aspect will be popped right on to the Exhibition Board."

A motion by Aldermen Black and Burrows dismissed the proposal of the deputation. As to any financial risk, that was a matter for the Turf Club and Exhibition Board.

"Let the Turf Club take the risk with the Fair Board, and we don't take any responsibility whatever." Ald. Black said. "This council is in no way involved in it."

Dr. Beauchesne To Be Candidate

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, who spent 32 years in the Commons, is going to try to enter the House as an elected member for the first time.

The 76-year-old retired clerk of the House, recognized as Canada's top authority on parliamentary procedure, said today he will be Progressive Conservative candidate in Ottawa East in the coming general election.

He would oppose Jean T. Richard, Liberal, who has held the seat since 1945.

Dr. Beauchesne indicated he has been assured of the nomination at a constituency convention June 15, his 77th birthday.

Truck, Two Cars Collide, Damage Slight

Slight damage was caused in a three-vehicle accident at the intersection of Water and Hunter Sts., Wednesday.

A truck driven by Thos. Robertson of 265 Bethune St., while making a left turn into the post office, was struck by a passing car driven by Charles Hull of RR 2, Lakefield.

Backing away from the accident, Hull then crashed into the front of a second car driven by Leo John Collins of 121 Lock St. which was stopped behind as a result of the first accident.

Damage was estimated at $40 to the Robertson truck, $45 to Hull's car and $10 to Collins' vehicle.

A second accident between a car and motorcycle resulted in $30 damage to the car, driven by Lloyd Little of 601 Rubidge and $15 to the cycle driven by Bruce Baker of 14 Cricket Place.

Little was northbound on Betnune St. and crossing Hunter when Baker, riding east on Hunter, crashed into the side of the car. He was not injured.

Jack Cooke Pleads Guilty

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, pleaded guilty on behalf of the baseball club today to a lottery charge, laid after he gave away prizes to increase attendance at games. The club was fined $250.

Charges against Cooke and four of his associates were dismissed. The club was charged May 26 under the Criminal Code lottery section.

A similar charge was laid against Ottawa Athletics of the same league last year when the club gave away a bag of nickels. It was dismissed when the court decided it was not worded properly.

Will Hold Father Till Boy Located

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Richard Scudds, 27, acquitted last year on a charge of murdering his five-year-old son after he claimed the boy was being cared for by friends, today was ordered held in jail until the boy is produced.

"I have no alternative but to commit you to prison for your whole life if necessary," a judge told Scudds when he refused to give details of his son's whereabouts.

Scudds has been ordered to deliver the child into his wife's custody. He already is serving a jail term for failing to maintain his wife.

Driver Found Guilty When Cyclist Hurt

Found guilty on a charge of careless driving, laid after a Lindsay girl bicyclist was injured April 16, Russell W. Clark of RR 1, Ida, was fined $10 and $14 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp today.

The accident occurred after Clark made a right turn from Dobbin Ave. onto Charlotte St. The cyclist, Victoria Domilka, was riding down Charlotte in the opposite direction to Clark, and ran into the car's left side.

According to witnesses, Mrs. Anna Taylor of Clonsilla Ave., and George Fettes of Armor Rd., Clark's car was well over on the south side of the road when he made the right turn to go west.

Clark and his passenger, Douglas Golloher, both said she was riding with her head bent down and failed to see the turning car.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, claimed that "contributory negligence on the part of the girl doesn't excuse carelessness," while Magistrate Philp found the accused guilty for not noticing the cyclist soon enough to avoid an accident.

Blaze Extinguished In Chicken House

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Firemen were called to the home of Ernest Archer, about three miles north-east of town, shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday when a blaze in a chicken house threatened nearby buildings.

The blaze in the building, located on the grounds of the powerhouse, was extinguished without difficulty and damage was light.

Cause of the fire is unknown as the building has not been in use.

Amid Bales Of Hay

Brown, Ab. Wheldon, Dick Vaughan, La Verne McKee, Jack Smith, Neil Skuce, Glen Corneil and Roger Northey.

Director, producer and accompanist was Ted Roos Vic Gray painted the back-drop and handled the lights. The entertainment was under the aegis of the Omemee Chamber of Commerce The Rev. Charles Richmond gave introductory comments before the curtains parted.

The show is being repeated Friday night. Its zip, whetted by the first performance and the amusement and good singing, will assuredly call for repeats. An admirable, enjoyable show.—T.J.A.

Young People Returning To Church Fold

HAMILTON (CP)—Young people in Ontario are coming back to the United Church as members of new churches in city suburbs, Rev. Dr. S. B. Stokes, superintendent of home missions for Southern Ontario, said today.

He told the Hamilton conference of the church that there were encouraging signs in suburban areas. Less than 10 per cent of the members of official church boards being set up had had previous experience.

Presbyteries reported new churches under construction or being considered. Hamilton presbytery had five, Halton two, Niagara one and a Sunday school was under construction.

The Rev. J. Breckenridge, head of hospital chaplaincy for the conference, said a six-weeks' clinical training course has been arranged for ministers. This would show the problems of physical illness as a basis for spiritual work.

TASK DIFFICULT

The Rev. Harold Watts of Niagara Falls, chaplain to United Church members on the hydro project, said his task was made difficult by shift work and the numbers of men who lived at some distance from the project.

Dr. Harvey G. Forster, superintendent of All Peoples' Mission, Niagara, said foreign language services were being conducted in that area for older Italian, Hungarian and Ukranian-speaking persons. In Hamilton, similar services were held for Slavs and Chinese.

The conference accepted its share of $526,000 towards the 1954 objective of the church's general council, and added $1,500 as a cushion. The general council objective is $4,000,000.

Objectives for each presbytery are: Brantford, $82,000; Bruce, $29,500; Guelph, $83,500; Haldimand-Norfolk, $35,750; Halton, $33,500; Hamilton, $162,000; Niagara, $78,250; and Sudbury, $23,000.

Traffic Victims Said Improved

Two victims of recent traffic accidents were reported improved by Civic Hospital authorities today.

Delcie Clements, who was injured in a motorcycle-train crash Saturday, is beginning "to show some signs of improvement." The 15-year-old cycle passenger, thrown 35 feet when hit by a train, suffered skull and jaw fractures and internal injuries.

William Olson of Toronto, one of a family of three hurt near Bewdley Friday night when their car left the road, is also reported in better condition. He received head and leg injuries in the mishap.

His wife and two-year-old daughter, also injured, are in satisfactory condition.

Canada's Population Stands At 14,692,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's population stood at 14,692,000 at March 1 this year, an increase of 68,000 over the previous three months and a jump of 376,000 compared with March 1 last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The December-March quarter usually shows a smaller gain than other quarters. The 68,000 figure compares with increases of 90,000 from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1 last year, 104,000 from June 1 to Sept. 1, and 114,000 from March 1 to June 1.

The latest estimate indicates a gain of 683,000 or 4.9 per cent in the 21 months from June 1, 1951, the date of the last census which recorded a population of 14,009,000.

France Still Debates Mendes-France Claim

PARIS (Reuters)—The French National Assembly today resumed debate on the claims of Pierre Mendes-France to become premier—a post that has been vacant for 12 days. Observers here said they doubted if his bid would succeed.

Mendes-France, 46, a Radical, told the assembly Wednesday that if invested as the 19th post-war premier, he would embark on a program of austerity which would lessen France's dependence on the United States.

Big Group

OSLO (CP)—The Norwegian Radio Relay League which has about 1,000 members celebrates its 25th anniversary on July 3. The league includes 730 licensed amateur radio operators, or "hams."

Frank Hughes

The death of Frank Hughes has deeply affected the sympathy of his hundreds of friends here in the city and district of Peterborough. He was endowed with a gift of friendship, from his genuine interest in people, an attractive personality and cheerful optimistic nature. Wherever he went he made friends easily. Many of them are in Edmonton where he was with Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. for 28 years.

Mr. Hughes was born in Dummer township, son of the late John Hughes and his wife, Eliza Crowe. He was a veteran of the Boer War, having served with the Canadian force in the South African campaign of 1900-01.

Eventually after his return home, he went to Edmonton and for years had a barbershop concession in the McDonald Hotel. In a comparatively short time he was widely known in the Alberta capital. He was particularly interested in the sports, played a good game of golf and curling, was an ardent fisherman and spent a lot of his time promoting athletics.

Finally he retired from his business in Edmonton, but his time of leisure appears to have been rather brief. One of his friends was the manager of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Co., who persuaded him that he was naturally adapted for that field of salesmanship. Mr Hughes verified that percipient estimate by exceeding the $100,000 mark of production in his first year with Manufacturers Life. His residence in Edmonton extended his acquaintanceship widely in Alberta. A few years ago on revisiting that city he was recognized at a baseball game by a radio announcer who halted his routine to announce Mr. Hughes' presence, requesting him to stand up and take a bow from his old friends.

In the West he became active in the Liberal party and was for years associated with James McKinnon, who became federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, and is now a member of the Senate of Canada. He retained his political connections when he came back to the east, 15 years ago and was for some years a member of the management committee of the Ontario Liberal Association. Frank Hughes and Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, had been warm friends a long time.

During recent years Mr. Hughes had reduced his outdoor pastime to less strenuous rewards of fishing, especially up around Buckhorn and Burleigh Falls.

Mr. Hughes was prominent in the Masonic fraternity of Peterborough as a member of Royal Arthur Lodge, Corinthian Chapter Royal Arch Masons, Moore Preceptory Knight Templar and Rameses Shrine, Toronto. He leaves his wife, the former Verna Elliott, and daughter, Mrs. John Roper (Betty), and grandson, John Francis Roper; his brother, Chris Hughes, and sisters, Mrs. Bert Hunter (Fannie), of Peterborough, and Mrs Andrew Ross (Dora), Chicago.

The body is resting at the Comstock funeral home, Rubidge St., where the service will be at 2 p.m., Saturday, conducted by Canon Walter Gilling, of St. Luke's Church. Burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Dr. J.W. Spinks Heads Chemical Institute

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Dr. J. W. T. Spinks, 46, of Saskatoon, has been elected president of the Chemical Institute of Canada, it was announced today at the opening of the 36th annual conference. He succeeds Dr. R. S. Jane of Montreal.

F. R. Rowzee, 45, of Sarnia, Ont., was elected vice-president.

Dr. Spinks is head of the department of chemistry at University of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Rowzee, born and educated in the United States, moved to Sarnia in 1942 to help start Canada's synthetic rubber program and in 1951 was named vice-president and manager of Polymer Corporation, Ltd.

Hike, Program Held Coronation Night

BRIDGENORTH — About 20 scouts, cubs and explorers hiked to the beaver banks Coronation night under the leadership of the Rev. D. P. Morris, assisted by Scoutmaster Sgt. Walter Gatehouse and his wife. Sgt. Gatehouse recently returned from Germany.

The program included a softball game, marching, a sing-song which included the nation anthems, lunch, a beacon fire, a talk on the Coronation and a display of fireworks.

Before dispersing, the boys, girls and leaders linked hands around the fire and sang Auld Lang Syne and Taps.

Fined $1,000 For Contempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, Washington mystery man and influence-peddler, was fined $1,000 and given a year's suspended jail sentence today for contempt of Congress. The judge said the sentence was light because Grunewald, in refusing to answer questions before a congressional committee, had been following the bad advice of his counsel.

Grunewald, who received large sums of money for introducing people in the right places in Washington, was charged after refusing to talk before a House of Representatives committee investigating tax scandals in 1951.

Brandon Fears River Flood

BRANDON (CP)—Families in the low-lying areas of Brandon today are anxiously watching the rapidly-rising Assiniboine river, which has swollen almost five feet in three days of heavy rainfall.

The river level today stood at 16.11 feet, compared with 12 feet on Monday. Flood level is 18 feet.

Shortly before midnight last night, Chief Constable Harry Collister issued a warning urging families situated near the river to be on the alert and ready to evacuate their homes. About 50 families are affected. The danger to countless others in Brandon and rural points grows as heavy rains continue to fall.

Torchlight Procession

WINNIPEG (CP)—A torchlight procession was a feature of the 18th annual opening of the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes at St. Boniface. The shrine, first opened in 1936, is a replica of the world-famous grotto of Lourdes, France.

OLA Juniors Drill

The Peterborough Pats have a big practise session in Miller Bowl tonight at 8:30 with all players to be on hand. They are preparing for their opening OLA junior "A" home game here Saturday night against the strong Brampton squad, last year's Canadian junior champions and Minto Cup holders.

Plans are underway to stage an opening parade, with all the whoop-de-do which usually marks the opening of a home lacrosse season.

Fire In Tenement Leaves 10 Homeless

MONTREAL (CP)—Fire in a tenement in downtown Montreal Wednesday night left 10 persons homeless and injured one.

Mrs. John Feherpataby was treated for shock at hospital after carrying her two children to safety. Firemen said the woman collapsed as she brought her youngsters out of the smoke-filled flat.

Prince's Bull Takes Top Prize

BATH, England (AP) — Prince Charles carried off top prize with his bull "Buthay Drummer Boy" at the Bath and West Agricultural Show today.

It was the first time the 4½-year-old prince had exhibited cattle from his royal farms at the show, one of the biggest agricultural meets in Britain. The farms are managed for him by professional stockmen.

The little prince was not present to see his bull, a year older than its owner, win the supreme championship of the Devon breed and three other special awards.

While West of England farmers were applauding the prince's win, Charles himself was leaning out a Buckingham Palace window and clapping delightedly as soldiers — which interest him much more than beef on the hoof — marched past in scarlet tunics.

They were guardsmen rehearsing for next week's trooping of the color ceremony, at which the Queen will take the salute.

Lone Wolf Ace Obsolete In Korean War

NEW YORK — The air war over Korea is making the "Lone Wolf" pilot as obsolete as the first Wright brothers airplane, according to two United States Air Force pilots who have destroyed more enemy jet planes than any other airmen.

Capt. Joseph McConnell, Jr., 31, the world's first "triple jet ace," credited with 16 kills, and Capt. Manuel J. Fernandez, 28, who has 14½ victories, agree that "Air Force teamwork" is the most important factor behind American air victories. Next according to them, is "individual piloting skill and cunning." Most recent figures give United States jet pilots a ratio of more than 11 victories for each one scored by the enemy.

BRITAIN AGREES

The views of the two top American jet aces in many respects are in close agreement with a report just made public by the British Air Ministry based on the experiences of Wing Comdr. J. H. R. Merifield in flying an American-built F-86 Sabre jet in combat in Korea. This states:

"The main reasons for the success of the American-built Sabre in combat with the Russian-built MiG-15 are a higher standard of piloting ability and air discipline among Allies' pilots."

Capt. McConnell and Capt. Fernandez say that they do not agree entirely with the British report's findings that "the MiG-15 is faster, has better acceleration, climbs faster and has a higher ceiling."

Both pilots say they have seen MiG-15's do an involuntary snap roll and spin into the ground out of control during combat without being hit, and they attribute this to the presence of green or poor pilots in enemy ranks.

Suspended Sentence

WELLAND (CP)—Mrs. Isobel Baranyi, 37, of Welland today was given a two-year suspended sentence for firing a loaded shotgun with intent to injure Henry Chernish of nearby Crowland April 17.

Police said Mrs. Baranyi fired the gun from the front door of her home at a car Chernish was driving. The shot shattered a car window and Chernish was cut by flying glass.

THE COACH OF STATE—Within the gold coach that takes them from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey, Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, smile at the millions of spectators who crowded the way for a glimpse of the 27-year-old woman who was about to be crowned Queen of England.

New Van Doos Have Same Daring Dash

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—The new Van Doos have brought to Korea the same dash that has characterized the regiment's earlier battalions here.

Since taking over this sector of the line May 15, the 3rd battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment has demonstrated drive and keenness in all its patrols.

The Van Doos took over from the 3rd Patricias, who had spent six weeks aggressively patrolling no man's land and re-establishing United Nations control over it.

(Van Doos patrols were out in strength the next night, again working right up to the Communists' outposts.

MOST ACTIVE PLATOON

Most active platoon has been under Lieut. Jean Gagne of Quebec, already an expert in no man's land topography. Maj. Bert Mailos of Montreal controls all Van Doo sorties from his company command post.

One, however, which eluded Mailos' directions, was under Sgt. J. A. G. Desjardins of St. Vital, Man. The enthusiastic 21-year-old led 10 men on a mission to intercept and capture any enemy who might cross their path.

They were told to cross the river that forms a half-way line down no man's land and wait their chance.

Said Lt.-Col. Antoine Poulin, officer commanding the battalion: "Desjardins wanted to do a really good show. He took his patrol up the forward slopes of the enemy's positions, found nothing and withdrew. He crossed and recrossed the river several times looking for likely ambush spots.

"Then he got impatient, went downstream about 1,500 yards. We were out of touch since he was ordered not to use his wireless unless he wanted help—lest he give his position away.

SNOOPED AROUND

"So he snooped around. He was just about to come back when his group was challenged by a Chinese standing waist high above a paddy dyke.

"Pte. Gilles Gibeault (of Granby, Que.) threw a grenade and at once the enemy threw 10 grenades among them. If we'd known where they were we could have given them artillery and mortar support, but in the fight that broke out the signaller must have been hurt."

Gibeault, unhurt, made his way back with Pte. Rene Collins of Gatineau Point, Que., who was slightly wounded by grenade fragments.

At Gibeault's news Poulin diverted a patrol under Sgt. B. I. Charland of Quebec, already out in the valley. And he ordered out Gagne with a small stretcher party.

By the time Charland and Gagne got there all but two of Desjardins' men had disappeared.

HELPED BACK

Ptes. J. L. Y. Cote of Rigaud, Que., and J. P. F. Darche of Montreal, both wounded, were found helping one another back. They were helped in by stretcher-bearers Ronald Boudreau of Carleton, Que., and Maurice J. Robert of Lachine, Que.

Missing and believed prisoners besides Desjardins, are L.Cpl. A. A. Deveau of Comeauville, N.S.; Ptes. F. W. A. Cusson of Sutton, Que., J. P. Dufour of St. Angele, Rimouski, Que.; Hermel Girard of Kenogami, Que.; H. J. Moreau of Penetanguishene, Ont., and Georges St. Germain, Montreal.

Brig. Jean Allard, the brigade commander, says one of the finest Van Doo patrols to date was led by Cpl. L. Portelance of Vankleek Hill, Ont.

Portelance, the night of May 22, led a three-man group comprising himself and Ptes. L. Germain of Rouyn, Que., and Georges Forget of Montreal. They saw 37 Chinese crossing a river and Portelance radioed for artillery fire. Portelance messaged fire corrections and then high-tailed it for home.

Allard said: "It was cool leadership—many officers would have been proud to do the same job."

Family Residence Of Future Predicted 20 Storeys High

CALGARY (CP)—The family residence of the future may be in a block 20 storeys high, says A. W. Hodges, a fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

"The human being is the darndest thing ever to deal with," he said in an interview. "He wants to live in the aggregate and yet apart. He wants a city life with all the advantages and yet insists on his own little house, on his own little plot of ground. . . .

"It is irrational to spread the residential area dotted with one-storey dwellings for miles in several directions. Tremendous lengths of little-used roads to lay and to maintain, miles of sewer, water and gas mains make taxes sky high."

Eventually the unsuitability of square miles of single dwellings will be grasped by the public and a demand made for more comprehensive living, he said. The future housing block might be a 20-storey block of suites containing 1,000 to 2,000 families.

MAKES PREDICTIONS

Mr. Hodges sees this type of housing in the future:

Each block would be widely separated from the next and sit in landscaped grounds. Gardens would be available for those who want them.

All suites would be sound-proofed and serviced by elevators. There would be controlled heat, garbage disposal, laundry facilities, a restaurant from which meals could be ordered out and recreational facilities for young and old.

Travel to business would be by rapid sub-surface or overhead service. It would be unnecessary to go to the office by car.

Shop owners would build elegant stores with an understanding of customer psychology. The arts would be encouraged and the cultural centre an important feature to the public.

"In those days we shall have a city," Mr. Hodges said.

War With China Gain For Russia

NEW YORK—Chester Bowles, former U.S. ambassador to India, believes that a war with Communist China would be "stupid" and that the only nation that would benefit by it would be Russia.

"Unless we are willing to lay bare our whole European defense line, a war with China would be a bottomless pit," Mr. Bowles said in a recent speech. He expressed the belief that if the Korean war should spread, Communist China would be able to take over Burma, Thailand and French Indo-China, together with the vast rice resources of those areas, within a few weeks.

Mr. Bowles declared that the "greatest single disaster" that could befall the Soviet Union would be the development of "a more independent China." Though China today seems a close ally of Russia, he said, "any such policy which assumes that such ties are permanent is bankrupt and potentially disastrous."

EXPECT TRUCE SIGNED NEXT WEEK

Negotiators Get Fresh Instructions

U.S. State Department Considers Policy On China

WASHINGTON (AP)—State and defence department officials today drafted fresh instructions for UN truce negotiators in apparent confidence that an agreement to end the Korean war will shortly be achieved.

State department officials have under consideration, meanwhile, the formulation of a basic decision on what the policy of the United States toward Red China should be—whether to try to encourage a split between the Chinese Red leadership and the Kremlin or whether to eliminate this as improbable and seek some other solution.

Indications were that an announcement will be made shortly.

SHARP DIFFERENCES

There appeared to be sharp differences of opinion as to the best U. S. course. Some influential officials take the position that Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa must be maintained and made a rallying point for anti-Comumnist resistance throughout the Far East.

With truce negotiations scheduled to resume at Panmunjom tonight, U. S. officials were more optimistic of quick, full agreement to end the war than they had been in more than a year.

A one-day recess in the talks was requested by UN negotiators to give Washington and Allied governments time to study a statement of terms for breaking the prisoner of war deadlock which the Reds submitted Wednesday.

NEGOTIATORS

We are already finding the place crowded with five other curious deer looking us over, together with a mountain goat of some sort and two peacocks."

Red Terms Similar To UN Plan

Agreement On PoWs May Be Signed Within 24 Hours

SEOUL (AP)—The end of the Korean fighting appeared close today. A fateful truce meeting Saturday morning in Panmunjom could almost write an end to three years of war and death.

The Communists were reported to have submitted terms so close to those of the United Nations command that an armistice might be signed by June 25, third anniversay of this war that has already taken an awesome toll.

Minor details must be ironed out, but "peace fever" was in the air here as well as in other Allied capitals.

A high U.S. official in Tokyo said an agreement to exchange prisoners likely will be signed Saturday. However, a truce could not be signed before next week, he added.

(Reuters news agency said the Chinese broadcast this morning to Allied troops along the Korean front: "Keep your heads down—there is going to be a truce within a few days.")

ONE JARRING NOTE

There was one jarring and bitter dissent to the optimism. President Syngman Rhee's South Korean government stubbornly opposed the truce terms although Rhee has said he would co-operate "at any cost" with the U. S.

Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, flew to Seoul from his Tokyo headquarters and conferred with Rhee, possibly in an 11th hour attempt to overcome the opposition of the aging, but fiery, president.

They talked for an hour, but there was no announcement after the meeting. Pyun Yuang Tai, South Korea's acting foreign minister, and U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs were also present.

Clark flew back to Tokyo after the conference.

Pyun said angrily in an interview:

"I have never come across more dishonorable—and more cowardly

Price Index Drops One-Fifth of Point; Food Costs Ease

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index declined by one-fifth of a point during April to 114.4, as living costs eased for the sixth month in a row, the bureau of statistics reported today. The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, made the second consecutive drop of a fifth of a point, under the impetus of lower prices for a number of food items, gasoline, and seasonal price drops for coal in Ontario and Quebec. The old cost-of-living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, made its third consecutive drop, easing three-tenths of a point to 183.6.

The April battle on the price front shaped up as a fight between declining food prices and rising rents—with lower food prices winning.

Prices went down for butter, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, beef and veal to outweigh increases for coffee, egs, grapefruit, lettuce and fresh and cured pork.

Rents rose to a new high. Up also were theatre admission tickets and barbers' fees.

BACK TO 1951

The drop to 114.4 in the consumer price index compared with a peak of 118.2 in December, 1951. In six months the yardstick has been sliced by 1.7 points and now is back to where it was in the May-June period of 1951.

Biggest plunge was in the food sub-index which slid four-fifths of a point to 110.1. This compared with a record 122.5 in November, 1951.

The shelter column, which includes rents and home ownership costs, rose to a new high of 122.9 from 122.7, mostly because of higher rents. The clothing column also rose to 110.1 from 109.7, still well below the record of 115.2 in November, 1951.

The cost of household operations eased to 116.6 from the record of 116.9. The column "other commodities and services" edged up to 115.1 from 115 as higher theatre ticket prices and barbers' fees outweighed lower costs for gasoline. This compared with the record 116.7 last January.

In the old index, the new drop to 183.6 compared with an all-time high of 191.5 in December, 1951. In April the food column dropped to 222.8 from 223.5; fuel and light to 153.2 from 155.5; home furnishings and services to 196.2 from 196.8. Rents rose to 151 from 150.9; clothing to 206.3 from 205.5; and the miscellaneous column to 149 from 148.7.

While many retail prices showed declines in April, wholesale prices for May increased for the first

Ottawa Limits Offer To Arbitration

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government does not intend to go beyond an offer of arbitration on United States residents' claims for damages resulting from high water in Lake Ontario, a spokesman said today.

He was commenting on an announcement at Syracuse, N. Y., that lawyers for 3,500 claimants in suits totalling $60,000,000 will meet with government representatives here next Wednesday.

Officials here confirmed that the meeting is as a result of the expressed willingness of the Canadian government to meet the claimants but said no new offer is to be made to them.

They denied that any Canadian settlement "feeler" would be put out, as suggested by one of the U. S. property owners' lawyers.

The U.S. residents are suing on the claim that the Canadian-built Gut dam in the St. Lawrence river raised Lake Ontario water levels. The dam, built in 1903, was removed last winter.

The government announced May 14 it is willing to submit the U. S. citizens' claims to an international arbitration tribunal, though it said present evidence does not show Gut dam responsible.

The government also denies any U. S. court has jurisdiction to rule on the case without Canadian consent. This consent has not been given.

Storms Batter Western States In U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Spring thunderstorms which whipped across midwest United States areas appeared dissipating today as they moved eastward.

Strong winds, rain and hail which lashed the north central areas caused at least four deaths, damaged crops and disrupted communications.

The storm struck hardest in Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois and followed a day of hot and humid weather in the central part of the country. The storm area extended along the Canadian border from Maine to Washington.

More hot and humid weather was the outlook again today for areas from Texas northeastward to the northern Great Lakes region and eastward to the Atlantic coast.

Fourteen counties in northwestern Montana were on emergency flood status as some rain-swollen streams reached 10 times their usual water flow.

The rain stopped Thursday but not before more fell there in 10 days than in all of 1952. State and Red Cross officials expect the flood situation to get tougher as waters pour from soaked land into streams.

May Lift Local Quarantine

OTTAWA (CP)—Southwestern Ontario's outbreak of hog cholera has spread to three more farms, the agriculture department reported today. The new cases have been found among hogs at Montrose in Waterloo county, Tavistock in Oxford and Sebringville in Perth. The three counties all are among the 12 counties previously involved. The disease now has brought the total of hogs dead or destroyed to 2,318 on 40 premises. The department said the new cases have been traced back to one of the community sales previously involved. Dr. Thomas Childs, veterinary director-general, observed in an interview Thursday that the virus disease is being contained in a well-defined area. He said he will make a decision on a reduction of the quarantine area "in the next few days."

Just how the area will be reduced was not made clear, but officials emphasized no outbreaks have been reported in the eastern counties such as Durham, Ontario, Northumberland and Peterborough or the district of Muskoka.

MAY BE EXCLUDED

These may be excluded from the quarantine which currently embraces 29 counties and Muskoka. Persons moving live hogs out of the quarantine area without permission face possible fine and imprisonment.

Meanwhile, the infection in the last few days has spread to 12 from eight counties. Three new cases were reported Thursday making a total of 37 farms infected by the disease.

Flood, Famine Stalking Grimly Across All China

HONG KONG (AP)—China is hungry again, victim of flood and famine. News trickling from that Communist citadel indicates the situation may be serious enough to influence Red views on a truce in Korea. Chinese and North Korean Armies must be fed if they are to fight. And by the Reds' own admission the food situation is growing more and more critical.

Although it's difficult to measure the extent of a natural disaster in Red China, this much has sifted through the wall of silence:

EVERY PROVINCE AFFECTED

Almost every province is affected. The wheat crop, which usually totals about 10 per cent of China's cereal production, was nearly wiped out. Rice crops in the south and west have been heavily damaged by floods which have not subsided.

Vast flooded areas have been reported in Kwangtung, Hunan, Kwangsi and Szechwan provinces of south and west China. Reports say the Kwangtung floods are increasing.

The most revealing document is Premier Chou En-lai's "directive on production of more grain and the strengthening of famine relief work" issued May 16.

Chou says the main wheat provinces of Anhwei, Kiangsu, Honan, Shantung and Shansi all have been hit by cold and late frosts, insect pests and hail storms.

Eden Flying To U.S. Hospital

LONDON (CP)—Ailing Foreign Secretary Eden left by plane today for Boston to undergo a third operation for a gall bladder ailment.

Eden's 32-year-old wife accompanied him. Her uncle, Prime Minister Churchill, and Lady Churchill saw the couple off on an RCAF plane.

Eden, 55, has undergone two operations in the last two months. The third is aimed at improving the condition of the main bile duct which has not healed since the original operation for removal of gall stones.

The foreign secretary's son, Nicholas, is expected to meet his father in Boston. Young Eden is aide to Vincent Massey, governor-general of Canada.

President Eisenhower had offered to send his own plane for Eden if it was needed. The RCAF plane in which Eden is flying was used by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh during their tour of Canada two years ago.

Consul-General Fired

MONTREAL (CP) — William Espinosa y Dominiguez, Cuban consul-general in Montreal, said today he had been "fired for extending courtesy to an ex-president of Cuba." Espinosa said he was notified he was relieved from duty in a cable today relayed from the Cuban embassy in Ottawa.

Three Bombers Smash Record

FAIRFORD AIR BASE, England (AP) — Three U. S. B-47 stratojet bombers smashed the U. S. to England speed record today by flashing across the Atlantic in slightly more than 5½ hours.

Two six-jet B-47s streaked from Limestone air base in Maine to Fairford in central England—a distance of 3,120 miles—in five hours, 36 minutes. Another made it in five hours, 37 minutes.

The previous record was five hours, 38 minutes set April 7 by two other B-47s.

Today's flight averaged 566 miles an hour.

The planes form part of the 306th medium bombardment wing which are making mass flights from Florida to their new base in England.

Fifteen planes of the wing made the flight Friday.

Ask Bidault Try To Form Government

PARIS (CP)—President Vincent Auriol today asked Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to try to form a new French cabinet.

Bidault is a member of the Roman Catholic, Mouvement Republicain Populaire. He has already been premier of two cabinets, for five months in 1946 and eight months in 1949-50.

Bidault told Auriol he would answer Saturday as to whether he thought he could get a new cabinet together.

No. 4, Pierre Mendes-France, failed Thursday night when the National Assembly refused him a vote of confidence. The count was 301, just 13 short of the majority he needed.

Says Report "Encouraging"

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Thursday he has received a confidential report on Korean truce negotiations and it is "most encouraging."

Mr. Claxton, acting prime minister, said he hopes the negotiations will lead to a peaceful settlement of the Korean war on "an acceptable basis."

Mr. Claxton's statement:

"While it is still too early to say with certainty what the results will be, the reports I have received on the progress made in negotiations for a cease-fire in Korea are the most encouraging we have had and like everyone else, I earnestly hope they will result in the termination of hostilities and a peaceful settlement on an acceptable basis."

Similar sentiments were expressed by the external affairs department.

MAY BEGIN BRIDGE

TORONTO (CP) — Construction may begin on the new Burlington bridge this fall, Highways Minister Doucett said today. He said all property for the approaches, including 30 houses, has been purchased and the province is ready to go ahead.

Relieve Chuikov Of Berlin Duties

BERLIN (AP)—The official East German news agency announced today that General Vassily Chuikov, leading Russian in Germany smce 1949, is being relieved of all duty here and will return to the Soviet Union for a new assignment.

The terse announcement also said that Col. Gen. Andrei Gretschko has been appointed to command the 300,000-man Red army in East Germany.

Chuikov was relieved of his political responsibilities May 28 with the appointment of Vladimir Semyenov as high commissioner for the Soviet zone.

Chuikov, hero of Stalingrad, had held down two jobs here, as political head of the control commission and as commander-in-chief of the troops.

20,000 Watch Canadians Take Over Palace Guard

By DAVE McINTOSH

LONDON (CP)—More than 20,000 watched the Canadians take over the guard at Buckingham Palace today. Several persons fainted in the crush and extra police had to be rushed in.

Young Prince Charles stood at a front window of the palace and saluted as the precise, 54-man Canadian guard replaced the Grenadier Guards for 24 hours.

Both Charles and Princess Anne appeared together at one top-floor window. Charles tried to push his sister from the window, gave up and took over another window by himself. Both children clapped in time to the Grenadiers' band.

The Canadians, wearing their dress blues and scarlet or maroon berets, matched the Guards movement for movement throughout the exacting, 40-minute change-over ceremony. They were commanded by Maj. R. D. Medland of Toronto, who for one day is captain of the Queen's guard.

The Canadian guard was drawn from three permanent force regiments, the Royal Canadian, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal 22nd. All are veterans of the Korean war.

They trained 16 hours for the job. British guards do not take over such a task until they have been trained for 17 weeks.

It was the first time since 1940 the Canadians had mounted guard at the palace.

Many Canadians in the crowd were invited to the palace itself, including Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp general to the Queen, Maj.-Gen. J. D. B Smith, chairman of the Canadian joint staff in London, Rear-Admiral Roger Bidwell, commander of Canada's Coronation squadron, and Air Commodore Martin Costello, RCAF representative on the joint staff. In the palace forecourt were some 150 Canadian school children.

Normally, two sentry boxes are just outside the palace gates. Coronation crowds have been so dense that policemen had to clear a path for the sentries to march up and down. So now the boxes have been moved inside the high railing.

A crowd of about 200 followed the Canadians as they marched from Wellington barracks to the palace, preceded by the Grenadiers' band. The band played "The Maple Leaf Forever" as the Canadians moved into the yard and drew up opposite the off-going guard.

There wasn't a hitch in the ceremony. While sentries were changed at far corners of the palace, the band played tunes from "South Pacific."

The Canadians also mounted guard at St. James's Palace. Prime Minister St. Laurent was one of the onlookers there.

The Canadians presented arms as the guards marched from the centre gate of Buckingham Palace. Charles was a little late with his salute and had to be prompted by somebody behind him. He and his sister remained in the window until the Canadians marching to St. James's had skirted the Victoria memorial.

Queen Says Goodbye To 200 Dignitaries

LONDON (CP)—Today the Queen said goodbye to more than 200 dignitaries from 60 foreign lands who came to see her crowned. Official visits by the foreign representatives end Saturday.

The Queen, hatless and in a dress of lemon silk, moved slowly down the line of envoys assembled in the state apartments of Buckingham Palace. She spoke to each in turn, including the leader of the senior Commonwealth country: Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada.

Behind her walked the Duke of Edinburgh.

Think U.K. Climbers May Try Peak Again

NEW DELHI (AP)—Mountain climbing enthusiasts here speculated today that Col. John Hunt's 15-man British expedition to Mt. Everest may be attempting a second scaling of the world's tallest peak.

Runaway Truck Rams Five Cars

ORILLIA (CP)—A runaway gasoline truck careered down a hill Thursday night, rammed a laundry truck at a downtown intersection, then piled into five parked automobiles.

Police said the gas truck driver, 30-year-old Ronald Pye of Orillia, "did everything in his power" to avoid an accident after his brakes failed on the West street incline. In his attempt to check the truck's plunge, he ripped out the clutch and scuffed the huge tires against the curb.

Investigators said they plan no charges against Pye, who was wearing a five-year safe driving pin when admitted to hospital for treatment for shock. He was later released.

Also taken to hospital was the laundry truck driver, identified by police as Gus Mayhew of Midland. He was suffering from concussion.

A convertible, into which the gasoline truck crashed after glancing off the laundry truck, was demolished.

ARCHITECT'S SKETCH of the new Grace United Church to be built at the site of the present church, Monaghan Rd. and Howden Ave., at an estimated cost of $100,000, is shown. Sketches by E. H. Zeidler of Blackwell and Craig, architects, were approved at a church congregational meeting Thursday night and building will start as soon as plans are approved by the Peterborough Presbytery. It is hoped that work on the modern church structure will begin this summer.

Prairies Battling Storm Floods, Manitoba Worst

EDMONTON (CP)—Rivers and streams across a thousand miles of the Prairies are running high or bursting their banks today with the run-off of a three-day storm that loosened up to five inches of rain in some areas and has forced evacuation of hundreds of residents. At least two persons are dead.

Hundreds of thousands of acres of rich prairie farmland have turned soggy mush, delaying seeding and necessitating re-seeding in many areas. Officials expect a reduction in the seeded wheat acreage as farmers convert to coarse grains.

Manitoba appears to have been hit the hardest. It was still raining in some parts of the province Thursday night, although the weather office here said the "worst is over."

Clearing weather was predicted today as the disturbance—now located about 150 miles south of Winnipeg—was expected to move off slowly eastward, towards the Great Lakes.

5 INCHES OF RAIN

The storm broke Monday night in southern Alberta and moved eastward. Some areas reported as much as five inches of rainfall, hail and 40-mile-an-hour winds.

A 21-year-old rancher died of shock after falling into a stream near Calgary and a Lethbridge farmer was drowned when he tried to cross the St. Mary river by boat. The boat's engine failed, sending the craft crashing into a bridge. The man's body has not yet been recovered.

Several families living on the banks of the Old Man river at Lethbridge were forced to move to higher ground Thursday when the river jumped 4½ feet. Houses on an island in the river were almost flooded and Indian families moved out.

A further rise in the river level is expected as run-off from the foothills reaches the stream.

RAIL WASHOUTS

Homes at Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge reported flooded basements. Numerous railway washouts were reported.

Coming on the heels of a wet spring, the storm didn't aid the farmers. In northern Manitoba, where farmers had 10 to 30 per cent of their wheat in the ground, the storm was reported to have washed out everything.

Manitoba's Riding Mountain National Park area, 150 miles northwest of Winnipeg, was reported in a serious situation Thursday night. Several communities reported flood conditions and nine bridges were threatened or washed out and at least three trains stranded.

The village of McCreary reported the worst flood in 30 years. Highways and rail connections were cut off and families evacuated.

Water three feet deep was reported at Sifton, north of Riding Mountain, and about 120 persons have been forced to evacuate their homes. About 30 homes were reported surrounded by flood waters.

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATION

Special accommodation had to be found for passengers aboard a train bound from Dauphin to Swan River which was forced to turn back when the track was washed out. Passengers aboard two Canadian National Railways trains stalled at Dauphin were taken to Winnipeg by bus.

Thirteen homes have been flooded at the village of Laurier, 30 miles southeast of Dauphin, and telephone lines are down to the village of Ochre River.

In Dauphin firemen have been kept busy pumping out basements.

The situation has eased at Brandon, 140 miles west of Winnipeg, where the Assiniboine river was approaching flood level. However, the river had fallen eight inches Thursday night from the 16 feet, 11 inches reported earlier in the day. Flood level is 18 feet.

At Holland, washouts were reported on the Canadian Pacific Railway line at about eight spots over a distance of about four miles.

As the storm moved eastward it sent heavy rain and hail down on Fort Frances Ont. The town's main street was flooded to a depth of about six inches in places Thursday afternoon and many basements were flooded.

Find Immigrant Figures Down

OTTAWA (CP)—The movement of immigrants to Canada this year is running behind last year's figures, the immigration department disclosed today.

A total of 39,055 immigrants entered the country in the first four months of the year, a drop of 37 per cent from last year's total of 62,240 for the same period, the department said.

In April, however, the decrease was only 17 per cent with 16,118 immigrants this year compared to 19,497 in April, 1952.

Immigration from the British Isles increased in April, up 16 per cent to 5,849 from April last year, United States immigration increased 24 per cent while decreases of 10 per cent from North European countries and 60 per cent from all other countries were recorded.

The majority of new Canadians were between 20 and 40 years, or children less than 14 years. Of April's 16,118 immigrants, 8,767 were between 20 and 40 and 3,620 were less than 14 years old.

Most of the April immigrants, 8,453, gave their destination as Ontario.

Sees Union Helping Peace–St. Laurent

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today the cold war could be ended if there were enough voluntary societies such as the English-Speaking Union.

The prime minister, in an address prepared for a luncheon of the union, said such societies, dedicated to creating better international understanding, help democracies understand one another's points of view.

"If its (the union's) program of welcoming and assisting unofficial visitors, of establishing scholarships for foreign students, of exchanging ideas through the interchange of students, of teachers and of books, were emulated behind the Iron Curtain, then I am confident it would not be many years before the cold war became just an unpleasant memory.

"The English-Speaking Union has done much to bring about greater understanding among the widespread English-speaking nations of the world, but this union and the many other voluntary associations for the promotion of good will in our free societies have done an even greater service to mankind by promoting the ideal of the fundamental equality of all branches of the human family."

time in many months, indicating the possibility that the prolonged decline in living costs may be reaching an end.

The wholesale industrial materials index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, rose to 234.2 on May 22 from 231.3 on April 24.

The Canadian farm products index, also based on 1935-39, rose to 218.7 from 213.6. Prices went up for hogs, tin, wheat, raw rubber, raw wool, lead, raw cotton, raw sugar and iron ore.

The bureau said the decline in the exchange value of the Canadian dollar also contributed to the price rise, making imports more costly. The increases outweighed price declines for copper, oats, sisal, wood pulp, steers at Toronto, imported bituminous coal and white lead.

On the agricultural side, prices were up for hogs, Eastern lambs, eggs, raw wool, Western steers and calves. Eastern steers were down, along with milk for cheese factories, fowl and fluid milk.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of ⅝ per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Thursday's noon rate was 99¼ cents. Pound sterling $2.79 9-16, against $2.79 5-16.

City To Purchase Heavier Tractor For Land Fill

At an increase in cost of $4,051, the sanitation committee recommended this morning to the city council the purchase for the landfill disposal of garbage a bulldozer of more weight and power than the original machine that has been in use since the incinerator on Townsend St. was abandoned some weeks ago.

The new crawler tractor, as it is known, will be delivered to Peterborough in a month at $20,637, and on this revised investment the city receives as credit the full amount of the $16,586 which was paid for the first machine.

On the other hand, the city is to pay, as a rental charge, 8% a month on the first tractor for the period of its continuing use until the delivery of the heavier substitute. In this verbal agreement, Cal Kilgore, representative of W. L. Ballentine Co. Ltd., fixed the time limit for delivery, and particularly of rentaal charge, at 30 days.

The heavier machine is designated as a TD-18A, and the lighter one, TD-14A.

Ald. W. J. Beggs presided this morning, with Aldermen Anglesey, Rehill and Graham and Acting Mayor Miller present.

It was estimated that the rental charge for the month would be about $600, and for the 30 days that averages $20 a day, approximately the rental cost of a bulldozer for ordinary work.

The switch to the 18A tractor has been looming as a necessity in the landfill method of garbage disposal since Sanitary Superintendent Elmo Pierce began anticipating winter conditions.

In the purchase of the 14A tractor the company was inclined to advise the city to buy the other machine, but the committee was influenced by the recommendation of R. A. Blyth that the 14A should be powerful enough for sanitation trenching.

"It is now working in ideal conditions," Acting Mayor Miller said, and Ald. Rehill commented that it was doing all that was expected of it.

Some weeks ago Mr. Piece told the committee he was worrying about the winter. Trenches could be opened during the late fall for filling, but the daily moving of earth or cinder fill appeared to him to be beyond the power of the 14A tractor.

Ald. Beggs remarked that it was all a matter of new experience, and the discussion intimated that this opinion probably applied also to Mr. Blyth, who could hardly be expected as a contractor on sewer and other excavation work to foresee the special problems of the comparatively new disposal system known as landfill.

Mr. Pierce was permitted by the council to make a survey of landfill methods in other cities, and he returned with practical ideas and among them, the winter difficulty of working in frost.

Acting Mayor Miller suggested to Mr. Kilgore that the company should consider offering a compromise to the city in the purchase of the 18A tractor. And Ald. Rehill put it bluntly. "We think the company should consider waiving all rental until the delivery of the new machine."

Mr. Kilgore retired to telephone his Toronto office, and returned with a statement that the company could not make any concession on that point.

"The company feels that in getting the 14A back after three or four months' use they would have to make an allowance of 30% as a used tractor, and that would be $5,500 to $6,000, a depreciation we would have to absorb," Mr. Kilgore said. "After all, we have a limited outlet for these machines."

He said that in Scarboro township several days ago, that municipality was guided by Peterborough's experience.

"I was also thinking of your 14A being available, and when I mentioned that a practically new machine was available, their answer was that they were interested only in a new tractor."

2 New Appointments Announced By Army

OTTAWA (CP)—Army headquarters today announced new appointments for two senior officers of the Royal Canadian Artillery.

Lt.-Col. Robert G. Kingstone, MBE, 36, of Ottawa and Westmount, Que., will be appointed commanding officer of the 2nd regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, effective in September. He now is secretary of the chiefs of staff committee.

He will succeed Lt.-Col. Edward Geoffrey Brooks, DSO, OBE, 34, of Montreal, who will become a member of the directing staff at Canadian Army Staff College in Kingston.

Col. Kingstone, a native of Montreal, has been secretary of the chiefs of staff committee since 1950. Col. Brooks, born in India, is a graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston.

Deny Rosenbergs Stay Of Execution

NEW YORK (AP)—The U. S. court of appeals today denied a stay of execution to atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, scheduled to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair June 18.

Judge Thomas Swan told Emanuel Bloch, counsel for the Rosenbergs, that he might apply for a stay before the U. S. Supreme Court, which already has refused three times to review the case.

Prime Ministers Express Views

LONDON (Reuters) — British Commonwealth prime ministers meeting here have sent a message to Washington underlining, it is believed, their optimism that a Korean truce is in sight.

The document expressed the prime ministers' views of the Communist reaction Thursday to the United Nations latest truce proposals.

High sources disclosed the nine prime ministers at Thursday's session of their week-long conference on foreign affairs unanimously backed the UN proposals.

Effect of the Commonwealth backing is that Britain, the overseas Commonwealth countries and the United States now are agreed on the approach to the armistice problem.

The prime ministers today discussed Middle East problems, including Britain's dispute with Egypt over the Suez canal, and with Iran over the oil controversy.

—plans. We are greatly disgusted with such an ignominous truce."

He said war prisoners who refuse to return to communism would "commit suicide in disgust."

TERMS UNACCEPTABLE

Leaders of the South Korean government were represented as resigned to a truce soon on terms unacceptable to them.

They were said to be taking the position they would not recognize an armistice but that they would not offer physical resistance.

The prospects for an imminent truce sprang from a still-officially-secret Allied proposal made May 25 to settle the fate of 48,500 Chinese and North Korean PoWs unwilling to return to their Red-ruled homelands.

It was heightened Thursday by a Communistreply which authoritative sources here and in Washington considered so close to Allied terms as to amount to virtual acceptance.

REPORTED PLAN

The plan, as it stands with Communist revisions, is reported to provide:

1. Immediate exchange of prisoners who want to go home.

2. Assignment to custody of a five-country neutral repatriation commission in South Korea the 48,500 Communist prisoners refusing to return home.

3. Communist representatives would be allowed to visit them for 120 days and give "explanations" and "assurances" about returning to North Korea or Red China.

4. Disposition of prisoners still resisting repatriation would be referred to a post-armistice political conference.

Triple Anniversary

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gerald V. Pelton, special guest at a meeting of the Old Age Pensioners Association here, was celebrating three anniversaries. It was the 20th anniversary of his founding of the organization, his 65th birthday and 44th anniversary of his admission to the bar of Nova Scotia.

Pay Tribute To Memory Of Macdonald

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Prominent members of Canada's Progressive Conservative party today paid tribute to the memory of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister and one of the Fathers of the Confederation.

A wreath was placed on Sir Sir John's bust in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral. George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative opposition at Ottawa, said in a speech Sir John's efforts at uniting Canada helped bring into being "the first of all" federal democracies.

"In a large measure it was the genius of the Fathers of Confederation, under the patient and wise guidance of Sir John Macdonald, which produced a constitution under which the nations of the Commonwealth could assume the full stature of sovereign states and at the same time retain their old loyalties and traditions."

Referring to last week's luncheon at Westminster Hall, in which the representatives of some 60 Commonwealth Parliaments assembled to meet the Queen, Drew said no figure was more closely associated with that event "than the great Canadian who took the first steps toward the form of free and sovereign partnership which history has proved so enduring."

With Drew were Premiers Leslie Frost of Ontario and Hugh Flemming of New Brunswick. A number of Progressive Conservative members of the Canadian parliament and legislatures also were present. Canadian-born Conservative members of the British House of Commons, including E. H. C. (Ted) Leather of Hamilton and Beverley Baxter of Toronto, were invited.

Sir John, who died in 1891, is the only Canadian statesman to be honored by having his statute in St. Paul's.

Movie Depicts Tobacco Farming

The growth and manufacture of tobacco in Canada was illustrated by the film "The Golden Leaf" to members of the Kiwanis club on Thursday, at their weekly luncheon meeting.

Up to recently Canada has had to import all its raw tobacco from the United States. But during the last few yeras Canada has been able to produce all the tobacco that Canadian manufacturers can consume, and some for export beside.

Mechanization of the tobacco farms during the last eight years has helped to improve the Canadian crop.

Fifty thousand people are employed in Canada every year to harvest the crop; and at first American pickers had to be importer to do the job. In normal times one tenth of the government's taxes are raised from tax on tobacco products alone.

Following the harvesting of the tobacco crop it is cured for five days in a kiln before it is shipped to warehouses for grading. During the process of curing the tobacco, the leaf attains its golden brown color and sweet odor. It is then stored in wooden barrels for two years before it is manufactured into cigarettes.

The stems of the plant are cut from the leaf and are used for fertilizer.

The Red terms were received in Washington Thursday. Well-informed reports were that they were extremely close to proposals submitted by the UN command on May 25.

OVERNIGHT CONSULTATION

Representatives of 16 Allied governments with forces in Korea were called in by the state department, briefed on the Red terms and given opportunity for overnight consultation with their home governments.

The biggest worry of some key authorities here was what President Syngman Rhee would actually do about observing a truce. After some of his officials had threatened to pull out of the UN command and fight on alone, Rhee himself said a few days ago his government would of course cooperate with the U. S. and would look to it to unify Korea eventually.

However, the state department is reported to be without official assurances on that point.

OBITUARIES

George Henry Orde, a lifelong resident of Otonabee, died in hospital on Thursday after a very short illness. Mr. Orde was born in Otonabee 80 years ago and there farmed practically all his life. Some few years ago he moved to Peterborough where he resided until a year ago when he returned to Otonabee.

Mr. Orde was the son of the late Robert Orde and Annie Toker and is survived by one brother and two sisters, Leonard Orde and Mrs. William Wheeler (Clara) of Peterborough and Mrs. John Edwards (Nora) of Otonabee.

The funeral will be held on Saturday at 2.00 p.m. at the Mather's Funeral Home in Keene with the Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. DAVID FRANK CROWLEY

Mrs. David Frank Crowley, 59, of lot 19, concession 12, Otonabee township, died today in hosptal after a long illness.

Mrs. Crowley was born and raised in Lindsay, daughter of the late Patrick J. Clancey and the former Mary Egan. She has lived in Peterborough for the past 33 years and previous to that in Ops township, south of Lindsay. She was a member of Our Lady of the Assumption Church and belonged to the Altar Society and the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving are her husband, David Frank Crowley; two daughters: Mrs. Victor Powers (Mercedes) of Otonabee township, Jean at home, and two sons: Francis and Claire, also at home.

The body is resting at her home and the funeral service will be Monday at 10 a.m. from her home to Our Lady of Assumption for requiem mass. The Rev. W. C. McCarney will officiate. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Allies Retake Some Outposts

SEOUL (AP)—American Sabre jet pilots bagged eight Communist MiG jets, probably destroyed one and damaged five in air battles high over North Korea today.

Maj. Vermont Garrison became the war's 32nd jet ace by downing his fifth MiG, the air force said.

On the ground, South Korean infantry fought with bayonets and grenades to win back Allied outposts which the Reds may claim if an early armistice halts the three-year-old war.

The South Koreans were fighting hand-to-hand with Chinese and North Koreans at some points along the muddy east-central and eastern fronts where bitter battles have raged all week.

Mixed Prices Mark Stock Market Trade

TORONTO (CP)—Mixed prices and light volume marked early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials edged higher but all als their lowest in two years. Turnover for the first three hours stood at 1,402,000 shares.

Industrials showed cautious strength. Liquors and miscellaneous industrials were firm but retail stores traded lower.

Golds were irregularly lower. Kerr Addison and Lake Shore lost but Lamaque made a 10-cent gain.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals slipped with Gunnar down $1.00 and Chimo, New Delhi and Brilund following.

In base metals, higher-priced issues mixed while the rest weakened.

Western oils showed a 2-1 ratio of losses. Western Leaseholds, Home Oil and Bailey Selburn were off as much as 50 cents.

New RCAF Jet Makes Trip To New York

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF gave the press and radio a round trip to New York Thursday in its new $1,200,000 Comet jet transport which clipped off the 900 miles in less than three hours.

The white-enamelled giant, with its cargo of 40 newspaper and radio men including aviation reporters from leading United States publications, took off from Ottawa's Uplands airport and banked above the stone towers of Manhattan exactly 57 minutes later.

Then, sweeping north and west, it headed back to Uplands via Montreal.

Speed on the flight to New York averaged 473 miles an hour. It was about 50 miles better than on the 57-ton giant's delivery flight to Uplands May 29. On that occasion the Comet made the transatlantic crossing at about 420, in 10 hours, 20 minutes. The Comet's top speed is about 600 miles an hour.

Peak of the ascent was 36,000 feet and the aircraft dipped to 8,000 to circle over New York.

The press and radio men sat in comfortable relaxing chairs in a forward cabin or walked about in a blue-and-grey-decorated rear cabin. The flight was almost motionless. One man balanced a pencil on end on a table. Another balanced two five-cent pieces on edge.

On the flight deck, the Comet's five-man crew, headed by Sqdn. Ldr. J. D. Dickson of Rothesay, N. B., sat silently intent on the plane's row on row of instruments. The fliers made the occasional casual adjustment. Only sensation of movement—and that was slight—was on takeoff and landing.

Other members of the crew were Flt. Lt. M. D. Broadfoot, Tisdale, Sask.; Flt. Lt. Carl Brown, Wilcox, Sask.; Flt. Lt. K. A. Wark, Malton, Ont.; and Flt. Lt. C. W. Baine, Vancouver

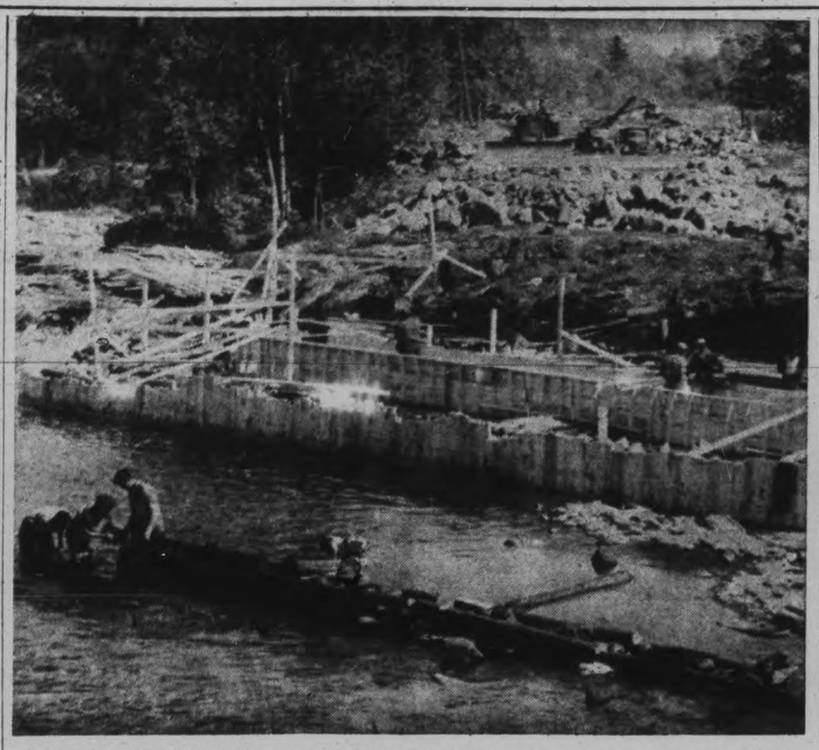
Hear Arguments On June 15



WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal power commission decided Thursday to hear arguments June 15 on a proposal that New York state be licensed to join with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission in constructing the power phase of the St. Lawrence river project.

One of the commission's examiners, Glen R. Law, recommended on May 12, after a hearing, that the state be licensed to be a partner in the project.

The state of Vermont, counsel for the power commission, National St. Lawrence Project Conference, National Rural Electric Co-Operative Association, the Aluminum Company of America, the St. Lawrence River Power Co., the National Coal Association, Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, Public Power and Water Corp., Trenton, N. J., the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protective Association and the American Public Power Association all filed exceptions to Law's recommendation.

All appeared as intervenors in the hearing on applications by New York and Public Power and Water Corporation for a project licence. Law recommended that the application of the corporation be denied.

The commission, after hearing the oral argument, may approve or reverse the examiner's finding.

FORMS FOR CEMENT FOOTINGS have been started by workers constructing the new bridge at Burleigh Falls. While carpenters (above) gradually build up the forms, others begin a temporary footing in the river bed. In the background trucks and bulldozers clear the new approach to the bridge. The Bailey bridge which will be used for traffic while the new bridge is being erected and the old one torn down is nearly completed. Traffic Thursday was still using the old bridge.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Steal Bike Parts Three Get Lesson

COBOURG (ENS)—There were three school boys who didn't get to the police games on Wednesday. They had some bicycle repair work to do, and the scene of operations was the office of the chief of police. On Monday three bicycles were listed missing and later were found down near the coal pile at the docks. However, the bikes were minus some essential parts. One had a front wheel missing. They had been fairly new bikes and any part which were stolen would stand out prominently on an old bicycle, particularly the missing rim. Chief H. Pearce did some investigating and found a well worn bike at the Public school with a brand new rim, although there was a fresh coat of disguising paint. When the owner came out of school he had an interview with the chief and the two other culprits were rounded up.

To teach them a lesson the chief had them remove the pilfered parts from their bikes and then he held a repair bee at the police station where the three boys had to restore the parts to the original bicycles. One of them spent a portion of the time getting the paint off the rim he stole.

Cadet Arms Stolen

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Two submachine-guns and 14 rifles were stolen from an army cadet hut at nearby Johnstone Thursday. Police said members of the extremist Scottish Republican Army may have been responsible.

Varied Reactions From Troops At Front

SEOUL (AP)—Reaction among Canadian troops of the Commonwealth division to reports a Korean truce is near ranged from skepticism to joy.

Here's what some of the Canadians said;

Maj. W. H. Pope of Ottawa: "It has been close before. I am skeptical. It is to the Chinese advantage to prolong the talks from the moral point of view."

WO. R. D. McIlroy of Montreal: "I am hopeful and I have been betting on it all along but we have been ready for celebrations before."

Sgt. Marcell Veilloux of Vancouver: "Hooray, let's go home. I hope it's true."

Carruthers Wallop Lindsay Fairways 15-2

LINDSAY— (ENS) — Carruthers Drugs evened their record in the Lindsay mens' softball league last night at a win and a loss as they walloped the league's new entry, Fairway Motors, 15-2 before a good crowd at Victoria Park.

Tommy Bolderstone, Carruthers catcher, hit two homers to lead the winners attack. He also struck out three times, before finding the range. The winners collected 13 hits, and seven Fairway errors helped them to the win. Dunc Daynes and Woodie Ritchie divided pitching honours holding Fairways to seven hits. One of them was Johnny Lewis' two-run blast for all their runs. Combines, last year's champions, lead the league in this young season with two straight wins and look to be the pick of the loop again this season.

60,000 Flee Floods

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) The agriculture ministry estimated today that 60,000 persons have been displaced by the flooding of the Amazon river. The ministry said the Brazilian relief commission has rescued thousands of persons and more than 11,000 head of cattle in the Manaus area.

Bishop Confirms 68 At Cobourg

COBOURG— (ENS) — Bishop Gerald Berry of Peterborough conducted confirmation exercises last night at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, at which 52 children and 16 adults were confirmed. A large congregation attended the ceremony. After an examination in Christian doctrine, the candidates were confirmed by the bishop, assisted by the Rev. J. P. Collins and the Rev. J. Hart.

Speaking to the parents of the children, Bishop Berry said that it should be a time of satisfaction to the parents in seeing their children advance another step in Christian life. However, the education of the children started before they commenced school. Life was broader than the assimilation of the three R's.

"Don't give scandal to your children. God abhorred it so much that he refers to it in vehement terms when he mentions it in the Bible," declared Bishop Berry.

OBITUARIES

MRS. EUGENE F. EGGLETON

Mrs. Eugene F. Eggleton, the former Elizabeth Anne Kelly, 341 Downie St., died Thursday in hospital following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Eggleton was born in Peterborough, daughter of the late Thomas Kelly and Mary Farrell and has lived here all her life.

She was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral and a member of the Altar Society and the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving are one daughter, Miss Patricia Eggleton, Peterborough; one sister, Mrs. E. S. Lapp (Estelle), St. Mary's, Ont.; one brother, Egbert P. Kelly, Fort Francis and several nieces and nephews. Her husband, Eugene F. Eggleton, predeceased her.

The funeral will be held Monday from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass at 10 a.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

MRS. CHARLOTTE McMASTER

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The death occurred in Eldorado early Wednesday morning of Mrs. Charlotte McMaster, 85, a highly respected resident of Havelock.

Born in Eldorado, Mrs. McMaster was formerly Charlotte Chambers. She came to Havelock from Madoc over 40 years ago with her husband the late W. Arthur McMaster, a local merchant for many years, who died in July, 1925. Following the death of her sister, Miss Martha Chambers last spring, Mrs. McMaster took up residence with her daughter, Mrs. C. E. McMullin in Colborne, going from their to stay with a niece in Eldorado in October.

Her death came after an extended period of ill health which confined her to her bed for the past three months. She was a member of the Pentecostal Church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. C. E. McMullin, Cornwall, and a sister, Mrs. M. McGratton. Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral was held this afternoon. The service in the Pentecostal Church was conducted by the Rev. W. Stevenson. Burial was in Mount Pleasant cemetery, Campbellford. The pallbearers were William Chambers, Fred Chambers, Frank Chambers of Eldorado (nephews), J. Corneil, C. H. Roberts and G. Outwater.

Library Shows Circulation Up

Circulation at the Peterborough Public Library to the end of May this year shows an increase of 5,889 as compared to the same period in 1952.

Circulation figures for the first five months of this year, as reported at the meeting of the library board of directors Thursday night by Librarian William Graff, total 120,425.

Mr. Graff reported that there had been a slight drop in circulation in May, 1953, as compared to this month last year. The circulation for May this year was 21,962, and for May, 1952, 22,766.

There was a drop of 1,473 in the boys' and girls' department circulation, but this was slightly offset by an increase of 277 in the adult department for a total decrease of 1,196.

During May 186 films were shown to an aggregate audience of 10,332.

The library committee rooms and auditorium were used by 36 organizations and groups for meetings.

Safety Patrol Guests At Theatre Party

Approximately 300 school safety patrol members were guests of the Paramount Theatre Thursday afternoon for a movie showing, part of a series throughout the year in which the theatre played host to the boys and girls.

Following the film showing, Manager Art Cauley drew several prizese contributed by local merchants. They were distributed to winners by PC Don Mackay.

Meanwhile new safety patrol members are being trained to replace those who graduate from school this year. One last get-together of patrol members will be held soon in the form of a picnic at Nichols Oval.

Rhee Says Truce Selling Out Korea

SEOUL (Reuters) — President Syngman Rhee, still protesting against draft terms of a Korean truce, said tonight that South Korea would accept them nonetheless because of its friendship for the United States.

"But signing the truce is selling out not only my country but the United States as well," said the president after a 45-minute conference with Gen. Mark Clark, United Nations supreme commander.

In a radio interview, Rhee said South Korea would sign the armistice because it was "forced" by the United States.

Teachers Told Not To Resign

TORONTO (CP) — Secondary school teachers who recently voted to resign in protest against loss of negotiating rights under Toronto's single salary schedule, were advised today by the provincial executive of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation that such action should not be taken at this time.

Toronto teachers are asking for the restoration of the separate secondary school teachers' salary schedule, permitting them to negotiate their own salaries.

John T. Stubbs of Sault Ste. Marie, past president of the OSSTF, said he felt Toronto school trustees should be given "a little more time to realize they have deprived their secondary school teachers of a right universally recognized in employer-employee relationships."

He said that Toronto, by forcing the single salary schedule, was robbing the teachers of the right to negotiate their own salaries.

New Constitution Signed In Denmark

COPENHAGEN (AP) — King Frederik IX today signed a new Danish constitution which makes it possible for his 13-year-old daughter, Princess Margrethe, to inherit the throne.

By allowing female succession, the charter makes the princess heir apparent in place of the king's brother, Prince Knud.

The day was marked by a national half-day holiday and an amnesty for 25 convicts serving up to life terms in prison.

Danish voters narrowly approved the new constitution in a referendum last week. Approval came from 46 per cent of the 2,511,541 persons eligible to vote—one per cent more than the percentage required.

$10,000 Fire Razes Ice House Near Hotel

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y. (AP) —Flames today destroyed an old ice house near the Thousand Islands hotel in the centre of this resort village. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

The fire was confined to the 60-by-40-foot structure located back of the hotel but the heat scorched shingles on the rear of the hotel.

No one was in the building when the fire broke out. The front portion had been converted into living quarters for employees of the hotel, season.

Firemen from six nearby volunteer companies fought the fire.

PROCLAMATION

Shut-In's Day — Sunday, June 7th

Many of our citizens, unfortunately, through illness or other disability, are deprived of the opportunity to enjoy the pleasures of the outside world. To these we should bring what cheer and comfort we can throughout the year, but particularly on Sunday, June 7th, which is sponsored by the Shut-In's Day Association and observed as such on the North American Continent.

To provide a special ray of sunshine to those who are confined to their homes, hospitals and other like institutions, I hereby proclaim Sunday, June 7th, as Shut-In's Day in the City of Peterborough appealing to all organizations and individuals to observe the day by visiting or in other ways remembering the sick and disabled.

T. D. MILLER,
Acting Mayor.

Good Times

The average Canadian pocket has seldom been so full. The cost of living is lower, wages are higher and there are more jobs than ever before. These are sweeping statements but they are true.

For the last half year there has been a series of small declines in the consumer price index, which add up to nearly two points in all. This, coupled with a falling-off in the price index in the first four months of 1952, means that the cost of living is approximately what it was fully two years ago. Consider now the wage and salary situation, taking Ontario figures in the manufacturing industries, which is a fair way to do it since southern Ontario is now primarily a manufacturing area. The average weekly earnings in June, 1952, were $42.24. The latest figure we have is for March of this year. The average weekly wage was $62.36. This is an increase of more than $20 a week. (The average weekly wage at present is even higher than $62.36.) Thus the average industrial wage and salary earner in this province has $20 more pay a week than he had two years ago, yet goods and service (food, clothing, household expenses, taxes, and the like, all bulked together) are at the price level of June 1952.

* * *

Averages are shadows of the reality. Many of our readers may say: my pay has not risen $20 a week in the last two years; my living costs have not gone down to what they were two years ago. True as this may be, most people will find that their pay has risen somewhat, and that their food bills are definitely lower than they were. Farmers may not be as happy as industrial workers about the situation, because it represents a swing of the pendulum. When beef was a dollar a pound, the city person felt the pinch, the farmer coined money. Relative to industry, farming may not be quite as profitable as it was, but it had an innings.

* * *

The real importance of statistical averages is not to a person as an individual; he knows what his wages and costs are. The statistics are an indication of the economic condition of the country. Since the average Canadian has more pay and his costs are less, he has more money to spend on extra goods. He is buying these extras and this has given manufacturing and retail sales a good fillip. In turn, this increases the number of jobs. The buoyant state of affairs is expected to continue right through the year, the reasons being, first, the wider spread on the right side of the ledger between pay and costs of living, and, secondly, the thick cushion of personal savings in the country. The amount of the savings (in bank accounts, government bonds, insurance and the like) is unusually high. These savings will thoroughly support retail business and manufacture of consumer goods for many months to come, whatever the international situation, whatever threats of peace there are, and whatever the cuts in defence expenditure.

* * *

One of the encouraging aspects of the present prosperity and the prosperous future is that the strongest possibility we have yet had of a truce in Korea has not given the Canadian economy a quiver. The prosperity has been solid, the boom steady, and the Canadian people level-headed. Ottawa's economic and financial policies have channelled and to some extent directed these substantial and remarkably enduring good times.

A Great Designer

It is with regret that we read of the death of Edmund Dulac, the artist, at the age of seventy. He was an artist of unusual gifts. He did not excel as a painter of portraits or easel pictures, but he was a fine miniaturist, and he was especially gifted in the now somewhat unfashionable art of illustrating books. He was also a skilled painter of murals, and anyone who recalls the smoking-room of the old Empress of Britain will remember some of his best work in this field.

He was a Frenchman by birth, and he was strongly drawn toward the art of the East. Much of his finest designing and painting showed a deep Oriental influence. His interest in the Orient extended to its music, and he played several instruments which were strange to the Western world.

It is as a designer of stamps, however, that we particularly wish to recall him, for recently there has been controversy in Canada about our stamp designs. Dulac, because of his interest in miniatures, had a fine understanding of what could be achieved in a small space, and some of his stamps were wonderful examples of this form of art. The handsome Coronation Stamp of 1937 was his, and also the subsequent issue which showed a cameo head of King George VI. Considering how cleverly the British Post Office has used artists as stamp designers is it not time that our own Post Office looked into this matter, and also into the possibility of abandoning the engraving process which has made so many of our stamps clumsy, and which has called forth so much criticism?

Is The Iron Curtain Rising?

The Commonwealth leaders meeting in London have fully supported Sir Winston Churchill's proposal for a conference between East and West. The weight of this support is perhaps great enough to move even the great United States. Churchill has not predicted any revolution of international affairs into a general peace, as a result of such a conference. He does hope—and with reason—that direct dealing and conference at the very highest level may ease the tension and break down some of the barriers that divide the world into East and West. Jets, wireless, economics and people make the world one, for better or worse. Why then not try to make it a better one world?

From the western side of the Iron Curtain, therefore, come indications that it may be breached. From Moscow also have come surprisingly strong hints of a change. The whole front page of Pravda, the Kremlin's newspaper voice, was filled recently with a belated reply to Sir Winston's proposal to hold a conference. One of the final paragraphs was the most revealing of a basic change in Russia's political outlook. Pravda observed that the forthcoming three-Power meeting between the U.S.A., Britain and France meant the continuation of "the old and totally unjustified line of opposing States in accordance with ideological principles and social-political systems." This is really a startling statement. It is a complete reversal of the Stalinist view.

Stalin long held that East and West—communism and western capitalistic democracy—were totally incompatible. He believed that the world was divided into two opposed camps, one of which must finally triumph. At the very best, he talked of "peaceful co-existence," but this was only a tactical move. Basically he believed that the division between the two sides was permanent, until one, by force, crushed the other. "Peaceful co-existence" was a temporary means of holding at bay the inevitable total war. Now the Kremlin talks as if the division of the world were the Western idea. It criticizes the proposed Bermuda conference as a continuation of "the old and totally unjustified line of opposing States in accordance with ideological principles and social-political systems."

If Russia has changed not only her tactics but also her principles about this very important doctrine, the Iron Curtain may be raised. If a political system (communism or democratic capitalism) is wrong and unjustified in believing it must and can have good relations within its own camp only, then the international scene may once again be fluid, and diplomacy may find other—and happier—bases. Another basis than the tracks on which an iron curtain operate.

The Soft Side Of The British

We have been looking through the Coronation number of Punch and it moves us, as that publication so often does, to some reflections on the character of the people of Britain. That they are a great people is beyond a doubt; they are courageous, ingenious and high-spirited. Their skill in matters of trade and finance needs no endorsement from us; Canada has felt the pinch in many a shrewd British bargain. They are a tough people; they can endure hardship with remarkable good-nature. Because of all these rugged characteristics, it always surprises us when we come upon the soft side of the British—a side which often makes its appearance in Punch.

The sentiment about the Queen's youth frequently slips across the border into sentimentality; the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh and their children, as conceived by the artists of Punch, are of an almost cloying sweetness; the verses about them are of a yearning softness. At first encounter such expressions of loyalty seem to come oddly from the rugged Island Race. But as we consider the matter, we thing it can be explained.

The British are very sure of themselves, and people who are sure of themselves can betray their feelings more completely than those who are always under the necessity to keep up appearances. A very strong man, who has made his way in the world, can afford to talk a little bit sentimentally about his roses; the weaker man, who has to worry about what other people will think of him, dare not show any softness for fear it may be mistaken for weakness. Punch speaking for a very large body of British people, can afford to be sentimental; the people who stood against the Blitz without a whimper need not care if their eyes fill with tears when a Queen is crowned. Strength and insensibility are not synonymous terms.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: Could you provide me with information on how private property is assessed? In other words, on what are the taxes on residences based?

ANSWER: They are, of course, based on the assessed value of the property. The city pays a City Assessor and assistants. These expert go around town, decide what the house is worth, and in due course you receive an assessment notice. If you think the assessment is unfair, you may appeal, through a court of revision.

All this you probably know. HOW does the assessor arrive at the value? It is not a hit-and-miss business. In general throughout the city, it is estimated on the 1940 cost of replacement. That is, what it would have cost in 1940 to rebuild the house. This works out pretty much to a third of the actual sale value of the property today.

The assessor goes through the house from basement to attic, judges the value according to the structural material (wood, brick, plaster) and how many square feet there are in the house. Plumbing, hardwood flooring, tiling in bath or kitchen, the amount of wiring, the kind of furnace (oil or not), all affect the value. A four-piece bathroom is more valuable than a three-piece bathroom because it would cost more to replace. A hot water heating system rates higher than a hot air system.

Of course the assessors do not inspect every house completely every year. They can tell without too much looking when a garage has been added or additions have been built, or whether the kitchen has been paved with gold.

As property values have increased, so assessments have increased—but still not above a third of their actual sale value, generally. Allowances are made for depreciation due to obsolescence, or location. For instance, a house which has been fronted by a factory or surrounded by railway tracks is assessed less than the same house on a purely residential treet.

ANDERSON AND ROSE: Some weeks ago I asked about the Roses of Dummer, in discussing the Lumsdens of Warsaw. Mrs. R. M. Pinder of Saskatoon has written me of the family. She is daughter of David Archibald Rose and Mary Louise Lumsden. David Archibald, her father, was a son of David Rose, son of the first Warsaw Rose, and of Annie Anderson, daughter of the first Dummer Anderson. Mrs. Pinder enclosed notes written by Alexander Rose of Warsaw, whose father was John Rose, another son of David Rose and Annie Anderson.

The Andersons were as follows (if I read the notes correctly): John Anderson. He came with two brothers Alex and James to Canada in 1932. Alex and James settled in western Ontario, John in Dummer. John married Isabella Robertson. He died in 1843, she in 1885. Both are buried in the fifth line cemetery known as the Old Baptist Graveyard in Dummer.

The issue of John and Isabella was: (1) Annie, grandmother of Mrs. Pinder and Mr. Alexander Rose. Married David Rose. Died 1887, aged 57. (2) Duncan Anderson, born 1832 died 1901. Married Rebecca Ritchie. Had eight children. (3) Christina Anderson—married Thomas Hawthorne, lived in Dummer. Died 1871. Buried at Warsaw. (4) Archie Anderson born 1838, died 1897(?). Married Amelia Ackerman, sister of B. F. Ackerman. Buried at Norwood. Had three sons and two daughters. (5) John Anderson, born 1840 died 1927. Married Charlotte Edwards. One daughter and two sons. A farmer. Buried at Warsaw. (6) Isabella Anderson born 1841 died 1871. Married Daniel Kidd. Lived at Warsaw. (7) Margaret Anderson born 1848, died 1883. Married Washington Ruil. Buried at Warsaw. Three sons and one daughter.

The two original brothers who went to western Ontario were, as I have said, James and Alex. James married Jessie MacCallum near Guelph. No family. Left their money acceptably to their nieces and nephews. Alex was a minister of religion, had a large family. Some of this branch still live around Guelph.

* * *

THE ROSE FAMILY: Originals came to Canada from Perthshire in 1831. Lived in Pictou county, Nova Scotia, until 1837, then came to Dummer township. He was John Rose, she before her marriage a Miss McIntosh and buried presumably in Pictou county. Two known sons (1) John Rose, born Perthshire, married Isabella Smith, also Perthshire. Both buried at Warsaw, he when 76, she when 81. (2) Sandy Rose, settled in Otonabee, was a clerk, then went to farm near Lakefield. He lived to a ripe old age. The entire family buried in the Lakefield cemetery. Third generation of this Rose are William and Eva Rose.

Now to return to John Rose who married Isabella Smith. He was born in Scotland in 1797, his wife in 1796. Three children: Sandy, Mary (married Sandy Young), and David, married Annie Anderson (see above). The first two went to the States. Sandy died on a ship taking him by way of the Panama Canal to the Californian gold rush. The Young descendants achieved some eminence in the States.

David Rose, the youngest son, lived with his father in Warsaw until about 1850. He worked as a carpenter on the English and Presbyterian churches, later farmed. Elected to Dummer council in 1867, reeve 1869 and '71, township treasurer 1874-78. Also a J.P. In 1891 moved to Manitoba district of Souris, to homestead. Died in 1900. His wife Annie Anderson died in 1887.

* * *

THEY HAD two daughters and five sons. They are as follows: John, born 1851, who married Rose Yourex and had the following children: Lydia Charlton, David and Alexander of Warsaw, Gertrude (Mrs. Charles Frankish); Isabella who died in infancy; Mary Jane (1854-1886) married, but no issue; Alexander 1857-1928, a bachelor who lived at Souris, Manitoba; David Archibald (1859-1947) of Souris; Duncan James (1859-1948) who had two sons and one daughter; Arthur H. born in 1861, lived at Souris; the Rev. George W., born 1865, died 1944; Thomas E., born 1867, living on the River Road, Peterborough.

The son David Archibald (born 1859) married Mary Louise Lumsden (born 1860) in 1890, in Warsaw. They moved to Souris in 1891 and to retirement in Brandon in 1920. Both died in 1947. Their family were all westerners: Mary Charlotte Helen, married to Robert Pindar (it is she who sent all this information—they had four children, ten grandchildren); David Francis Rose; Henrietta Lumsden Rose (married Dougle Ferguson); Margaret Violet (married A. W. B. Field), Bella Anderson Rose married Harold J. Schafer of Toronto, and Janet Louise married Arthur D. McLeod.

I am not at all sure that this note clarifies the Rose-Anderson-Lumsden relationships, but interested readers may be able to pick up the threads.

SIR: Is there really a sound barrier"?

ANSWER: Not really; or perhaps I should say the barrier is now down. Away back in 1936 Dr. W. F. Hilton, present chief aerodynamicist of Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth Aircraft (an associate company with A. V. Roe Canada) showed a group of reporters a graph of the horsepower required to propel an aircraft at higher and higher speeds. He remarked that as the speed of the aircraft approached the speed of sound a tremendous increase in horsepower would be required. He said: "The graph rises sharply at about the speed of sound, like a barrier against future progress." The next morning the term "sound barrier" was born in half a dozen papers. Which goes to show that newspapermen make their own contribution to the language of our times.

There was never an insurmountable barrier, as recent developments have shown; for instance, the record of the first CF-100 supersonic (faster than sound travels) flight which was established on December 19th, 1952, over southern Ontario at high altitudes. The plane which carried across the Atlantic the television films of the Coronation last Tuesday (thus making the CBC the first North American television broadcasting system to show the Coronation) is capable of breaking the "sound barrier" and has done so . . . A real supersonic effect is a "bang" which occurs when the plane passes the speed of sound.

COUNTRY NOTE: Coronation Day saw The Acres in festive guise. Got a few second-hand flags and put the two largest on cedar saplings cut from the bush by the creek. The cats had a splendid meal—a tin of sardines which accidentally (after being opened) fell into the garbage basket, thus rendering it fit for cats. But the real festive air was provided by the sun and green growth. The countryside hereabout looks wonderfully verdant. It is, as I must ruefully admit. Weeds are growing faster than flowers and vegetables. New-born woodpeckers are chirping in the rotted hollow of the flourishing Yellow Harvest apple tree. Groundhogs are fox-holing the meadow, hay is heading so well that my neighbour's cattle are jumping the fence into the back field reserved for sheep fodder in summer days. Scrub lilacs are growing a foot high in the raspberry patch. (Once lilacs get a head start, nothing but an A-bomb will kill them off) . . . The countryside is humming.

An American Opinion

Newspapers Upset Premier Bennett

(VICTORIA TIMES)

THERE'S a touch of humour and also a note of seriousness in Mr. Bennett's complaint that news in the press is being slanted against him and his party, that press accounts of his meetings have cut attendances in half, and that he doesn't like it at all.

Apart from a smile at the preposterous nature of the premier's remarks, the average British Columbian will see in the criticism an echo of the incident that got Premier Aberhart of Alberta into hot water a few years ago.

For it was this "father of Social Credit" who had his government pass an act requiring newspapers to publish any statement the government wanted them to publish, particularly when the regime thought it necessary to reply to unfavourable comment.

Naturally, the Supreme Court threw the legislation out, for once governments start dictating to newspapers what they can print democracy has one foot in the grave.

But one can picture Mr. Bennett, as he reads the factual news accounts of his campaign meetings, longing to follow in Mr. Aberhart's footsteps and try to make the public read only what he wants it to read.

Thus we have Mr. Bennett upset because one account of a Social Credit meeting in Victoria said that the gathering "turned into an uproar." The premier didn't like it called an uproar because, while he admitted there certainly was an uproar, he claimed it wasn't caused by Social Crediters but by hecklers.

Then Mr. Bennett takes exception to the papers making a great display of "little incidents" such as the J. Alan Reid speech on sex education. That this "little incident" roused the personal interest of every parent, every teacher, every newspaper reader in British Columbia apparently escapes Mr. Bennett. Perhaps such a minor occurrence should have been relegated to the back pages?

Again, the premier doesn't like newspaper heads which refer to the Socreds as being in a "state of chaos."

But when Public Works Minister Gagliardi says one thing in Kamloops and Finance Minister Gunderson says the opposite in Victoria; when Socred MLA Reid says one thing in Salmon Arm and Education Minister Rolston reverses it in Vancouver; when the premier himself is periodically at outs with his own members and the members themselves are quarrelling over who is orthodox and who isn't—then what is a poor reporter or editor to do?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thout art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain . . . Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever . . .

He sendeth the springs into the valleys, which run among the hills . . . By them shall the fowls of the heaven have their habitation, which sing among the branches . . . He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man: that he may bring forth food out of the earth. O Lord, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all. Letters To The Editor

RESENTS CORONATION CARTOON

Sir: The cartoon on page 4 of June 2nd's issue, is most offensive.

If it is supposed to be funny, it fails miserably.

I think you owe an apology to the British people who take your paper.

G. M. OKE.

ED. NOTE: The cartoon, by an English artist, was obtained by us from an English agency.

APPRECIATES CORONATION EDITION

Sir: I wish to congratulate and thank you for the June 2nd issue of the Examiner. I was under the impression there would not be an issue on June 2nd, but when I saw the paper at the door, I was pleased.

During the many years I have had the pleasure of reading the Examiner, the June 2nd, gave me the greatest pleasure. It was (to me) so enjoyable. I believe I did not miss a word. I will preserve this copy for my grandchildren.

Again thanking you.

Yours truly,

(MRS.) GEORGE BENTON.

CAN PETERBOROUGH CELEBRATE?

Sir I was glad to read your commentary re Peterborough's street dance in connection with Coronation festivities and I know many others approve of sentiments expressed therein.

What kind of public celebration in a public place is it when an admission of $1.50 a couple is charged? I never heard of such a thing being done before. Everybody should have been free to join in the dancing, making merry in a real wholesale, unrestricted way instead of a few couple inside who cared to pay and thousands "outside looking in." The people didn't think much of this dance, (I say "hold up?"). Sometimes I wonder if Peterborough really knows how to celebrate in any other way than to pile into their cars and head for somewhere out of the city, and sometimes too I think you can't blame them.

Yours truly,

"DISGUSTED".

Surrey Downs Derbyshire

LONDON (Reuters)—Surrey defeated Derbyshire by eight wickets Thursday, strengthening their hold on top of the county cricket championship table.

Surrey needed only 119 second-innings runs to win, but it was a far from easy task on a rain-damaged pitch. David Fletcher stood as opening bat and remained in the crease throughout the innings. He was 64 not out when he scored the winning run.

Close of play scores:

Australian tourists 325 and 173 for one, Sussex 218.

Somerset 319, Middlesex 119 and 76 for no wicket.

Cambridge University 202 for nine declared, Combined Services 116 and 71 for one.

Oxford University 325 for five declared and 21 for six, Hampshire 247.

Derbyshire 107 and 126, Surrey 115 and 120 for two. Surrey won by eight wickets.

Worcestershire 70 and 182 for six, Nottinghamshire 270.

Glamorgan 413, Essex 159 and 95 for three.

Warwickshire 195 and 43 for two, Lancashire 278.

Yorkshire 288 for six declared, Leicestershire 62 for one. Rain restricted play.

Federal Government Quick To Collect But Tightwad On Paying Its Taxes

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Many Canadian municipalities believe the federal government is quick about collecting taxes but a tightwad in paying taxes on its own property.

Controversy after controversy has been waged concerning the amount of money the federal government pays municipalities in lieu of taxes on federal property.

Opposition members in the session just ended proposed that municipalities be relieved of the 10-per-cent sales tax to ease their financial burdens. The government turned a cold shoulder.

WORTH MILLIONS

The federal government owns a lot of properties across the country. They include post offices, parks, historical sites, airports and a host of other structures that form part of dozens of municipal build-ups. No one is quite sure how much this property is worth. However, officials estimate it in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Many municipalities complain they must provide services to this property, such as water and electricity and police and fire protection. But the tax revenue obtained is far below that obtained from similar business edifices nearby.

The federal argument is that it is not subject to municipal tax laws, but during the years it has made some grants, cemented into formal regulations in 1950.

Federal payments were increased to some 40-odd municipalities in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1953, from 22 in the year ended March 31, 1951. Total payments doubled in that period to $2,700,000 from $1,378,999. Municipalities claim this is a pittance to what the government would have paid under normal tax regulations.

FOUR CATEGORIES

Altogether, there are four categories under which federal payments can be made:

1. A payment equal to 75 per cent of the normal business and school tax on federal property in excess of four per cent of the total municipal property assessment.

2. A transitional grant, spread over four years, on property the federal government has newly acquired. This grant is usually paid in areas where the federal property assessment does not exceed four per cent of the total. The grant is equal to 100 per cent of the full normal tax in the first year, 75 per cent in the second, 50 per cent in the third and 25 per cent in the fourth. The grant ends after the fourth year.

3. Payment to cover local improvements made to areas adjoining federal property, such as a new municipal sidewalk adjoining a federal post office.

4. A grant to rural municipalities based on the federal property assessment. The property would include such projects as army barracks and airports. Federal officials estimate these grants won't total more than several hundred thousand dollars a year.

Supported by a large group of members from all three opposition parties, George Drew appealed to the government in the last session to lift the 10-per-cent sales tax from the goods municipalities purchased.

EXEMPTION INCREASE

As the federal government grew, he argued, and as it acquired more property, more and more municipal property was being exempted from tax; throwing still heavier burdens on municipal taxpayers "who in turn must pay those special taxes imposed by the Dominion government."

In reply, Finance Minister Abbott argued that the tax is paid by the manufacturer. It would be extremely difficult to separate goods purchased by municipalities from those purchased by other groups. A great deal of paper work would develop.

The government could, of course, eliminate the sales tax entirely, but it would lose a lot of revenue. Mr. Abbott estimated the sales tax would provide about $590,000,000 in revenue this year.

"If that revenue is to be foregone," he said in debate, "we must get it somewhere else.

"We could get it by increasing the personal income tax on the average by about 50 per cent. . . we could get it by perhaps increasing the corporation tax further.

"But let me hasten to say here to those who oppose hidden taxes, that the corporation tax is today our greatest hidden tax and produces substantially more than the sales tax produces."

COUNTRY-WIDE MEET

TORONTO (CP)—Ten athletes and a coach from each of the four Western provinces will attend the Dominion-wide track and field meet at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds here Sept. 4-5, it was announced Thursday. It will be the first country-wide meet in years.

George Duthie, CNE sports department manager just returned from a Western tour where he outlined the newly-created Canadian Olympic training plan, said the response from Amateur Athletic Union, provincial government and service clubs officials was "tremendous." The plan is aimed to prepare the country's track and field athletes for future Olympic Games.

Duthie will leave next week for a tour of Eastern Canada, including St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Charlottetown and Montreal.

Duthie said special meets will be held in each Western province next August and athletes will be selected by AAU officials.

ESKS ADD 2 IMPORTS

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Thursday the signing of two more United States imports, middle Charles Genthner and quarterback Bob Ewbank. Genthner, 30, starred last year with the University of Texas. Ewbank, a 24-year-old Oklahoma graduate, was an understudy to both Darrell Royal, Eskimo coach, and Eskimo's 1952 quarterback Claude Arnold.

Pitching—Bob Hall, Pittsburgh Pirates, allowed seven hits, struck out four and walked one in winning his first major league game, 6-1, over Chicago.

Batting: Eddie Joost, Philadelphia Athletics, hit two home runs and four singles in 10 times at bat, driving in four runs, as the A's won a doubleheader from Detroit, 11-2 and 9-6.

Lumber For Housing

LONDON (Reuters)—Nearly all the lumber used in the stands along the Coronation route will be returned to builders for use in the British housing program, a government spokesman said Thursday. More than 280,000 cubic feet of lumber was used in the 75 government stands.

Annual GE Picnic Promises To Be Best Ever

The annual CGE picnic at Nicholls Oval Saturday, June 6, has all the signs of being, in the idiom of the circus, "bigger and better than ever" for the 4,600 employees and their families whose total muster may be up around 10,000.

This is one of the annual affairs of the Social and Athletic Club whose members have been busy in recent weeks arranging for the distribution of the last ice cream cone ticket for somebody's Junior. In one pleasant aspect it is quite an enjoyable enterprise, in the role of a midsummer Santa Claus, running up the accounts, not rashly of course, and then handing the bill of costs to the company.

Ten vaudeville acts—count 'em—have been booked through the Kneeland headliner agency of Buffalo for the Saturday afternoon and evening programs. For the first time the committee has crossed the border for entertainment talent.

According to Bas Phelan who is doing considerable ballyhoo, although they don't need any plugging down there—this picnic takes care of itself in every particular.

Ten or is it eleven—count 'em—CGE products collected for a draw topped with an automatic electric dryer. Mr. Phelan says there are 10 other appliances, exclusively for the employees. There is a broad program of races and other competitions from fly casting and golf approach putting down to pie-eating. Then there are the packages, a word that is not used in picnic publicity, but it is still apt. It appears that they make up packages of tickets for all the things the picnic affords.

Preliminary to that phase of preparation, the committee sends a letter to every one on the payroll, asking for family information, married or single, how many children, their ages and so on.

Then with that information before them, the committee can visualize the job, the biggest picnic chore in this part of the country. Finally, individual packages are made up. Each youngster's allotment includes a strip of five tickets for cones, other refreshments and confections.

The package also includes race tickets for the boys and girls of 5 to 12 years. Nobody can get into a race without a ticket. Otherwise all the kids in town would be eligible. Then there are the draw tickets and so on. Mr. Phelan says the vaudeville looks exceptionally good.

For the afternoon show, the emphasis is on the acts that should hold a comprehending appeal to children. Then, in the evening the entire program.

The afternoon attractions start at 1.30, the grandstand show at 3.30, and finally the wind-up, beginning at 8 p.m.

"The committee is convinced that all we need is sunshine, and this will be the all-time success with the works picnics," Mr. Phelan said.

He provides the following list of the club's picnic executive:

Bob Batley, president; Pat Caladine, entertainment chairman; Bert Bailey, general supervisor of picnic; Basil Phelan, general secretary; Eric Cotton, chairman sports committee; executive members, Mrs. Mel Mortimer, Jack Williams, Bob Whiteside, Frank Millard (vice-president), Bill Hurrle (treasurer), Terry Woods, Doug Abraham, Gene Reynolds, Walter Dunford and Gerry Pagett.

Ask $16,000 Damages

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Steve Cochran Thursday was assessed $16,000 damages by a jury which heard trial of a suit by Buddy Wright, former boxer, who asked for $405,000. Wright said Cochran hit him on the head with a baseball bat at the Cochran home early in the morning of New Year's day, 1952.

Seabrooke Gets A 7-4 Win Over UE Squad

Seabrooke Motors came strong in the late innings of Thursday's nightcap to earn a triumph over UEW as these two battling squads renewed their old softball rivalry at the East City Bowl; the Sullivan gang emerged victorious in this one 7-4 after nine innings of hectic battle.

Lefty Doris took the hill, opposing Howie Dalton and twirled a steady, if not brilliant game, to earn the laurels over his versatile, veteran rival; he allowed five hits over the route, struck out three and walked two. Dalton started well but weakened slightly in the sixth and again in the eighth, when Seabrooke's pumped over what turned out to be the winning runs; fielding lapses by UE also hurt their cause, but the Sullivan boys earned their victory when hits meant runs. Dalton was nicked for 12 hits, fanned four and walked no one.

BROKE LOOSE

The storm broke in the sixth; Jaquith singled, Thompson was safe on a fielder's choice, Sullivan hit safely—a triple—to score Thompson, then scored on a wild peg. Seabrooke's tied the score in the eighth as Doris singled for his second hit and later scored on an error. In the ninth, Wyatt, Spencer, Donaghue, Scriver and Jaquith all hit safely as the Seabrooke siege guns broke forth to earn final victory. Two brilliant double plays by the winners featured afield; though both squads erred several times and these proved a factor in the scoring.

UEW: Conway, 2b; Woods, 3b; Thomson, c; Dalton, p; Robson, cf; White, lf; Batley, ss; Conlin, 1b Bryan, rf; *Taylor, (batted for Bryan in 9th).

Seabrooke Motors: Jaquith, cf; Thompson, ss; Sullivan, 1b; Wyatt, 3b; Spencer, lf; Donoghue, 2b; Scriver, c Wilson, rf; Doris, p.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Here's hoping for a clear, warm evening tonight. It's the first local men's doubles tournament and with a break in the weather we can depend on a goodly crowd. So then, bowlers, tonight — it's men's doubles. Choose your partner, $1.00 a pair, and be on time —7:30 o'clock.

The winning skips on Wednesday night were: W. Jeffries, C. Renaud, and F. Dearborn.

All the heavy scoring is not confined to the men bowlers. We believe that in last night's schedule games one ladies' rink scored a seven-end on the last end to tie up the old ball game. It does happen once in a while.

Simmons Lost For Two Weeks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Southpaw Curt Simmons, one of the Philadelphia Phillies' major pennant weapons, was lost to the National League team for at least two weeks when he suffered a gashed left foot Thursday while mowing his lawn.

The 24-year-old lefthander was mowing an embankment when he slipped, catching his foot in the rotary blades of the power-driven machine. A doctor said one toe was badly mangled but there was no apparent fracture.

Simmons has won seven and lost four in the 1953 National League race, his latest outing a defeat at the hands of St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

George Fletcher, secretary of Phillies, said a physician told him Simmons would be back with the club to work out in two weeks but that it was uncertain when Curt would be ready to take his pitching turn again.

Revoy's Beaten By TPT Petes In Tight Tussle

George Bennett's TPT softballing Petes continued their winning ways Thursday night at the East City Bowl, defeating Revoy Motors 2-1, in a thrill-packed opener of the regular senior men's twin bill It was the hockey lads' third straight win of the young season witnessed by a fine crowd.

Victory came in the final frame when Toodie Greenlaw drove to short centre with three aboard to score Mackness with the tie-breaker after TPT's had scored in the eighth. Dick West on the Revoy hill toiled a grand game; but the final splurge of TPT bats turned a possible thrilling victory to a heartbreaking defeat.

Revoys tallied one in the second as Grafstein hit safely and later scored on a wild peg. The teams batted on even terms until the eighth before a tense crowd with the fine veteran Ken Guilfoyle hurling steadily against West for seven full frames scattering four hits; then Haddy Eakins relieved. With one away in the eighth Junior West caught one of Dick West's slants and drove to deep left for a triple; the throw to third was slightly off and West came prancing home to tie up the ball game.

STRUCK FAST

In the home half, the Bennett boys struck fast as Mackness and Legrow singled successively, Collins was safe on a fielder's choice; and the stage was set for Greenlaw's hit of the night.

West allowed seven hits, fanned eight and walked none; while Guilfoyle scattered four hits, struck out three and walked none to flash some of his old-time form. Eakins whiffed three in two for no hits and issued one ticket. Henry and Red Wasson shone afield for Revoys as did Mackness and Leonard for the winners in possibly the finest game of the season, to date.

Revoy Motors—Henry 2b, Cowie cf, R. Wasson 3b, Cupoli lf, Grafstein rf, Craig c, Nelson ss, Elmhirst 1b, West p, Griffin.

TIMELY THUMPS—Two of the Petes' puckists had much to do last night with giving the TPT softball Petes a 2-1 win over Revoy's at the Bowl. Toodie Greenlaw, left, hit in the winning run in the last inning, after Junior West (at right) earlier had scored on a triple and bad throw.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

According to Dan Parker, N.Y. sports scribe: "Hans Hermann, who calls himself the Horrible Hun in Canadian wrestling circles, has been exposed as an American by Dr. Ralph Reifferscheidt, German consul-general in Montreal, who has received complaints from recent German immigrants to Canada about the 'imposter.' Hm, that must be the goose-stepping Hans who performed in mat bouts here several times last winter. Mike Rodden remarks that one character, who claimed to be the champion of Italy, a country he never saw, bamboozled Toronto fans during the early 30s. Another represented a U.S. Indian tribe, but 'twas later learned he hailed from a small town north of Toronto. The low-lifers!

* * * * * *

Milt Dunnell of Toronto thinks aloud that baseball, even in the major leagues, is slipping in popularity. We hope not. Says he: "It's all right to say the weather has been terrible as it has. And maybe TV has hurt the gates. But the slide has been going on for six years, and it keeps getting worse. Meanwhile, other games like racing, football and the stock cars have been getting fat. It makes you wonder whether baseball still isn't living back in the days of Babe Ruth. Maybe there's a boom around the corner. Until the minors get lucky, the majors can't feel safe. Many are losing money, but others plead to get in. That must prove it's a great game." It certainly is.

A Warmish Race In OLA

Another great sport in Ontario is senior "A" lacrosse, and a hot race has developed already this season among the four top teams. We mean St. Catharines and Toronto Yorks in top place, and Petes and Fergus right on their heels. Petes can climb into a first-place tie tonight here—weather permitting—if they beat St. Kitts. It'll be a battle royal between two classy clubs, and with no love lost. The Thorpe team will be out to avenge that overtime win St. Kitts took at Petes' expense last Saturday in the Garden City. But the speedy A's are nobody's cousins this OLA campaign. They'lyl extend them all.

* * * * * *

A flock of future senior lacrossers dot the local lineup of the junior "A" Pats. This team wasn't by any means at full strength when losing last Wednesday in Long Branch, some of the good players having to work and thereby miss the trip. But they'll be all on deck here Saturday eve to face the strong Brampton threat. The B's are Minto Cup champions from last year, and are probably the club to beat for OLA junior honors this semester. Along with half a dozen fine imports, the Pats have these good local players: Carl Brioux, Jerry O'Reilly, Bob Allan, Frank Farley, Bob Curtis, Al Foote, Bud McDougall, Bob Howe, Ken Woodgate, Jack Chapman and Pat Brennan. They'll do okay in the grind ahead, and deserve plenty of fan support in home tilts.

More Like A Puck Score

Two tidy tilts reeled off before a good gallery at the eastern saucer last gloaming. It was 2-1 in the opener for George Bennett's softball puckists, the TPT Petes, o'er Revoy's, third straight for TPT. Dick West hurled fine ball for the losers, and veteran Ken Guilfoyle was in rare form for Petes for seven heats, Haddy Eakins finishing strong. Junior West had a timely triple and Toodie Greenlaw the game-winning hit at the end. Nightcap saw Red Sullivan's Seabrooke squad win 7-4 from UEW, with Lefty Doris steady on the mound and Howie Dalton deserving a better fate, but for a couple of slips. Fielding was a bit below par in this performance, though the victors pulled a couple of twin killings. Games June 9: TPT vs. Seabrooke, and UE vs. Revoy.

* * * * * *

Sorry to hear of the sudden death Wednesday of 68-year-old Frank Hughes here, following a car accident Tuesday night. He has acted on local sports executives, notably baseball, in years past and was once keenly interested in curling and golf. However, Mr. Hughes spent quite a few years in Western Canada where he was most active in hockey and various other lines of athletics, and was a friend of NHL prexy Clarence Campbell, Wes Champ, Eddie Shore, Bill Tobin and other prominent hockey men. Had Bill Tobin up here a few years ago for a fishing trip and invited us along to interview the manager of Chicago Black Hawks. Frank was a well-liked and genial sportsman.

Nelson Pleased Fans Remember

CHICAGO (AP)—Battling Nelson celebrated his 71st birthday today convinced that fame isn't so fleeting after all.

The former lightweight champion of the world, who fought three classic battles with Joe Gans, beamed in his dingy hotel room at reports that long-memoried fans were rallying to ease his poverty.

From San Francisco came promise of more than $1,000 in donations to the Battling Nelson benefit fund and a free hotel room once accorded the late Tom Sharkey, another fighting great.

"They didn't forget me in Frisco," grinned the one-time terror of the little battlers. "I hope I can move out there next fall."

A Chicago committee trying to arrange a trust fund for Nelson plans a $10-a-plate testimonial dinner for him next September. If all goes well the Bat will get $100 a month for life.

U.S. Captain Leaves Self Off Team

By W. B. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Captain Jack Burke, Jr., left himself off the United States squad in today's opening play between teams of the Canadian and American Professional Golfers' Associations.

The competition today was four-ball, best-ball. Burke will play in the singles Saturday and Sunday, and it is a matter of record that last year in the inaugural of the matches for the Hopkins Trophy, Jackie shot a pair of 66s in singles play—six strokes under par 72 at the Beaconsfield course.

The decision to remain out of the four-ball play was more a matter of necessity than choice. Ed (Porky) Oliver must leave before the matches end Sunday for an exhibition engagement in the United States.

Bill Kerr, captain of the Canadian team and the host club pro, plays in the four-ball match and will drop himself from one day of the singles.

ONLY 6 PER DAY

The PGA of each country named its team several weeks ago. Canada will be permitted to use Bobby Locke of South Africa and Peter Thomson of Australia. But only six players of each team compete each day. The dropped players may play in an exhibition round.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver gave assurance Thursday night that he and his teammates would be out at Beaconsfield early to join Kerr in practice.

"We've got to win this year," said Leonard, who Wednesday teamed with Kerr in placing Canada second behind Argentina's Tony Cerda and Roberto de Vicenzo in the Canada Cup international twosomes.

Leonard's teammate today in the four-ball matches was Dick Borthwick of the Hamilton Ancaster Club, who won the Canadian PGA title in 1949 They met Ted Kroll and Tommy Bolt.

Kerr and Locke were drawn against Oliver and Jim Turnesa, U.S. PGA champion.

Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, Canadian PGA titleholder, and Thomson faced a tough pair in Julius Boros, U.S. Open champion, and Doug Ford. Jules Huot of Montreal's Laval-sur-le-lac, sat out the four-ball play and will go in the singles.

16 Schools Plan To Compete

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Sixteen United States and Canadian schools will compete in Saturday's eighth annual Canadian schoolboy rowing regatta to be rowed on the Old Welland Canal course here.

The record number of crews racing in the nine championship events will make the regatta the largest of its kind on the North American continent. It has also forced the rowing of four morning heats in the 145-pound fours and championship eights races.

Crews competing will come from the University of Ottawa, Toronto Western Technical School, Toronto Humberside Collegiate, Toronto St. Michael's College, Etobicoke Township High School, Hamilton Central Secondary school, Hamilton Westdale Collegiate, Hamilton Cathedral High School, Canisius College of Buffalo, N.Y., Buffalo Lafayette High School, Buffalo Timin High School, Buffalo St. Joseph's High School, Buffalo Technical School, St. Catharines Collegiate, Welland Notre Dame and Merritton Linwell High School.

Peewee Teams Open Church Softball Loop

The Church Softball League, sponsored by the Boys' Work Board here, got away to a lopsided start in the peewee section at Morrow Park last night as St. Andrew's downed St. James 44-8, and Park St. took George St. 40-8. Teams:

St. Andrew's: K. Stickle, Wood, R. Stickle, Mann, Bacon, Ferguson, Brady, Clarke, Young.

St. James: Stanbury, Heard, Baldry, Cuff, Jones, Hutchinson, Williamson, Rose, Ball.

Umpires—M. Meldrum and J. Wilson.

Park St.: Trotter, Davis, Chambo, Todd, Cannon, Batley, Guppy, Graham, Corbett, Wall, Taylor, Norod.

George St.: R. Rowley, P. Rowley, Kelcey, Munroe, Walsh, Calberry, Milburn, Foster, Townsend, Evans.

Game Postponed

MIMICO (CP)—A scheduled Ontario Lacrosse Association game Thursday night between Brampton and Mimico was postponed because of rain.

Out At The Kawartha

LADIES' SECTION

To golf or not to golf?—that was the question yesterday at tee-off time. However, 14 of the 18-hole group started out and later about 12 of the 9-hole group arrived and brought sunshine with them and a good day was had by everyone.

The competition for the 18 holes was the total points for odd holes, which was tied between Mrs. R. Miller and Mrs. H. Woodcox. Mrs. Miller received the sterling silver spoon and Mrs. Woodcox was credited with a point as she won last week. The golf ball was won by Mrs. J. Gatfield for low net; she also was the Spring Trophy winner for this week.

The competition for the 9-hole group was the total number of putts on the nine holes. Mrs. L. Copp won the silver spoon with the lowest number and Mrs. D. Hough won the ball with the highest. The prizes were given out by the captains, Mrs. F. Dunfield and Mrs. N. Williamson at tea in the club house.

BUSINESS GIRLS

Not many girls were on hand Thursday night at five, but as the rain kept away more BG's decided to come out until at the close of the day over 40 had played nine holes. Captain Dorothy Harle announced the winners as follows: Low gross, Ruth McKee; low on hidden hole, Helen Kelly. Each girl received a sterling silver spoon. The winners of last week's competition for low net and low putts were Mil. Mortimer and Edith Mattucci respectively. This now gives two competitors in the Spring Trophy, Mil Mortimer and Ruth McKee.

We would emphasize that rain or shine the BG's are asked to come out to the club house anyway. If raining at five o'clock we have lunch and a social time. The list for girls wishing to participate in the handicap competition is now on the bulletin board in the locker room.

Don't forget to listen to "Kawartha News" 6:15 p.m. Saturday!

INDIANS OPTION LEMON

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Indians Thursday optioned Jim Lemon, 25-year-old utility outfielder, to Indianapolis Indians. The 200-pound player returned to the Tribe this year following two years in the army and appeared in 16 games, batting .174.

Ambiguity Wins Oaks Renewal In Snatch Duel

By ALAN HARVEY

EPSOM, England (CP)—Lord Astor's Ambiguity, a filly from a route-running family, won the 175th renewal of the Oaks Thursday in a snatch duel against the Aga Khan's Kerkeb.

Starting at 18-1 in a field of 21, Ambiguity wrested the lead from the long-priced Kerkeb two furlongs from home, and prevailed by a length. Kerkeb, ridden by Sir Gordon Richards, narrowly beat the French invader Noemi for second place with Happy Laughter, winner of the One Thousand Guineas, fourth.

Nectarine, slight favorite to win this 1½-mile classic race for three-year-old fillies, never was a contender.

Lord Ellesmere's Lily Oak set the pace to half-way, followed by Lord Rosebery's Brolly, Fair Colleen, and Happy Laughter.

SETTLES ISSUE

Kerkeb came from the ruck to take over the running after rounding Tattenham Corner, but jockey Joe Mercer had Ambiguity lying handy and quickly settled the issue when the real racing began.

Ambiguity is by Big Game out of Amber Flash, and comes from a line that has already produced two Oaks winners—Short Story and Penny-Cum-Quick.

The Oaks, worth 3,000 sovereigns added, is the third of Britain's five racing classics. This year, though, it is only the appetiser to the big race of the season—the 175th Epsom Derby, run at this same track Saturday.

Toronto Begins Bid For Olympic Games

LONDON (CP)—Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, disclosed today that he has started discussions here about a Toronto bid for the 1960 Olympic games.

Chairman of the Canadian National Exhibition sports committee, Saunders said he talked by telephone with Lord Aberdare, a member of the International Olympic Committee and of the British Olympic Association, and was scheduled to see him later.

Golfer Stan Leonard Raves Over Western Find

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Leonard, over a stretch of years rated the best pro golfer Canada has produced, is going to spring a West Coast youngster on unsuspecting easterners one of these days and has no doubt as to what will happen.

This up-and-coming young golfer is 21-year-old Garneth Laneker, assistant to Leonard at the Vancouver Marine Drive Club.

Here to play in the Canada-United States team matches Leonard talked in glowing terms Thursday about his find.

"The boy really has the makings of a great player," said Leonard. "He's little over six feet tall, weighs 180 pounds and has developed a smooth golf style.

"He is a likeable fellow, of the right temperament for golf and won't get swell-headed, even if I've seen him grinning to himself when he outdrives me.

FINISHED SECOND

"I sent him down to play in the Bellingham Open—in the state of Washington—where I knew he would meet some of the best pros in the Pacific Northwest. I was hoping he would do around 75. He shot a 70 the first day and finished second in the tournament.

"In the City Open, one of our top tournaments in Vancouver, he lost out at one hole to Walter McElroy."

McElroy is one of the top amateurs in Canada and an experienced golfer. He won the Canadian amateur title in 1951 at Ottawa.

Leonard said Likener is a natural golfer, although the youngster once had a yearning to be a baseball pitcher. He was figured a good prospect, too, but he decided to stick to golf. He began playing golf at the University Club in Vancouver and a couple of years ago sought a job with Leonard. He got the job and Leonard has never regretted taking him on.

"I'm not taking the credit for developing him," said Leonard, "Lineker has natural ability. He is willing and anxious to learn all the time. I really believe that in a comparatively short time he can be an outstanding golfer, particularly if he can get into top tournament play in the United States. . .

"His prospects are so good he may run me right out of a job."

No Matter What British Say King-Savoie Fighting For Titles

TORONTO (CP)—Despite what the British say, ring moguls here insist Li'l Arthur King and Armand Savoie will be fighting for two titles at Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday night.

Savoie's Canadian lightweight championship is on the line, as well as King's claim to the British Empire title—which the British Boxing Board of Control says King doesn't own.

The board said Thursday it deprived King of his Empire title last September. It announced it recognizes Frank Johnston of Manchester as Empire champion as a result of Johnston's knockout of Australian champion Frank Flannery.

But promoter Frank Tunney shrugged off the British board's pronouncement. King also paid little attention, except to express disappointment that he never had a challenge for the crown.

$250 BELT

Tunney said Thursday night that he will put up personally a $250 belt, emblem of the British Empire championship, for presentation to Monday's winner.

Matchmaker Deacon Allen said: "The British board is a self-appointed body. One of its leading members is Jack Solomons, leading fight promoter in Britain. That's like Tunney, a promoter, also being a boxing commissioner here. Solomons wants the title to be in Britain so he can promote championship lightweight fights."

King himself said he received a letter from the board. It asked him, in effect, to find a promoter with a fighter who wanted to challenge King.

"I won the Empire title in England, making a trip there to do so," King said. "On a later trip, I couldn't find any leading challenger to fight.

NO PREVIOUS CHALLENGE

"I've never refused to fight anyone. I've never been beaten for the title. It's mine and they're not going to take it away from me this way. No one challenged me until Savoie came along."

Both Savoie and King, paring down to the 135-pound limit for the 12-round championship bout, worked out Thursday before a large crowd at suburban Lakeview gym. They drew admiring comment from the spectators.

King, who used to fight regularly out of Toronto, formerly held the Canadian title. The Canadian Boxing Federation relieved him of it after he decided to make Philadelphia his headquarters.

Savoie, a Montrealer, won the vacant crown in September, 1951, by a 12-round decision over Solly Cantor of Toronto. Two months previously, King decisioned Savoie in their only meeting.

In Quebec, Gene Letourneau, acting national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, said Thursday the CBF has sanctioned a title fight between Savoie and King "for the Canadian lightweight championship only."

Letourneau said King cannot put the British Empire title on the line because he no longer holds it.

Surrey Downs Derbyshire

LONDON (Reuters)—Surrey defeated Derbyshire by eight wickets Thursday, strengthening their hold on top of the county cricket championship table.

Surrey needed only 119 second-innings runs to win, but it was a far from easy task on a rain-damaged pitch. David Fletcher stood as opening bat and remained in the crease throughout the innings. He was 64 not out when he scored the winning run.

Close of play scores:

Australian tourists 325 and 173 for one, Sussex 218.

Somerset 319, Middlesex 119 and 76 for no wicket.

Cambridge University 202 for nine declared, Combined Services 116 and 71 for one.

Oxford University 325 for five declared and 21 for six, Hampshire 247.

Derbyshire 107 and 126, Surrey 115 and 120 for two. Surrey won by eight wickets.

Worcestershire 170 and 182 for six, Nottinghamshire 270.

Glamorgan 413, Essex 159 and 95 for three.

Warwickshire 195 and 43 for two, Lancashire 278.

Yorkshire 288 for six declared, Leicestershire 62 for one. Rain restricted play.

Plan $15,000 Repairs To High School

STIRLING (ENS).—The village council, at the request of Centre Hastings High School Area, agreed to gurantee $15,000 for repairs to the local high school, subject to the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board.

Council also authorized purchase of four receptables to be placed along the business section to keep the streets clear of waste paper.

Federal Government Quick To Collect But Tightwad On Paying Its Taxes

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Many Canadian municipalities believe the federal government is quick about collecting taxes but a tightwad in paying taxes on its own property.

Controversy after controversy has been waged concerning the amount of money the federal government pays municipalities in lieu of taxes on federal property.

Opposition members in the session just ended proposed that municipalities be relieved of the 10-per-cent sales tax to ease their financial burdens. The government turned a cold shoulder.

WORTH MILLIONS

The federal government owns a lot of properties across the country. They include post offices, parks, historical sites, airports and a host of other structures that form part of dozens of municipal buildups. No one is quite sure how much this property is worth. However, officials estimate it in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Many municipalities complain they must provide services to this property, such as water and electricity and police and fire protection. But the tax revenue obtained is far below that obtained from similar business edifices nearby.

The federal argument is that it is not subject to municipal tax laws, but during the years it has made some grants, cemented into formal regulations in 1950.

Federal payments were increased to some 40-odd municipalities in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1953, from 22 in the year ended March 31, 1951. Total payments doubled in that period to $2,700,000 from $1,378,999. Municipalities claim this is a pittance to what the government would have paid under normal tax regulations.

FOUR CATEGORIES

Altogether, there are four categories under which federal payments can be made:

1. A payment equal to 75 per cent of the normal business and school tax on federal property in excess of four per cent of the total municipal property assessment.

2. A transitional grant, spread over four years, on property the federal government has newly acquired. This grant is usually paid in areas where the federal property assessment does not exceed four per cent of the total. The grant is equal to 100 per cent of the full normal tax in the first year, 75 per cent in the second, 50 per cent in the third and 25 per cent in the fourth. The grant ends after the fourth year.

3. Payment to cover local improvements made to areas adjoining federal property, such as a new municipal sidewalk adjoining a federal post office.

4. A grant to rural municipalities based on the federal property assessment. The property would include such projects as army barracks and airports. Federal officials estimate these grants won't total more than several hundred thousand dollars a year.

Supported by a large group of members from all three opposition parties, George Drew appealed to the government in the last session to lift the 10-per-cent sales tax from the goods municipalities purchased.

EXEMPTION INCREASE

As the federal government grew, he argued, and as it acquired more property, more and more municipal property was being exempted from tax; throwing still heavier burdens on municipal taxpayers "who in turn must pay those special taxes imposed by the Dominion government."

In reply, Finance Minister Abbott argued that the tax is paid by the manufacturer. It would be extremely difficult to separate goods purchased by municipalities from those purchased by other groups. A great deal of paper work would develop.

The government could, of course, eliminate the sales tax entirely, but it would lose a lot of revenue. Mr. Abbott estimated the sales tax would provide about $590,000,000 in revenue this year.

"If that revenue is to be foregone," he said in debate, "we must get it somewhere else.

"We could get it by increasing the personal income tax on the average by about 50 per cent. . . we could get it by perhaps increasing the corporation tax further.

"But let me hasten to say here to those who oppose hidden taxes, that the corporation tax is today our greatest hidden tax and produces substantially more than the sales tax produces."

COUNTRY-WIDE MEET

TORONTO (CP)—Ten athletes and a coach from each of the four Western provinces will attend the Dominion-wide track and field meet at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds here Sept. 4-5, it was announced Thursday. It will be the first country-wide meet in years.

George Duthie, CNE sports department manager just returned from a Western tour where he outlined the newly-created Canadian Olympic training plan, said the response from Amateur Athletic Union, provincial government and service clubs officials was "tremendous." The plan is aimed to prepare the country's track and field athletes for future Olympic Games.

Duthie will leave next week for a tour of Eastern Canada, including St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Charlottetown and Montreal.

Duthie said special meets will be held in each Western province next August and athletes will be selected by AAU officials.

Annual GE Picnic Promises To Be Best Ever

The annual CGE picnic at Nicholls Oval Saturday, June 6, has all the signs of being, in the idiom of the circus, "bigger and better than ever" for the 4,600 employees and their families whose total muster may be up around 10,000.

This is one of the annual affairs of the Social and Athletic Club whose members have been busy in recent weeks arranging for the distribution of the last ice cream cone ticket for somebody's Junior. In one pleasant aspect it is quite an enjoyable enterprise, in the role of a midsummer Santa Claus, running up the accounts, not rashly of course, and then handing the bill of costs to the company.

Ten vaudeville acts—count 'em—have been booked through the Kneeland headliner agency of Buffalo for the Saturday afternoon and evening programs. For the first time the committee has crossed the border for entertainment talent.

According to Bas Phelan who is doing considerable ballyhoo, although they don't need any plugging down there—this picnic takes care of itself in every particular.

Ten or is it eleven—count 'em—CGE products collected for a draw topped with an automatic electric dryer. Mr. Phelan says there are 10 other appliances, exclusively for the employees. There is a broad program of races and other competitions from fly casting and golf approach putting down to pie-eating. Then there are the packages, a word that is not used in picnic publicity, but it is still apt. It appears that they make up packages of tickets for all the things the picnic affords.

Preliminary to that phase of preparation, the committee sends a letter to every one on the payroll, asking for family information, married or single, how many children, their ages and so on.

Then with that information before them, the committee can visualize the job, the biggest picnic chore in this part of the country. Finally, individual packages are made up. Each youngster's allotment includes a strip of five tickets for cones, other refreshments and confections.

The package also includes race tickets for the boys and girls of 5 to 12 years. Nobody can get into a race without a ticket. Otherwise all the kids in town would be eligible. Then there are the draw tickets and so on. Mr. Phelan says the vaudeville looks exceptionally good.

For the afternoon show, the emphasis is on the acts that should hold a comprehending appeal to children. Then, in the evening the entire program.

The afternoon attractions start at 1.30, the grandstand show at 3.30, and finally the wind-up, beginning at 8 p.m.

"The committee is convinced that all we need is sunshine, and this will be the all-time success with the works picnics," Mr. Phelan said.

He provides the following list of the club's picnic executive:

Bob Batley, president; Pat Calladine, entertainment chairman; Bert Bailey, general supervisor of picnic; Basil Phelan, general secretary; Eric Cotton, chairman sports committee; executive members, Mrs. Mel Mortimer, Jack Williams, Bob Whiteside, Frank Millard (vice-president), Bill Hurle (treasurer), Terry Woods, Doug Abraham, Gene Reynolds, Walter Dunford and Gerry Pagett.

Yankees Plaster Chicago 9-5 In 10 Innings

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit Tigers have an outstanding candidate for the American League's rookie of the year, one of the loop's leading hitters and a reasonable chance of finishing the season with the worst record in modern baseball history. As spring training ended manager Freddie Hutchinson looked over his Tigers, who had finished 45 games behind the winning New York Yankees last year, and said: "We're not a last-place outfit." In Hutchinson's favor have been shortstop Harvey Kuenn, one of the most promising first-year men in either league, and a heavy hitting line-up paced by Bob Nieman at .312.

Yet today, with less than a third of the season gone, the Tigers have lost 34 out of 44 contests and are 21½ games out of first place.

If they continue to lose at this pace, they would end the year with 35 victories and 119 losses—two more than any modern major league team. It also would be the worst percentage in history, .227. The record lows currently are 117 losses and a percentage of .235, both by Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

TWO LOSSES

Detroit lost twice Thursday to the Athletics, 11-2 and 9-6, running its present winless string to 12. The Tigers have lost 10 and tied two since their last victory May 22.

The second game was decided on a homer by Cass Michaels in the 10th and marked the 12th time this year that Detroit has been beaten in the last inning. Eddie Joost hit two homers and four singles in 10 trips to the plate for Philadelphia.

In the nightcap, a rainstorm held up play in the last of the fifth inning with Detroit ahead, 5-4. If it had continued raining enough to call the game, the Tigers would have had a victory.

At the other end of the league the Yankees continued their winning streak at the expense of Chicago White Sox with a 9-5 decision in 10 innings.

WHIP RED SOX

Cleveland whipped Boston Red Sox 8-1, and Washington mopped up St. Louis Browns 10-1.

Brooklyn Dodgers, who hadn't hit a home run in two games, broke out with four Thursday against Milwaukee and defeated the Braves, 10-5. The loss cut the Braves' league lead to a half-game over the Dodgers.

Philadelphia tightened its hold on third place by turning back St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 in 10 innings. Pittsburgh won its third straight over Chicago 6-1 and New York Giants scored seven times in the eighth inning to wallop Cincinnati 11-3

Larry Doby contributed a grand slam home run in Cleveland's triumph over Boston.

Washington moved into a third-place tie with Chicago by whipping the Browns. The Senators lashed three St. Louis pitchers for 15 hits including a homer and a single for Mickey Vernon and a triple and a single for Clyde Vollmer.

Brooklyn got its long ball attack going against Milwaukee as seven of the 11 hits went for extra bases. Bobby Morgan, Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo hit Brooklyn homers.

Bob Hall won his first big league game in Pittsburgh's triumph over Chicago.

Ralph Kiner, playing his first game for the Cubs, got a double.

3 Industrial Firms Take Over Golf Course

GUELPH (CP)—Sale of the Cutten Fields golf course to three industrial firms which will take over its operation was announced Thursday night.

The picturesque 18-hole course, on a hill overlooking the southern outskirts of the city, now is leased to William E. Brown. He will continue to operate it until January, 1954.

The course will pass into the hands of Federal Wire and Cable Co. Ltd., Leland Electric of Canada Limited, both of Guelph, and Canadian General Electric Company which is building a huge plant here.

The companies have bought most of the shares. When the present lease expires, they will operate the club for golf.

Orioles Bow To Springfield In 3-1 Defeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Howie Fox of Baltimore tried hard, but it just wasn't his night.

The big righthander from Oregon, obtained by the Orioles from Philadelphia Phillies of the National Baseball League, Thursday night held Springfield Cubs to only three hits, but lost the International League contest 3-1.

The tail-end Cubs threw their all into the only game of the night, capitalizing on opportunities. The victory halted a Springfield losing streak at six games.

GAMES WASHED OUT

Two scheduled night games—Toronto at Montreal and Buffalo at Ottawa—were washed out. All clubs will see action tonight if the weather is right.

Righthander Vern Fear of the Cubs posted his second mound win of the season in limiting the Orioles to six safeties.

Sparky Adams' triple and an infield out gave Springfield one run in the first and Gene Hook's single, a sacrifice, bases on balls and manager Bruce Edwards' double off the left field fence gave the winners a pair of tallies in the seventh.

A-Development Called Milestone

CHALK RIVER (CP)—The new American ability to "breed" the atom was greeted here Thursday as a milestone in atomic progress but it was doubted that the development will alter the power picture in the next five years.

Canada's atomic scientists knew of the triumph through official channels before the announcement that the U.S. now is able to produce at least as much, or more, fissionable material as is burned in the process of making it.

This performance by a specially-built U.S. reactor gave practical proof to calculations made here by theorizing Canadian scientists that the breeder problem could be licked.

In Ottawa, Dr. C. J. MacKenzie, president of the crown firm, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., which runs Canada's Chalk River atomic plant, called the development "a very significant step" and said it could place the whole picture of atomic fuel in a new light.

3 Vice-Presidents Submit Resignations

TORONTO (CP)—Three vice-presidents of the Ontario Civil Service Association are reported to have submitted their resignations as a result of a want-of-confidence motion passed at an association meeting last week. They are Al Hanchard, Wes Corner and Jim Daly.

It is said the motion of want of confidence in the association executive also criticized the executive for not getting the cost-of-living bonus included in the basic salary and inability to arrange salary increases to the satisfaction of the members.

Wrong Address

The address of Mrs. Ruth Masters is 193 King St., not 251 Lake St., as reported in last Friday's Examiner.

Still Seeking Source Of Outbreak

SUDBURY (CP)—The Ontario department of health Thursday continued to seek the source of the latest puzzling outbreak of trichinosis to strike the Sudbury district.

The 22 cases reported here so far this year bring to 63 the number of cases of the rare disease reported in this area since 1947.

Trichinosis is caused by a tiny parasitic worm living in the muscles of infected hogs. If inadequately-cooked pork from infected hogs is eaten by humans, the parasite enters the human blood stream and muscle tissue, giving rise to fever, muscular pains, swelling around the eyes and a general infection.

The disease does not harm hogs, except to reduce their efficiency. Only scientific tests show the presence of the disease.

EASILY KILLED

The parasite is easily killed by heat in cooking. Human cases can be blamed on consumption of raw or improperly-cooked pork.

Although the disease is common in some temperature zone countries it is rare in Canada—except at Sudbury.

First indications of human infection at Sudbury were noted in 1948 when one case of trichinosis was reported. The next year eight persons were stricken and in 1950, some 20 cases were reported. There were four cases in 1951 and another eight last year. This year's cases have all been reported since May 25.

Dr. J. B. Cook, Sudbury's medical officer of health, has blamed lack of an abattoir where animals could be killed under supervision for the spread of trichinosis here.

In other years outbreaks have been traced to district pork producers. Last year, 100 hogs were destroyed on one district farm.

Campbellford News

Charles Seaborne, who served with the 2nd Battalion, RCR's in Korea, is now spending a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seaborne.

Sergeant George Illachevitch, who formerly served with the Royal Air Force in North African in World War II, and who is presently making a tour of Canada, called on Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe, whose son, Flight Sergeant Arthur M. Rowe, lost his life on active service with the RCAF in Egypt in September, 1942.

Corporal Glenn Brunton of the RCAF, St. Hubert's, Quebec, returned to his base on Monday after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brunton at Stanwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe of Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cochrane visited with Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ward at Chat's Falls over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Jeffs, 50 Queen St., N., will be at home to their friends and relatives on Saturday, June 13, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

REV. CHARLES D. DANIEL, minister of Trinity United Church, Ingersoll, was elected Wednesday president of the London Conference of the United Church of Canada. He will be installed for the 1953-4 term of office tonight at the conclusion of the three day conference in Woodstock. Rev. Mr. Daniel is a former minister of Mark St. United Church, Peterborough.

Labor Income Up For Quarter

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's expanding economy took new strides in the first quarter of 1953, boosting industrial production, labor income and retail trade.

While wholesale and retail prices eased from their high 1952 levels, labor income averaged $929,000,000 a month in the first quarter of 1953, a jump of $77,000,000 from $852,000,000 last year, the bureau of statistics estimates in its economic review for May.

Average weekly earnings rose to $56, up from $52.52 a year ago, on the heels of an expansion of industrial production and a bigger turnover in retail trade.

The bureau estimated that retailers on the average did $834,300,000 worth of business a month in the first quarter, up from $771,500,000 last year.

The index for industrial production, based on 1935-39 equals 100, climbed to 247.0 in March from 222.2 last year and for the first quarter averaged 240.3, compared to 217.7 a year ago.

Korda's Fiancee Enjoyed Garden Work

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The bride-to-be of British movie magnate Sir Alexander Korda used to enjoy working with a hoe in her family's market garden here, her friends said Thursday.

Alexa Boycun, 23-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Boycun of Fort William, used to delight in working in the field in her bare feet alongside her mother.

Sir Alexander announced his forthcoming marriage to the Canadian girl during a party aboard his yacht on the French Riviera Wednesday.

Mike Boycun said he received a letter Wednesday from his daughter, who will be 24 July 28, in which she said she and Korda plan to be married. He said he thinks the 60-year-old Korda is "a little old" for her but Alexa "is grown up now and can do what she wants to."

Alexa was born Irene Boycun, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boycun, Ukrainian immigrants. She did not change her name until a few years ago when she switched from music to the stage.

Alexa went to London in 1948. For seven months she was an understudy with a travelling "Annie Get Your Gun" troupe and had bit parts with London Films.

Western Ontario Leads In Industry

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Western Ontario, favored by a kind geographical fate, apparently is industrially and agriculturally head and shoulders ahead of the rest of Canada and indications are it will increase the lead.

This was the picture painted Thursday by Prof. R. W. Packer of the University of Western Ontario department of geography. Prof. Packer presented a paper to the Canadian Historical Association.

He said geographic factors have produced Western Ontario's potential; it waits for man to complete the work.

However, he said, the area already has a head start and "future developments of the St. Lawrence seaway can only accelerate the growth."

POPULAR STAGE and screen star Edward Everett Horton, who will open the fifth season of Peterborough's Summer Theatre. Mr. Horton will be supported by a Broadway cast in the play "Springtime for Henry." He has appeared more than 2,500 times as "Henry" in his version of this play.

Edward Horton, Broadway Cast In First Summer Theatre Play

Edward Everett Horton, popular stage and screen star, will open the fifth season of the Peterborough Summer Theatre in the PCVS Auditorium on June 22 in the successful Broadway comedy "Springtime for Henry."

Mr. Horton will be supported by an entire Broadway cast, featuring Marta Linden and Gordon Mills, imported by Michael Sadlier especially for the occasion. He has played his own version of this uproarious comedy more than two thousand five hundred times.

People have flocked everywhere to see the great comic artist as the riotously funny "Henry". For it is a perfect vehicle for his special brand of comedy with the double take, the surprised expressions, and the silly grins.

He has played "Springtime for Henry" from Olgonquit to San Diego, from Miami to Seattle; and it was a matter of time before Mr. Horton invaded the Canadian Summer Theatre field with his "Henry."

On the evening of June 22, when the curtain rises for the Summer Theatre's fifth season Horton should be at his best "for Mr. Horton always provides super summer entertainment," thus writes one of America's leading critics, Elliot Norton in the Boston Post.

Choir Sponsors CBC Artist

Three CBC artists will present a concert in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday night. They are Steve Staryk, violinist; Ralph Rose, baritone; and Arlene Nimmons, pianist.

The program will be presented in eight parts with performers Roose and Staryk appearing three times, and Miss Nimmons, twice.

Mr. Staryk has been described as a master violinist with the artistic ability and skill of one much longer on the concert stage. He is the youngest member of the Toronto Philharmonic and has been with that orchestra for the past five years. A member of the CBC Symphony, he appeared recently as soloist with the group over the Dominion network.

Currently touring Ontario with the Department of Education Concerts, Mr. Roose is studying at the University of Toronto for his Bachelor of Music degree. He has been a member of the Opera School four four years, the CBC Opera company for three years and oft he CBC Light Opera Company for one year. He was soloist on the network's Gilbert and Sullivan series last season.

Miss Nimmons has been heard in several CBC recitals from Vancouver, solo concerts in the Art Gallery of Toronto and the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto. Winner of two straight $500 Hazel Ireland Eaton Scholarships at the Conservatory, she joined several other Canadian musicians this summer in a presentation of Canadian Music in Lousanne, Switzerland.

RALPH ROOSE

Proceeds of the concert will go to provide a memorial window at St. Paul's in honor of the late Martin Chenhall who died five years ago after serving the church more than 25 years as organist and choirmaster.

Abbott's Son Excels

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott went to closing exercises Thursday at Ottawa's Ashbury College to present some of the prizes —and saw his 18-year-old son Lewis walk off with four of them. It was the first he knew of Lewis' success. Lewis' awards included the Southam Cup for the best record in scholarship and sport.

Hastings Marks Coronation Day

HASTINGS (ENS)—The Coronation celebration was attended by a large crowd here.

A parade, led by the clown band of Brampton, was followed by a short service in the Park, races and ball games and a dance in the evening.

A brightly decorated truck on which rode citizens representing the nations of the Commonwealth highlighted the parade: England John Bull, Frank Reynolds; Australia, Bob Jones; Jack Canuck, Peter Crate; Britannia, Elaine Hess; Scotland, Marilyn Hess; Wales, Bette Ryder; Ireland, Margaret Baker; and India, Joan Quinlivan. This was followed by Public and Separate School, Tyro and Trail Ranger groups, members of Canadian Legion 106 and The Ladies Auxiliary.

A short service was held in the park, opening with the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past", followed by a welcoming address by the chairman Reeve J. R. Jones, who pointed out the significance of the occasion. The Rev. J. J. Patstone of St. George's Anglican Church led in responsive reading and prayer, as did the Rev. N. Cole of Trinity United Church. The Rev. T. Kennedy of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church read the scriptures and Rev. J. J. Garvey of Our Lady of Mount Carmel addressed the gathering. Mr. Hazel led the school children in patriotic song and all joined in the National Anthem.

Races for the children and a ball game followed the service. A dance that night at the Riverside Pavilion brought the day to a close.

Those on the decorating committee were Mrs. C. M. Baker, M. Humphries, J. Lynch and L. Switzer.

Not Guilty Verdict Ordered

SARNIA (CP)—The trial of two Toronto men, charged with illegal possession of gold, ended suddenly Thursday when Lambton judge E. A. Shaunessy directed a "not guilty" verdict.

Judge Shaunessy, presiding at sessions court, told the jury there was no evidence to prove the men, Jack Pearl and Eugene Volpe, had been in possession of gold in Sarnia.

The charges were laid against the two after they skipped bail in Detroit, where they were arrested Oct. 12, 1951, on a charge of conspiracy against the United States Gold Act.

Evidence of U.S. custom agents Wednesday was that Volpe and Pearl attempted to sell 384 ounces of Canadian gold in Detroit at a price of $42 an ounce.

XXVII

In Africa the first intimation of the King's death was given to the Princess's staff by a local newspaper reporter. Lieutenant Colonel Martin Charteris, the Princess's private secretary, hardly crediting the news, sought confirmation from London.

It was the Duke of Edinburgh who gently told his unsuspecting wife the news of her father's death and that she was now Queen of England.

When she first understood what he was saying, she wept, but, said Lieutenant Colonel Charteris, she took the news "bravely, like a Queen."

It was the first time in history that a British monarch had acceded to the Throne in Africa.

At once the new Queen gave orders to return, and through streets lined with rows of silent, sorrowing Africans she drove to her airplane. But—so typical of her—before she left she did not forget to give her personal thanks to every person, white or colored, who had attended her during her stay.

So began the Atalanta's 4,444-mile return flight, to Britain and the airport from which only six days previously the King had waved his daughter farewell. Tropical thunderstorms delayed the passage of the Royal plane, and escorting aircraft carried land and sea rescue gear throughout that sad journey from continent to continent upon which the attention of the whole world was fixed.

In Britain, the time-worn wheels of Royal and State procedure for the proclamation of a new monarch and a royal funeral were already turning with all their historic significance when the sad-faced young Queen alighted at London Airport, to be greeted by her uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, who handed her a sealed envelope from her bereaved mother; and her moist-eyed veteran Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill.

On the next day the Proclamation of Queen Elizabeth the Second, Head of the Commonwealth, took place in London and throughout the Commonwealth, with all its rich traditional ceremony.

✧ ✧ ✧

Then the Queen drove to Sandringham to meet her mother and to take her last sight of the father who for 25 years she had so dearly loved.

Before she left London Queen Elizabeth made her accession declaration and, in a clear, firm voice, the new Queen said:

"By the sudden death of my dear father I am called to assume the duties and responsibilities of sovereignty . . . the grief which his loss brings us is shared among us all.

"My heart is too full for me to say more to you today than that I shall always work, as my father did throughout his reign . . . to advance the happiness and prosperity of my people, spread as they are all the world over.

"I know that in my resolve to follow his shining example of service and devotion I shall be inspired by the loyalty and affection of those whose Queen I have been called upon to be.

"I pray that God will help me to discharge worthily the heavy task that has been laid upon me so early in my life."

When the Queen was a little child there was one diminutive name by which her father loved to call her. And on the all-white wreath which lay on his coffin in the church at Sandringham, was the inscription:

DARLING PAPA—
FROM LILIBET

Queen Elizabeth was the first of her line to be proclaimed Head of the Commonwealth.

Millions of people of many races and colors are bound not only to her but also to one another by their common allegiance. This allegiance is dependent on many factors, including mutual assistance and defense; but the one factor that gives meaning to all the rest is the affection in which the Throne is held.

When the world was stunned by the shock of her father's sudden death, Princess Elizabeth faced the news and all that lay before her with the courage with which she faces all crises.

For the Heir to the Throne private grief must be swallowed up in the office and the task must be merged in the continuity of the monarchy.

It is her lot to be, in a sense, "owned" by her people. No longer does a monarch command in the old, absolute way. Today he is the personage who symbolizes for all of us the perfection we would most like to attain.

Her influence is not factional, but is above factions, maintaining the balance among classes and interests.

✧ ✧ ✧

Some of Britain's greatest rulers, in the ages of greatest glory—such as the Elizabethan age and the Victorian age—have been Queens.

Inspired by the gracious woman we now know as Queen Elizabeth, shall we see a second Elizabethan age, marked not only by the resurgence of the old spirit of adventure but also by a renaissance of the arts and sciences?

We British people for many generations have been fortunate in our Royal women. They have served us well and in turn we have given them a devotion that has kept alive the spirit of Chivalry.

Injured In Cave-In

TILLSONBURG (CP)—Three employees of the Tillsonburg public utilities commission were injured Thursday when a bank of a six-foot trench in which they were working caved in, partially burying them. Gordon Kirkland is under observation in hospital suffering bruises and shock. Louis Ripzski was taken to hospital and later released. William Hart Sr., waterworks foreman, was allowed to go home after treatment.

Freed On Robbery Count

BRANTFORD (CP)—A Brant county court jury Thursday freed five youths who had been tried on a charge of robbery with violence. Thomas Kelly, 30, had testified that the five attacked him on a downtown street and robbed him of $81. Acquitted were Norman Clifford Sargent, 20, Fred Jones, 20, Donald Lawrence Bristowe, 22, Marley O'Donnell, 19, and Ronald Page, 19.

Workman Electrocuted

SARNIA (CP)—Despite artificial respiration for more than 5 hours a Sarnia construction worker died Tuesday night after a cable he was handling came in contact with a 26,400-volt power line on Colborne road. Siebe van Reenan, 32, father of five children, died despite the efforts of more than 30 men from St. John's Ambulance, city police and fire departments and Sarnia hydro.

THEATRE SHAPING UP—The shell of the Shakespearean Festival Theatre at Stratford, Ont., rises beside the Avon River. At right, Montreal actress Eleanor Stewart studies her script for "All's Well That Ends Well" which along with "Richard III" will be presented from July 13 to August 15.

Three Brothers Served In The Far East

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Mrs. Agnes Grieves of Campbellford has reason of the proud of the fine military record of her three sons, all of whom served in the far eastern theatre of war. Her youngest son, Wilmer, recently returned from Korea where he served with the 37th Field Battalion Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, for 14 months. He is at present spending a 60-day leave, followihg which he will report to Kingston for further duty.

In World War II his two brothers, Richard and Willis Grieve, were among those with the Hong Kong garrison, when that British outpost fell to the Japanese in December, 1941. Willis Grieves lost his life, while his brother Richard was taken prisoner and was not released until after the United Nations victory in 1945, four years later.

POPULAR STAGE and screen star Edward Everett Horton, who will open the fifth season of Peterborough's Summer Theatre. Mr. Horton will be supported by a Broadway cast in the play "Springtime for Henry." He has appeared more than 2,500 times as "Henry" in his version of this play.

Edward Horton, Broadway Cast In First Summer Theatre Play

Edward Everett Horton, popular stage and screen star, will open the fifth season of the Peterborough Summer Theatre in the PCVS Auditorium on June 22 in the successful Broadway comedy "Springtime for Henry."

Mr. Horton will be supported by an entire Broadway cast, featuring Marta Linden and Gordon Mills, imported by Michael Sadlier especially for the occasion. He has played his own version of this uproarious comedy more than two thousand five hundred times.

People have flocked everywhere to see the great comic artist as the riotously funny "Henry". For it is a perfect vehicle for his special brand of comedy with the double take, the surprised expressions, and the silly grins.

He has played "Springtime for Henry" from Olgonquit to San Diego, from Miami to Seattle; and it was a matter of time before Mr. Horton invaded the Canadian Summer Theatre field with his "Henry."

On the evening of June 22, when the curtain rises for the Summer Theatre's fifth season Horton should be at his best "for Mr. Horton always provides super summer entertainment," thus writes one of America's leading critics, Elliot Norton in the Boston Post.

Choir Sponsors CBC Artist

Three CBC artists will present a concert in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday night. They are Steve Staryk, violinist; Ralph Rose, baritone; and Arlene Nimmons, pianist.

The program will be presented in eight parts with performers Roose and Staryk appearing three times, and Miss Nimmons, twice.

Mr. Staryk has been described as a master violinist with the artistic ability and skill of one much longer on the concert stage. He is the youngest member of the Toronto Philharmonic and has been with that orchestra for the past five years. A member of the CBC Symphony, he appeared recently as soloist with the group over the Dominion network.

Currently touring Ontario with the Department of Education Concerts, Mr. Roose is studying at the University of Toronto for his Bachelor of Music degree. He has been a member of the Opera School four four years, the CBC Opera company for three years and oft he CBC Light Opera Company for one year. He was soloist on the network's Gilbert and Sullivan series last season.

Miss Nimmons has been heard in several CBC recitals from Vancouver, solo concerts in the Art Gallery of Toronto and the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto. Winner of two straight $500 Hazel Ireland Eaton Scholarships at the Conservatory, she joined several other Canadian musicians this summer in a presentation of Canadian Music in Lousanne, Switzerland.

RALPH ROOSE

Proceeds of the concert will go to provide a memorial window at St. Paul's in honor of the late Martin Chenhall who died five years ago after serving the church more than 25 years as organist and choirmaster.

Abbott's Son Excels

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott went to closing exercises Thursday at Ottawa's Ashbury College to present some of the prizes —and saw his 18-year-old son Lewis walk off with four of them. It was the first he knew of Lewis' success. Lewis' awards included the Southam Cup for the best record in scholarship and sport.

B.C. Cattlemen Report Financial Situation Gloomy

VERNON, B. C. (CP)—British Columbia's cattlemen have completed their annual meeting here—their deliberations all but lost in the Coronation hullabaloo.

The range bosses were interested of course, only in reviewing their financial affairs. But tenderfoot observers were struck by the contrast between their quiet behavior and the Hollywood version of rootin' tootin' cowboys.

"Gathered here at Vernon were real honest-to-goodness cattlemen—a breed as different from the movie version as a Percheron is from a pony," said the Kamloops Sentinel.

It was the regular meeting of the B. C. Livestock Producers' Co-operative Association. A decrease of $3,149,000 in gross value of sales of cattle, hogs and sheep from the previous year was shown in the president's report, read by Lord Martin Cecil, in the absence of president B. K. de P. Chance, now vacationing in California.

SLIDE IN PRICES

The drop was due mostly to a slide of between 30 and 40 per cent in cattle and livestock prices, the report said. This year's figures were given as $3,933,300 as compared to $7,142,382 in 1952.

There were no cattle exports to the United States because of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan, compared to exports of 3,866 cattle and calves during the previous year.

Lord Martin reported the association's membership now stands at 563.

AUCTIONS GOOD

Noting that two new cattle auctions were held during the year, he added "for certain localities and under certain conditions the auction sale method may have preference over field or shipping point selling. We should, however, beware of paving the way for a method of selling which would deprive us of the measure of control over prices which we have already achieved."

Concurrent with the livestock meeting was a get-together of 100 members of the B. C. Beef Cattle Growers' Association, which urged in a resolution that a commissioner be appointed to investigate why reductions in prices received by beef producers had not been followed by a similar drop in prices to consumers.

CONFERENCE SITE — The Mid-Ocean Club in Tucker's Town, Bermuda, is to be the main site for the Big Three conference of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and head of the French government. The meeting, originally scheduled for June 17, has been delayed until France gets a new government. The club, with accommodations for 100 persons, will be taken over entirely for the conference.

Three Wives Die All In One Day

HOLLYWOOD — Three wives of Charles Laughton, as King Henry VIII, "died" in one day at the M-G-M studios during the filming of the new technicolor picture "Young Bess."

In the morning Deborah Kerr, as Catherine Parr, died of natural causes. In the afternoon Dawn Addams, as Katherine Howard, and Elaine Stewart, as Ann Boleyn, literally lost their heads on the executioner's block. This was faster work than even the real King Henry could manage in polishing off his queens.

Regimental Reunion

GALT (CP)—With past comrades across Canada and in the United States, the Highland Light infantry of Canada, based in Galt, will hold its 1953 annual 1st battalion reunion Saturday and Sunday. Second World War members of the regiment, which served from D-day until the armistice, have been invited to attend.

Special Export

OSLO (CP)—One of Norway's leading wood fibre mills has contracted to deliver another 75 prefabricated houses to the Belgian Congo, where it previously shipped 150 houses. All of the four-family dwellings are made of a sort of pressed wood fabric.

Charges Ice Cream Flavored With Alcohol

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ice cream flavored with alcohol is being sold to English children, the triennial conference of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was told Wednesday.

"That's the way they get a taste for liquor," said Mrs. H. Cecil Heath in her corresponding secretary's report.

She mentioned a toy, a brewer's dray with a barrel on top, and declared "it's blatant advertising."

The Scottish world president of the WCTU, Mrs. John Forrester-Paton, reported that the organization has spread to 68 countries.

Polio In Yukon

DAWSON, Y.T. (CP)—An outbreak of polio that began at Whitehorse, about 210 miles southeast of here, has struck five times this week. Dr. John Barker, medical health officer for the Dawson area, said Thursday that there is one paralytic case and four non-paralytic. Seventy-five cases, including at least two deaths, were reported from Whitehorse Monday.

Marks 100th Birthday

CALGARY (CP)—Never a day's sickness is the proud boast of a Calgary oldtimer, Tom Reynolds, who celebrated his 100th birthday Thursday. Haling from an old English family noted for its longevity, Mr. Reynolds had a sister who died last year in Ontario at the age of 105 after a fall downstairs. He was born in Tiverton, Ont.

Cattle Prices Jump $1 During Week

TORONTO (CP)—Cattle prices jumped $1 to $2 a hundredweight and receipts were lighter at the Ontario stockyards this week. Hogs calves, sheep and lambs were unchanged. Holdover at the close was 150 cattle.

A light cattle run of 6,622 head met with a strong reception with a good clearance at the higher-price levels. Choice steers $21.50-22.50; Good $20.50-22; Medium $19.40-20.50; good heifers $20.50-21; plain downward to $16; good cows $15-16.50; a few light heifery cows up to $18; good heavy bulls $14.50-15.50; good light up to $17; choice fed yearlings $22-23; mediums downward to $20; choice light stockers were $1 higher at $21-23; mediums downward to $18.

Calves totalled 1,563 head. Prices were steady to firm at $24-26 for choice vealers; medium to good $18-23; plain downward to $14.

Hogs were 2,492 head. Grade A were unchanged at $34; dressed sows $24.

Sheep and lambs were only 166 head. Good to choice spring lambs $28-32; common to medium sheep $5-9; a few good light ewes up to $12.

Authorize 3 Million Spent On Churches

WOODSTOCK (CP) — General council of the United Church of Canada has authorized an expenditure of $3,300,000 for construction of churches in the new industrial development areas of Canada.

Of this amount, $2,500,000 is to be raised by the presbyteries across the nation.

Rev. Dr. M. C. Madonald of Toronto, associate secretary of the home mission board, reported to London conference here Thursday night that already $1,425,000 in cash and pledges has been offered by the presbyteries.

The Movie Column

Oscar Winner's Life Not Easy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The life of an oscar winner is not as easy as it might seem, take it from Judy Holliday.

The blonde actress made a tremendous hit as the dumb Billie Dawn in "Born Yesterday" both on the stage and screen. She was acclaimed a new star and was handed an academy award two years ago. But she has had no Broadway shows and only one picture since then.

Her scarcity of pictures is largely because of the hard bargain she struck with her employers, Columbia Pictures. She held out for and finally won a deal whereby she would do only one picture a year and have plenty of time for the stage.

"But I guess I wasn't so clever after all," she said. "I haven't been able to find a play."

BACK IN FILMS

Miss Holliday is back at work on the movie stages, doing a comedy called "A Name for Herself." She is trim and slim, a good nine pounds under her weight in "Born Yesterday." Between scenes, she told of her travail in trying to find vehicles to follow her oscar-winning portrayal.

"I read three or four play scripts every week," she said. "I've read everything that has been sent to me, unless it is so amateurish that it doesn't merit it. A good comedy is hard to find, at least one with a part for me.

"Oh, I get lots of comedies But they were written for Billie Dawn. The writers of them think that all I have to do is talk in a funny voice and say dirty lines and that makes a hit comedy. They think I can go on playing the dumb blonde."

WANTS CHANGE

The actress has emphasized that she is through playing Billie Dawn. She is getting far away from the junk dealer's doll in her next stage venture. She plans to do a summer theatre version of "My Aunt Daisy," directed by John Wilson and probably staged in Westport, Conn. If it works out she may take it to Broadway.

The play is a sombre tale of a turn-of-the-century Boston girl who lives in a make-believe world. She refuses to marry her home-town suitors because they are clerks and other unglamorous types. During a Chicago visit, she has one last chance to avoid becoming an old maid but fails.

"Don't get me wrong," she added, "I'm not trying to play Hamlet. I want to do comedies; I think that's what audiences expect of me. But it happens that the only respectable play I could find for myself was not a comedy."

Sentence Commuted

MONTREAL (CP)—Oscar Senecal 50, of Magog, Que., scheduled to be hanged Thursday night for the murder of his wife, was told Thursday that his sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment. He was convicted a year ago of having beaten his wife to death and buried her at the rear of his home.

ART EXHIBIT

An exhibition of art by students of PCVS will open tonight at the Public Library.

D-DAY ANNIVERSARY

Saturday will be the ninth anniversary of D-Day in Europe. It was on June 6, 1944, that Allied forces began their invasion of German-held Europe.

SOME SHADE

There is plenty of shade to be had in the city streets these days due to guard walls placed there by different construction companies. Although the shields do offer protection the humidity is another problem.

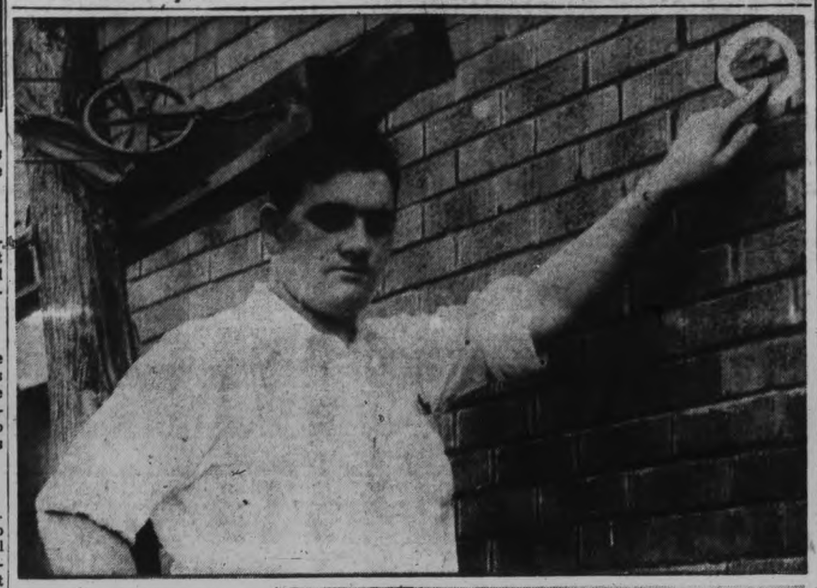
WINS $350 PRIZE

Miss Mildred Hales of Douro St. on Thursday night won the "photo night" prize of $350 at the Capitol Theatre. The cash will be presented to her next Thursday night along with a watch presented by Bert Austin, jeweler.

PASSED TESTS

The three-week learn-to-swim class sponsored by the YMCA in co-operation with the public schools ended Saturday with a total of 77 per cent passing their swimming tests. Seven boys passed the junior beginners test; four passed the 60-foot test; 25 the 25-foot test and 11 passed the 20-foot test, the width of the pool.

SAFETY CONES



The Ontario Hydro Commission's Western Region is using safety cones similar to the ones now in use in Peterborough for school children as a new type of work signs. The use of these cones as a testing project in accident protection was reported in the latest issue of the Hydro News.

TARTAN DISPLAY

A display marking the 6th reunion of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry reunion here over the weekend is to be seen in the window of V. A. Selkirk, George St. A dummy dressed in the tartan of the regiment as well as a photo taken at the Exhibition Grounds of the entire group just before their embarkation in 1940 is of special interest.

CAR DAMAGE SLIGHT

Damage was set at $30 in a two car accident Thursday at George and Charlotte Sts. involving Jack King of 457 Gordon Ave. and Ivan Bolton, 20, of RR 2, Indian River. King was stopped facing south at the intersection when Bolton's car, also southbound, struck the King car from behind. Damage was confined to Bolton's vehicle.

LIGHTNING RIPPED through a brick wall in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Jones early today, shattering a dresser mirror, scattering glass across the floor and tossing lamps to the floor. The bolt hit a wire clothesline in the backyard, ran along the wire, jumped across a yard gap and punched a hole through brick and plaster into the couple's bedroom. Mr. Jones (top) points to the small hole in the brick which is in a direct line with the clothesline. He (lower photo) points again to the hole inside the bedroom and at the same time inspects the broken mirror and articles scattered across the dresser. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Wave To Police Lands Youths In County Jail

A genial flurry of handwaving landed two Hamilton youths in the county jail early today. It seems they are wanted in that city on charges of forgery, involving $2,000, and they weren't smart enough to make themselves as inconspicuous as possible when an OPP cruiser passed them near Omemee.

As they head back for Hamilton later today—in the custody of two husky members of the Hamilton Police Department—they will have plenty of time to ponder on what must seem to them to be a rotten bit of luck.

A description of the wanted youths—Ronald Davis, 20, and Ralph Oakes, 17—was sent out over the OPP radio at 4:30 a.m. today. There was also a description of their car and the licence number.

The car, which police allege was bought with $900 of the illegally-obtained money, was dead easy to spot. It had a home-made body and was painted an eye-catching combination of green and gold.

At 5:30 a.m. OPP Constables Ken Barber and Gordon Gray were patrolling along Highway 7 thinking about whatever cops think about at that time of day—or night They were also mindful that the Hamilton youths were believed to be in the area.

TWO WAVE

A half mile east of Omemee they saw a westbound car going along the highway. Their attention was attracted by two young men in a funny looking roadster who waived gaily to them and sped on

"Say," said Constable Barber, "aren't those the Hamilton men we're looking for?"

"Right you are," said Constable Gray.

The two deflated Hamiltonians were picked up without a struggle.

"Why did you wave?" asked the two incredulous OPP constables.

"We always wave to police," was the nurt reply.

HAD $600

When arrested Davis and Oakes had $600 on them. Police say that was all that was left of the original $2,000 bundle that the youths had promoted for themselves. Nine hundred dollars went on the car bought in Hamilton and they'd spent the rest having a good time in this district! They'd been living in a downtown hotel since Tuesday.

This brings to three the number of arrests in connection with a recent theft of 93 blank cheques from the Barber Die Casting Company in Hamilton. Twenty-six of the cheques were said to have been cashed for a total of $2,000. Police were notified of the thefts when a bank manager became suspicious of the number of

Building May Start Soon On Modern Grace Church

The erection of the new Grace United Church estimated to cost $100,000 may begin this summer. A meeting of the Grace United Church congregation Thursday night approved plans submitted by E. H. Zeidler of Blackwell and Craig, architects. Working drawings have yet to be drawn. The plans still must be approved by the Peterborough Presbytery before building can begin.

Eric McKinstry, chairman of the official board, was chairman for the full church meeting and the plans were explained by the Rev. I. G. Pollock, minister of the church.

"We are going ahead as quickly as we can," Mr. Pollock said today. "The church's financial circumstances are such that there is no need to delay starting the building as soon as the presbytery's approval has been obtained and the architect's plans are completed. We definitely hope to begin this summer."

CONTEMPORARY FORM

The minister went on to explain that the building is designed to look like a church but to be in contemporary form.

Situated on the present site of the church at Monaghan Rd. and Howden Ave., the building will be 120 feet long and 52 feet wide and will have a church auditorium seating capacity of 500. The front will be of pre-cast concrete stone, the four corners of red brick and the roof of the asphalt shingles. The sides will be of cedar, serrated (notched along edge like a saw) with glass walls in between so that the light streams from behind the congregation on the pulpit and choir. The basement will be built and equipped as the Sunday School part of the building.

The architect, Mr. Zeidler explained that today the planning of a church building involves the same problems as the building of a cathedral.

"We have to create an atmosphere of worship with the honest use of materials and techniques at our disposal and manifest our feelings and our time in our church building as our forefathers have done," he said.

"It is not the adapted form which will create a church, but the spirit we build into will make our form a church."

Mr. Ziedler also explained that modern design is less expensive to build than the older type of church structure.

The new Grace United Church will be the second United Church to be built as such in the city since Church Union in 1925. The first was the new Mark St. United Church, erected in 1928.

Make Soil Tests For Woolworth's

Second phase of construction for two-storey ultra-modern Woolworth building at George and Charlotte Sts., got underway on Thursday with construction men testing to find out what water pressure the ground can stand.

Actual construction of the new store won't start for two or three weeks until they clear away all the old brick used to fill in the cellars of the old buildings.

Most of that time will be spent in underpinning the north and west walls of the two buildings adjacent to them, to ensure a solid foundation. The basement of Woolworth's will be six or seven feet lower than the other two buildings.

The construction contract has been awarded to Ryan Construction Company in Toronto and it is expected that the store should be finished some time next February.

Conciliation Talks Confidential

Release No Report After Two-Day Session In Toronto

Both the union and management of the Quaker Oats Co. plant have returned from Toronto after a two-day session with James Hutcheon, Ontario Department of Labor conciliation officer. Talks at this stage are confidential so no report has been released on what was achieved.

J. B. Metzler, deputy minister of labor, called the meeting because the department felt the strike had gone on long enough. The walkout of 435 production workers in Peterborough and another 130 at the Saskatoon plant is now in its seventh week.

The offer of Mr. Metzler to mediate resulted in the second get-together of the company and union since the beginning of the strike.

It is believed that a minor concession or two was offered by both sides under the prompting of Mr. Hutcheon who is one of the department's top conciliation officers. He was sitting in on negotiations when the CGE and Local 524 of the UE reached agreement on their 1953-54 contract last Sunday after a marathon session of nearly 23 hours.

SEE MORE TALKS

William Triggs, president of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL), told the Examiner today: "Nothing has been arranged but we expect further negotiations next week."

With Mr. Triggs, representing the union in Toronto, were Bob Prescott, chief steward; Herb Hennessey, member of the executive; William Beggs, UPWA representative; and Sam Hughes, Eastern Canadian director.

Company officials were James G. Wharry, general manager; Lewis H. Ingram, vice president in charge of personnel; and Fred G. Ash, general operating manager. They were assisted by Donald Pyle, labor consultant.

Meanwhile the Quaker Oats Co. strikers are increasing the number of their plant-gate collections from other industrial workers. Today two cars of strikers have gone to the large Westinghouse plant in Hamilton; others will take up collections at Canada Packers and the Canadian Raybestos Co. They also have invitations to canvass workers at the CGE and the Western Clock Co. on Monday. Wednesday they will go to Local 208, UPWA, (a Swift Canadian Co. plant, employing 1,000 in Toronto); and on Friday they will go to Local 414, UPWA, (the largest Canada Packers plant, employing 2,300 in Toronto). Also on Friday they will visit the General Motors plant in Oshawa.

Kiwanis Brings Circus To City

Wild jungle beasts, three bands and scores of clowns will bring back memories of days gone by when the King Bros. and Christiani Circus marches its whole troop through town on Wednesday, June 17 for the first circus parade in Peterborough in years.

It will be a real old-fashioned circus parade which will march through downtown streets the morning of the show.

There will be mounted circus stars, 15 ponderous elephants, clown carts, tongas, dozens of open dens and cages filled with wild jungle beasts, an air organ and the historical old-time calliope.

The performances will be presented in three massive rings and the upper reaches of the big top where the aerial artists will perform. There will be two-and-a-half hours of bareback riding, aerial stunts and a menagerie filled with wild beasts of every kind, including a giant hippopotamus, weighing close to two tons.

There will be two performances given, one at 2.30 in the afternoon, the other at eight o'clock at night in Exhibition Park. The show is under the auspices of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.

BROOKLIN FAIR

The Brooklin Spring Fair, Saturday, June 6, embraces heavy and light horses, beef and dairy cattle, women's and children's exhibits, parade, tug-of-war, softball, and in the evening lacrosse. O. H. Downey is president.

DR. G. D. W. CAMERON, deputy minister of national health, will present prizes Saturday at the closing exercises of the Grove School, Lakefield. Dr. Cameron, son of Dr. G. S. Cameron of Peterborough, is flying from Switzerland to be present at the school.

Scarboro Uses No Transite In Trunk Mains

No transite pipe has been used for trunk mains in the Scarboro township water distribution system but transite has been used extensively for lateral mains in the present expansion program of Scarboro waterworks facilities.

This information was obtained today from Victor Powell, assistant manager of the Scarboro Public Utilities Commission who said that commission officials "leaned a little" towards cast-iron pipe.

The question of whether transite pipe was being used in Scarboro township was brought up at Wednesday's meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission when Dr. G. R. Langley advocated use of transite for the trunk main along Armour Rd. to Downer's Corners.

Chairman Fred Hills asked Dr. Langley why transite was not being used in Scarboro where it is manufactured by the Johns-Manville Co. In a telephone conversation with The Examiner following the meeting, Dr. Langley quoted from The Weekly Enterprise, published in Scarboro, a story dated May 21:

"Scarboro's Marino Construction Co. is presently installing transite pipe water mains, made by Johns-Manville Co. in Scarboro, to serve residents of the West Hill area.

"The contract calls for 42,610 feet of pipe to be used for a supply line along Kingston Rd. and for laterals along streets running on either side of the double-lane hightway."

USE CAST IRON

In conversation with The Examiner today, Mr. Powell said cast-iron pipe had been specified for the Kingston Rd. trunk main but that transite was being used for the lateral mains on the side streets in West Hill.

"As a rule, we don't lay trunk mains of transite," Mr. Powell said. "To my knowledge, we have never laid any trunk mains of transite. We will lay some transite in Agincourt but we won't know until next week, when the tenders are in, how much transite and how much cast-iron pipe we will be using. There is a fair amount of transite in the West Hill area."

To keep up with rapid industrial and residential expansion and increasing demands from adjoining municipalities, the Scarborough PUC has recently completed construction of considerable new equipment. It includes a new intake, a 10-million-gallons-per-day filtration plant, pumping stations and extensions to the distributing system.

Lightning Bolt Pierces Brick Wall After Hitting Clothes Line

Couple Sleeping Within Feet Of Flash Escape; Mirror Glass Thrown Across Room

A small hole was ripped through a brick wall, a bedroom dresser mirror was shattered, the glass was thrown 15 feet, dresser lamps and other ornaments were tossed to the floor today when lightnining hit the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Jo[illegible] River Road North. The couple who were sleeping within feet of the flash, escaped only shocked. "I had just checked the windows five minutes before," said Mr. Jones shortly after the lightning which accompanied a storm which swept across the district at 5:30 a.m., had hit the house.

"The first thing we knew was a mighty loud report It was there. We didn't hear anything coming."

Mr. Jones said there was a "flash at the open window. I don't know whether it came through the wall then or not."

"FLASH, BANG"

Mrs. Jones who had her back to the window described the flash as "a blinding light, followed by a loud bang."

Glass was thrown across the room and out into the small hall for a distance of 15 feet as the large dresser mirror smashed into bits. Not even a tiny piece of glass was left in the frame.

The dresser lamps, which stand about a foot high, were tossed about four feet. Other odds and ends on the dresser were scattered about.

"We were really stunned for a moment," said Mr. Jones. "We didn't know what to do. Finally we got out of bed and saw the glass on the floor. We knew what had happened then."

HOLE IN PLASTER

Further inspection revealed a small hole about six inches away from the top of the dresser mirror. Mr. Jones felt the plaster around the hole and it was still warm.

Mr. Jones then began to clean up the mess. But urged by his wife he finally decided to call the Peterborough Fire Department to check; just to make sure there wouldn't be a fire.

Firemen then traced the lightning bolt back to a metal clothesline which stretches across the backyard to a wooden stand about a yard from the house. There in a direct line with the clothesline the firemen found another small hole. That hole was punched through the brick and plaster into the bedroom.

Two hours later with their ears still ringing the Jones' started to clean up the mess again.

Gaol Kitchen Unsanitary Jury Reports

County gaol kitchen and library facilities came under the fire of a General Sessions of the Peace grand jury Thursday in a report presented to Judge John De N. Kennedy.

Though finding the gaol "clean, sanitary, well managed and the inmates well-cared for," the jury reported the wood burning stove and woodbox "inadequate and dangerous" and the table tops "unsanitary."

STOVE IS VERY OLD

Further questioning by Judge Kennedy revealed the stove is a "very old" model and the woodbox, a fire hazard. In the opinion of the jury the woodbox presented another hazard in that the long sticks of wood might be dangerous weapons in the hands of rebelling prisoners.

Additionally, Foreman S. J. Black pointed out, the gaol library consists of "four or five old library discards." The jury considered the library "inadequate in quantity and contents . . . we consider a supply of worthwhile reading material to be as essential in the care of the inmate as physical exercise."

INSPECT HOSPITALS

Only other institutions inspected were Peterborough's two hospitals. They were considered "well-equipped and supervised" and the jury felt "citizens have reason to be proud of their hospitals."

In claiming gaol kitchen table tops are "unsanitary," Mr. Black pointed out the tables, used in the preparation of meals, were covered only by newspapers; colored comic pages at that. He urged their replacement.

County Farm Notes

Pasture Demonstration June 18 At Weldon Farm in Victoria County . . . Brampton Jersey Cow Sells For $6,500 . . . Millbrook Spring Fair Wednesday, June 10 . . . O.A.C. Circular Sees Steady Prices For Hogs.

The beef pasture project at the Weldon farm in Victoria county will be the centre of interest for farmers of the district Thursday, June 18.

This farm is located on the county road, half a mile south of the village of Hartley, which is north and west of Lindsay. Four farms were rented by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in 1951. One is in Middlesex, another in Kent, the third in Bruce county and the other in Victoria.

Each farm was divided into three sections for pasture demonstration purposes. An announcement from the department says: "The plowed, reseeded and fertilized section on each farm is now carrying approximately as many cattle as did the whole farm before treatment."

The first field day is at the Brent Farm in Middlesex June 11 and the others are spread over the following week ending in Victoria. Similar programs have been arranged for all of them.

"These field days will provide an opportunity to learn the cultural practices employed, the actual gains per acre in 1952 and 1953 up to the present, and the value of fly control on cattle in pasture.

All meetings begin at 2 p.m. Prominent authorities on live stock, pasture, soil management and fly control will discuss these subjects. A spraying demonstration for the control of horn flies will be included."

Peterborough farmers are asked to remember the Victoria date: Thursday, June 18, one mile south of Hartley village.

Fosters 4-H Clubs

Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Ltd. has decided to embark on 4-H Club activities as a regular department of their famous show. A special committee has approved a dairy calf club show for the 1953 exhibition.

The competition for dairy calves born after July 1, 1952, will be open to farm boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20, living on dairy farms south of Red Deer to the U.S. boundary which are under government supervision. A total of $208 in prizes will be awarded. First prize will be $40. Calves not in the prize money will be allotted a five dollar bonus.

Although not part of the Calgary show program, five district beef clubs will take part in a special beef calf show and sale at the exhibition grounds in August. In future, this event will probably be switched to June and gradually built up until it becomes a major exhibition board activity.

The Calgary Herald says: "The new 4-H Club activities committee was set up recently by the board, and is expected to assume major proportions in the future."

The project of this committee is mentioned as evidence of increasing interest in 4-H Clubs by agricultural societies and fairs. There is also the opportunity for community support by groups such as Farm Forums whose breadth of affairs could readily include the junior clubs in their neighborhood.

The June Set-Aside

Dairy Farmers of Canada are appealing to their industry for generous support of the June Advertising Set-Aside.

Said A. J. W. Shugg, public relations director for the national body: "With surpluses of dairy products piling up, the national directors feel that at no time was an all-out advertising compaign more necessary than during the coming year."

The Dairy Farmers have estimated production of 17 billion or more pounds of milk in Canada this year, emphasizing the tremendous volume to be absorbed largely by the domestic market.

W. O. Coon, chairman of the Ontario Cheese Producers, said recently; "The domestic market is becoming so all-important to Ontario producers that they had better well consider the need for a larger contribution to the Dairy Farmers of Canada Advertising Fund."

Dairy leaders point out that a widely expanded advertising program is the only means available at the present time that offers hope of relieving the situation.

The only agency on which dairy farmers can depend to boost their product to domestic consumers is the advertising enterprise of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

From those appeals and appraisals this problem of capitalizing boh the quality and quantity of milk and dairy products among the Canadian people is the June Set-Aside. Its success this month depends on the farmers themselves. It is their fund.

Shorthorns Average $463

Thirty-seven Scottish Shorthorns brought a total of $16,310 at Lucknow. Top female went for $1,000, and nine of them averaged over $700. The 33 females in the auction averaged $450, and the average for the 37 head was $463. Four bulls averaged $316, with a top of $410. Six of the females were bought by the Bell Rock Cattle Co. of Osceola, Florida.

These Shorthorns were consigned by W. T. Culbert & Sons, Andrew C. Gaunt & Sons, and Clifford H. Keys and Sons.

Convention Book Free

A record of the convention of Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association last January has been published in a book of 190 pages by the Department of Agriculture. Copies may be obtained from the office of Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative.

The papers presented at the convention and other phases of the Association's activities are included in this book which is illustrated and is generally well worth obtaining. It has been prepared for the benefit of farmers, and it is theirs for the asking.

The president of the Crop Improvement Association is Howard Harper of Goodwood. W. W. Dawson of Otonabee is a director.

Copies of the recent OAC circular, "Ontario Farm Business," may be obtained at the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Prof. D. R. Vet's Car Radio

Dr. W. C. Anderson, Elmira veterinarian, is saving a lot of mileage and otherwise economizing in time and getting about with the aid of radio-telephone communication between his car and his house.

The set enables him to connect with any ot her telephone in the country as long as his car is within a 20-mile radius of any of the telephone company mobile operating stations in southern Ontario. Eleven years in practice, Dr. Anderson has averaged 4,000 miles a year. He is now reducing travel, and at the same time calling on more people than ever in his area. His wife receives calls at home, as a variant of method and relays them on to him in his car.

Meeting Of Beekeepers

Beekeepers of the Peterborough district are meeting Monday, June 15, at 7.30 p.m. in the office of the Department of Agriculture. The annual summer meeting of their professional association will be at OAC, Guelph, Friday, June 12, at 2 p.m. A recent trade summary indicated that honey stocks are low, especially in the top white quality. "By the time new honey is available the overall supply will be quite low."

$6,500 For Jersey Cow

James Bremner of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club reports that a Jersey cow, Brampton Lady Beacon, of the B. H. Bull and Son farms near Brampton, sold for $6,500 at the Bull Farms' 75th anniversary sale.

Mr. Bremner is authority for the statement that this is the highest price in North America for a Canadian Jersey cow in 100 years. She was bought by Frank D. Rambo of Oakwood Acres Stables. Lady Beacon and 53 other head brought a total of $79,275 for the best Jersey returns on the continent since 1948. All but ten of the cattle went to U.S. buyers.

On Ohio Trip

The Peterborough bus trip to Ohio started at 7 a.m. Wednesday morning with a complete complement of 37 farmers of the district, including two city men, Cliff Curtis and Ford Warren, manager of the Bank of Montreal.

The Peterborough Crop Improvement Association had occasionally discussed an educational outing into the United States, but in other years the plans did not materialize. Enthusiasm for this expedition was maintained by Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, for a month or more recently while it was developing from a mooted project into a certainty.

Every seat in the bus was allotted a week or ten days prior to the departure. The visit to Louis Bromfield's Malabar Farm was only one of the attractive details. All the promises of company and itinerary appeared to be assurance of a profitable and memorable journey through Western Ontario on Wednesday, the first day, crossing to Detroit that day.

The members of the party who arrive back home Saturday evening are: Robert Armstrong, Walter Bowles, Roy Sanderson, George Beebe, H. Earl Petrie and Henry Borland.

Fred Eason, Henry Batten, Allan Eason, Hilliard Edwards, Walter Thorn, Frank Moorehead (Lakehurst), Bruce Graham, James Humphries, Stewart Nelson, Tom Hope, Reg Perrin, Frank Buckham, Allan Bell, George Finnie.

Preston P. Armstrong, Bert Armstrong, Burritt Jopling, Ralph Garbutt, Ralph Drummond, Sam Comrie, Rick Robinson, Ford Warren, A. C. Curtis, Clarence Mann, Charles Barnard, George Whitfield, J. N. Lillico, Ernest A. Scott, Ernie Warner, Carman Seymour and Mr. Paterson.

Millbrook Fair Wed., June 10

Roy Ferren of Cavan, president of Millbrook livestock show, Wednesday, June 10, said yesterday he and the directors are hoping to see a large representation from Peterborough county.

The outbreak of cholera has reduced the swine section to only one class, the bacon hog pen for the Eaton special prize. In the heavy draft horse department competition for Belgians is being encouraged at next week's show.

"We get around to a lot of the affairs over in Peterborough," Mr. Ferren said, "and we like to see them at our Show. We think it might be a little better than usual. At any rate, visitors can help us, and the entries look promising."

English Dairy Business Under Marketing Board

Four top officers of the Milk Marketing Board which handles the sale of the milk produced in England and Wales have spent the past six weeks studying the production and marketing of milk in Canada and the U.S.A. They are: Tom Peacock, Cheshire, chairman of the MMB, Jas. Alston, Norfolk and Eric Quested, Kent, regional directors and J. L. Davies, Surrey, Chief Executive Officer of the MMB.

Speaking at a twilight meet sponsored by the Oxford Holstein Breeders' Club and held May 29th at Woodstock, Ont., Mr. Peacock stated that they had been much impressed by the part dairy products play in the diet of the people of this Continent and the many varied and attractive ways in which these products are presented to the public. Coming from a country where there is a scarcity of milk products, he was amazed to note the large surplus of butter and cheese in Canada. Comparing this surplus with the scanty ration of cheese and butter available in Great Britain, he expressed the hope that some way could be found to enable these surpluses to be shipped to his country where they would be a very welcome addition to the supplies available.

CONTROL IN ENGLAND

Mr. Peacock stated that in England and Wales milk may be produced for sale only after approval has been given by the Milk Marketing Board. All milk is sold directly to the MMB which must accept all that the dairyman can produce. A standard price is paid which except for slight differences caused by transportation charges is the same throughout the country. Sixty per cent of the milk produced goes direct to the dairies while the other forty per cent is shipped to central depots from which it is directed to its ultimate destination. Eighty-five per cent of the milk produced is sold as fluid milk which compares with thirty per cent in Ontario. Some 164,000 dairymen sold their milk through the Milk Marketing Board last year at a total cost of close to $700,000,000, making this the largest single agricultural operation in the world from a financial standpoint.

According to Mr. Peacock the Milk Marketing Board is in charge of 80 per cent of the artificial insemination program in the country and also operates the milk recording and testing program. It works closely with the Breed Associations and Ministry of Agriculture officials. Twenty-two artificial breeding centres are maintained, each with approximately 30 dairy bulls. In 1952 over 1,000,000 head were artificially bred.

When the Milk Marketing Board took over the milk recording and testing service seven years ago, between four and five thousand animals were tested annually. This has now been increased to approximately 26,000.

Some 400 breeders attended the twilight meeting which was in charge of Club President, J. A. McDowell, Oxford Centre. J. W. Hosford, President of the Holstein-Freisian Association of Canada, stated that to the end of April, 39 per cent more transfers had been recorded than was the case in 1951, the last comparable normal year.

23 Holsteins To U.S. Buyers

"Altogether 23 head went to U.S. buyers."

That's a comment in John Powell's report from Brantford of the auction of 51 Holsteins at London May 27.

The proportion going across the border, and duplicated in more or less large part from other recent Ontario cattle sales, indicates renewed interest from that source since the Canadian market was reopened by Washington.

The 51 head averaged $375 for a total of $19,165. Highest price was $800 paid for the imported American bull calf, Hickory Creek Cupid, by Lambton Holstein Breeders at Wyoming, Ont. The consignor was Hickory Creek Farms, West McHenry, Ill.

Top price for a female was $735 paid by H. K. Alwine of C. S. Erb & Co., Middletown, Pa., to Earl J. Hooper of St. Mary's for the six-year-old cow, Supreme Keyes Monogram. The best figure for a bred heifer was $710 by Massey-Harris Farms at Milliken, to Harold James of Sarnia for a Sylvo-Gram daughter of a "Very Good" daughter of Sovereign.

The $575 bid of Robert H. Shore of Glanworth took a heifer calf consigned by Wm. McRorie, Forest, Ont.

Farm Business Survey By Prof. Campbell Of O.A.C.

Up to early April this year, inspected Canadian slaughterings of beef cattle were 38% greater than in the same period of 1951, D. R. Campbell of agricultural economics department of O.A.C., writes in a recent bulletin of the College.

"This, plus low-price imports from the U.S.A., has depressed our prices approximately to the American level. Our prices have dropped less than American prices: Good steers in Toronto were down 18% in price from early April 1951, and in Chicago 34% for the same period.

If there are no further border restrictions, Canadian prices are unlikely to move far from the U.S. level. Observers in the U.S. expect that average beef prices may follow the usual pattern of being slightly stronger until June, then weaken slightly in July and August."

Prof. Campbell also reports that the number of sows expected to farrow in the six months to the end of May (this year) is down 22% from last year. He writes: "This should mean smaller fall marketings and quite strong prices."

"Milk cow numbers in the U.S.A. in early 1952 were the lowest since 1930, but, like Canada, are up 2 to 3 per cent in 1953. Favorable winter conditions and available feed grain have caused record milk production, though it is expected that milk production will be closer to normal during the summer. This should improve the demand for our dairy cattle."

Dr. Harry Hamilton told the Examiner that his inspections for export have been comparatively few during the last two to three weeks. "We've had around a dozen to fifteen head to examine."

DAIRY PRODUCTS

Continuing the Campbell summary of outlook: "On April 1, stocks of every important dairy product were above last year. Converted into fluid form they represented increased holdings of 45 per cent of whole milk and 118 per cent of skim-milk. This increase must still be viewed in the perspective that they represent only about a month of normal consumption and export. Between American embargoes and a 3 per cent increase in our dairy cows, the immediate future does not look too bright."

Have Language Problem

Yugoslavs Struggle With 2 Alphabets

I. Norman Smith, prior to going to London to attend the Coronation spent several weeks in Yugoslavia. In this delayed air-mail article he tells of Yugoslavia's language problems, of the country's newspapers, and its cultural state in general.

BY I. NORMAN SMITH

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, — (Delayed) — What does the visitor do about the language in Yugoslavia? Nothing whatever. Serbo-Croat is so strange to the English eye and ear that even foreigners here a year or so scarcely pick up more than a dozen or so words.

Besides there are three languages, and two alphabets—Serbo-Croat is used the most widely, the Serbs call it Serbian and the Croats call it Croatian but it is the same. Then there is Slovenian in the northwest and Macedonian in the south.

Three of the six republics: Serbia, Macedonia and Montenegro use the Cyrillic alphabet that is based on Greek letters and quite undecipherable by us, and Croatia, Slovenia and Bosnia use the Latin alphabet. The former can look to our eye like a Chinese character and the latter, though the familiar alphabet, once put in Serbo-Croat seems to bear no similarity in language to French, German or English.

And in Canada we talk of language problems!

NEED DICTIONARY

In hotels and stations you might find someone with a bit of English, but not often. A few words of German will help you in the north, and in the south a knowledge of French will sometimes be the key. The other day I spoke French to a person who then put it into Serbo-Croat, but the latter could speak German better than French and replied in German. Undoubtedly the best way to get around is by sign language or by pointing to a dictionary or phrase book which one would no more think of going out without than he'd go out without clothes on.

Lep ye dan is "it is a fine day". Thank you is "hvala vam" Waiter is "posluzitelj". Baggage is "hleb" and breakfast is "dorucak". See what I mean?

But despite these difficulties they seem to be great readers. I've seen in Belgrade and Zagreb a great many bookstores and at least half a dozen of them twice the size of Ottawa's largest. The bulk of their reading is of Slav authorship, but just at random in the windows (translated into Serbo-Croat) I've noticed du Maurier, Scott, Shaw, Bromfield, Gone With the Wind, Huck Finn, Nehru's autobiography, Zola, Aldous Huxley, George Meredith, Stendahl, Maupassant, John Dos Passos, Hemingway Pearl Buck, Gide.

MARX THERE TOO

Marx' Das Kapital is there, and Lenin, and an infinite variety of text books of all kinds such as histories of medicine, art, engineering, and so on. They seem to be trying very hard to educate themselves and about their book shops as about all things you will hear them say that 25 years ago the ordinary Yugoslav scarcely read at all.

I was touched the other day when a Yugoslav friend who had been most helpful replied as follows to my question as to what book I might buy for him: "You see, what I need most and cannot afford is a Webster dictionary, but perhaps you will not find that an aesthetic gift and so would rather give to me Dickens' Pickwick Club which I would like very much."

With this same friend I sat down in the park one afternoon and had him tell me what was in the Belgrade papers. The Sunday paper could have been a Yugoslav edition of the Montreal Standard, a mixture of serious and light, news from Washington and Monte Carlo, a review of a new Priestley book, local poems, report on aluminium finds, sport, crossword puzzles, film news, Believe it or Not, pictures of the May Day parade, special correspondence on the Italian elections, interview with a Romanian refugee, review of a German's book on the study of classical Greek philosophy, a literary essay expressing the desire for a history of Yugoslav literature.

PAPER MORE SERIOUS

Come to think of it, the paper was more serious than our paper, gave much more space to art and literature and also to foreign affairs and Himalayan mountain expeditions and a study of the solor system, to say nothing of a sketch of the British Minister in Egypt.

The main and nearly official paper of Yugoslavia is Borba which means "struggle". It comes out daily and Sunday and sells for about four cents, bearing the slogan "Proletarians of all Countries Unite". It had been the organ of the Communist Party before the war and was usually illegal but now it serves as newspaper and official gazette.

There is the usual run of foreign news provided by Reuter and United Press and Yugoslav Press and also domestic and city news. But great attention is given, as well, to development of new factories, news of agriculture and science, a new bus station or park, the development of the tourist industry, news of any kind helping to impress the reader with the whole picture of Yugoslav development.

In Borba, too, were reviews of new books, an essay on 100 years of Netherlands painting, movie and art reviews, John Steinbeck's Grapes of Wrath in serial form, a letter to the editor complaining of maltreatment of animals, a critical article on government trade policy and another critical and signed article of a government building project which the writer didn't think was well done.

Yugoslavs are very proud of these published criticisms and I have read many of them myself, in translation, and confess I didn't expect to see such airing of opposition views in a Communist country.

SUBSIDIZED BY GOV'T

Presumably Borba doesn't have to live on its advertising revenue but is subsidized by the government. But there are some advertisements: tenders for construction of a hospital, ads seeking foremen or trained personnel gory is interesting. Industries are for industries. This latter caterun by the workers councils that are formed from their own employees, but the councils often go out of their own ranks to get the right man for the important job. To get him they chip in from their own salaries—but I'll write more about industry later.

Another paper I had read to me was "Sport," which comes out three times a week and uses red ink on green paper for its special stories. It is bright and well edited and along with its football news and the general run of sports news it carries chess lectures and comics and a short novel.

There are a number of newspapers in Yugoslavia, in every city, and while doubtless they are edited with a very careful and political eye I must report that I have seen ample reports on the British and American and Indian views on the recent Pravda reply to Eisenhower. Borba in particular makes a point of reprinting portions of editorials which have run in British and American papers. And in Borba you will find historical articles on Paris or Pakistan, erudite lectures on the new principle in hydro development.

MAKE BIG MISTAKE

A newcomer cannot judge from this that everything in the garden is wonderful. But certainly a mammoth mistake is made by Westerners who because they do not believe in communism therefore believe that every Communist is an illiterate, unthinking unaspiring blob of humanity.

I venture to say the breadth and vision of some of the Yugoslav papers I have seen is higher in many ways than those in Canada. Their bookshops are better. Last week I saw the Belgrade Opera doing Il Trovatore with a large orchestra that would put Sir Ernest MacMillan's Toronto symphony over the jumps—and doing an Italian opera and using Italian music sheets though just now Italy and Yugoslavia are at odds over Trieste and religion.

This morning at an art gallery here in Zagreb we had to manoeuvre for our places among a large group of school children being conducted through the salons. Eighty per cent of the paintings were religious and Roman Catholic subjects—the children showed more interest in a painting than ever you'll see in the eyes of a kid dangling a yo-yo in Canada's National Gallery.

I've not gone Red nor anti-Canadian, but it is time we stopped under-rating any community that thinks differently than we do or wears its hat at a sharper angle.

School Pupils Celebrate Coronation

HARWOOD (ENS)—This community celebrated the Coronation beginning with a service in St. John's Church, on Sunday, conducted by the Rev. A. W. Smith.

On Monday the 18 schools of Hamilton township, under the direction of Mr. Ronald R. Crews, principal of Harwood school, staged a spectacular parade, headed by the Boys' Training School Band. The parade went from the new school grounds to Memorial Park. There were upwards of 600 on hand.

The park committee had the grounds in good shape for the event, which was held outside. The Women's Institute sponsored two booths, selling hot dogs, ice cream and soft drinks, which were well patronized, throughout the afternoon.

PROGRAM

"O Canada" was sung by all. Mr. R. E. Drope gave the address of welcome, followed by a worship service by the Rev. A. W. Smith, L.Th., assisted by SS 10 pupils.

"Land of Our Birth" was sung by SS 7. Miss Pauline Drope spoke on "The Significance of the Coronation."

The Coronation hymn, words by the Rev. Arthur J. Patstone, of Hastings, was sung by SS 16.

Choral speaking, "Changing Guard at Buckingham Palace" was given by SS 15. A flag drill was presented by SS 18. Reeve C. E. Burrison spoke. The massed chorus sang "The Maple Leaf." Choral speaking, "God's Children," was done by SS 9.

A patriotic dance was performed by SS 8 and 11. The Union Jack tableau was given by SS 13. "Rule Britannia" was sung by all. A piano solo was played by Donna Grieve, SS 10.

W. H. Carlton, BA, BPaed, Inspector of Public Schools, gave an address to the assembled crowd. The closing number was the Commonwealth pageant, "There'll Always Be An England." The massed chorus, "Land of Hope and Glory," was sung by the school children.

The park committee held a dance in the evening.

On Coronation Day all who had television invited their relatives and friends. Mitchell's store had seats all along the store aisle.

Windsor Has Surplus

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The city of Windsor had a surplus of $134,576 at the end of 1952. An audit report Thursday showed net debenture debts outstanding on Dec. 31, 1952, were $15,192,367. Of the debt, $12,244,809 remained from the old, pre-depression debt of approximately $34,000,000. The other $2,947,000 resulted from city borrowings between 1945 and 1952

Grant For County Home

TORONTO (CP)—Welfare Minister Goodfellow announced Thursday a further Ontario government payment of $79,216 to the Simcoe county home for the aged at Beeton. The province is paying half of an estimated $509,000 expansion program for the home. The new accommodation is for 47 bed patients, a new laundry, heating plant and general improvement to the home.

As soon as the Queen appeared in response to the chant of "We want the Queen," the roar settled to a steady shout of "God Save the Queen."

Showdown In Senate Soon On Communist China Issue

By JACK STEELE
New York Herald Tribune News Service

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower, faced with a sudden rash of troubles with Congress has served notice that he will not be pushed too far in the name of co-operation he has promised with the co-equal legislative branch.

A series of foreign policy developments in Congress, all of which threatened to widen the breach between the United States and its allies, forced Gen. Eisenhower to make a choice between his own unity with Congress and the unity of the Free World. He emphatically chose the latter.

It was Sen. Robert A. Taft's proposal that the United States demand a "free hand" in Korea and Asia and be prepared to go it alone in the Orient if necessary that drove Gen. Eisenhower to take a stand.

He did so at an historic press conference, at which he not only repudiated Sen. Taft's views, but criticized other pet projects of powerful Republicans in Congress, such as the proposed bans on East-West trade and on the admission of Red China to the United Nations.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

Other obvious targets of his criticism were Sens. William F. Knowland, Calif., and Styles Bridges, N.H., top Republican leaders who have been pushing for a Congressional ban on admitting Red China to the UN and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R., Wis., and others seeking to cut off all East-West trade.

As the smoke from explosive news cleared away, however, it became evident that Gen Eisenhower had issued a "declaration of independence" from Congress without giving any signal that he plans to try to dominate or master Congress.

The President strongly reasserted his leadership in foreign affairs, but did so without causing any open "break" with the leaders of his own party with whom he vigorously disagreed.

NO ANGER SHOWING

Gen. Eisenhower stated his opposition without showing the slightest trace of anger or even of disappointment with Sen. Taft or the others and indeed, went out of his way to emphasize that Sen. Taft was entitled to his own opinion.

The President seemed to be simply accepting the fact that he and Sen. Taft could not always agree on foreign policy, but to be saying also that he expected they could continue to get along despite such disagreements.

Sen. Taft apparently takes the same view, for there was no angry outburst from the Cincinnati hospital where he was being treated for a hip ailment. Friends said he had no intention of letting this dispute with the President develop into a "break." On the other hand, Sen. Taft can be counted on not to change the views he voiced on Far Eastern policy as a result of the President's opposition.

Likewise there were no immediate reactions from Sens. Knowland, Bridges or McCarthy, although Gen. Eisenhower's criticisms of their projects were less direct and vigorous than those of the policy espoused by Sen. Taft.

SHOWDOWN DUE SOON

There will have to be a Senate showdown soon on the Red China issue since the Appropriation Committee, headed by Sen. Bridges, approved a rider banning it from UN membership. Sen. McCarthy is apparently willing, however, at least to delay a showndown on the East-West trade issue.

Gen. Eisenhower's relations with Congress were jolted on other fronts. One of them being a little-noticed speech by Sen. Lyndon B. Joynson, Tex., Senate minority leader, indicating that the Democrats may be getting ready to "break" with the President.

Previously, Democrats in Congress had tried to outdo the Republicans in their support of the President, obviously on the theory that they could then cash in on his popularity in next year's Congressional elections.

Sen. Johnson, speaking to the Women's National Democratic Club opened his talk with these words "We are meeting in the cold, grey dawn of the day of disenchantment," and went on to suggest that the nation is suffering from "a vacuum of leadership."

Asserting that the American people last fall did not vote for "weakness and confusion," Sen. Johnson lashed out in the sharpest words which have been used by a top Democrat in criticism of the Eisenhower administration.

Trip To England Described To WI

ROSENEATH (ENS) — "My recent trip to England", an illustrated travelogue presented by Mrs. Harold Taylor, was the highlight of the June meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute. The film showed the boat docked at Montreal prior to Mrs. Taylor leaving, the interior of the boat, docking at England, historic scenes and places in England, the return trip home reaching St. John's early in December 1952.

In keeping with the Coronation, pictures of the Royal Family, the State Coach and the crowns were also shown.

The meeting was held in the town hall with Mrs. Ford Derry as hostess, the president Mrs. Harold Taylor presiding with Mrs. Bart Thackeray pianist.

Mrs. Alfred Pringle, good cheer convener, reported ten persons remembered during the month.

Plans were made for the four delegates to attend the District Annual in Cobourg on June 9.

The W.I. semi-annual bazaar will be held on July 4 in the p.m.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Frank Adams.

The roll call was "A Spring Poem." Donna McGrath read a poem, "Bonnie Prince Charles"; Mrs. Frank Brown presented Current Events, touching on the Coronation, the conference of the Big Three Powers in Bermuda and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting.

3 Good Shoots During Year For Strathconas

IN KOREA (CP)—Three good shoots highlight the year "B" squadron of Lord Strathcona's Horse has spent in Korea.

Such is the nature of a static war that for the rest of the time the tank men sat in the hills, getting away the occasional harassing shell, and answering enemy fire with artillery and mortar.

The three good shots, says Maj. John Roxburgh of Calgary, officer commanding the squadron during its year here, were last Oct. 23, in support of the 1st battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, at Little Gibraltar, last May 2 with the 3rd RCR, and a private little adventure of their own two days later, May 5.

Toughest time here, says Roxburgh, was last September and October.

"The enemy was building up to his Oct. 23 attack and part of his artillery preparation was devoted to our Sherman tanks on the crests of the hills," he said.

The tank crews speedily devised ingenious protection for them. Lengths of tank track were shackled to the Canadian tanks turrets. Timbered and sandbagged bunkers were built around the hulls, which were sunk into the ridge-tops.

The Strathconas' pattern later was adopted by other armored squadrons in the division.

Community Church Now Under Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Lanark and Renfrew presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Thursday asked the church's general assembly to voice its disapproval of non - denominational community churches.

A resolution of the presbytery asked the assembly to notify the Canadian Council of Churches that "it will not and cannot condone this so-called community church movement."

Such churches were said to be springing up in new areas and urban districts. "They do not and cannot represent a community of Christian people of all denominations," the presbytery's statement said.

The church's total Canadian membership was reported at 179,248 for 1952, an increase of 1,936 over 1951. There were 259 more elders in 1952 and the same number of ministers—715.

Family Tradition

CANSO, N.S. (CP)—James E. Tate here carried on the blacksmith business which his family has been operating for almost 100 years. His grandfather started the smity in 1859 and his father conducted it before James took over.

Canadian Medical Unit To Be Divisional Centre

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Canada is planning to expand one of her medical units here into a Commonwealth division medical centre, The Canadian Press has learned.

The suggestion to expand the 25th Canadian Field Dressing Station into the equivalent of a wartime casualty clearing station was put to Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, chief of the Canadian general staff, during his recent tour of Canadian units in Korea and Japan.

Simonds is reported to have been impressed with the idea, which would result in manpower and financial savings, and to have undertaken to discuss it with the medical branch in Ottawa.

Officers here say they are optimistic of acceptance.

GET BETTER VALUE

The plan will not increase Canada's commitment to the Far Eastern theatre. But it is hoped to get better value out of Canadian medical staff already here by bringing more to Korea from the Commonwealth General Hospital in Kure, Japan.

Under the plan the FDS nursing staff under Capt. (Matron) Elizabeth Pense of Kingston, Ont., will be increased from three to six, including herself, plus a physiotherapist.

The field surgical and field resuscitation teams will be doubled by transfers from Kure, and it is hoped that Ottawa will authorize transfer of the Canadian medical specialist from Kure to Korea. He now visits the FDS periodically.

Now commanded by Maj. Roland Arsenault of Kelowna, B.C., the expanded unit would be a lieutenant-colonel's command.

GET MORE SERVICE

By retaining more soldiers for treatment in the divisional area rather than sending them back to Kure, where on recovery they get lost in the red-tape of the reinforcement stream, the division will get more service from them. Soldiers treated here return to their units at least three weeks quicker.

The scheme is the culmination of a policy launched by Col. G. L. Morgan Smith of Toronto and Barrie, Ont., while here as director of the division's medical services. Col. J. S. McCannell of Victoria and Toronto, who last month succeeded Smith, is developing the policy.

The centre looks after soldiers from all divisional units, not only Canadians.

16 RMC Graduates To Leave For Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—Sixteen graduates of the Royal Military College at Kingston, who were commissioned last Monday, are to leave for Korea next month. All lieutenants, they will serve a year with the 25th infantry brigade.

Among them are R. V. A. Boe, Carleton Place, a signals officer, and J. M. Scott of Fort William. Lieut. Scott will go to the 81st Field Regiment of the artillery.

Gale Topples Trees

SARNIA (CP)—A brief 50-mile-an-hour gale roared through this city late Thursday and uprooted several trees weakened by the tornado of May 21. The wind was accompanied by a torrential downpour.

Draws Derby Horse

KITCHENER (CP)—Louis Steinbach, a 59-year-old widower at nearby Heidelberg, said Thursday he has drawn an Irish sweepstake ticket on Good Brandy, an entry in this Saturday's running of the Epsom Derby. Steinback works as a yard laborer in Waterloo.

Leading Chemists Discuss Beef And Beer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Many of Canada's leading chemists and scientists gathered Thursday to talk of beef and beer and codfish livers.

Papers on these subjects, along with more technical discussions of advances in the field of chemical and allied industries, featured the opening sessions of the three-day 36th annual conference of the Chemical Institute of Canada.

Two chemists from the Prairie regional laboratory in Saskatoon gave details of biological catalysts which have been found effective in making meat tender and making beer chill-proof.

Leslie R. Watter and June J. Corrigal said the catalysts, called proteolytic enzymes, have found more important use in the medical field in intravenous administration.

They said the material was derived from mold fermentation and differs from the preteolytic enzymes used in industry which are mostly obtained from plant and animal sources.

MAY BE VALUABLE

A paper delivered by two fisheries scientists from Nova Scotia said the residue from codfish livers after the oil has been removed may prove more valuable than the cod liver oil itself.

Dr. P. L. Hoogland and Beryle Truscott, both of Halifax, said they recently discovered the residue, previously believed almost worthless, increased the growth of chickens.

The $1,000 Russell J. Eddy Foundation Scholarship went to John Alexander Mason, 24, a native of Dundas, and a post-graduate student at McMaster University, Hamilton.

Two Brothers Die In Thunderstorm

DETROIT (AP)—Lightning killed two brothers in a heavy thunderstorm that swept the Detroit area late Thursday.

Anthony Tranchida, 15, and his brother Baldino, 6, of Detroit were killed by a bolt that struck a tree. They had taken shelter under the tree.

The weather bureau had issued a storm warning at 3 p.m. for southeastern Michigan.

Earlier Thursday, the Saginaw area was pelted by a violent hailstorm that broke windows and shut off electric power to some homes.

QUEEN MOTHER ELIZABETH leans over to answer a question asked by Prince Charles during the long Abbey ceremony, part of which he watched from a seat in the Royal Gallery. At rear is Princess Margaret.

Cheque Passer Jailed 3 Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—For cashing 12 worthless cheques, William Sutton, 23, was sentenced Thursday to Kingston penitentiary for three years.

Sutton confessed he cashed all 12, but suggested to the court he had been blackmailed into pushing all but the first across the counters of district merchants.

He was part of a gang, he said, whose members were not friends of his. He retained two-thirds of the proceeds, turning the balance over to John Carpenter, serving two years now in the penitentiary following a St. Thomas court decision.

Two other bad cheque charges against the man were returned to Chatham and Stratford when magistrate Donald Menzies found the information faulty.

Sutton said he cashed cheques in Stratford, Woodstock, London, St. Marys, Delhi, Tillsonburg and Simcoe.

4 Ontario Mayors In Plowing Contest

TORONTO (CP)—At least four Ontario mayors, including three women, will compete this fall for the mayors' sod-turning title now held by Mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto.

Mayors Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, Grace McFarland of Leamington, Bernadette Smith of Woodstock and J. D. Burnet of Cobourg will enter the contest at the international plowing match near Cobourg next October.

Mayor Lamport won the contest last year.

Civil Defence Workout At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—An imaginary atom bomb is to fall on this city of 90,000 late today, climaxing five days of conferences on civil defence problems.

Several thousand civil defence volunteers, including Canadian detachments, will work on assigned problems stemming from the mythical atomic attack, including fires, disrupted utility services, thousands of dead and wounded citizens and acres of devastated business and residential areas.

It is the third dress rehearsal for an enemy attack in Niagara Falls, one of the largest chemical industry centres.

Canadian civil defence workers from across the Niagara river will play a large part in the exercise, giving it a strong international flavor. It will be witnessed by top CD officials from both the U.S. and Canada.

The imaginary A-bomb will explode 1,000 feet over the city some time after 5:30 p.m. EDT.

A feature of the exercise will be publication of an emergency newspaper in Niagara Falls, Ont. It will be carried into the presumably wrecked area on this side of the border to carry out the civil defence aim of keeping the public in a stricken city well informed.

Queen Entertains 250 At Second State Banquet

LONDON (CP) — The Queen, wearing a strapless evening gown and diamonds, Thursday night received 250 guests at a state banquet in Buckingham Palace.

The banquet was similar to the one held Wednesday night in the palace's white-and-gold ballroom. Distinguished foreign and British Commonwealth guests attended.

The company stood as the Queen, with her husband and other members of the Royal Family, entered the room. She was attended by the Earl of Scarborough, the lord chamberlain—senior official of the royal household—in full court dress and bearing his white wand of office.

The Queen sat with Prince George of Greece on her right and Prince Bertil of Sweden on her left. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, was flanked by the Queen Mother and Princess George of Greece.

The menu was: Consomme St. George; rosettes de saumon Edinburgh; filet de boeuf; poele palais with petit pois au beurre and pommes nouvelles, salade mimosa; asperges sauce mousseline; souffles glaces Princesse Ange and Mignardises assortis.

APPEARS ON BALCONY

For the third night running tens of thousands swarmed outside the palace shouting: "We want the Queen."

And the Queen again came smiling to her balcony to greet the people.

She stood for five minutes on the palace balcony in a white ermine cape thrown over a silver gown, her tiara sparkling in the floodlights. At her side was the Duke of Edinburgh.

Legal Actions Fly In B.C. Election

VANCOUVER (CP)—The launching of two legal actions involving alleged libel has been announced in British Columbia's bitter provincial election campaign.

And Premier Bennett told an election meeting Thursday night he believes there will be criminal libel suits "conducted by the attorney-general himself" in connection with statements made by the independent candidate involved in the other two actions.

The independent candidate is Dr. W. N. Kemp, running in Vancouver-Point Grey riding in the June 9 election. He is being sued by John Perdue, president of the B. C. Social Credit League, and, in turn, has announced he will sue Mr. Perdue.

The hectic series of charges and counter-charges began a week ago when Mr. Kemp said at an election meeting that Mr. Perdue "has been convicted on more than one occasion of obtaining money under false pretences and similar crimes in Vancouver."

OBTAINS WRIT

Mr. Perdue has obtained a writ in the B. C. Supreme Court seeking unstated damages from Dr. Kemp for alleged slander and libel. The doctor followed up at a meeting Thursday night by announcing he is suing Mr. Perdue for "defamation of character and libel." Mr. Kemp said he, too, has obtained a writ.

The Social Credit premier's report that the attorney-general may step into the case was made during a speech at Rutland in the province's interior.

Dr. Kemp said he was basing his suit on remarks made by the Social Credit League president, himself an election candidate, when he spoke in reply to the criminal-record allegations.

Mr. Perdue asserted that it appeared that the Liberal party was in the background of what he said was a smear campaign by the independent candidate and said Dr. Kemp launched his attack after the government rejected his bid for a $35-a-day job.

FOOLISH MISTAKE

In answer to the criminal record charge, Mr. Perdue said he made a "foolish mistake" 25 years ago which landed him in jail.

Seeking a job, he had "foolishly" used licence obtained from a friend for a job for which he was qualified but unlicenced. He received $50 in advance for expense money.

Later, he said, he was charged with obtaining $50 under false pretences and was sentenced to a prison term, but "I was released unconditionally without having served my full time."

"I have paid my debt to society," Mr. Perdue said in the broadcast. "I am confident the people will place Christian principles before political expediency."

Following Mr. Perdue's comment that the criminal-record charge appeared part of the Liberal campaign, the B. C. Liberal Association released a statement which said:

"Such a deplorable attempt to clear himself of his own trouble by trying to place the blame on the Liberal party is unworthy of an answer."

U.S. Battling Invasion Of Insects

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two of mankind's toughest insect opponents—army worms and tent caterpillars—are voraciously rampaging in record hordes in several sections of the United States this year.

A check of Associated Press bureaus brought such comments as "heaviest infestation in 20 years," . . . "worsening by the hour" . . . "million dollar damage to crops," and comment by the U. S. department of agriculture that preliminary results of a survey now under way showed a "general outbreak" of army worms from the east coast to the Mississippi.

At Watertown, N. Y., tent caterpillars blanketed railroad tracks in such hordes that a freight train was delayed 35 minutes as wheels skidded on the pulpy mass. Minnesota was ready to do battle, with the most complete pest control program in 30 years, against what experts have predicted will be the state's "worst tent caterpillar infestation" in history.

GYPSY MOTHS

Massachusetts is contending with gypsy moths that are expected to strip trees of their foliage across 25,000 acres, and the grape steely beetle is plaguing vineyards in an area around Westfield, N. Y.

The army worms concentrate on grass crops such as clover and grains like barley, rye, wheat and corn—but if supplies run out they readily turn to tobacco, tomatoes and other garden crops. About 1¼ inches long, thick as a pencil and smooth greyish brown in appearance, they go underground after they have eaten their fill, within the next two weeks in most sections, and emerge in the fall as moths.

Obituary

PAUL A. KERR

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — A well-known resident of Campbellford, Paul A. Kerr, died at his home on Doxsee Ave. on Wednesday night after an illness of several weeks. He was in his 60th year.

Born in Campbellford, son of the late Duncan Kerr and Mary Lawder, Mr. Kerr worked in Toronto and Detroit, Michigan, for some time in the capacity of linemen on the Hydro. He spent the greater part of his life in Campbellford.

His wife, the former Mary Wilmott survives him, as well as two brothers, Bernard of Campbellford and Edson of Toronto. One brother and two sisters predeceased him some time ago. He was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church.

Requiem mass will be sung at St. Mary's Church on Saturday at 10 a.m.; with the Rev. J. C. Maloney officiating. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

34,000 Foreign Students

NEW YORK (AP)—There are 34,000 foreign students from 145 countries studying at colleges and universities in the United States, the committee on friendly relations among foreign students said Thursday. Canada leads with 4,636 students. China is second with 2,611 and Germany third, with 1,371.

WA Speaker Describes Work Of Christophers

MILLBROOK (ENS). — The town group of St. Andrew's United Church Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. Bruce Dawson. Mrs. Homer Ouelette gave a talk on the old Chinese proverb, "It is better to light one candle then to curse the darkness." She told of the group comprising every race and creed who call themselves "Christophers" and who use that proverb as their motto.

They take their name from Saint Christopher, the Christ-bearer of legend. There is no actual organization; anyone may be a Christopher just by wishing to be one. Their purpose is to improve, in some small way, the part of the world in which they live. They are willing to do their share even though they may not have any special gift for leadership.

Mrs. Chester Fisher, group leader, was in the chair and opened the meeting with the reading of a poem and with prayer. The devotional period, on the theme "Purity of Heart," was taken by Mrs. H. R. Edmunds. Mrs. John McKnight read a poem on "Home" and Miss Augusta Clarry played a piano solo. Mrs. Fisher gave a talk on the crowning of Queen Elizabeth II and the group joined in the National Anthem.

It was decided to hold a picnic in Orono park July 9. Mrs. J. T. Crowley was appointed to hire the bus and to choose a committee to make arrangements for the picnic.

Supper hostesses were Miss Mary Widdis, Mrs. Arthur Fallis and Mrs. J. T. Crowley.

Lakefield Couple 25 Years Married

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bullock were at home to their friends, neighbors and relatives Sunday on their 25th wedding anniversary.

Tea was poured at a table covered with a hand-made lace cloth and centred with the wedding cake by the bride's mother Mrs. E. Masters of Coe Hill. Assisting in serving were Mrs. E. Dunford and Miss Joan Freeburn of Young's Point and Mrs. F. Harndey of Grafton.

In the evening about 30 were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bullock at a family dinner party at their home.

The happy couple received many beautiful gifts which included a set of dishes from the family, a pair of crystal candle holders inlaid with silver from the neighbors and a basket of flowers from the Women's Association of the United Church.

No Defence

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Erickson, once a kingpin bookmaker, has pleaded no defence to an income tax evasion charge, and is to be sentenced June 16. He could get up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. The 56-year-old Erickson, now serving a 12- to 14-month term in New Jersey for violating gambling laws, changed his plea from innocent to evading $75,630 in taxes in 1945.

200,000 Visitors

Suspend Meetings

St. James' WA met as usual Tuesday afternoon, Coronation Day, in the Wesley Hall. President Mrs. H. Turner opened by reading a poem "The spirit of friendship lives forever." Mrs. Lewis Bird was in charge of the devotional period. The first part of her talk centred on the coronation and she read an article titled "Gad Save the Queen." After reading Bible passages, the hymn "Take time to be holy" was sung. Mrs. Bird also read a poem called "Trees" which likened human growth and strength to that of trees. It was decided to suspend meetings for the summer months. Mrs. E. Rowe offered prayer to close the meeting and Mrs. R. Ritchie and Mrs. G. Pearson then served cake and ice cream.

WA Meets At St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's WA members on Thursday afternoon enjoyed a picnic meeting at the summer home of Mrs. J. A. Dewart on Lake Chemong. A little business was transacted in some further arrangements for the fall tea and bazaar on Nov. 5. Mrs. F. Collins and Mrs. I. H. Keefer are the conveners. Mrs. F. W. K. Harris brought for view the wooden cabinet for the trowel which was used in laying the cornerstone of the church that has been made by Mr. F. W. Moeser. The WA will present this case to the Session for keeping intact the historic relic used by Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls. Mrs. V. S. Foster was presented with a gift of jewellery by the ladies, the presentation being made by Mrs. Angus Munro. Mrs. Foster and her husband will be leaving Peterborough in the near future and the Association regrets losing such a valued member. Miss Helen Brown, social convener, arranged a delicious salad luncheon to be served at the close.

SCRATCH FIXING

Deep scratches in mahogany can be made "invisible" with an application of iodine. Try rubbing them with the cut side of a walnut or Brazil nut meat to conceal light scratches.

Punch For The Wedding

The bride who holds with tradition will be toasted in champagne, the delightful effervescent wine that puts the crowning touch on special events from ship launchings to the launching of matrimony. The very name champagne suggests weddings and receptions at this time of year. This light, sparkling wine is as much a part of weddings as "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue."

Champagne should be thoroughly chilled for several hours before serving. Less time is required for chilling if the bottle is turned slowly in its ice pack. When you are ready to serve, wrap the bottle in a napkin and untwist the wire that holds the cork. With the neck of the bottle tilted up and away from you, work the cork slowly and gently until it loosens enough for the pressure inside the bottle to pop the cork. One quart of champagne serves five to six glasses.

Punch is a favorite beverage for toasting the bride, and it may be alcoholic or non-alcoholic as you prefer. If champagne is one of the ingredients it should be added at the last moment and in the presence of the guests. All ingredients should be kept under refrigeration for several hours before using, and the punch bowl should be chilled before the punch is poured into it.

PINK PUNCH (Serves 12)

Ingredients:
2 bottles claret wine
1 cup sugar
1 bottle sparkling water
Juice and peel two lemons.

Method:
Combine ingredients and stir well in punch bowl with cubes of ice. Chill thoroughly. Remove lemon peel, and serve. Sliced oranges may be added

CHAMPAGNE WEDDING PUNCH (Serves 30)

Ingredients:
2 bottles champagne
1 bottle white table wine
4 cups canned pineapple, cubed
1½ quarts ice water
1 quart strawberries, fresh or frozen
3 cups sugar
2 cups lemon juice.

Method: Chill champagne and white table wine thoroughly. Dissolve sugar in lemon juice. Combine in a punch bowl with pineapple. Add a square block of ice. Add chilled white table wine. Add chilled champagne and strawberries just before serving.

CHAMPAGNE CLARET PUNCH

(Serves 25 to 30)

Ingredients: 2 bottles champagne, 2 bottles claret, 2 bottles sparkling water, juice of 1 lemon, half lemon rind, ½ cup maraschino syrup, 4 tbsps. sugar.

Method: Chill the champagne, claret, and sparkling water. Shred the lemon rind into punch bowl, and add sugar. Add lemon juice and maraschino syrup. Stir well. Place a large square block of ice in punch bowl, and add the well-chilled sparkling water, claret, and champagne. Stir just enough to mix well. Ornament with fruit, and serve.

WHITE WINE FRUIT PUNCH

(Serves 10 to 12)

Ingredients: 2 bottles white table wine, 2 cups sliced peaches, ½ cup sugar, lemon rind.

Method: Dissolve sugar in water. Add lemon juice and few strips lemon rind. Pour over a block of ice in a chilled bowl and add white table wine. Add fruit just before serving. Sliced oranges, strawberries or other fruit may be used and may be slightly sugared. Serve in punch cups or small glasses.

SPARKLING FRUIT PUNCH

Ingredients: 6 cups strong tea, 2 cans frozen orange juice (undiluted), 2 twenty-ounce cans pineapple juice, sugar syrup to taste, ½ cup maraschino syrup, 2 quarts ginger ale, orange slices, lemon slices, maraschino cherries.

Method: Chill tea and combine with fruit juices and syrup. (To make syrup, combine equal quantities sugar and water. Bring to a boil and let simmer for five minutes.) Pour into a punch bowl and add ice cubes. Stir and let stand for ten minutes. Add ginger ale. Garnish with lemon slices and orange slices and cherries.

HAD BAD STOMBACH

Felt So Miserable And Tired-Out All The Time

This Woman Is Delighted With Improvement In Her Health Since Taking Syntona. Now Nerves Are Relaxed, Sleeps Better, Recommends It Highly.

"I wouldn't take anything for the good results I got by taking Syntona Herbal Compound and I am glad of the opportunity to recommend this fine medicine to other people who suffer as I did," said Mrs. A. Jennings, 100 Jackson Street, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent interview.

"I was troubled with my stomach and had indigestion and sour stomach after eating even the lightest foods. I would belch up hot, sour liquids, and get a full, heavy feeling with shortness of breath. After being this way several months I felt so miserable and tired out all the time that I could hardly do my work. My nerves were so on edge that I couldn't get my proper sleep at night.

Tried Many Things

"After taking almost everything I heard of without benefit, a friend suggested that I try Syntona. I was none too sure about it, but decided to get a bottle and to my surprise began to feel better before it was half finished. I was so encouraged that I kept right on taking Syntona regularly and the present improvement in my health is simply wonderful. Stomach distress is cleared up, my nerves are relaxed, and I sleep better than I did for years. I have more energy and am not all tired out as I was before."

Not A New Story

The experience of Mrs. Jennings is not new. For more than 15 years hundreds of local men and women have been saying how Syntona helped them in similar circumstances. But many people do not yet know how much better they can feel by taking Syntona. To those people we say: Try Syntona one week. See what a difference it makes. So, don't let another day go by. Get Syntona today.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

Roseneath Couple Celebrate 40th Anniversary

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mouncey of Cobourg and formerly of Roseneath were taken by surprise on Thursday evening when the immediate members of their family gathered at their home, in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary, bringing with them a three-tier wedding cake and lunch.

The evening was spent in playing progressive euchre. Prizes for high score went to Clarke Mouncey and Mrs. Curtis Fitzgibbon. Harold Mouncey carried off the prize for the most lone hands. Prize for low score was won by Clarence Parker.

At the conclusion of the game period the family presented their parents with a complete set of dinnerware.

The Mouncey's youngest son, Trevor Mouncey and his wife who were marking their fourth anniversary were presented with a silver cake plate.

Mr. and Mrs. Mouncey were married at the Presbyterian Manse, Bethesda (near Harwood) 40 years ago by the Rev. J. R. Black, resident minister on the Roseneath and Bethesda charge. Mr. Mouncey is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mouncey, and Mrs. Mouncey the former Ellen Harris the only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ed Harvie all of Roseneath.

Following their marriage they resided on the Mouncey homestead near Roseneath until five years ago when they moved to Cobourg. They have three daughters and four sons: Mary, Mrs. Howard Andrews, Lakefield; Mrs. Curtis Fitzgibbon (Jessie), Gilmour; Mrs. Clarence Parker (Audrey), Roseneath; Elmer of Cornwall and Trevor of Cobourg. All of whom were present with their parents on their anniversary with the exception of Elmer. There are also 13 grandchildren.

While residing at Roseneath the Mouncey's were active members of the former Presbyterian Church and later Roseneath United Church. Mr. Mouncey is a former reeve of Alnwick township and a member of the Council for many years and a member of Roseneath Agricultural Society.

During war years Mrs. Mouncey was a valuable worker in Alnwick township Red Cross.

A FAIRY TALE is told in the "Coronation of the Flowers" Ballet presented by Miss Caroline Littlefield and company. In the top photo are the young adagio dancers, Linda Anderson (Prince Sweetbriar) and Erline Belanger (Princess Rosebud); three of the Royal Flowers, Dorothy Sullivan, Daphne Hayward and Sophie Zakos (senior ballet) and Eddie Collis as the bluebird, with Miss Littlefield. In lower photo, chairman Doug Anderson of the Lion's Club is seen discussing the production with smallest member of the cast, Dianne Crary, who wears her forgetmenot costume.

"Coronation Of Flowers" Presented In Ballet

Ballet as presented by Miss Caroline Littlefield continues to delight Peterborough audiences. "The Coronation of the Flowers" was a charming fairy story told in the dance which entertained nearly 600 in the Brock Ballroom Thursday evening.

Miss Littlefield has about her now a company that loves the graceful movement of ballet and the rhythmic motion of her gym routines. She also has a company that loves Miss Littlefield, for they brought her out of retirement to teach them again this year. After the performance they showered her with gifts and flowers.

Added to her followers from former classes at the YWCA are more than 40 little darlings in the baby ballet. Though the ranks of these baby Forgetmenots and Garden Pinks were riddled by chickenpox, they made a pretty showing in their flower-like costumes, some with skirts just six inches long.

The choreography tells a story written by Miss Littlefield of an old deserted garden where gay Dandelions (seven members of her gym group) run riot and enjoy freedom. A big black Raven (in this case an extremely graceful raven, Irene Campbell) appears clutching the precious Rosebud (dainty little toe dancer Erline Belanger), followed by the Queen Butterfly (Dianne Zakos, whose mother and elder sister are in the senior ballet).

Seniors arrived in the enticing dance of the Poppies—flame red, very lively poppies, three of whom afterward broke into a version of the naughty French can-can (Sophie Zakos, Daphne Hayward and Helen Zakos), and then there was a smoothly executed solo by Dorothy Sullivan. (Others in this group are Gerry Vinette, Marjorie Sherry, Marjorie Vinette, Barbara Mahoney and Geraldine Vinette.)

A second time the seniors came on the stage as trios of Royal Flowers, acquitting themselves with dignity befitting the red, white and blue, their gossamer gowns more demure. They perform the coronation of Prince Sweetbriar (Linda Anderson) and Princess Rosebud, with crowns of flowers.

The little prince and princess brought applause and praise to themselves as an adagio pair. Little Eddie Collis was the hero of the piece when he shot the raven and brought happiness and joy to the garden again.

Four of the junior ballet Butterflies in a special number were Marina Zakos, Dianne Mulachy, Sally Sands and Carol Thompson. The others were Patsy Tobin, Dolly Quinlan, Linda Anderson, Marie Hatcher, Linda Hayden, Joanne Maloney, Ruth Quinlan, Patsy Hutton, Dianne Hayden, Gloria Collinson, Tracy Allen, Kathleen Hutton.

Tiniest baby Forgetmenots were Barbara Collis and Dianne Crary, followed by Sharon Currie, Katherine Arden, Janice Barringer, Joanne Miller, Mary Gibson, Sharon Miller, Cheryl Long, Linda Rogers, Linda Worrell, Janice Crary, Beverley Comstock, Catherine Till, Linda Laidlaw and Susan Allen.

A little bit bigger, the Garden Pinks were Judy Laidlaw, Lyn Comstock, Christine Legon, Darline Holloway, Wendy Kift, Jacqueline Smith, Judy Colling, Jane Irwin, Judy McNeill, Darline Seymour, Darline Long, Carol Mackay, Barbara Clark, Dale Maudsley, Nancy Rowatt, Karen Kitney, Patsy Smith, Sharon Doughty and Ruth Dewey.

The seven Dandelions in green tights with yellow petal tunics and hats were Lillian Wood, Yvette Simoneau, Shirley Brown, Helen Griffin, Margaret McIlmoyle, Amy Aiken and Vi Junkin.

Programs giving the names of all taking part were numbered and three were lucky for the holders, Diane Deyell, Mrs. Barltrop and Mary Morrison, who each received a large basket of groceries.

H&S Council Holds Annual Workshop

Second annual Peterborough District Home and School Council Workshop was held Wednesday at the beautiful summer home of Mrs. Clare Collins at Lake Chemong. There were 32 urban and 12 rural delegates present, including presidents, vice-presidents and council executive.

The first session was devoted to an interesting talk on publications, ably handled by Mrs. C. Ferguson. This was followed by instructive talk on parent education by Mrs. L. Roper. Several films available from the Peterborough Film Council, were recommended by Mrs. Roper.

The group then adjourned for a picnic lunch and coffee.

In the afternoon, the delegates divided into urban and rural sections. The urban discussion was led by Mrs. W. Baggs, and the rural by Mrs. C. Coons.

Mrs. Baggs introduced the new Council president, Mrs. V. Reynolds and called on Mrs. Collins to give timely pointers on program planning. Plans for driving crippled children to the YWCA were mentioned by Mrs. S. Whitfield. There was also a lively question and answer period.

In the rural section, Mrs. Coons dealt with problems after elections. She emphasized member participation in all meetings. The leadership training school at Camp Couchiching was also discussed and the ladies urged to attend.

After a word of thanks to Mrs. Collins by Mrs. J. Callaghan, the workshop was adjourned.

HAVELOCK

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The executive committee of the Havelock Home and School Association entertained the teachers of the public school at tea on Wednesday in the home economics room of the school.

Tulips and lilacs formed a beautiful setting for the event which is held in June each year to say farewell to the teachers before they leave for the holiday season. The president, Mrs. J. Calnan, welcomed the guests.

Principal H. Hunter expressed appreciation for himself and the other members of the staff. He also spoke of the regret that all felt at the loss of Miss S. Dolden, who has resigned her position on the staff, effective the last of this month. Mr. John Linden also expressed his appreciation.

The president extended special thanks to Mrs. James Wilde and Mrs. R. Sayers, conveners for the tea.

350 Indicate Popularity Of Tea At Bridgenorth

Ideal weather conditions Wednesday helped a great deal in the success of the Coronation Tea held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Richardson of Bridgenorth. More than 350 guests were served during the afternoon, on the lawn and in the tea room in the house, indicating the popularity of an afternoon tea at Bridgenorth.

The tea was sponsored by the WA of Bridgenorth United Church and proceeds are to go toward renovating the parsonage.

Purple and gold was the color arrangement in the booths on the lawn, and in the tea room red, white and blue were predominant. A beautiful bouquet of red and white carnations rising to a high peak with a circlet of blue bachelor buttons forming the base, intermingled with white stocks and snapdragons adorned the centre of the tea table. Triple silver candelabra with tall white candles were on the ends of the table. Individual tea tables on the lawn were dressed in white cloths with miniature flags standing in glass containers of colored stones.

During the tea hours, soft music was played by Mrs. C. Telford on the piano.

Mrs. Karl Blewett, WA president, and Mrs. Richardson received the guests on arrival. Many were from neighboring districts with large numbers from Norwood, Lakefield and Peterborough.

The home-baking table, bazaar table, parcel post and candy tables were colorfully arranged in purple and gold and were heavily laden with articles to sell. Long before close of the tea the parcels and home baking were cleared away. About 200 parcels had been received by the members for the parcel post sale.

Pouring tea were Mrs. T. E. Rath of Lakefield, president of Peterborough Presbytery, and three Bridgenorth past presidents, Mrs. M. Fowler, Mrs. W. Telford and Mrs. P. Pettersone. Mrs. W. S. Ray poured tea on the lawn.

Tea hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. C. Hartman and Mrs. E. Whitehill and lawn hostesses were Mrs. Albert Nicholls and Mrs. Marie Homer.

Serving in the tea room and on the lawn were Mrs. W. Crookshanks, Mrs. O. J. Frisken, Mrs. A. H. Armitage, Mrs. R. Jopling, Mrs. Earl Blewett, Mrs. A. Connors, Mrs. G. Ray Jr., Mrs. R. Brooks, Mrs. J. Murray, Mrs. T. Ashby, Mrs. A. Mutton and Mrs. Vic Doughty.

In charge of sandwiches were Mrs. Jack Smith, and Mrs. R. McConkey. In charge of small cakes were Mrs. R. Phillips. Tea was made by Mrs. Don McKay and Mrs. C. Westlake, Mrs. E. Forsythe and Mrs. E. Harrison assisted with other kitchen arrangements.

Taking tickets at the gate were Mrs. L. Hale and Mrs. J. Johnson. A nursery playground was provided for the small children and was in charge of Mrs. L. Welch and Mrs. E. Clark.

The bazaar table was in charge of Mrs. W. Nicholls, assisted by Mrs. R. Arnott and Mrs. Roy Wood; the home-baking table of Mrs. W. G. Ray assisted by Mrs. Al Crowe, Mrs. K. Roberts and Miss M. Pringle; the parcel post booth of Mrs. C. Payne and assisted by Mrs. A. Watkins; the candy table of Miss O. Sidey and assisted by Mrs. Earl Nicholls.

The colorful decorations were arranged by Mrs. C. Hartman and Mrs. W. Crookshanks.

Puff Pastry Directions

Honest - to - goodness melt-in-your-mouth puff pastry can be made at home. It may be kept for several days, wrapped in wax paper, on ice. Scraps of it may be rolled out and folded several times as in making the pastry. It will then, when thoroughly chilled, be almost as good as when fresh.

FRENCH OR PUFF PASTRY

2 cups pastry flour
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 egg yolk
1 cup butter
1 teaspoon salt.

1—Wash butter until plastic, but not until soft, in very cold water, and then squeeze dry. Some cooks use a napkin to wash the butter in.

2—Divide butter into 3 equal parts, and put into ice water until needed.

3. Put vinegar, salt and yolk into cup and add cold water until cup is three-quarters full.

4. Make a well in the flour and pour in the cold liquid. Stir and then knead until elastic.

5. Let dough stand for 10 minutes.

6. Roll out, leaving the centre thicker than the edges.

7. Put one piece of washed butter in the centre and fold.

8. Turn pastry so as to have closed edge facing one, and roll out by pounding lightly and deftly until the pastry is twice as long as wide.

9. Fold the pastry in three like a letter for an envelope and close the edges by pounding lightly with the rolling pin so as to enclose as much air as possible.

10. Repeat 8, and 9, and then let the pastry chill for at least 10 minutes.

11. Beginning with 6, repeat the whole process to 11, for each piece of butter. When all the butter has been enclosed and the pastry has been chilled for the fourth time, roll out to the thickness of a silver quarter and cut into whatever shapes desired.

12. Chill thoroughly, even freeze if possible and bake on the floor of a 450 degrees oven, letting the temperature rise to 500 degrees.

13. When the pastry has doubled its height, the temperature may be gradually lowered to 350 degrees. French pastry should take about 30 minutes to cook thoroughly.

14. Glaze with egg yolk. In glazing pastry no egg should be allowed to fall on the sides as it would prevent the pastry rising to its full height.

Play Presented

Previous to the ballet presentation under auspices of the Lion's Club of Peterborough Thursday evening at Brock Ballroom, a 35-minute play, "The Ugly Duckling" was enacted.

Director John Campbell took the part of the King. The Queen was Peggy McCombe, the Princess, Irene Campbell, the Prince, John McDougal. Dulcebella was Pauline Howard and Alex Sinclair played Carlo. The Chancellor was George Booth.

John McDougal was the outstanding member of the cast, giving an excellent performance and saying his lines with clarity so they could be heard to the back of the hall.

Friends Advise Happy Wife Against Going To College

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 20 and have been married two years. I have a good job, nice home, and a wonderful husband. I finished high school, and now would like to go on to college. My relatives and friends advise me against this, saying it will break up my marrigae. My husband tells me to do whatever I want to do. I want an education more than anything, but don't want to wreck my marriage. WORRIED

✧ ✧ ✧

HOME VS. COLLEGE

ANSWER: If there is a college in your city that you can attend without disrupting your home schedule, go to it. However, if pursuing a higher education would mean leaving home, even for a few days each week, don't. In the latter case, contact some specialized school and concentrate on one field, such as home economics, music, art or languages.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married six years and have two children. They are both hot tempered and stubborn, and I'd like to know how to manage them. My own mother died when I was very small, and I never had anyone to teach me what was right, or to set an example for me. I was only 16 when I married, but I have been very happy. I do want to bring my children up in the right way. MRS. F. F. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your determination to do right is the most important factor in raising your children. Don't expect perfection from them, and don't let needless worry blind you to the vital factors of living. One of the finest books on child care is the U.S. Government's publication, "Your Child from Two to Six," available for 25c from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C. I shall be happy to recommend a few other inexpensive booklets, if you'll send me a self-addressed stamped envelope.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The lady of my affection is 20, one year older than I am. I love her, and think she loves me, but she won't commit herself. It seems that some time ago she was in love and the man jilted her, leaving her disillusioned and cynical regarding men. It would be difficult for me to forget her, but I don't want this affair to be one-sided. P. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your role in the young lady's life seems to be that of an appeal to her vanity, and a source of entertainment until someone better comes along. The story of disillusionment is a cover to tide her over a dull period. If she cared for you, the memory of her broken romance would have faded rapidly. Better not depend on her too much.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 15, and like a boy 17. My mother thinks he acts too old for me, and has forbidden me to go out with him. I want to know if it's all right for me to see him secretly. JEAN F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Absolutely not! In no circumstances should a girl date a boy on the sly after her parents have forbidden the friendship. Your mother may be unfair in your estimation, but again she may know things about the boy that you don't, or she may have some other definite reason for discouraging the friendship.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Mine is the old problem. I'm married, and never get out. My husband is content to come home, settle down, read, sleep and eat. He gets mad if I even suggest going to a show. R. M. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There's not much you can do with a man who is a determined homebody. If he won't take you out, you should at least insist on getting out with your girl friends, and since you work all day, naturally you have to take the evenings for your own amusement. Someone should organize a "Let's-take-the-little-woman-out-once-a-week club," in an effort to detach these lazy males from their routine. Every wife is entitled to an evening out and it should be granted with good grace. It does no good if hubby goes reluctantly, then fusses all evening over the dinner, movie, expenses, travelling, etc. Men should realize what terrific dividends they get from a movie a week. Nothing raises a woman's morale more than a little pampering.

Resort fashions favor black and white for beach wear.

Women have long been aware that black is lovely against a golden tan and that white is equally dazzling. This year, they may have one or both. Only those with excellent figures, however, will pick white, which makes exacting demands upon their figures when it's cut into a swim suit.

While the long, smooth lines of the one-piece suit are best liked this year, there are women who adhere to the two-piece fashion. So the two-piece suit stays with us, ready to lend its flattery to the trim and youthful figure.

Sleek black suit by Brilliant (left) is elasticized laton taffeta. Suit has a shirred motif for a soft look that manages to maintain trim lines. It may be worn with or without straps and is fully lined.

The two- piece suit (right) is elasticized laton taffeta, too, but in a dazzling white. The bra may be worn with or without straps. Shorts are smooth in back, shirred in front for maximum figure flattery.

Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

Attention Please Readers: Most of you are wonderful about sending me stamped envelopes with your requests . . . but I would be most grateful if everyone would remember to do this. Mary M.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I have obtained many wonderful recipes from you . . . recently I bought 1 dozen . . . Rye Rolls and they were so delicious I was wondering if you have a recipe for making them, also one for rye bread. . . . I read where a woman made a lot of money making "Cinnamon Jelly" or Cinnamon Tang as it is often called. Have you such a recipe? . . . some time ago you printed Apple Streubel and Sour Milk Spice Pie . . . I have lost mine. Could you send them to me? . . . thank you.—Mrs. Dennis N.

ANSWER: Good rye bread and rolls are hard to make, so you will have to learn the feel of the dough with practice. It is always sticky.

RYE BREAD (and rolls)

Mix together in large mixing bowl 2 cups lukewarm water, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, and if desired 1 tablespoon caraway seeds. Crumple into it 2 cakes compressed yeast. (If granular yeast is used soak 2 packages in ¾ cup of lukewarm water with 2 teaspoons sugar for 10 minutes, then stir it. But if you do this reduce amount of water first put in bowl to 1¼ cups.) Add 2 tablespoons soft shortening and stir this mixture and 2½ cups sifted bread flour, stirring them in with a spoon at first, then use your hand. Knead on rye-floured board for 10 minutes. (Rye bread requires more kneading than white bread.) Allow to rise in greased bowl until more than doubled in bulk. Turn out and knead for 5 minutes Let rise again until more than doubled. Knead again and shape into 2 round loaves, and place on opposite corners of lightly greased baking sheet (it may be lightly sprinkled with cornmeal under loaf if desired.) Let rise until doubled. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr for about 40 minutes or until brown, and hollow-sounding when rapped on bottom.

RYE ROLLS

Make same as rye bread up to shaping. Shape in round or oblong rolls. Slash top and brush with cold water. Let rise until doubled Brush with cold water again. Bake 10 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven and brush with cold water again. Reduce temperature to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 10 minutes longer. Remove from oven and brush again. Sprinkle with sesame or poppy or caraway seed, and continue baking at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden brown—about 20 minutes longer. This cold water treatment gives the rolls the hard crust that is so popular on French bread and rye rolls.

CINNAMON JELLY

Dissolve 2½ tablespoons best quality gelatin in ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes, then stir into it 1 cup sugar and 3¾ cups boiling water until clear. Now the strength of the flavor of this jelly depends on you. If you want it very spicy boil 8 whole cloves and 2-inch stick cinnamon in the water before pouring on the gelatin—about 10 minutes. If you want it mild add the whole spices when the water is stirred into the gelatin. Other spices may be added such as rose geranium leaves, dash of mace, etc. When spiced to taste pour into jelly glasses to chill and set. This must be kept cold. This will not keep like a fruit jelly, unless it is hermetically sealed.

APPLE STRUDEL

(This is a quicker method of making strudel—and a much shorter recipe. If you want the long European method write to me again and I will mail it.) Sift together 1 cup flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1½ tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Work into this 3 tablespoons shortening with pastry blender or finger tips. Beat 1 egg slightly add 2 tablespoons milk to it and add this to first mixture to make a stiff dough. Roll out to ⅛ inch thickness (in genuine strudel it is rolled out paper thin). Brush with 2 tablespoons soft butter. Cover with 3 cups apples pared, cored, cut in pieces and mixed with ⅓ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Roll up like jelly roll, put in baking dish crescent-shaped, brush with beaten egg mixed with 2 tablespoons milk, bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 50 minutes or until apples are cooked. Often served with whipped cream.

Watch Sour Milk Pie tomorrow.

PLASTIC FOOD BAGS

Transparent food bags should be washed often in warm sudsy water to keep them sanitary. They can be put into the washing machine along with other plastic articles, but do not spin them dry.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Cook Fish Without Usual Odors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fussy housewives needn't fret too much if hubby comes home after a week-end fishing trip with a mess of fish—freshwater or salt.

The fisheries department at Ottawa has come up with what it says is a sure-fire way to cook fish without causing odors.

Take kippers, for instance, one of the smellier types of fish. Simply wrap in aluminum with the ends twirled to ensure tightness and bake in a 450-degree oven. Five minutes is usually plenty of time.

"There is no smell left, even in the oven," says Helen McKercher, the department's senior home economist. "The natural juices and the smoked flavor are preserved in the fish."

The method can be used for all kinds of fish. It is ideal for Atlantic salmon which now is reaching the market. Besides eliminating odor, there is no need for a large pan. The salmon is wrapped and put on the broiler.

COOKING TIME

Economists reckon 10 minutes' cooking for each inch of thickness. A nine-pound salmon would take about two hours. Frozen fish needs about twice as long.

Miss McKercher insists that fresh fish has no odor. Too often the smell starts before the cooking because the fish is not fresh.

Women arriving at the fisheries department for a demonstration and hoping to be led to the laboratory by a fishy smell have been disappointed. Even with eight or 10 fish in the oven the air is odorless.

Freshness depends on good storage at a temperature of 32 degrees. Miss McKercher uses fish at least four days after they are caught. If housewives refused to buy fish with the slightest smell, she says, dealers would soon see that the fish was kept well preserved.

A bit of salt and rinsing in warm water removes odor from the hands. Dishes should be washed in a vinegar solution—two tablespoons of vinegar to pint of water.

TROUT SAUCE

In a booklet on fishing by Canadian Line Materials the following sauce is suggested to add zest to trout.

Sherry-almond sauce: One quarter lb. shelled almonds, one quarter lb. butter, one half cup dry sherry wine and one quarter teaspoon tarragon herb.

Blanch almonds by dipping quickly in boiling water, then peel; shave with sharp knife. Melt butter in deep saucepan; add almonds; brown 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Blend in tarragon herb; add sherry wine. When thoroughly heated, pour over trout. Serve piping hot.

Marshall Asks Britons Be Understanding

LONDON (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall appealed today to British leaders to foster a generous understanding on United States aims and problems in Korea.

He said at a luncheon of the English Speaking Union it was important that the British public resists Soviet propaganda that the United States is engaged on some warlike course.

He also said the U. S. public "is intent on seeing that nothing be permitted to lend aid to the Chinese Communist forces."

Marshall told the luncheon gathering of 2,000 he thought the British public "only partially realizes" the size of U. S. casualties in Korea.

BLAME PROPAGANDA

"For some reason—probably a result of clever Soviet propaganda and subtle suggestion—there seems to be a belief that America is in a war-like mood, fraught with the possibility of bringing about a general conflagration.

"Nothing, I know, could be further from the desires of the American people and their leaders."

Marshal also referred to charges occasionally made here that the United States government ignores the advice of its allies.

He said that in his own experience as state secretary and defence secretary "I think a maximum of attention was paid to the view of our associates, particularly those of the British government."

Taft Wants U.K. Alliance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep. O.) called today for a military alliance with Britain in the Pacific to bypass the United Nations veto in that critical world area.

The Senate Republican leader issued a statement clarifying the views he expressed in a Cincinnati speech May 26 which caused President Eisenhower to say he couldn't agree with Taft that the U.S. "might as well forget the United Nations so far as the Korean war is concerned" if efforts to obtain an armistice fail.

Eisenhower said the U.S. would have to "go it alone" everywhere if it operated single-handedly in Asia.

In an interview before he issued the formal statement, Taft made it clear that any early truce in Korea would likely put him back in the same foreign policy boat with Eisenhower in the Far East.

New York State Likely Licensed

TORONTO (CP) — George Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, said today New York state probably will be licensed to join the HEPC in building the power phase of the St. Lawrence seaway despite arguments to be heard in Washington against it.

"Ontario needs the help of New York in the $400,000,000 project," he said. "We can't go it alone." The Ontario commission has been named Canadian partner in the construction.

Mr. Challies said the earliest possible date for licensing New York state would be in September, although arguments of U. S. organizations could result in postponing it for months.

Scarboro Uses

Attention of The Examiner was drawn today by Chairman Fred Hills and Richard Raine, third member of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, to an article which appeared in the April issue of the publication Municipal Utilities. It consisted of a paper presented at the annual meeting of the Canadian section of the American Waterworks Association on the extensions to the Scarboro waterworks.

HEADS SYSTEM

The paper was prepared by E. M. Proctor, senior partner of the Toronto consulting engineering firm of Proctor, Redfern and Laughlin. Mr. Proctor has had charge of the construction of the Scarboro waterworks system from its inception in 1919.

The article said, in part: "To deliver the increased flows to the centre of distribution, 20,000 lineal feet of 24-inch cast-iron main (of National Iron Corp. manufacture) were installed. This main serves the new industrial area and North York township and also provides an increased supply to East York township.

"The easterly sections of the township, West Hill and Highland Creek are served by a new 12-inch cast-iron main. This will supply a new elevated tank to be constructed at West Hill."

Mr. Proctor was not available for comment today but nothing in the article conflicts with Mr. Powell's statement that transite pipe was being used for lateral mains in the Scarboro waterworks distribution system.

CONFUSION

But there would appear to have been some confusion about the amount of transite pipe being laid in the West Hill area. The Weekly Enterprise said that the Marino Construction Co's contract called for 42,610 feet of "pipe" to be used for a supply line along Kingston Rd., and for laterals along streets running on either side of the double-lane highway.

Mr. Powell said today that, although transite was being used in lateral mains on the side streets of West Hill, cast-iron pipe had been specified for the Kingston Rd. trunk main.

Coronation Service Held In School

STIRLING (ENS).—An impressive service was held in the auditorium of the public school on Coronation Day.

The altar was draped with a flag and was decorated with candles and seasonal flowers.

Devotional exercises were in charge of the Rev. H. C. Sicker.

Wave To

company cheques made out to one person. All of them were for $75.45.

Charles Annis, 39, was picked up Thursday at his home in Hamliton. And as for Davis and Oakes—after three days of making whoopee in the Peterborough district—it's back to Hamilton to face the music.

Cement To Korea

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)—Within the next few months more than 40,000 tons of South African cement will be shipped from here to Korea, by present estimates. Resumption of cement export after a lapse of more than two years began in April when 2,000 tons were sent to Mombasa.

Church Program Said Lagging

HAMILTON (CP)—A report submitted today to the annual meeting of the Hamilton conference of the United Church of Canada showed that, despite increases in population in Canada since 1941, the Church has not been keeping pace with such increase in its Christian education program.

General increase of United Church people was 29 per cent but the number of Sunday schools had increased by just over 500 in the same period while in Hamilton conference itself, only eight new schools had been organized.

The report urged that emphasis bettaced on a further evaluation of the education program in local charges; the recruiting of leaders and training of the leaders.

It also asked a visitation of Sunday schools in the conference during the next two years by special teams chosen by the Christian education committee.

Two Accident Victims Off Critical List

Accident victims Delcie Clements, 15, of 373 Bethune St. and William Olson of Toronto were off the critical list at Civic Hospital today, authorities said.

Miss Clements was injured Saturday in a motorcycle-train crash and Olson injured Friday night in a car accident near Bewdley.

Meanwhile, condition of Mrs. Frank Hughes, whose husband died following a car accident Tuesday night, was termed "satisfactory." Mrs. Hughes received a right leg fracture, cuts and abrasions in the accident.

MUNICIPAL VACATION

Oshawa council is a month ahead of Peterborough with their summer schedule of meetings. In the General Motors town, council Monday night suspended their affairs until September. Their council meets on call of the Mayor and his scanning of accumulated business. Peterborough waits until July, and holds at least one council meeting a month, with committee sittings as required.

GRASS CROP OUT

Victoria Park grass was mowed this morning. Recently it appeared that chore would have to be turned back to the county, with a request that if Reeve Willard Waterman knew of an idle haybaler he might bring it in and put it to work. Another suggestion was that Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee might spare his township's spraying machine to give the Victoria Park dandelion crop a treatment.

Funeral In Havelock For Accident Victim

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The funeral of William Everett Gratton, 30, of Oshawa, who was killed in an accident on Highway 2 near Cobourg early Wednesday morning, will be held on Saturday afternoon, from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gratton, RR 4, Havelock, where the body is resting.

It will be under the auspices of Havelock LOL 326. The service will be in Havelock United Church with the Rev. R. G. Newman officiating. Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery.

Mr. Gratton was born in Belmont township, November 26, 1922.

Surviving besides his parents are six sisters, Mrs. [illegible] Dowdell (Florence), Mrs. [illegible] Rodgers (Reta) of Havelock; Mrs. Frank Urquhart (Olive) and Myrtle of Cobourg; Madeline and Sharon at home; six brothers, Trevor of Cobourg, Thomas of Baltimore, Clarence of Havelock, Earl, Ross and Eric at home.

THE REV. PAUL O. MORROW, BA, BD, was ordained into the United Church ministry at the Toronto conference held in Trinity United Church, Toronto. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T Alvin Morrow of Toronto and a grandson of Mrs. W. G. Morrow of Peterborough.

4 CANADIANS WIN $466,000 ON DERBY

SKIDDING ON RAIN-SWEPT PAVEMENT after a collision about 1 a.m. today, this taxi ended up in the shrubbery outside the city hall. The rear and left side received $300 damage in the accident that occurred at Murray and Water Sts. Mrs. Donald Westlake, 22, of 172 Antrim St., a passenger in the cab, was thrown out and suffered a broken pelvis and a broken shoulder blade. The driver was also thrown out but was only bruised.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Ontario Trio Each To Get $140,000

Foundry Worker Says Coronation Brought Him Luck

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four Canadians picked up a total of $466,000 Saturday when Sir Gordon Richards rode Pinza to victory in the 174th running of the Epsom Derby.

Three from Ontario won $140,000 apiece on the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes and the other, Egide Labrecque of St. Marguerite, Que., won top money of $46,000 in the Army and Navy draw.

Hardly had Pinza, the favorite, crossed the finish line in the classic at Epsom Downs, England, when foundry worker William Robertson of Mimico, Ont., exclaimed:

"What a combination. This is what I've been waiting for all my life. A big bundle of cash, at last."

"It was the Coronation that brought the luck," Robertson said. He bought the ticket with a nom de plume of Regal. "How could I miss with a hunch like that."

Winners were T. S. Fyfe, Toronto business executive, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lent of Brampton.

Four of the 72 Canadians who drew horses in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes won prizes running as high as $56,000 on the second- and third-place horses. Two others were winners in the Army and Navy sweeps.

OTHERS COLLECT

Evans E. Winters, Hamilton executive, won $56,000 in the Irish sweeps when the Queen's Aureole ran second to Pinza. John Quilty of Bluewater, Ont., 50 miles east of Owen Sound, and a Regina resident, with the nom de plum of Colonel, also came in for $56,000 apiece.

Only one person held a ticket on Pink Horse, third in the derby. The ticket holder is W. P. Motte, Vancouver, who is about $27,500 richer.

In the Army and Navy draw, Ross Asselstine of Toronto won $27,000 on Aureole and John MacDonald of Fort William will get $17,000 with his ticket on Pink Horse.

It was a great event for Mr. Quilty. He was 66 today.

"It's worth living 66 years for a celebration like this," he commented. "I guess it's the luck of the Irish."

Asselstine was overjoyed. "I've bought tickets for years," he said. "This is a gift from heaven."

Looking For Jobs

SEOUL (Reuters)—With a Korean truce reported to be imminent, war correspondents here have started to to think about the future. This notice has been placed on the press bulletin board: "Positions wanted—for 25 slightly used war correspondents, complete with typewriters, side-arms and cameras, willing to travel anywhere. Apply Korea."

Car Jack Slips, Springs Pin Man Underneath

When a jack slipped the right rear end of a car sagged on top of 33-year-old Joseph F. Leahy, 53 Maria St., at 1.15 p.m. today. The rear spring caught him across the stomach and he was released by a neighbor a few minutes later with his only injuries being bruises and possibly torn muscles.

Leahy was overhauling his car in the laneway of his home and had crawled underneath the vehicle before putting the rear wheel back on. The jack was not secure and the car moved ahead. The springs in front of the rear axle pinned him to the ground.

Children called the attention of Stewart Gardiner, a next-door neighbor, to Mr. Leahy's plight. Mr. Gardiner crossed the lawn between the two houses and jacked up the rear end of the car, releasing Mr. Leahy.

"Just a couple of minutes before my head was under there," said Mr. Leahy. "If it had caught me higher up I'd have been killed."

Doctors Study Eden's Condition

BOSTON (AP)—Doctors began investigating the condition of Foreign Secretary Eden today a few hours after he arrived here by plane from London. He is suffering from a gall bladder condition.

A bulletin issued at Lahey clinic said:

"Mr. Eden had a comfortable journey from England and arrived in good condition accompanied by Mr. Guy Blackburn. He was admitted to the New England Baptist hospital at midnight June 5. Investigations of Mr. Eden's condition will be begun this Saturday morning. Dr. Frank H. Lahey has been asked to see him in consultation. Daily bulletins will be issued for the present."

It was signed by Richard Cattell who is scheduled to operate on the 55-year-old statesman. No date has been set for the surgery.

Eden has undergone bladder surgery twice in England.

2 Tankers Collide 8 Feared Dead In River Mishap

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Two large tankers, one loaded with gasoline and the other empty, collided in the Delaware river shortly after midnight today, exploded and burst into flames. At least two seamen were killed. Six were missing and 77 were rescued. Versions of what happened from crew members of both ships indicated that the collision resulted from a mixup in signals betwen the two tankers as to how they were going to pass each other. The 11,081-ton tanker Pan Massachusetts and the second largest tanker in the world, the Phoenix, both owned by National Bulk of New York, collided opposite Elsinboro Point, N.J., 40 miles from Philadelphia. Members of the crews from the ships were hurled into the water.

Seventy-two of the survivors were taken to Delaware Hospital here with five others being treated at Salem, N.J., hospital on the New Jersey side of the river. The Pan Massachusetts, headed for Philadelphia with a full load of gasoline, hit the Phoenix amidship, splitting her in two.

BOTH SHIPS LOST

Capt. Reginald C. Gross, 53, of the Pan Massachusetts, said both ships were a total loss. He said his ship was "on fire all over." The Phoenix was standing on end. The Phoenix, once the largest tanker in the world, had a capacity of 217,795 barrels of oil, more than 9,000,000 gallons. It had just unloaded at Marcus Hook, Pa., and was headed for Houston, Tex.

David D. Higbee, 53, pilot of the out-bound Phoenix, gave this version of the crash to state police from his hospital bed:

"There was some kind of a mix-up in signals. I still don't know exactly what happened. The mix-up had to do with which way we were going to pass, on the port or starboard side. We never did get it straightened out and the Pan Massachusetts rammed us amidship on the starboard side."

Higbee is reported suffering from broken bones, shock and exposure. He jumped overboard and swam ashore after the crash.

LIFEBOATS JAMMED

Maurice Hibler, 26-year-old able bodied seaman, jumped overboard when the lifeboats on the Pan Massachusetts jammed and couldn't be lowered. As lookout on the Pan Massachusetts, here's how he saw the collision:

"We saw the Phoenix turning in front of us and heard two long blasts from her. We gave two back, and took a hard left to the port, but it wasn't enough. We hit the Phoenix aft of their midship house. The crash was about 11:16 p.m. ship time (12:16 EDT). There were explosions on both ships and then fire."

Hibler said he was picked up by one of the many private citizens who put out to help pick up survivors.

Prime Minister Bouncing Host At Gala Party

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill played the part of the effervescent host Friday night at one of the most glittering dinner parties ever given in London.

His guests included the Queen whom he led into a flower-bedecked banquet room with 15 round tables set for the 150 distinguished guests at Lancaster House. Each place was set with shining silverware which once belonged to the Duke of Wellington.

Enjoying himself hugely, Britain's 78-year-old prime minister bounced around among his guests like a man half his age. They included members of the Royal Family, Commonwealth prime ministers, Crown Princes from Europe and Asia and top diplomatic and military leaders.

It was a final celebration of the Coronation week before the visitors start returning today to their homes.

DINNER MENU

The guests sat down to a dinner of consomme, salmon trout, chicken, asparagus, strawberries and coffee—all served on Wedgwood china especially made for the occasion.

A crowd of 50,000 cheered the Queen later when she came out on to the balcony of Buckingham Palace after a reception for 2,000 foreign Coronation guests in the palace state apartments.

She wore a white-and-silver lace dress over gold lame, with a sparkling tiara. The Duke of Edinburgh who waved with her to the crowd for five minutes, wore his uniform as admiral of the fleet.

Reds Overrun Three Allied Outposts

SEOUL (AP)—A North Korean battalion ripped through a main-line Allied position on the eastern front today and held stubbornly against counter-attacking South Koreans.

Some 750 to 1,000 Reds overran three Republic of Korea outposts ahead of the main line, then slammed through the line itself in four spots east of Luke's Castle where bloody fighting has raged for a week, the 8th army said.

Another North Korean battalion tore into a South Korean outpost on Bloody ridge on the east-central front. The RoKs met the attack ahead of the outpost but were hurled back in desperate hand-to-hand fighting, the army said.

Two prongs of the attack on Luke's Castle area penetrated the main Allied line about 500 yards apart, caving in South Korean positions.

STEADY FIGHTING

Counter-attacking RoK 12th division troops—in battle almost steadily since last Monday—slammed the Reds back, but were cut short as the North Koreans hurled grenades from higher slopes.

At last report the battle—which raged through the night—continued at close range.

On Bloody ridge, the furiously-attacking Communists stormed the outpost slopes and, at last report, the RoKs had withdrawn to the outpost centre and were streaming mortar and artillery fire on the Reds.

Lamas To Fete U.K. Expedition

KATMANDU, Nepal (CP)—The Lamas at the monastery at the foot of Mount Everest will break years of meditation this weekend to fete the triumphant British expedition returning from the conquered peak.

The lamas will give the 13 Britons the most lavish feast they can prepare and stage a dance of victory. The Britons stayed at the monastery for their early training climbs.

There also will be celebrations at Namche Bazar, main village of the Sherpa tribe which has provided expeditions with guides and porters for the last 30 years.

After several days of festivities, the Britons will say goodbye to Everest and begin the 170-mile trek to Katmandu, capital of Nepal.

The return of the expedition will throw new light on Everest's height, given in most textbooks as 29,002 feet. This height was calculated a century ago. Indian experts believe it may be nearer 29,200 feet.

Bidault Will Attempt To Form Government

PARIS (AP)—Former premier George Bidault today agreed to attempt to form France's 19th post-war government.

The onetime Roman Catholic youth leader, who is foreign minister in the caretaker government of ousted premier Rene Mayer, will go before Parliament Tuesday or Wednesday to ask for confirmation.

France has been without a government since the National Assembly removed Mayer from office May 21.

Bidault has held ministerial posts 19 times, including two cracks at the premiership, since the end of the war.

Pinza Epsom Derby Winner

EPSOM, England (AP)—Pinza won the 174th running of the Epsom Derby today, giving Sir Gordon Richards his first victory in the classic in 28 attempts. The Queen's Aureole was second, and the French colt Pink Horse owned by Prince Said Soussoun was third in the field of 27 starters in the 1½-mile event. There were two late scratches, Kithyra and Criticism. Pinza started at 5 to 1, Aureole was 9-1 and Pink Horse, 33-1. Pinza is owned by Sir Victor Sassoon. An Irish hospital sweepstakes is based on the result of the race, Britain's top turf classic. Pinza won by four lengths before a throng of around 250,000 including the Queen and her party.

Aureole was second by a length and a half over Pink Horse.

Richards, 49, and the world's leading rider in number of victories, was knighted recently by the Queen.

FIRST VICTORY

He has been riding for 33 years, but could never before win this biggest of English races.

Most of England was pulling for the Queen's horse, since her Coronation was only four days ago. But they were also happy to see Richards finally achieve his great desire.

Shikampur was fourth.

Pinza's time was two minutes, 35.6 seconds. Record for the Derby is two minutes, 33.8 seconds set by Mahmoud in 1936.

Punters and big-time gamblers poured their money on the hotly-fancied Pinza and Aureole.

QUEEN WATCHES RACE

The Queen, in a blue coat and black shoes, watched the race from the royal box. With her were the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the Royal Family.

Before the race began, the Queen and the Duke rode the course in an open landau to receive the frantic cheers of the crowd.

This is the one race of the year in which the whole family takes part. Families camped on the downs all night to get a good view. Others poured into Epsom from first light by Rolls Royce and buggy, in morning toppers and cloth cap. At one time cars were arriving at the rate of 3,000 an hour.

Communist Negotiators Ask For Overnight Recess

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied and Communist negotiators met in tight secrecy for 19 minutes today as mushrooming reports of near agreement on the key issue of prisoner exchange bolstered hopes for an armistice in Korea. There was no official hint of what went on inside the conference hut, but an authoritative South Korean source said "no new proposal was made by either side." The Reds asked for and got a recess until Sunday morning. The South Korean source indicated—without elaboration—that progress might be made then.

He described the atmosphere inside the conference hut today as businesslike — "neither good nor bad."

ASK CLARIFICATION

Other observers said the United Nations command probably asked for clarification of an hour-long statement read Thursday by North Korean Gen. Nam Il.

This was reported to have been a counter-proposal virtually paraphrasing the latest UN plan for breaking the long prisoner exchange deadlock, last major barrier to a Korean truce. The Reds were said to have sugested five changes, none of them major.

In Western and Communist capitals around the world, hopes mounted that the end of the bloody Korean war was in sight—perhaps before the conflict winds up its third year June 25.

There was optimism even in Moscow where the official government newspaper Izvestia said it "is clear that the sides participating in the talks are extremely close to signing an agreement . . ."

GLOOM IN SOUTH KOREA

Only in South Korea was there deep gloom.

President Syngman Rhee voiced further violent objections today to the reported armistice terms and unveiled a counter-proposal he sent to President Eisenhower.

Only a few hours earlier Rhee had said in a recorded interview that "we would accept almost any proposal the United States asks of us because the United States is the only friendly nation which has done so much for us in the past and who will do much more for us in the future."

Thieves Rob Sonja Henie

LONDON (AP)—Thieves snatched $30,000 worth of loot—furs, compacts and cash—from the Eaton Square apartment of Sonja Henie early today although the skating star awoke while they were in her bedroom and chased them into the street.

Some of the furs were recovered a few hours later.

Miss Henie woke at 4:30 a. m. to see a man standing over her bed. Her screams drove him and his cohorts out of the house. She followed in hot pursuit—in her nightgown and bare feet. Her cook ran with her into the square but the thieves disappeared.

The skater, who is appearing with her ice reveue at Empress Hall, said the loss was covered by insurance. The loot included a mink coat valued at $18,000, an ermine coat at $7,000, a mink jacket at $3,500, two gold compacts and £300 in cash.

Later police visited a house in Westminster and removed a number of articles, which were shown to Miss Henie. She identified the mink coat and jacket as her property.

Name Election Date Within 10 Days

ESPANOLA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday night that an announcement setting the date for the next federal election is expected "within the next week or 10 days."

He made the announcement at a Liberal association convention, at which he was nominated as candidate for Algoma East in the next election.

Bracelet Missing, Peeresses Check

LONDON (Reuters)—A peeress may have walked out with one bracelet too many after the Coronation in Westminster Abbey.

A private insurance company in London today put up a reward of £100 for a £1,000 diamond-and-platinum bracelet lost by an unnamed peeress.

"It is almost certain that this bracelet was lost in the abbey itself," a spokesman said. "it is quite possible that quite unknowingly some other peeress has this bracelet at home caught up in her Coronation dress train."

Crowd Of 30,000 Cheers Canadians

LONDON (Reuters) — A crowd of 30,000 cheered a special guard of Canadian troops today as they marched away from Buckingham Palace after mounting guard for the last 24 hours.

Canadians also mounted guard at nearby St. James's Palace. Their appearance at the two Royal residences was the first time Canadians had mounted a Royal guard in London for 13 years.

The 54-man Canadian guard, part of the Canadian service contingent in London for the Coronation, were drawn from three famous regiments—the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Royal 22nd and the Royal Canadian Regiment. Most of them are paratroops and all are veterans of Korea.

4 Die, 73 Hurt In Explosion

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — More than 40,000 pounds of fireworks exploded here Friday, killing four persons, injuring 73 others and causing damage estimated at $3,000,000.

The explosion smashed practically everything in the block surrounding the Alco Fireworks and Specialty Company warehouse. At least a dozen homes blazed, fired by flying wreckage. Other homes gaped openly on crowd-filled streets, their windows ripped out, roofs stripped and sides sheared away.

The cause was traced to a hammer being used by Kenneth Williams, Alco's general manager. He had minor injuries. He was driving nails into the framework of a pressed-paper display containing explosives.

The charred bodies of the four killed were found in the ruins of a small cottage 20 feet from the warehouse.

Police Break Up Teen-Age Gang Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn detectives, tipped off to a teen-age gang fight, came upon the chosen battlefield Friday night and found 20 "Molotov cocktails," each reported to be capable of killing several persons.

Two detectives surprised about 20 youths as they squared off at at a road construction site. The teen-agers, except for four apprehanded by the officers, scattered.

They left behind the cocktails—milk, beer, liquor and even champagne bottles filled with gasoline, tightly corked and fitted with rag wicks.

Police said the two gangs, identified as the "Dukes" and the "Kane Street Midgets," had been feuding for some time.

Deny Housing Discrimination

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A charge that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is discriminating against the south side of Woodstock was denied today by Lloyd C. Gunby, manager of the corporation's London office.

In reply to the charge made Friday night by Ald. H. J. Collins at a Woodstock finance committee session, Mr. Gunby said "there is certainly no discrimination against any sector of that city."

As in any city, Mr. Gunby said, some areas are more acceptable from a mortgage viewpoint, in relation to desirability of location, schools, transportation and shopping centres.

Woodstock is certainly a qualifying town for joint federal-provincial housing assistance under either rental or land assembly programs, he said.

Lift Rent Controls From 9 Municipalities

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has agreed to remove rent controls from nine municipalities Sept. 2, a Queen's Park spokesman said today.

The municipalities are Toronto township, London, St. Thomas, Port Stanley, Port Hope, Dresden, Collingwood, Preston and Caistor township near St. Catharines.

Request for decontrol from Wilmit and Waterloo townships in Waterloo county will be considered next week. Municipalities decontrolled or about to be decontrolled now number 718, while 208 still retain controls.

Suspend Court Clerk

NEWMARKET (CP) — Police said today George Slugg, clerk of Newmarket court for the last three years, has been suspended after an audit of court books disclosed that more than $1,000 was missing. The suspension followed a provincial police investigation.

To Make Gold Radio-Active

TORONTO (CP)—A city paper says today that a plan is under way to have gold produced in Ontario made radio-active so it can be identified if stolen.

The newspage story says he plan, developed jointly by the Ontario Mining Association and the gold squad of the Ontario provincial police, will enable stolen gold to be identified by its degree of radiation.

Each of the 40 Ontario mines would be registered for the amount of radiation its gold would receive during refining, the story said. Stolen gold that turned up in other countries could be identified as the product of a particular Ontario mine.

Police were quoted as saying the theft of $92,000 in gold from Sudbury some years ago is the kind of loss the new plan would prevent.

2 Vessels Damaged In Canal Accidents

THOROLD (CP)—Two vessels were slightly damaged in accidents in the Welland ship canal Friday.

Canal authorities said the Paul Manion, a Colonial Steamships vessel, rammed the pulp dock and glanced off, striking the New York News. Ten plates on the Manion and the stern of the News were damaged.

Another vessel, the Clary Foran, ran aground on mud flats between docks. She was freed today.

30,000,000 Voters Prepare To Go To Polls In Italy

ROME (AP)—A law-enforced pre-election calm settled over Italy today as 30,000,000 voters prepared to ballot for their second post-war parliament.

The voting begins Sunday and will continue Monday. At stake are 590 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 237 in the Senate.

Confronting the voters are three clearly-marked choices:

1. The middle-of-the-road four-party coalition headed by Premier Aclide de Gasperi, whose government has guided Italy for the last seven years. This centre bloc is composed of de Gasperi's Christian Democrats, Republicans, Liberals and moderate Socialists.

2. The extreme left of Palmiro Togliatti's Communist party, the biggest this side of the Iron Curtain, and Pietro Nenni's left-wing Socialists. The two parties are running independently but have an accord calling for unity of action.

3. The backward-looking extreme right made up of monarchists and the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI), which has shown a surprising increase of strength since the end of the war.

The parties have put up a total of 8,264 candidates through the country—6,311 for the Chamber and 1,953 for the Senate.

Under a recently-approved law, any party winning more than 50 per cent of the total vote will be given 64.5 per cent of the Chamber seats.

De Gasperi's coalition is the only group generally considered to have a chance of winning the bonus. Both the extreme right and left, which battled furiously to prevent approval of the measure, have called the law a fraud.

Confer On Developments

Ike Meets With Military, Civilian Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower met with military and civilian chiefs today on the latest Korean developments.

Called to the White House at 9:30 a.m. were State Secretary Dulles, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, and Frank Nash, assistant defence secretary.

The conference lasted an hour. There was no announcement of any decisions.

South Korea's ambassador, You Chang Yang, said meanwhile his government has advised him that President Syngman Rhee "will never sign" a truce agreement leaving Korea divided.

NEVER AGREED

Yang said he had been asked about an apparent conflict between statements attributed to Rhee in Korea Friday to the effect that his government would reluctantly go along with the proposed truce settlement and a statement issued by the embassy here that the present terms are unacceptable.

"I have word from our government," Yang said, "saying the president has never at any time agreed to sign a truce leaving North Korea occupied by the Communists.

"He and our people will never sign that death warrant as such. The present secret proposal which we know is totally unacceptable to us."

Yang also said that both the United States and the United Nations have in the past gone on record for Korean unity and in the light of a potential truce agreement based on disunity "we feel we are being sold down the river."

The Movie Column

Two Stars Earn Two Million, Save Nothing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Abbott and Costello disclosed today they have been earning $1,750,000 a year for the last 12 years but are able to save nothing.

The fantastic finances of film players has long been a subject of conjecture. This is the first time that stars have revealed facts and figures and shown where the money goes.

The disclosure shows some amazing things. Among them is the warning by the pair's manager that they will never get out of the hole until they sell their houses and live more modestly.

"I have to estimate how much money I'm going to get in the coming year and keep paying taxes while the money is coming in," Lou said. "I've already paid $40,000 for this year and I'm $50,000 behind. If I fail to estimate correctly for any quarter, I get penalized.

"How can I estimate? We might suddenly get some frozen money from Europe that will upset all our figures. Then we get socked with a penalty. We just can't get ahead."

CAN'T GET AHEAD

Manager Eddie Sherman detailed their finances since they first hit their finances since they first hit the big time in 1941. He said their earnings have averaged $1,750,000 a year. About $1,000,000 of this comes from their movies, on all of which they now share the profits. The rest of the revenue came from personal appearances and radio in the early years and TV today.

HEAVY EXPENSES

But out of this big sum comes some whopping expenses. An average year, Sherman said the boys would have these costs: Writers, more than $100,000; agent's commission (10 per cent), $175,000; legal fees, $40,000; accounting fees, $75,000; travel $30,000; entertainment, $5,000; clothes, $10,000.

Sherman admitted that these amounts sound high, but the comics operate on a lavish scale. They would take their radio gang to New York and buy meals and theatre tickets for all, as well as the usual expenses.

"They also give away huge amounts of money to charity and keep old pals on the payroll," Sherman said.

He added that the comics are in the 94-per-cent income bracket, which means they actually retain six cents of every dollar they earn. Abbott says that he now is in the 110-per-cent bracket because of penalties on back payments.

Japan Will Buy Coal From Russia

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese government said today it will buy 450,000 tons of Russian coal and will repair Soviet ships in Japan as payment for the coal.

At the same time, Trade Minister Kiyohide Okano told a press conference the government has opened negotiations with the Allies in an effort to win relaxation of restrictions on Japanese trade with Red China.

Blast Levels Factory Building

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — A fierce explosion levelled the main building of a fireworks factory near here today, killing two workers and injuring a third.

Police tentatively identified the dead as Albert Benjamin, about 47, owner of the factory, and Anthony Sisario, 43, an employee. Their bodies were severely charred.

Vincent Barbuto, 18, was taken to hospital with second degree burns.

Cause of the explosion and the monetary loss was not determined.

The blast destroyed a 20-by-30-foot one-storey, cement block building of the North American Fireworks Company. An automobile and a house trailer nearby also were destroyed.

Tailor Pleads Guilty To Theft Of Socks

Aurele Wilfred Vallee, 45, of no fixed address, today pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to a charge of stealing eight pairs of socks valued at $13.52.

City police arrested Vallee, a tailor by trade, after they were informed socks had been stolen from the F. W. Woolworth store on George St. The stolen goods were found on him when he was searched.

Vallee was remanded to Monday for sentence.

600 Bums Hold Coronation 'Do'

LONDON (Reuters)—There was a coronation party with a difference Friday night.

Nearly 600 bums and down-and-outs including a half-dozen women in Central Hall, Westminster—a stone's throw from Westminster Abbey—donned paper crowns and coronets and had themselves a time.

There was food a-plenty, but no champagne, so the ragged, unshaven gathering toasted the Queen in orangeade.

The party was given by middle-aged Betty Baxter, a vicar's daughter who made London's tramps her own special responsibility 20 years ago.

For the coronation party, she sent out silver-lacquered invitations to all the lodgings and to the hundreds of bums she knows personally. On their behalf she sent a message of good wishes to the Queen.

OBITUARIES

MISS MARY PLUNKETT

Miss Mary Plunkett of Havelock died Friday night at Civic Hospital in her 74th year. She had been ill for some time.

She was born in Marmora, daughter of the late John Plunkett and Elizabeth Derry, but had spent most of her life in Peterborough, moving to Havelock last year.

She is survived by three nephews: Donald Plunkett of Havelock, and Robert and Nellie Plunkett of Hamilton. Also three half-brothers: Alexander and Charles Kennedy of Havelock and George Kennedy of Peterborough.

GAZETTE BUILDING—The Montreal Gazette has celebrated its 175th birthday. The Gazette was first published June 3, 1778, under the name of La Gazette du Commerce et Litteraire. The founder was Fleury Mesplet, a French printer brought to North America by the revolting United States. It was the hope of the U.S. Congress that Mesplet would convince Montreal inhabitants that their best interests lay with the revolution. American forces for a time in possession of Montreal later were driven out but Mesplet remained. Shown is the building in downtown Montreal which has housed The Gazette since 1925.

.15-inch rain.

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m.:

Synopsis.

The brief stay of hot muggy weather appears likely to end this afternoon in southern Ontario.

Its arrival was preceded by rain and thunderstorms. Its presence so close to cooler air to the northwest caused thunderstorms Friday night. Its exit may cause more thunderstorms this afternoon and a small wave-like area of bad weather on its trailing edge may cause still more thunderstorms tonight and early Sunday.

The weather for the remainder of Sunday promises to be little better in southern Ontario as cloud and occasional light rain or drizzle promises to accompany cool temperatures.

These are the indications early Saturday morning. Subsequent development may change them. For instance, a much more rapid southeastward advance of the cooler air which would rapidly clear the weather.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Sunday:

Lake Ontario, Niagara regions: Hamilton, Toronto: Cloudy with showers or thundershowers in the afternoon; thundershowers tonight; Sunday cloudy clearing in the late afternoon; occasional rain Sunday morning turning cooler this afternoon; winds southwest 15 becoming northeast 15 late this afternoon. Low tonight and high Sunday at Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines 55 and 65, Trenton 50 and 60. Summary for Sunday: Cooler, cloudy.

Georgian Bay, Haliburton regions: Cloudy today with occasional light rain or drizzle; thundershowers tonight; Sunday cloudy clearing in the late afternoon with some rain in the morning; cooler; winds northeast 15. Low tonight and high Sunday at Muskoka and Killaloe 45 and 60. Summary for Sunday. Cloudy, cool.

Communist

Truce negotiators have met in secrecy since Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison handed the Communists May 25 a "now or never" plan to break the prisoner exchange deadlock.

South Korea's truce delegate, Maj.-Gen. Choi Duk Shin, again boycotted today's session.

Rhee's counter-proposal called for

1. Withdrawal of all foreign troops—Allied and Chinese—from Korea.

2. Immediate and automatic U.S. intervention in the event South Korea is again attacked.

3. An adequate supply of arms, ammunition and other supplies to strengthen South Korea's armed forces.

4. Continued participation by U.S. air and naval forces until the South Koreans are able to take over.

"If this proposal is unacceptable we must be allowed to continue to fight," Rhee said.

Allied negotiators were said to feel that Rhee's government will go along reluctantly and will not physically resist a truce.

WON'T SIGN

In Washington, South Korea's ambassador, Dr. You Chan Yang, said: "If the United States does not accept the counter-proposals (advanced by Rhee), we won't sign the truce."

UN officials in Tokyo said this would not delay an armistice since only Gen. Mark Clark, the supreme UN commander, must sign for the United Nations command.

Army Reports Seven Casualties

OTTAWA (CP)—The army reported seven more casualties in Korea Friday while the world speculated on the chances of a ceasefire.

In the 190th casualty list of the war, headquarters said six men have been wounded and one injured in action. The last list was issued June 3.

All but one were with the 3rd battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

The list raised total army casualties in Korea to 1,435 including 280 dead, 1,023 wounded, 25 missing 89 injured in action and 18 prisoners of war. The navy has reported three dead and three injured in action and the air force has reported one missing.

SEVEN CASUALTIES

The list:

No Explosive Election Issue

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba election campaign, an orderly five-week affair that failed to produce a single explosive issue, comes to a standstill tonight. Party organizers and the record 170 candidates seeking election to the legislature planned meetings throughout the province to make their last-stage bids for support when the voters go to the polls Monday. Broadcasting of political speeches ended Friday night, with the leaders of the four major parties joining in a broadcast appeal for votes. Polls will be open Monday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. CDT (10 a.m. to 10 p.m. EDT).

Fifty-five of the 57 seats will be at stake. In one riding, the member has been returned by acclamation and in the remote northern constituency of Rupert's Land, voting has been deferred until July 6.

MAIN CONTEST

The contest is largely between Premier Douglas Campbell's Liberal-Progressive forces, seeking a return to the governing office they have held for 30 years, and the Progressive Conservatives, in the government as a coalition group until the two parties split in 1950 over the government's handling of the Red river flood situation.

At dissolution, the standing in the legislature was:

Liberal-Progressive 30, Coalition 5, Progressive Conservatives 9; CCF 7, Independent 1, Labor-Progresive 1; vacant 4, total 57. The five Coalition members supported the government.

The Liberal-Progressives have the largest number of candidates in the field—48. The Social Credit party, which failed to elect a member in the 1949 election, has 43. There are 38 Progressive Conservatives, 15 Independents and one Labor-Progressive. Two of the Independents describe themselves as supporters of the government.

HAVE COHESIVE PLAN

In a wind-up broadcast speech, Mr. Campbell said his government had a cohesive plan which would give Manitobans "greater opportunities for a still higher standard of living."

Errick F. Willis, Progressive Conservative leader, criticized the government's financial policies and said more of its tax revenue should be spent to provide such things as pensions for the totally disabled, free medical aid for old-age pensioners, better highways and agricultural research.

Lloyd Stinson, CCF leader, repeated the CCF promise to establish a province-wide hospital plan.

W. J. Tinkler, president of the Manitoba Social Credit League, said the major function of any government is to bring the people "the results which they want in the management of their affairs."

Taft Has Won Big Battles In New Congress

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio is putting an indelible imprint on the Eisenhower administration.

The senator stood beaten last July when the Republican convention nominated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Now he is wielding more individual influence in the new administration than any but the President himself.

And there are times when it seems to some politicians that Taft, more than Eisenhower is turning the course of government away from the channel it followed for 20 years under Democratic control.

For where Eisenhower now is only gaining experience in office the hard way, political manoeuvring is an old story to Taft.

This legislative experience could help tip the balance in Congress if the President and the second most powerful man in the Republican party pursue public differences which recently cropped up between them over Far Eastern policies.

HAS BIG FOLLOWING

Taft spoke for a weighty segment of the Republican party when he advocated what the President classed as a "go it alone" policy in Asia in the event of failure of truce negotiations in Korea.

In any open break with Taft, Eisenhower could rely on his strong popularity to back his views. Taft, on the other hand, would have the advantage of a strong following in Congress.

Taft has yet to lose a major battle in the new Congress, although he has had to depend on the votes of Democrats to bring victory for his side in most instances.

In the foreign policy field, it was Taft who laid quietly to rest in the Senate foreign relations committee a resolution proposed by Eisenhower and drafted by State Secretary John Foster Dulles to condemn Russia for enslaving other peoples.

Taft was vocal in indicating he wanted nothing approving even by inference the decisions made by Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Yalta conference.

MAKE IT A SUCCESS

But if he balked the administration in this instance, Taft went against some of his close associates among Senate Republicans to push through Eisenhower's nomination of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow.

Those who know him best say Taft has dedicated himself to making the first republican administration in 20 years a success. But the senator has reserved to himself the definition of what he means by a success.

In this connection, he regards as his political bible the agreement he and Eisenhower reached last September in New York. Time and again he cites this agreement, the cardinal point of which he said called for "restoration of a free economy."

Taft has mellowed a little, friends feel, since he freed himself from the strain of always running for president. He announced last July he never would again seek the office because he would be too old. He was 63 last September.

Honor St. Laurent

OXFORD, England (AP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada today received the degree of honorary doctor of civil law at Oxford University. Conferment of the degree had been postponed for two years because the prime minister has not been able to visit Oxford until now.

EDWARD'S SHRINE

The shrine of Edward the Confessor in Westminster Abbey stands in the central chapel behind the high altar.

IODE Has Place For All Women President Says

EDMONTON (CP)—The new national president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire feels that because the work of the organization is so extensive, any woman can find some department to which she is particularly suited.

The new president, Mrs. Kathleen G. Drope, 53, of Toronto, said in an interview here recently that she believes the IODE is not growing fast enough in relation to the increase in population.

Mrs. Drope believes that one of the main reasons for this is that many women feel the IODE's program is too extensive and they could never cope with all the phases of the work.

INCLUDES EVERYONE

"Because the work of the order is extensive, it should take in everyone," she added. "There's bound to be some department to which they are particularly suited."

Mrs. Drope joined the IODE as a member of a junior chapter when she was only 11 years old. She succeeds Mrs. John H. Chipman, also of Toronto, who was president for three years. Mrs. Drope has been a national vice-president for eight years and was national convenor of the post-war services committee.

Mrs. Drope said that stimulating patriotism should be the objective of every department and individual member of the IODE.

Last Survivor Of Indian Force Dies In Sask.

REGINA (CP)—One of the last witnesses of the destruction of General Custer and his American cavalry at Little Big Horn, Montana, died recently at Wood Mountain, Sask., Indian reserve.

Nupa-Ki-Kte (kills - his - victim twice), more commonly known as "Big Joe," as a boy of nine watched the Sioux forces of Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse destroy the American cavalry June 25, 1876.

Big Joe was the last male survivor of the forces of Sitting Bull who fled to Saskatchewan following the Little Big Horn battle. From 1877 to 1914 his camping grounds were in the Moose Jaw district. Later he moved to Wood Mountain to make his home on a reserve that had been granted his band by the Canadian government.

Nupa-Ki-Kte took part in the rebellion of 1885 on the side of Louis Riel, the Metis who challenged the sovereignty of government and was taken prisoner and hanged in Regina.

Big Joe was buried in the burial grounds of his people. The ceremony was performed by white lay Christians. There are no Sioux living in the district who were qualified to conduct the ancient native burial services.

Cheese, Produce And Livestock

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices closed irregularly in dull trade Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Flax was firm; oats and barley narrowly lower; and rye down sharply.

Trade here was influenced by American markets, which were being affected by truce negotiations in Korea. Prices for Class 2 wheat, top grades, dropped ¾ of a cent. IWA prices were up one-quarter; domestic prices, unchanged.

Truman Now Accessible To Crowd Of Visitors

By CLARENCE A. JOHNSON

KANSAS CITY (AP)—His office telephone is Baltimore 6160, and it's no private, unlisted number. The door to his three-room office suite on the 11th floor of the Federal Reserve Bank building is always open, and there's a constant stream of people in and out.

As Harry S. Truman, ex-president of the United States, explains it: "Many people feel that a president or an ex-president is partly theirs, and they are right to some extent, and that they have a right to call upon him."

So Harry S. Truman makes himself accessible.

WORKING OVERTIME

The man who left the White House four months ago is working overtime in his new job as private citizen, putting in as many hours as he did as president.

His mail sometimes runs to 1,000 pieces a day. There is constant traffic through his office. Some are well-wishers. Some want him to make speeches or just put in an appearance at some function. He gives them all a hearing.

He is affable; smiles readily, but when he says "no" there is no doubt he means it. He's always ready with a joke or quip. Some of his best anecdotes are off-the-record.

He looks the picture of health. He moves briskly. He talks the same way. His hair is greying, and receding a bit. For relaxation and recreation, he sticks to walking.

WOULD LIKE TO

As for a session of poker with the boys:

"I would if I could," he says. "I just don't have the time for it."

"I'm not commenting on anything in the way of national or international affairs. I want to be as charitable as I can in this period of adjustment for the new administration. I know what it is to be in that situation myself."

But for the 1954 congressional election campaign he is definitely on call.

"I am a democrat by environment and conviction," he said, "if they want my service I'll be glad to furnish them."

Much time is spent on his memoirs, which won't be published until after the 1954 elections. Although he has not disclosed what Life magazine will pay him, other sources have set the figure at $600,000. Life has sold exclusive newspaper rights to the New York Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Case Of Laughing Englishman Mystery To London Pub Owner

By HAL BOYLE

LONDON (AP) — We have a mystery on our hands. It is the strange case of the laughing Englishman.

When I set out from America for London town, I had two goals: to see Queen Elizabeth get her crown, and to try to catch an Englishman giving a real, roaring belly laugh.

As far as I could find in the history of books, the last time an Englishman laughed out loud in public was during the first Elizabethan era, nearly 400 years ago.

There was a doubtful case in the provinces in 1889, during Queen Victoria's reign. But the accused man re-established his social standing by explaining it wasn't a laugh at all. He was merely indulging in a dry chuckle.

But London was in such a mood of mellow happiness over the Coronation, I felt sure the stolid reserve of one of John Bull's sons would crumble, and he would break out laughing.

IN TWO SECTIONS

So I went into a pub, the Pink Griffon. Like many British taverns it is divided into two sections, the public bar and the saloon bar. The working man and his old lady drink and play darts in the public bar, and there is a partition to protect them from the rude noises and leers of the upper classes who foregather in the saloon bar.

I entered the saloon bar. Bert, the barman, and his wife Grace made me at home at once. But Bert looked shocked when I asked whether any of his patrons were strangers. "That one is," volunteered Bert. When I looked mystified, he added:

"Don't you 'ave regulr strangers in America? A regular stranger is a bloke who keeps coming to the same pub, and nobody knows 'oo 'e is. Our regular stranger has been coming 'ere at the same 'hour every day for years. He always 'as a pint of mild and bitter, and never says a word."

LAUGHS OUT LOUD

A moment ater we eard a sound as of a rusty gate, creaking on a long-unused hinge. We looked and there was no doubt about it, the regular stranger was staring in the mirror and laughing. Laughing out loud.

Then, as Bert's mouth dropped open in disbelief, the man emptied his mug, put his pipe in his pocket, and silently stepped out.

"Look, guv'nor," Bert said to me. "'Ave a gin and tonic on me. But don't blow it around, what you just saw 'ere, will you? I don't want my plyce to get a bad nyme."

Happy Day

INVERCARGILL, N.Z. (CP)—RESIDENTS OF Athol in southern New Zealand were so delighted to get a new bridge across the Mataura river that they marked the opening by holding a dance on it. Meanwhile the remains of the old bridge provided a bonfire on the shore.

Stock Market Prices Decline For Fourth Week In Row

By GORDON MACKINNON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This was Coronation week, but stock markets showed few signs of jubilation.

Prices declined for the fourth consecutive week as Canadian exchanges continued to reflect Wall Street's general weakness and the on-again-off-again truce negotiations.

A popular theory, of course, was that the strong possibility of a Korean armistice made investors extremely cautious about extending funds to companies closely tied to a defence economy.

However, economists say that prices of stocks vary inversely to their yield: that is, with average yield on common stocks up at 5.42 per cent from January's 5.20 per cent, stock prices are tending to decrease proportionately.

COMING INTO LINE

The theorists add that yields on Canadian issues are coming more into line with those of New York securities after standing somewhat lower for the past few years. This may be the re-adjustment stage at which Canadian stocks are seeking lower levels.

Other students of the market regard this as an interim period between this year's early spring boom and the traditional midsummer lull. They say recent weeks have been characterized by a lack of bidding and no pressing liquidations—hence the market has depreciated slowly to its present level.

On the Toronto market, widely spread losses for uraniums, New Brunswick base metals and western oils led all groups to lower ground this week.

INDUSTRIALS FADED

Until Friday's modest gain, industrials faded steadily, influenced by Wall Street's substantial declines and the occurrence early in the week of one of the year's biggest ex-dividend days.

Base metals continued the long downward trend that has cut 45 points from the index since last August and left them at their lowest level since early 1951.

The London metal exchange, blamed by American producers for the shakiness of the market, is said to have dropped because the British government recently began disposing of its accumulated holdings of lead and zinc. As a result, domestic producers complain of having to cut prices to prevent importations of cheap foreign metals.

On the Montreal scene, industrials and papers dominated trading as they opened the week strong, eased in mid-week but turned upward again on Friday.

RECOVER SOMEWHAT

The New York market recovered somewhat on Friday from the effects of the eight previous sessions, which the Wall Street Journal called "the most severe setback in eight weeks." Rails and oils led the late comeback, yet the AP average for the week of 60 stocks was down $2.30 at $106.80.

In Toronto, industrials finished the week down 2.00 at 306.44. Golds were down .46 at 77.98, base metals down 2.82 at 152.98 and western oils down 4.71.

Montreal market showed banks up .17 at 33.51; utilities off .1 at 94.6, industrials up .8 at 168.5, combined up .5 at 157.2, papers up 3.67 at 675.84 and golds down 1.45 at 58.85.

Warsaw WMS Holds Coronation Tea

WARSAW (ESS)—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church held a successful coronation tea at the close of their meeting Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Dyson, president, opened the meeting with "God Save the Queen" followed by the Lord's prayer. Scripture readings were read by Miss Clara McCracken and Mrs. William Darling and prayer by Mrs. Harold Ray. "The Lord is my Shepherd" and "Father in Heaven Who Lovest All" were the hymns used in the worship service.

Seven visits were reported during the month. The roll call was answered by a missionary speaker. Mrs. Dyson gave a few highlights of the Bay of Quinte conference in Oshawa.

Mrs. Cephas Parcells and her group had charge of the program. The triple trio from the public school rendered two numbers. Coronation readings were given by Miss Clara McCracken and Mrs. Harold Payne. Miss Georgina Moore favored with several selections on her accordion. Mrs. Dyson closed with the benediction.

The coronation tea was given by Mrs. George Taylor and her group. The basement was decorated with flags, snowballs, peonies, lily of the valley and coronation pictures.

Mrs. Dyson and Mrs. George Taylor put on gold crowns and poured tea from two silver tea services. The waiters were Miss Clara McCracken, Mrs. C. Parcells, Miss Anna Dewart, Mrs. Harold Payne, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Edwards who wore silk flags. Tea was made by Mrs. Arthur Payne.

Happy birthday was sung to Mrs. Allen Oliver who was celebrating a birthday and also Mrs. Cooper who celebrates her birthday Sunday. Friends were present from Cottesloe and Zion.

Sir Alexander announced his forthcoming marriage to the Canadian singer and movie bit player during a party aboard his yacht on the French Riviera.

May Appeal Indian Hunting Rights

REGINA (CP)—Hunting rights guaranteed Western Canada's Indians by a treaty signed between their chiefs and Queen Victoria in 1874 mya be the object of an appeal by the Saskatchewan government to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The province is reported considering whether to appeal the Saskatchewan Appeal Court's judgment declaring ultra vires sections of the province's Game Act restricting Indian hunting rights.

It is understood consideration also is being given to having the three prairie governments co-operate in a possible appeal.

At stake in such an appeal would be the provinces' rights to legislate in certain conservation matters.

SPARKED ISSUE

The issue revolves around Indian Thomas Strong Quill of the Keeseekoose reserve, who was convicted last September at Pelly, Sask., of killing a moose out of season in a forest reserve and fur conservation area. He was fined $150.

He appealed the conviction on grounds that as one who followed the Indian way of life he had the right to take his food from the land at any time.

Defence counsel submitted a copy of the Indian treaty of 1874 granting the Indian the right to follow his customs.

He said the federal-provincial natural resources agreements of 1930 gave the Indian the right to hunt on reserved Crown lands at all times. Further, a provincial legislature could not take away, through a game act, this privilege.

APPEAL COURT DIVIDED

The appeal court split 3-to-2 on the case and issued a majority judgment declaring ultra vires those sections of the Saskatchewan Game Act which restrict Indians' hunting rights.

Crown counsel argued the federal-provincial agreement stated Indians could hunt on all lands which were unoccupied. He contended a forest reserve and a fur conservation area were occupied areas. He said the Indian could hunt for food on his own reserve and unoccupied Crown lands at any time of the year.

The appeal court jurists drew attention to the civil rights section of the British North America Act. They said that under the section the province had the right to pass game laws, but lacked the right alone to vary or affect rights granted treaty Indians under the natural resources agreement of 1930.

INDEX DOWN — Canada's consumer price index declined by one-fifth of a point during April to 114.4 from 114.6, the sixth month in a row that living costs have dropped. The decline reflected lower prices for a number of food items, gasoline, and seasonal price drops for coal in Ontario and Quebec. The peak of 118.2—with 1949 prices equalling 100—was reached in December, 1951. The dotted line shows the United States consumer price index which advanced between mid-March and mid-April to 113.7 of the 1947-49 average. Living costs there now are near the peak set last November when the index was 114.3. These indices measure percentage changes in prices in each country but should not be used to compare actual levels of prices between the two countries.

Weekend Church Feature:

Jesus Exemplified Spirit Of Blessedness Of Giving

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

When Saint Paul was leaving Miletus after having called the elders of the Christian Church at Ephesus to hear his words of farewell before his last visit to Jerusalem, he bade these Christians to remember the word of the Lord Jesus: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35).

No words could express more accurately the spirit of all that Jesus had said and exemplified in His life and death. Nor could any words express more pointedly the challenge of Jesus and His teaching to the ideas and actions of what He called "the world."

Self-interest, enlightened or unenlightened, is so much a dominating principle that economists have taken it for granted. The businessman in his personal life, ideals and actions may be motivated by something higher than self-interest. But the great structure of industry and business rests so much upon the profit motive that if it were not for profits there would be no business at all.

Getting and receiving is such a normal process of life and is so natural to happiness and welfare that we might well ask whether Jesus was right in declaring that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

We must ask but there is only one answer. And the answer is found not only in some spiritual blessedness that compensates for the giving or renunciation of some material possession or treasured thing.

Jesus offered men rest. "Come unto me . . . and I will give you rest."

Yet rest is the one thing that men, rich, poor, old, young, sick or well, cannot do without. That offer of rest by the Master was supreme in its insight into human need.

So, in this matter of the blessedness of giving in any large and spiritual reality, the assertion that it is more blessed to give than to receive is an extension of much that is true in normal living. The giving of parents to their children, the giving by lovers to loved ones, the innumerable acts of graciousness and self-sacrifice in which men and women find supreme satisfaction, bear witness to the testimony of Jesus.

In the ancient Christian Church there were many who were well to do. Especially in the Roman provinces where they were engaged in trade. But there were many who were poor, especially at Jerusalem. So Paul encouraged the art and blessedness of giving. Read II Corinthians 8 and 9 and many other passages that tell of giving in spirit and action.

A Modern Church For Peterborough

Congratulations are due the members and supporters of the new Grace United congregation for deciding to build a modern church. The design approved by them has been done by E. H. Ziedler of the Peterborough architectural firm of Blackwell and Craig. According to the photograph and verbal description in the Examiner, Mr. Zeidler will create a church in keeping with the faith which inspired the new congregation to build it, and suitable to the site, and the materials and outlook of our own times.

* * *

The new Grace United Church will not look like the sham Gothic, the miniature minster and the perverted Palladian buildings which hide-bound custom and ecclesiastic convention have too long dictated to congregations. While creating the atmosphere of worship which a church should have, it will allow the spirit and eye a modern setting. Churches are dedicated to the glory of God. It is a paltry view of that glory if the temple must be bound by architectural copies of the arts and skills of other centuries—as if designs of our own generation were not worthy of God, and our aspirations and techniques were inferior to those of other ages, somehow demeaning the God the church serves. The architect and the congregation of the new Grace United Church honestly, confidently and proudly will build a temple belonging to our own times, belittling neither this age nor the Deity by merely copying or adapting old styles.

* * *

The new building of cedar, brick and serrated glass walls, and bold yet graceful lines, will give worshippers the light and glow which are in the Christian religion but which many church buildings deny in their formidable exteriors and gloomy interiors.

* * *

When plans for the new Peterborough City Hall were being considered, some officials said that the public would not countenance any original or strong deviation from conventional design. We feel, and felt at the time, that this was an incorrect and even derogatory assumption. Now we have, in the congregational acceptance of a modern design for Grace United, some proof that it is not the people who are conservative, dull and uninspired. It is officialdom which may be lacking in imagination and courage; which underestimates the spirit of the public.

* * *

We shall watch with interest the progress of the new building. Its break with outworn tradition may inspire other denominations and church groups in other cities to build for and in the present. Incidentally, a good modern design need not be more expensive than a copy of an old one; it may even cost less to build. The new church at the south end is expected to seat five hundred and to have the usual church offices and equipment. Its estimated cost is relatively modest, a hundred thousand dollars.

Distinguished Visitors

In the last two weeks an exodus of dignitaries depopulated Canada of many of its famous faces. They went to London to see the Queen. However, like foreign Kings, Governors General of the Commonwealth were not among those invited, so the Right Honourable Vincent Massey remained to head the Canadian ship of state. The exodus contrasts, and yet is complementary to the entry of many distinguished visitors a few weeks earlier. Never in such a short space of time has Ottawa entertained so many statesmen and rulers paying official visits. Canada's prominence is thus shown by the number of Canadian officials invited to the Coronation and also by the increasingly numerous foreign officials who come to Canada to pay their respects and to find out what manner of country and people we are.

First among the recent series of distinguished visitors was Madam Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, chairman of the Indian delegation to the U.N. Assembly and sister of India's Prime Minister. Madam Pandit addressed meetings in Toronto and Ottawa, was guest of honour at an official dinner given by the Government and had tea with Madame St. Laurent.

Next visitors were Mr. Rene Mayer, President of the Council of Ministers of France, Mr. Georges Bidault, Foreign Minister, and Mr. Maurice Bourges-Maunoury, Minister of Finance. They were in Ottawa for two days and held a series of conferences with Canadian officials. An official communique was issued at the end of the visit affirming the joint Canadian and French determination not to relax the defensive effort and to do whatever possible to remove trade obstacles.

The important French visitors were followed by the King of Cambodia, paying a private and unofficial visit. He was accompanied by his Prime Minister, and expressed appreciation to Canada for having recognized Cambodia. The country was established in 1950 as "an independent state within the French union." Cambodia is in Indo-China. Its king goes by the name His Majesty Nordom C. Sikanouk.

Next visitor to Ottawa and Kingston, Hamilton, Quebec City and Montreal was Field Marshal the Viscount Montgomery, whose face and words need no introduction to our readers. Dr. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor and Foreign Minister of the Federal Republic of Germany arrived a day or two later, and numerous discussions of commercial, financial and political matters were held with Canadian government chiefs.

The last of the procession of notable visitors to Ottawa was the Japanese Crown Prince, Akihito. This young man was accompanied by a retinue and twenty representatives of the Japanese press. Although the Japanese Prince was in transit to the Coronation, he did travel across Canada by train, viewed Ottawa, Niagara Falls and other spectacles, and saw Parliament in session. The Japanese journalists will have given the Japanese people an impression of Canada which should beneficially supplement the impression Canadian soldiers may have left.

Three recent important visitors have caused more wear and tear to Ottawa's striped trousers: the Prime Minister of New Zealand, the Vice-President of India, and General Ridgway, retiring commander of NATO forces in Europe.

If distinguished visitors to Canada were to succeed one another as closely as in this spring series, Ottawa will need a bigger red carpet, and even a Blair House to accommodate them. However, Ottawa is now returning to its quiet townish ways; the heat is off as summer begins.

The Premiers Have Different Points of View

The fancy is tickled by thoughts of overhearing very private little talks which Commonwealth Prime Ministers may have one with the other. What monitory words might Churchill have with Dr. Malan about his racial policy? What sly feints may pass along the table about the Middle East and oil, from Churchill to Nehru and Mohammed Ali and back again? Will St. Laurent bandy trade and dollar-pound policies with Churchill, whose government has been banning Canadian goods while building up the sterling area and buying from Russia and the Argentine? And what will Mr. Nehru of India and Mr. Mohammed Ali of Pakistan have to say to each other about the thorny problem of Kashmir? How many long years has that bitter war flared and waned? Ever since India and Pakistan became independent nations.

It will be odd indeed if beneath the outward harmony and the phrases of diplomacy, the leaders of the Commonwealth family of nations do not have some-sharp family bickering and dickering. For the sake of preserving a good Commonwealth front, it is well that nobody can listen at the key-hole.

Dentists Galore And Few

There are more dentists in the city of Peterborough than in the whole of Newfoundland. Peterborough's 25 dentists serve some forty thousand people, Newfoundland's 22 dentists must attend to the teeth of 361,500. Judging from the condition of most Newfoundlanders' mouths, that Province has too few dentists, not Peterborough an embarrassing surplus. Dentists, a superfluity or a lack of them, cannot be entirely blamed for the good or bad teeth of the two populaces. We understand that Kawartha Lakes milk and water—even without fluorine—are fairly kind to teeth, and that the fish diet of Newfoundlanders, with little fresh fruits and vegetables and milk, is hard on the islanders' teeth.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A publicity blurb says of one of radio's singing stars that he is "as unspoiled as the boy next door". We have heard more enthusiastic recommendations.

A doctor says that if man walked on all fours he would be healthier. What about those who, on all fours, don't clear the crown of the road?

A German recently caused an accident while on his way to receive an award for 53 years of safe driving. Fate has a ghastly sense of humour.

Bad weather doesn't entirely spoil a summer. Think of the fun the moths are having right now in your winter clothes.

A suggestion has been made that Mount Everest be renamed Mount Elizabeth, for obvious reasons. We venture to say that the Queen has honours enough without this. The Nepalese call it Chomolungma, which means Goddess Mother of the Snows, and the world at large might be wise to adopt that name.

The Visionary Valley

By CYRIL DUNN

AN OFFICAL called the Chief System Operator sits in the headquarters at Knoxville, Tennessee, of the Water-Control Planning Division of the Tennessee Valley Authority. He commands the sixty billions tons of water which in an average year flow through the vast river system of the Tennessee Valley, rising in the mountains of Virginia and North Carolina and thereafter following an indecisive course for more than six hundred miles through seven States of North America.

This he does, according to Mr. Henry Billings, as easily as if he were emptying or filling a bath-tub.

❖ ❖ ❖

MR. BILLINGS has just published a book, called "The Power and The Valley" which tells how the Tennessee Valley Authority has, in rather less than twenty years, completely transformed a huge region formerly reduced to economic penury by the ignorance, the desperate expedients and the greed of mankind.

There is, says Mr. Billings, nothing like the TVA and its achievements anywhere else in the world. The country which is, above all others, the stronghold of private enterprise, seems to have discovered in the Tennessee Valley the ideal balance between private endeavour and public control.

❖ ❖ ❖

MR. BILLINGS simply tells the story of what TVA has done. He says almost nothing about the prolonged and violent battles fought by David Lilienthal, the brilliant lawyer and administrator, to protect TVA's rear against political and private attack. But it still seems astonishing that TVA—the kind of organisation one might expect to find struggling for existence in Britain's Welfare State or being dreamed up by bogus publicity behind the Iron Curtain—should have had so much solid success in the United States.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE IDEA originated with a Republican senator called Norris in 1933. It was given life by a message to Congress from President Roosevelt. Its aim was nothing less than to restore the balance of nature in the Tennessee Valley region.

When the first settlers, travelling west into the wilderness, reached the Valley, they found it a place of apparently inexhausible abundance. Until the Civil War, the people of the Valley lived extremely well, taking rich cash crops from the land and developing an elegant, Southern existence in their "fine white mansions set in parks of magnolia and water oak." But from the War, through the great flood of 1867, and right up to the Depression of 1933, the Valley steadily wasted its reserve and allowed the forces of nature, once beneficent, to become hostile and to take charge.

❖ ❖

DRIVEN, as Mr. Billings says, from one expedient to another in the struggle to pay their way, the farmers of the Upper Tennessee cleared more and more ground, sold the trees of their virgin forests to lumber firms. By so doing, they exposed the topsoil to the heavy rains of the Valley and slashed away nature's own restraints on the roaring floods of the river system. The sloping fields of the region, scoured by gullies, assumed the haggard look of poverty.

Along the river and over the Valley lands, TVA undertook an interdependent policy of reconstruction and restoration. By subjecting and using the mighty forces of the river, it protected the land from floods, produced vast quantities of electric power for the farms and factories of the Valley and made the river navigable all the way from Knoxville to the Ohio — the last a problem America had been discussing for seventy years. At the same time, control of the river made reconstruction possible on the land, and by creating new pastures and planting new forests, TVA checked the headlong flow of water from the hills.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN NINETEEN YEARS TVA has built a system of eighteen dams and has two more under construction. With the eight dams built before TVA took over, and two built since by private enterprise, the river is now a system of twenty-eight reservoirs and lakes, one of them, behind the giant Kentucky Dam, two hundred miles long. All the great tributaries are checked by barriers. In the nine huge walls controlling the flow of the main river there are locks for raising and lowering the river craft using the navigable channel, an inland waterway now sufficiently important to be controlled by the American Coast Guard.

Hydro-electric power plants at these barriers generated in 1951 eighteen billion KW-hours and transmitted it to more than a million customers in the Valley. In the field of power, the work of TVA was pushed ahead by the war and is therefore somewhat in advance of other developments. One may see electric washing machines and refrigerators in the tumbledown cabins of the mountain people, some of whom had difficulty in adjusting themselves to the mystery of electric light. One farmer, after vainly endeavouring to blow it out, habitually got his night's sleep by shutting the bright bulb away in a drawer.

❖ ❖ ❖

ON LAND, clover and grass have been made to grow on the exhausted fields with the help of lime and concentrated phosphate. The farmers have been taught new practices of crop rotation, strip planting and contour ploughing. More than two hundred million trees have been planted in the Valley since 1933.

The technical and social transformation of the Valley has been carried out in close co-operation with the existing social organisations and authorities. Where they did not exist, special bodies have been created, such as the local co-operatives for distributing power and community associations for carrying out test demonstrations in new farming techniques and for coping with the social needs of the region.

❖ ❖

BUT in is in hydraulic engineering that TVA has done its most dramatic work—"a design without precedent" as Mr. Billings calls it. The Control at Knoxville treats the whole system as a unit. The level of water in each reservoir is constantly controlled. Space is found to take and hold the winter rains. Malaria is checked in the warm weather by suddenly raising the water level a foot one day and lowering it a foot the next. Water and "white power" for the generators is saved up in the tributary reservoirs against the demands of the dry months. And when the great floods come, as they still must, the flow is controlled in such detail that a farmer with a herd of pigs stranded on an island can telephone Knoxville and ask them to hold up the floods for a while until the pigs are saved.

Mr. Billings's book leaves one with an awed notion of what can be done for the lasting benefit of mankind. It gives point to President Eisenhower's recent speech in which he visualised the resources and abilities of the world directed to the needs of peace.

Pravda On Bermuda

(NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE)

THE Russian Communist party organ, "Pravda," has made a long and very illuminating comment on recent international developments, especially the forthcoming meeting of the Big Three in Bermuda. As was only to be expected, the Red newspaper did its utmost to expand the differences it sees between the statements of British and American leaders on policy toward Russia. That might be taken as merely a tactical approach.

But in describing the Bermuda meeting as "the continuation of an old discredited policy—the line of setting states against one another on the basis of ideology and social and political system," "Pravda" was stating a strategic policy. Its only meaning can be that Russia, in return for Malenkov's kind words, insists on the virtual dissolution of the Western alliance and on dealing with each Western state as an individual.

Such an extreme statement by the Russians is highly unrealistic. It may be of advantage in general "peace" propaganda among the uninformed, and could have some effect upon confirmed neutralists. But it can hardly serve to promote division among the responsible statesmen of the West, who are conscious of the many ties that bind their countries together and of the folly of approaching Moscow separately.

A specific example of how necessary unity is to the West can be found in "Pravda's" comments on Prime Minister Churchill's address to the House of Commons. The newspaper found much to praise in the more general terms used by Sir Winston. But when it came to the concrete problem of Germany, "Pravda" was adamant.

Disregarding the fact that Sir Winston's references to a new Locarno formed, despite the caution with which they were phrased, a truly dramatic gesture from a Western statesman on the key dilemma of Europe, the editorial flatly said his "utterances cannot in any way be accepted as an expression of real desire to settle what he called the dominant international problems." Russia, so far as Germany is concerned, stands on Yalta and Potsdam. For Britain and France, as for the United States, that basis is impossible. Evidently, it would be fatal to exchange the four-power conference held out by the Kremlin for three-power unity.

Never Mind The High-Priced Help

(CALGARY HERALD)

ANYONE who is in Canada's reserve army could sit down and in fifteen minutes list at least half a dozen major things which are wrong with it, together with suggestions on how to improve matters.

Anyone who was in the reserve army in the bleak years preceding the last war could have done the same thing then, and the faults of 1939 would not differ a great deal from the faults of 1953.

It does not require an expensive panel of three retired generals, travelling about the land at the expense of the long-suffering taxpayer, to find out what's wrong with the reserve army.

Nevertheless, we are on the point of having just that.... a trio of impressively high brass (ret.) gallivanting here and there at public expense gathering a lot of information which is undoubtedly already buried in some grimy filing cabinet at NDHQ or which could be speedily obtained with no more expense than the cost of postage.

If Lieut.-General Guy G. Simonds our Chief of the General Staff wants to know what's wrong with the reserve army, as he apparently does judging by the appointment of this new panel, we suggest he might start more economically by having some minion dust off the files and by talking to previous directors of the reserve army.

Trees After 30 Years

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

It was about 30 years ago that Ontario became seriously interested in reforestation to the extent of planting different areas with pine, spruce and white oak. One area chosen was the township of Kirkwood near Thessalon from which, in the still earlier days, the pine had been stripped for the lumber mills of the Georgian Bay north shore.

Now to be seen where there were only stumps and barren ground over which the timber companies had worked there are thousands of sturdy trees. Well grown, they could even now be used commercially but they are being left to mature when they will be of still further value.

Meanwhile the department project for this year alone in the same area calls for the planting of another 397,000 seedlings which will be coming along for replacement when those given to the ground 30 years ago are supplying going industries.

Imagination may picture what the once busy but now comparatively idle north shore would be like today had the earlier cutting been to the accompaniment of reforestation. However, it is something that the new crop has been on the way 30 years.

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

Story of an aftermath of the Sarnia cyclone blew into town the other day when Harold (Keeler) Knapman, Mount Julian sailing craft specialist, brought word of the wind's damage up that way.

On the Burleigh Channel the wind lashed down on a newly-completed boathouse that belongs to Lyman Crawford-Brown. It moved the building 11 feet off its original foundations and damaged a brand-new boat inside; (extent of the damage has not been determined, so far).

The new boat, named the SKUA, is not an ordinary craft. It was developed from its owner-designer's unconventional but practical plans, an inboard-powered sea sled job with limited cabin accommodation. It was built at a Bracebridge shipyards, shipped overland and launched early this spring at Burleigh. It was given several trial runs.

An inverted-V hull of plywood construction impregnated with a fibreglass plastic coating, it handled beautifully and attained planing speeds like a scared cat.

The SKUA will add to the smart watercraft fleet of the Kawarthas and, though temporarily out of commission, will be running again, come the first of the cottage season, unless we have misjudged Crawford-Brown.

An inveterate and successful pickerel fisherman of Bridgenorth talked to me for half an hour the other night telling how he took walleyes that seem to be eluding everyone else so far this season. He paints the bottoms of all his lures black, uses the smallest of gang hooks and doesn't go near his favourite haunts till well past midnight. Slow retrieve with moments of no action and "I just take home the big ones," said he.

Just a tip for you chaps that keep cussing your luck all the time, and a new wrinkle for bait manufacturers, should this item comes to their attention.

♣ ♣ ♣ ♣

Trent Lands and Forests have been able to come up with some statistics on opening of the pickerel season, especially around Bobcaygeon. There were 252 boats anchored on the river that first Sunday and more than 200 fishermen lining the dam and banks.

Conservation officers made 21 pinches among this crowd, the majority of offences being those trolling and drift fishing and those using artificial baits in boats. Believe it or not, one party was pulled up for an over-limit catch during one of the leanest opening sessions we can remember in these parts. Another was collared fishing in a fish sanctuary.

Poison ivy is out in all its treacherous glory and you may have found last summer's patches are larger than ever. It will spread rapidly if you don't do battle with the roots continually by chemicals, grub hoe and fire. Those who do fight the terrible weed fight it with respect and that includes thick gloves.

There are many more, however, who do not take the trouble to watch for the weed and get really plastered. If you do get the rash never mind applying a lot of fancy cure-all lotions but get busy with a stiff nail brush and yellow laundry soap on the affected parts. Such drastic treatment many times a day will prevent infection and it takes a lot of will power not to scratch the rash, which spreads it. And thrash the next idiot that tells you that by eating a leaf of the plant you will be forever immune.

There appear to be two factions arguing about the Coronation decorations that are currently enlivening our city's main streets.

"Leave them for the tourists to see," say some.

"Rip them down," say the others.

I was driving east along Charlotte St., on Friday and, slipping into a visitor's state of mind, asked myself what all the flags and strings of lights were for. The coloured shields on utility posts did not catch the eye, especially of a driver.

But if the bare red brick Market clock tower had had 15-foot images of Her Majesty on four sides and floodlit at night, we would not need to proclaim what we were trying to put across.

Metropolitan Simpson A Local Man

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

Holding high rank among the "founding fathers" of the new Metropolitan Toronto is a native son of Lakefield and former pupil of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. Harry G. Simpson, thrice elected by acclamation as Reeve of East York (itself a city of 65,000 population, thus larger than say Regina) is a key figure among the municipal leaders who have given shape and direction to the plans now realized in the Greater City which claims its place among the most populous corporate centres of the world.

The story of the stamina and resourcefulness, bred of a lusty Kawartha boyhood, runs like a thread through every chapter of the eventful life of the youth who said au revoir (but not good-bye) to Lakefield in 1912; and the full story of this life has by no means all been written. The long, long trail that led from Lakefield is still a-winding upward toward still higher fields of useful achievement.

A glimpse of what the future may hold is given in the Toronto Daily Star's report of the mid-April inaugural meeting of the new metropolitan council, at Queen's Park. The report explains that posts for two new commissioners were created when the Toronto Transportation Commission was named as the body to administer public transportation in the metropolitan area. The commission was enlarged from three to five members.

REEVE HARRY G. SIMPSON, of East York, and Mrs. Simpson, as seen at the inaugural meeting, in Queen's Park, of the new council which will administer the affair of the great Metropolitan Toronto. Mr. Simpson, who was a key figure in the lengthy negotiations which led to the municipal merger, is a native son of Lakefield and one-time student at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. After an eventful banking career, which began in Lakefield, he was elected by acclamation as Reeve of the suburban municipality of 65,000 population and is strongly supported for appointment to one of the new posts on the Toronto Transportation Commission, which has been named to organize and direct the transit problems of the new metropolis.

PROMINENT NAMES

Says The Daily Star: "Mentioned most prominently for the vacancies are Reeve Harry Simpson of East York, who has told friends he intended to retire from municipal politics, and Clive Sinclair, former reeve of Swansea and former Warden of York County." Since several other present or former suburban officials have been mentioned for the posts, the situation remains in the conjectural stage but Messrs. Simpson and Sinclair are clearly among the top-bracket possibilities for the important $8,000. T.T.C. positions soon to be filled.

While old Peterborough County friends have watched with interest and pride the career of Harry G. Simpson, the story of his diversified achievements cannot be told as just another account of "Hometown boy makes good". Success stories in this all-too-familiar style, with customary cliches, are liable always to be colored with local preconceptions. Stages in the life of Harry Simpson need not be recounted in any local idiom, and we may look at the evidence given by observer-writers far removed and detached from the Kawartha scene.

Thus the "Golden Mile News", published in the heart of East Toronto's mighty industrial area, has recently recalled graphically incidents of the earlier years of the century. It says:

"Back in the year 1912, a young Easterner named Harry G. Simpson went West. It was his first trip away from home, his first big adventure and he prepared to meet it with a suit-case full of clothes, a heart full of youthful fancy and a position with the Royal Bank of Canada awaiting him at the other end of the line."

IN ALBERTA

We may well not here that the challenge of the vast undeveloped reaches of Alberta in 1912 was indeed a stern challenge. The earlier Alberta bore little resemblance to the Province of today in which a closely-knit citizenry pours forth a stream of riches staggering to the imagination.

But putting first things first, we are reminded that the youthful Harry Simpson who fared forth to the untamed West was by no means a tenderfoot unfamiliar with the rough-and-tumble of life in the outdoors. Born in Lakefield, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Albert Simpson. His father had lived earlier in the Keene area. A brother, Jim, and a sister, Miss Kate, still live in Lakefield. The latter, a retired teacher, taught at the Garbutt school in Douro and in Toronto.

From his earliest years Harry Simpson was active in many fields of sport. He had entered the Old Traders Bank as a junior about 1903 when the Trader's took over the private bank of James Linton and Co. long a Lakefield institution. In early years he proved his mettle as a racing canoeist, having been Stony Lake champion for about five years, 1905 - 10, taking over from Norman Bell and Reg. Blomfield. The latter by that time had moved to Toronto and as a member of the Toronto Canoe Club was winning national and world honors in competition with such top-rankers as Bobby Blackburn.

That golden age of Kawartha canoeing was producing such all-time greats as Reg. Blomfield, Norm. Bell, Harry Simpson, Charlie Gordon and Bruce Ridpath, all of Lakefield; Bert Stock, Jack Watt, Fred Roy and Art Weeks of Peterborough; "Shell" and Vic. McIlmoyle of Young's Point; the Indian brothers Knott of Chemong, and others whose keen blades flashed at Juniper, McCracken's, Crowe's, Clear Lake and other district regattas.

PETERBOROUGH DAYS

In hockey; in soccer (or "association") and rugby football; and in baseball, Harry Simpson was constantly out on the front line. He still treasures a prize watch awarded about 1909-10 when he helped Lakefield to victory in the Peterborough City League, against such sturdy antagonists as the T.A.S. which nurtured the redoubtable Bill Crowley. He played rugby with the Grove School team of Lakefield. In soccer he was a contemporary of Peterborough's Ben Simpson who was then playing with the All Saints' team and who later came to national celebrity in rugby with the Hamilton Tigers. Playing soccer in those earlier years were many stalwart East Peterborough teams, including Warsaw, Keene and the celebrated Norwood High School in the days when John Davidson was principal, and the renowned Buell was coach.

In his interview with the "Golden Mile News," Mr. Simpson has recalled how in his elementary school years he had to work from Spring until Fall. For a time he was associated with "Boscobel Villa," the American camp at Boschink, Stony Lake. He was the youngest of ten children. His father died when he was very young and his mother was left with a heavy burden of responsibility.

"I managed to work my way up to the second year of the Collegiate in Peterborough," he explains, "but by then I was 16 and felt that I should leave school in favor of a full-time position." After joining the Traders' Bank in Lakefield he was chosen to take charge of the bank's newly-opened branch in Warsaw, driving there three days a week. Today he seems to feel that if duty called him before he could complete an academic career he has been richly compensated for what he may have missed. For, as he recalls, "I have been many places and seen many things that many young men yearned to know but did not have the opportunity to explore."

LEFT LAKEFIELD

A new chapter opened in the life of Harry Simpson when he left Lakefield in 1912 for the West. By this time the old Traders' Bank was merged with the Royal Bank of Canada. The "Golden Mile News" tells the story well of the eventful pioneer days in Alberta:

"Even taking into account his great yen for adventure it is doubtful if young Simpson had any idea at the time he left Lakefield what arduous excitement the next few years woud bring for him. Little did he know that within a few months he would be standing in Athabaska Landing beside a horse-drawn sleigh, piled high with mail, waiting to make the 200-mle trip through the Peace River country of Northern Alberta to the tiny town of Grouard.

"The month was February, the weather was sub-zero and young Simpson was dressed in his conventional town clothes. Needless to say the young banker nearly froze to death before the half-breed Indian mailman who was to be his guide noticed his shivering and all but ordered him to buy some warm blankets and a heavy 'northland' sweater.

" 'The mail went through every three weeks and it took a whole week, and sometimes more, to make the trip,' Mr. Simpson now recalls. 'I can remember asking my guide if there were any stopping places along the way and he thought that quite a joke.' Mr. Simpson also remembers the time they tried to bring the first bank safe up the Saskatchewan River to Grouard. 'It was in the winter time and the safe, sleigh and all, fell through the ice. They didn't try that again while I was up there.'

"Grouard, at the edge of Lesser Slave Lake, was populated by Indians, trappers, fur company men and three white women. Mr. Simpson was to manage the Royal Bank branch that had been located there as a service to the isolated area. Apart from the Grouard bank, Mr. Simpson served in Royal Bank at Camrose, Castor and Edmonton.

"While managing the Camrose bank he woud often visit a fellow-manager in Calgary and remembers vividly the first oil strike in the Turner Valley.

MONEY IN BASKETS

" 'It happened in 1914,' he says. 'I was visiting in Calgary at the time and the money came pouring into the bank, filling waste baskets. I volunteered to sit up through the night to help with the counting and I shall never forget those overflowing waste baskets.'

"Not content to watch the oil industry bloom from afar, Mr. Simpson was in on the birth of one of Alberta's first oil companies. 'We bought hundreds of acres of land at 25 cents an acre but unfortunately this allowed only a one-year option and we hardn't the money to start extensive drilling operations. However, it's a thrill to remember that I was once a shareholder in what has become one of Canada's biggest booms.'

"In 1915, Harry Simpson joined the army in Calgary and went on to two and a half years' of active service overseas. Shortly after his return to Canada he was appointed manager of the Royal Bank of Woodbine and Danforth in East York.

"By this tme, after my life in the West and my war service, I was ready to settle down to a quiet existence and so it was that I remained at the Woodbine bank for the next 24 years, until the time of my retirement in 1944," Mr. Simpson explains.

On relinquishing his banking position, Mr. Simpson responded to a call for service in the public life of East York, then growing at an almost incredible speed, with its fine residential areas and corpus of nationally-important industries. He ran for a council seat in 1945 and held that seat until 1948 when he was elected Deputy-Reeve of the Township. In 1949, he was defeated by a mere 26 votes, in a campaign for the Reeve's chair, but 1950 saw him coming back and winning this post which he has held ever since. Indeed, this year he received his third acclamation to the municipality's top administrative chair.

EAST YORK

During his 25 years of residence in East York Mr. Simpson has become affiliated with many local clubs and organizations. He is a director of the Danforth - East York YMCA, treasurer of the East York Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and past president of the East York Recreational Board. He is also a member of the East York Kiwanis Club, Branch 10 Canadian Legion, the East York Arena Board and the Todmorden Masonic Lodge. All this in addition to his work as head of the Township and as a member of the advisory board for the Church of the Resurrection.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed my years in public life," says the Reeve, "I believe East York to be a fine township, filled with fine people. It's future is unlimited and I am happy to have had a part in the phenomenal development we have experienced here within the past eight years."

Harry Simpson's love for his native Lakefield and its whole Kawartha environment persists and grows. The call of summer finds him and Mrs. Simpson, Toronto born and bred, and a zealous social welfare worker, at their island cottage, off the Burleigh channel, Stony Lake. History of recent years point up the fact that among the municipal leaders of the new Metropolitan Toronto none stands higher in popular esteem than Harry G. Simpson; and should he be called to one of the new posts as a T.T.C. Commissioner he is certain to bring to his duties the store of practical knowledge gained in his long experience as a successful banking executive and leader in municipal affairs.

My socks look fine out on the line—
For I've thought of a little diddle:
So my friends can't see the holes
I hang 'em by the middle.

Your Garden:

Gladioli Want Full Sunlight And Frequent Cultivation

By HENRY PREE (N.E.A.)

Gardeners looking forward to the bright, showy summer blooms from gladiolus can begin planting now. Gladiolus are not too particular as to soil, but they do need light, fertile, acid soil. Excellent flowers can be grown in clay soil if good drainage is provided.

Gladiolus ask for frequent cultivation, two or three feedings during the growing season and watering when the ground is dry. Because of their upright habit of growth, gladiolus require little space, and large quantities of flowers can be produced in the small garden.

Gladiolus must be cultivated often to keep the surface soil loose and free of weeds

The commercial grower raises his gladiolus in rows and this method should be followed when an entire bed or area is devoted to their culture. However, they combine well with other tall flowers, and bulbs may be planted in groups throughout the garden.

It is well to work in some good fertilizer, strong in phosphorus—a 4-12-4 or similar mixture—into the soil before setting out the bulbs.

Good bulbs—to be botanically correct they should be called corms—are offered at all good garden supply shops. Be sure to pick out clean bulbs, 1¼ inches or more in diameter. High-crowned blubs, even though only an inch in diameter, are to be preferred to large sized, old flat ones.

The veteran gardener believes that you will be happier with the results if you buy named varieties and not a general collection of bulbs. Gladiolus vary not only in color but in height and time of bloom. To know what you are buying is to make certain that you get the desired colors and that you are planting the taller growing varieties in the back of the bed.

Gladiolus range in height from 18 inches to five feet, and vary in days of maturity from 65 to 105 days, the average being about 90 days, as typified by the widely known light-salmon Picardy.

Do not attempt to grow gladiolus in the shade. They want full sunlight, although they will tolerate afternoon shade. Examine the bulbs before you plant. If they are not bright and clean looking, something is wrong. Discard any which do not pass inspection and thoroughly dust all others with 5 or 10 per cent DDT and plant immediately.

Dusting the bulbs will kill that deadly tiny enemy of the gladiolus, thrips. However, neighboring thrips may visit your garden during the growing season to suck the sap from the foliage and thus ruin the blooms. To combat this require weekly dusting with DDT. Do not dust after blooms appear.

Bulbs are placed four to six inches deep, depending upon the type of soil, six inches in sandy soil and four inches in clay soil. Space bulbs five to six inches apart. Row planting provides easy cultivation, watering and dusting. Do not plant near to roots of trees and shrubs and cultivate frequently to keep the surface loose and free of weeds.

Gardening Questions

Q—Can Iris be made to bloom over a longer period? Ours are done within 10 days.

A—Chances are that yours are the bearded iris germanica. By using three or four varieties the season can be extended.

Q—Recently a southern nursery advertised two-foot Pink Flowering Dogwood at less than a quarter a plant. Would you recommend purchasing a dozen of these for a northern garden? Their botanical name was given as cornus stolonifera.

A—According to Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture Cornus florida alba is the botanical name of Pink Flowering Dogwood, a small tree reaching a height of 12 feet and more. Cornus Stolonifera is the botanical name of Red Osier Dogwood, a shrub, sometimes seven feet high, with dull white flowers in small loose clusters. This shrub is valued only for its bright red winter twigs.

Peterborough In The '70s: 400 Carriages At Funeral Many Busy Small Industries

(Ed. Note: This series of articles on Peterborough in the seventies was written a dozen years ago by a former resident of Peterborough who has died since. We print them almost unedited from the typewritten manuscript. They are personal memoirs, and subject to the writer's prejudices, views and sometimes imprecise memory of the events and people of eighty years ago. The Examiner does not vouch for their accuracy of detail).

CABINET MAKERS AND UNDERTAKERS

Martin McFadden's was on Hunter St. opposite the Oriental. Mostly hand-made furniture was turned out. McFadden was also an undertaker. Aaron Comstock was an old-established house, made high-class furniture and was also an undertaker. The herses in those days had featured plumes on top Large funerals were the rule. Friends and acquaintances inserted funeral notices, left them in the shops or tacked them up to posts. There were few private funerals, unless the deaths were from cholera or smallpox. Other cabinet-makers were John Brown, E. Courtney, R. Hudson, Hulbert & McKee, George Tanner, Wilson & Wilson.

JEWELLERS

Muncaster & Sanderson carried a large stock. Their premises were on the west side of George Street near Simcoe. Bob Muncaster went to South Carolina and Billy Sanderson continued on for many years. Others were J. McClelland, John Clark, and Jas. R. Ormond.

BUILDERS and CONTRACTORS

Tom Rutherford, was one of the leading contractors, others were Wm. Aldridge R. Rowe, Jas. Bogue,—

PLANING MILLS

Samuel Dickson had a large mill. It was a wealthy Company. A. Baptie employed many hands. Others were Eibt. Speery, J. McDonald.

FLOUR MI

Richard Hall, Denne & Speery. The Dennes have long been in the milling business in Peterborough. George C. Rogers' mill was on the Ashburnham side across from the present mill of the Quaker Oats Co. Mr Rogers was a colonel in the militia. One spring day he was helping his men repair the dam and was drowned. His body was recovered later and his funeral was the largest that had been in Peterborough up to that time. More than 400 carriages were in line and all business was suspended. He was buried in the Little Lake Cemetery. In early days all denominations including Roman Catholics were buried in Little Lake Cemetery. Later on the Presbyterians had their own cemetery, ditto the Roman Catholics.

STOVES AND TINWARE

Henry Best had a large shop on George St. Most of the tinware was made on the premises. There were also the firms of Robt. Walton and Adam Hall. Others were Breeze and Hutchinson and J. J. Baguley.

STATIONERY AND BOOKS

Wilson & Davies carried a large stock. Thos. Menzies was across the street. J. I. Davidson was on George near Hunter.

LIVERIES

E Wormally, R & H White, J. D. Dunlop, D. G. Hawthorne.

MILLINERS

Miss Ellen Delaney, was probably the leading Milliner. Her shop was on George St. west side 4 doors south of Hunter. A fire started next door one night and destroyed all the shops up to the corner of Hunter, scarcely a brick was left standing. She started up again two doors north of Hunter on George. One could buy silk stockings in great variety at Ellen Delaney's. Also there were S. A. Semple, Augusta Sawyer, M. McEachren, Mrs. Damm, M. Brown and G. F. Austin.

HARNESS AND SADDLERY

B. Shortly had the leading shop and made a specialty of English saddles. The elite of Peterborough, both men and women would ride their saddle horses up and down George Street on a fine afternoon winter or summer between four and five o'clock.

BRICKS

Mostly red brick was made in Peterborough, the clay generally was not suited for white-bricks. Among the brickmakers were R. Romain, T. Ruthierford, R. Rutherford, Stanton, Roberts & Rutherford.

BUTCHERS

Harry Winch was one of the leading butchers and was mayor for some years. Also there were W. Wainwhight, Johnnie Howden.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

Hall's biscuit and confectionery works was on the east side of Water Street between Brock and Hunter about 1879. It was totally destroyed by fire and never rebuilt. It was a large industry and employed over a hundred hands. David Lemay made chocolates equal to the best English imported. Others were Isaac McCalla, H. Ostrom, Carton Bros., later on Mat. Carton went into the wholesale grocery business.

Agricultural Implements were represented by the following: Wm. Graham, W. J. Hall, Duncan McLeod.

Musical Instruments—R. W. Errett.

HATS, CAPS AND FURS

Sol. Hyman, A. Lech. The Leches were one of the leading fur merchants in Canada. Mr. Lech Jr. was an expert boxer. Often he would invite the school boys in and many fights were staged in the rear room. I don't think I was ever beaten in a fist fight and I think it was owing to the training Mr. Lech gave me. On my last visit to Peterborough I found Mr. Lech had passed on. At this time a lady's genuine Alaska seal coat could be bought at Mr. Lech's for three hundred dollars or less. No doubt a coat like that would cost thousands today.

Bakers were represented by A. Letellier, W. Land and W. Stock.

Sewing machines—by W. A. King and Wm. Trueman.

Fish Dealers—by J. B. Joubert.

Painters—J. C. Kennedy, J. Carton, W. H. Watson.

Photographers and Artists—by Jas. Little, W. Snider, and W. Workman.

Architects and Civil Engineers—J. E. Belcher.

TANNERIES

Foley and Ryan, R. B. Lundy, W. Patterson and Son. Tan bark and Chicken manure were used in tanning then.

Foundries: Peter Hamilton employed more than 100 hands, Tom Hamilton more than 200 hands. These were two of Peterborough's chief industries.

Tents and Awnings: J. J. Turner.

FLOUR AND FEED

Luke Fisher, J. L. Watkins, J. W. Flavelle, later Sir Joseph Flavelle, Baronet. Flavelle's shop was on Simcoe Street at the corner of the market lane. Wm. Flavelle was associated with his brother Joe. About 1887 Joe Flavelle went to Toronto, became associated with Gunns Limited, later on went to the Wm. Davies Co., pork packers; after a short time, he became owner, bought out, or amalgamated with other large packers and formed the Canada Packers Limited, perhaps the largest of its kind in the British Empire. Sir Joseph died in recent years leaving an estate in excess of six millions, and the business and title went to his son.

PORK PACKERS

George Matthews and Sons came to Peterborough from Lindsay, their factory was near the C.P.R. station, their shop on George St., near Simcoe St., later on they amalgamated with Blackwell and Co. and others and opened branches in many places. (Ed. Note: Forerunner of Canada Packers.)

FIREFIGHTERS

Peterborough had a fire engine, not many places had a fire engine. Water was obtained from the river, the creek, or from storage tanks. One large storage tank was at the north east corner of George and Brock St., it was underground. The main fire bell was on the opera house, and each of the four wards had a fire bell, the fire horses were also used, for the watering carts, and when the fire bell rang, the horses would be unhitched and the watering cart left on the street until the fire was over.

437 GEORGE ST. PETERBOROUGH

THREE APIECE—Playing coach Bob Thorpe, left, and hustling Don Ashbee led the local marksmen with three goals each here last night as the OLA senior Petes jerked out a thrilling 13-12 victory over St. Catharines before about 3,000 fans.

Petes Edge Athletics 13-12, Move Within Game Of Lead

Fighting from behind twice here last night before some 3,000 excited senior OLA fans, the Petes' Trailermen jerked out a 13-12 victory against the strong St. Catharines Athletics. It was the same score by which the A's beat Petes in overtime last weekend in St. Kitts. The win pulled Peterborough to within a game of the tied Toronto Yorks and St. Catharines atop the group. The Thorpe team was down 2-1 in the first quarter, led 7-5 at the half and were trailing 9-8 going into the fourth. They were in arrears by 5-1 early in the second spasm (and the wolves were starting to howl) but they staged a sizzling comeback to bat in six straight markers without a return during part of the second quarter. They had to outscore St. Kitts 5-3 in the fourth to grab the close verdict.

THRILLING TUSSLE

It was another thrill-packed lacrosse match after a cautious close-checking initial inning. They opened it up wide the rest of the route and dished up some stirring action. Play was rugged in spots and sparked by three fist fights and several close ones. Harry Wipper and Emil Uhrynuk threw punches in the third quarter at the same time as Nip O'Hearn and Derry Davies were swinging in another corner, and all four drew 10-minute major penalties. In the fourth frame, Dootch Vitarelli and big Ham Nelson tangled and went off for five minutes, Nelson bleeding badly at the mouth. The Petes drew seven of the 13 penalties in the game.

The tide of battle ebbed and flowed, with first St. Catharines hot to rack up a goodly lead, then the Trailermen taking over to blast goal after goal by Doug Flavelle, then St. Kitts roaring to the attack again, and finally Petes sailing it away, though the Saints scored the final goal to make it awfully close with a few seconds left to play.

CLASSY SQUADS

They were two good, well-matched clubs giving it the works in practically playoff fashion. The goalies had little chance on most of the hot thrusts that beat them, and the defence checked hard and closely. The forwards worked hard and their passing attacks were pretty much on a par.

Don Ashbee shone to rack up three goals and one assist in the first four scored by the homesters, and playing coach Bob Thorpe also tallied three smart ones, and aided on a pair in a fine showing. Ike Hildebrand was another local ace with two markers and three assists. Harry Wipper clicked for a pair of goals, too, with Ross Powless good for a goal and an assist, and Jerry Fitzgerald a tally. An assist each was garnered by Dootch Vitarelli, Moon Wootton and Nip O'Hearn.

Don Moore led the losers with three goals and an assist, Ham Nelson counting two and helping on one. Davies got two, also, and Doug Smith and Ted Howe each scored once and aided on three in smart performances for the speedy visitors. Bill Bradshaw got the other counter, while Norm Corcoran figured in on one goal. Teams:

St. Catharines: Goal, Flavelle; defence, Nelson and D. Smith; centre, McMahon; wings, Howe and Moore; rover, Bradshaw; alternates, Uhrynuk, Davies, Teal, Dewar, Woolley, Corcoran and D. Frick.

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, Wipper and Nickle; centre, Mason; wings, Ashbee and Slater; rover, Vitarelli; alternates, O'Hearn, Fitzgerald, Thorpe, Powless, Smith, Hildebrand and Groves.

Referees, J. Murphy and P. Bain.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The mechanics of any sport are most important, but often some athletes tend to ignore them. They concentrate more on conditioning, practice and study of their game. All this is most necessary, of course, but don't overlook the mechanics. Latter simply means your equipment, the use of it, automatic reaction, and your playing surface. The tangible things. It is by no means an obvious fact that a player knows where first base is—not to make a hurried throw without first looking—or where a carom shot in a rink corner is going. Some lacrossers evidently don't even know where the goal is, as hurried shots keep missing it by a foot. Most athletes warm up to get the feel of the ground, the grass or the ice before a game. They find every bump.

* * * * * *

As for equipment, get the best you can and break it in right. A ball glove or lacrosse stick suitable for one guy is no good for another. Get suitable pads and uniforms, properly fitted and put 'em on so they won't shift or come loose in a slide or collision. Make sure the ball, bat or stick isn't slippery, lopsided or cracked. Check the wind and sun where it could concern you in a game. All these are mechanics of most games and are carefully checked by the star athletes, pro or minor. Such care pays dividends in the long run. Only the alibi artists are expected to blame their bats, sticks, gloves, etc., when they miscue. Chalk up before you shoot.

* * * * * *

Batty About Their Bats

Major league hitters are most fussy about their bats. Ofter have a set especially made for them. Want them maybe as light as 32 ounces or as heavy as 44, with the barrel a certain size and the handle tapered just so. They feel and fondle the club as though it were a bankroll, which, in a sense, it is. Furthermore, they keep experimenting till they get the right size and heft, and then they stick to that type. This is true in baseball, lacrosse and hockey, as well as other sports, and is a responsibility of the coach, manager, equipment chap and the players themselves. Wise athletes learn the fundamentals and mechanics of a game as well as the fine points. Others can't see the forest for the trees.

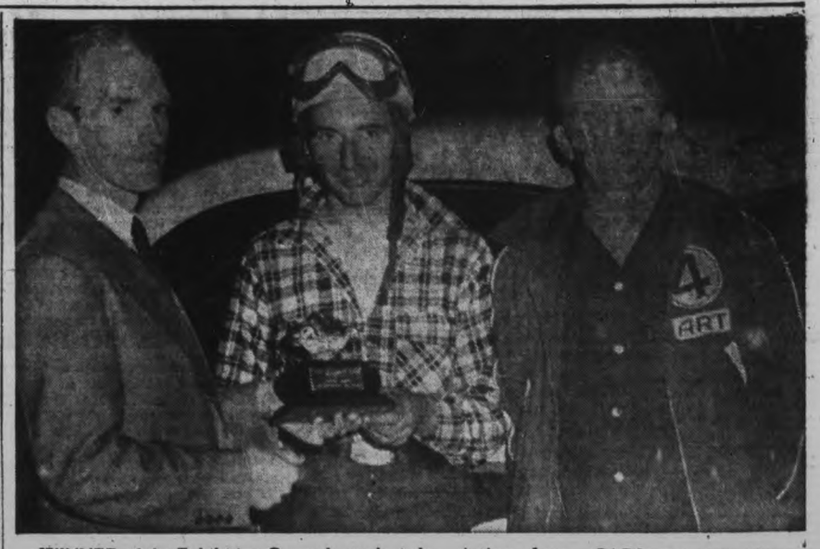
* * * * * *

Local Liflocs have good equipment for the diamond duels in the Lakeshore Baseball League and if they use this and their hustling, young ability to the utmost, they'll win a lot of games this summer. They're coming along good lately against stiff opposition. Colborne Dodgers won't be any soft touch here Monday night, but the Dalton crew gave them a real run for it under the Colborne lights last week and may take 'em this time. The boys are off to Cobourg today and could well wrap that one up, too. If Liflocs get the pitching, they will upset a lot of the classy intermediate clubs in this circuit. They're just juniors yet, but only a step or two away from being a good young senior squad.

* * * * * *

But Hard On The Nerves

That was a sort of thrilling teeter-totter OLA senior scrap here last night. First St. Kitts would get hotter than a hula's heels, and then the Petes would catch fire. 'Twas up and down on the score sheet several times before the Thorpe team emerged victorious 13-12 after a dandy duel by two classy clubs. Some 3,000 fans saw a sizzling struggle, similar to the 13-12 St. Kitts' win at home last week o'er the Trailermen. You can't make two games much closer than that, though Petes have the satisfaction of winning their tilt without overtime. Again it was chippy enough with several fist fights thrown in. In that respect, Petes won all three bouts on points. Huge Ham Nelson threw a quick punch once at an unsuspecting Dooteh Vitarelli, but when it was over, Ham had the gore dripping from his pan. Nip did okay, too.



* * * * * *

Locals were slow getting untracked and had to face a 5-1 deficit early in the second stanza. They got rolling then and earned the win, but this was definitely no cake-walk. We especially like the work on the attack of Don Ashbee, Ike Hildebrand and Bobby Thorpe, while our defence checked strongly, and Moon shone after the first part of the joust when Petes were all rather disorganized. Ross Powless and Harry Wipper clicked okay in spots, also. Moore, Howe, Smith and Nelson carried the main burden in front of Favelle for the Athletics. A few more frays like that and they'll have to enlarge Miler Bowl to handle the crowds. Petes go to Hamilton Monday and have the Tigers here next Friday. They'll be shooting for top spot this week.

Orioles Lash Rochester In 6-1 Triumph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore and Syracuse won the only two games played in the International Baseball League Friday night, Baltimore downing Rochester Red Wings 6-1 and Syracuse edging Springfield Cubs 5-4.

Two other games, Toronto at Montreal and Buffalo at Ottawa, were postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

At Rochester, left-hander Jocko Thompson, making his first start in a month after a bursitis operation, pitched the Orioles to an easy win in the opener of a four-game series.

GOES THE ROUTE

Thompson's first decision of the year saw him go the route and give up only five hits, all singles. He didn't allow a single walk and fanned three.

Loser was Ellis (Cot) Deal, who served a first-inning home run ball to Jack Mayo. The latter, recently optioned from the Phillies, cracked his circuit with two aboard and had five RBI's for the night.

At Syracuse, Hank Workman's single with two out in the 10th drove in the run that gave the Chiefs their victory over Springfield. All five of the Chiefs' runs were unearned as Don Elston suffered a tough loss.

Fergus Clips Orillia 13-12

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fergus Thistles scored five goals in the last four minutes of play in a senior Ontario lacrosse game to edge Orillia 16-15.

With the score tied 11-11 going into the last period, West Yorks got three counters in a row. However, five minutes before the final whistle, Don McPhail of Orillia got a penalty. While he was off, Fergus got four goals.

Bob Dobbie paced the Fergus team with four goals. Don Gear got three and Harry Kazarian, Jim Halls and Don Campbell scored two each. Ken Croft was best for Orillia with five.

Prospective Soccer Players Given Vocational Training

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadia Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Soccer in Britain isn't the dead-end occupation that it used to be.

Time was when a young player considering soccer as a full-time career had to weigh the fact that his post-playing days probably involved learning a new livelihood.

Now the Football Association and the Football League, in an effort to maintain player standards, are developing a vocational training scheme to give youngsters a trade while they learn the ins and outs of football.

"No one can call soccer a blind alley, vocationally, these days," says Tom Whittaker, manager of London's powerful Arsenal club in the league's first division.

MAY LEARN TRADES

"We are ready to teach youngsters a trade whether they want to be electricians, builders or mechanics."

Whittaker adds that it takes the right type of boy, of course.

J. R. Witty of the Football Association, closely connected with the vocational training scheme inaugurated since the end of the Second World War, has this to say about it:

"Too few youngsters, I fear, give the plan a thought when they enter football, but the way is open to them to think of an after-playing career and prepare for it with official backing.

"Through the F.A., they can be sent to a training college or institute and be prepared for a job or profession."

Witty says the association requires proof of progress.

GENEROUS CONTRIBUTION

But, after that is forthcoming, "we make a recommendation to the Football League and the costs of training are paid by the league."

One young player has received a grant to be articled as a solicitor. Several have obtained trade degrees.

There wasn't anything like the scheme before the war. Nor does every soccer player make the grade in football on the executive or training side.

Typical of those who do is Len Goulden, admittedly better qualified than most. A former international player selected 22 times to play for England, Goulden now is manager of Watford club in the southern section of the third division.

He's happy about the opportunity that soccer afforded him—so much so that he says he has no qualms about his 16-year-old son, Roy, following his footsteps.

Arsenal has accepted Roy as a ground employee, a usual step toward training young players, and will sign him when he comes of age.

At the best, however, a soccer player in Britain has nothing like the opportunity, financially at least of a professional in Canadian sports. Average weekly wage works out to about $35.

Compared with hockey, where players often can save enough to engage in business after their playing days, the financial returns are meagre.

Pep Scores TKO Over Marcune

NEW YORK (AP)—Wily Willie Pep, back in New York after a 20-month exile, swarmed over staggering Pat Marcune for a technical knockout victory in 14 seconds of the 10th round Friday night at Madison Square Garden. Pep weighed 127¾, Marcune 129½.

Pep piled up a wide early lead, tired down the stretch and then battered the stubborn Coney Island youngster in a furious flurry just before the bell ending the ninth round.

As Marcune sagged weakly against the post in a neutral corner Pep walked away.

It looked as if referee Pete Scalzo would stop it right then.

But Marcune staggered from his corner for the 10th to run into another barrage from the 30-year-old Hartford, Conn., veteran. Before further damage could be done, Scalzo halted the bout.

In the fifth Pep dropped Marcune for an eight-count with a beautiful right uppercut.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The entry for the first weekend doubles tournament was very good, and from what we could gather from the bowlers as we walked around the greens, they would like more of the same.

Furthermore, we believe it was a smart idea playing the two 10-end games. It makes a good evening's bowling—not too long, yet long enough to be enjoyed.

WINNERS

1—R. Hopkins and B. Worsencroft.
2—H. Schram and D. Anderson.
3—J. Fitzpatrick and H. Freeman.
4—H. Williamson and B. Jeffries.

And now tonight: At 7:30 we begin those popular Saturday tournaments, "The Family Hour." It's mixed rinks—draw from the board. The fee is small, the fun great, and the bowling and competition are of high order. Don't miss this tourney or you'll be sorry.

Note To U.S. Sports Fans:

Germans Can't Understand Game Of Cricket Either

BONN (Reuters) — Note to American sports fans: The Germans can't understand cricket, either.

The West German popular daily Der Mittag floundered about when it took on itself the task of explaining the mystery of "kricket" in 500 words.

"Kricket is a ball game played according to certain rules between two teams of 11 men each," it started off lamely.

"They compete in the open air about two sets of marking posts with a very hard leather ball about the size of a man's fist and two powerful clubs, known as bats.

"Someone throws the ball at one of the sets of posts and his opponent tries to hit it away. If he connects properly, the two strikers run criss-cross from one set of posts to the other, the more often the better.

The other side tries to catch the ball and throw it at the posts and the team which makes the most runs wins.

DON'T PLAY TO WIN

"But," said the German paper, "though every team tries to win they do not play kricket just to win.

"This sounds complicated but it is in fact just English. Cool dispassionate restraint, individual skill coupled with team spirit, patient waiting hour after hour for the right moment and then a lightning decision, above all correct behavior, that makes the good kricket-player."

Der Mittag claimed that "kricket" has become "an institution, a ceremonial cult, a mythical tradition," which resisted all encroachment from science and technique.

Yankees Blank Browns 5-0 Behind Johnny Sain

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

In 1948 Boston Braves won the National League pennant with a pitching staff of "Spahn, Sain and two days rain." Five years later that staff would still bring a fortune on the open market. The S-S men are split up now, Johnny Sain working for New York Yankees and Warren Spahn still with the Braves but calling Milwaukee instead of Boston home. Although on the shady side of 30 both are having great years. So are their ball clubs. If things keep up they might find themselves pitching against each other in a world series game.

Sain, the busiest pitcher on the Yankee staff, picked up his sixth victory and his first shutout Friday night against St. Louis Browns 5-0. He's started nine times, worked seven complete games, lost two and has an earned run average of 2.65.

GOOD AS NEW

Spahn, apparently as good as new after an early season injury, also won his sixth game Friday night, an 11-inning 3-2 struggle over Philadelphia Phillies in which he gave up only five hits. He's been beaten once in seven starts and has worked five complete games with an earned run average of 2.10.

Sain's victory extended the Yankees' winning streak to eight, their longest in two years. Spahn's success kept the Braves half a game ahead of Brooklyn Dodgers, who outlasted St. Louis Cardinals 5-4.

The revamped Chicago Cubs dropped an 11-1 verdict to New York Giants and Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 7-4 with Gus Bell hitting a pair of homers and a double.

Cleveland hung 5½ games back of the Yankees by winning a 10-inning 3-2 squeaker over Philadelphia Athletics while Washington took third place away from Chicago White Sox with an 8-4 victory featuring a grand-slam home run by Wayne Terwilliger.

RAIN WASHES OUT GAME

Rain in the third inning washed out Boston's game at Detroit. The Tigers were leading 1-0. All the games were played at night.

At Philadelphia the Braves twice came from behind to tie and then scored the winning run in the 11th on a walk, a sacrifice and a single by catcher Del Crandall. Del Ennis homered for the Phils.

Brooklyn took advantage of some loose St. Louis fielding to score four runs in the third inning. The Dodgers had scored once in the first but needed clutch pitching from Joe Black as the Cards rallied, scoring one run and getting the tying run on base in the ninth.

Ruben Gomez went the distance against the Cubs for New York and struck out 11 men in gaining his first Major League victory.

NOT MUCH OPPOSITION

The Browns didn't offer the Yankees much opposition. They aided the New York cause with five errors. Mickey Mantle hit his eighth home run with a man on.

Cleveland got the winning run home in the 10th against Philadelphia when Hank Majeski lofted a long outfield fly with the bases loaded and none out.

The fast slipping White Sox lost their fifth in a row as Washington built a 7-0 lead in the first four innings.

Big Bill Tilden Tennis Great Dies Suddenly

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Big Bill Tilden, who popularized the game of tennis in North America and was generally considered the sport's all-time master, is dead at 60, apparently of a heart attack.

The rangy ruler of the courts during the 1920s was found dead in his modest apartment Friday night by the building manager.

Acting fire Capt. O. V. Pratt, heading a rescue unit that was summoned, reported: "He was in bed, fully clothed. I found nothing to indicate death might have been caused by anything other than a heart attack."

Tilden had planned to leave today, the apartment manager said, to take part in a tournament at Cleveland. Still active as a player and instructor, he attended matches only last week at Balboa, Calif.

NO. 1 PLAYER

In a poll conducted by The Associated Press three years ago, Big Bill was chosen No. 1 tennis player of the half century.

In the 1920s he was one of the sports world's "big four" that included Babe Ruth in baseball, Bobby Jones in golf and Jack Dempsey in boxing.

He won the U.S. singles championships for seven years running and took his eighth national title in 1929. He and the late Little Bill Johnston of San Francisco became court heroes in 1920 when they brought back the Davis Cup from Australia. Throughout the decade Big Bill was the mainstay of U.S. Davis Cup teams.

In 1920, 1921 and 1930, Tilden won the singles championship on the famous centre court at Wimbledon.

TERRIFIC DRIVES

His terrific forehand drives, cannonball service and net kills attracted millions of followers. He changed tennis from a leisurely country-club diversion to a sport that won national attention.

On his 50th birthday in 1943, still good enough to give top players a hard run, Big Bill said: "I have played tennis ever since I was seven. It has been fun and my life has been jammed with excitement always and much happiness."

He was the first American to win at Wimbledon. Five times, with three different partners, he won the U. S. doubles crown.

He turned professional in 1931 and kept on winning in country-wide tours until Ellsworth Vines turned professional.

Curve Lake Wins

In an Industrial Fastball League fixture the night before last, Curve Lake racked up another victory, beating Mount Pleasant by a 6-5 count. The game was as tight as the score indicates, with good pitching and fielding seen on both sides. Teams:

Mount Pleasant: Dracup, C. Bryans, Mitchell, Hickson, K. Bryans, Giles, Hope, Crawford, Carr.

Curve Lake: H. Taylor, A. Taylor, J. Taylor, S. Taylor, J. Jacobs, D. Jacobs, N. Jacobs, Knott, Irons.

BREAKS MILE MARK

COMPTON, Calif. (AP)—Wes Stantee of Kansas bettered the U.S. mile record Friday night with a time of 4:02.4 in disposing of an international field. His time beat the record of 4:05.3, set by Gunder Haag in 1945.

Don't Know If Barrie Flyers To Play

BARRIE (CP)—The future of Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop was pretty much in doubt Friday as coach Hap Emms informed an OHA Junior A council that he still couldn't say whether the Flyers would operate next season.

The Flyers' executive was given until July 16 to make a decision. At that time a meeting of the council will be held to discuss the possible transfer of the Windsor Spitfires franchise to Hamilton.

Prior to the Junior A council meeting, the OHA executive awarded the Windsor franchise to manager Lloyd Pollock. Pollock applied for transfer of the Windsor franchise to Hamilton, where the club would like to operate next season. However, the Junior A council postponed a decision until July 16.

Emms said that while it was nice to win the Memorial Cup—Barrie won from St. Boniface Canadiens this year—he didn't believe that a club should have to pay from its own pocket to do so.

TEAM SALARIES HIGH

He disclosed that the Barrie club only realized $3,250 from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association playoffs.

Team salaries throughout that period amounted to $4,400, he said.

The Barrie coach proposed that from the time a club emerged from OHA playdowns, the CAHA take over, paying all expenses, including all salaries, and giving a certain amount to the club so that it would not have a deficit.

George Dudley, CAHA business manager, said he blamed the clubs themselves for any deficits that might have been incurred.

"You yourselves have made it too expensive to operate," he said. "Where is the OHA going to get the money to pay the salary list? The CAHA turns back all monies except that required to meet the association expenses."

A new CAHA rule passed allows Junior A clubs to operate affiliated clubs anywhere within the branch, one team in each category. Previously they could operate only in their own community.

FARE WELL

Northern Ontario teams, competing in the annual draft of players for the first time, fared well in the draw for players who had been sought by more than one team. Of nine players in that category, three were drawn by Kirkland Lake and one by Noranda.

The draw resulted in the following distribution:

Kenneth Gribbons, Scollard Hall Junior B. to Kirkland Lake; Patrick Hannigan, Schumacher Lions Juveniles, to Kirkland Lake; Grant Lockhead, Downsview Midgets, Toronto Hockey League, to Windsor; Edward MacQueen, Woodstock Junior B, to Kirkland Lake; Donald Nousseau, Timmins Lions juveniles, to Guelph; Florent Pilote Fort Erie Junior B to Galt; George Ranieri, Downsville midgets, THL, to Windsor; Robert Robinson, Woodstock Junior B to Noranda; Ronald Stenlund, Noranda juveniles, to Oshawa.

Singles Matches Hold Spotlight In U.S.-Canada Golf Matches

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada and the United States started out all even today to try to decide in singles what they couldn't settle in four-ball matches—all a part of the professional golf team matches for the Hopkins International Trophy.

The three foursomes playing best ball shared the honors with 4½ points for each country Friday over the soggy, rain-soaked Beaconsfield course. Six singles were scheduled for today and another six Sunday.

Ted Kroll and Tommy Bolt of the United States set a terrific pace down the back nine Friday to overhaul Stan Leonard and Dick Borthwick and take a one-up victory that was good for two of a possible three points.

Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon and his teammate Peter Thomson of Australia, playing for Canada, turned their second nine into a win on Thomson's birdie putt at the 18th green and took the major share of points. They beat Jack Burke, Jr., and Doug Ford one up.

SPLIT POINTS

Bobby Locke, the South African, teamed with Montreal's Bill Kerr and the pair split points, 1½ each, with Jim Turnesa and Ed Oliver.

The scoring basis is one point for each nine holes and one for 18 at match play. A minimum of 23 points during the three days of play decides the winner.

Kroll and Bolt were down three holes early in the match with Leonard and Borthwick, but cut the margin to two before they began their sensational drive down the back nine.

Leonard and Bolt supplied two of the finest shots of the day at the 15th, a 177-yard, par three. Bolt fired his tee shot less than a yard from the pin. Leonard, following him, dropped his shot about the same distance past and the back spin on the ball brought it back only a foot from the cup. The hole was halved in deuces.

Leonard, from Vancouver, and Borthwick from Hamilton, each picked up on one hole—Leonard at the 18th where he put his second shot into trees and had to play out.

Both Bolt and Kroll were down to par fives to halve the hole and take the match one up, scoring points for that and for taking the last nine.

FLETCHER STRONG MAN

Fletcher proved the strong man in his foursome, Thomson supplying the big finish with an eight-foot putt for a birdie four at the 18th. The Saskatoon player, Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion, had four birdies in all—more than any other player.

Burke and Ford sank birdies on the sixth to square things and count a point for the first nine by taking the seventh hole. There, only Ford was down in par four. Fletcher evened things with a birdie against pars at the 10th and all holes were halved to the 8th where Thomson came through with the putt that was good for two points—the Canadian team taking the second nine and the match.

Locke and Kerr each scored birdies to take the fifth and sixth holes after spotting Turnesa and Oliver the third on Turnesa's fine birdie three.

A 40-foot putt by Kerr halved the ninth hole. That allowed the Canadian team to take the full point for the first nine and ultimately to finish all square.

Zucchero Winner Of Coronation Cup

EPSOM, England (Reuters)—Zucchero, a temperamental five-year-old, Friday won the $1[illegible] Coronation Cup over 1½ miles from Wilwyn, winner of the Washington International Race at Laurel Park, Md.

Zucchero, who ran behind Wilwyn in that event, came from last place to first with a terrific burst of speed just when Wilwyn seemed to have his 20th victory in the bag.

Zucchero, 100-to-7 outsider, won by a length. Wilwyn was 9-to-4. Another 1½ lengths behind came the French-trained four-year-old Worden, an 8-to-1 shot.

Glamorgan Now In 2nd Place For Cricket Title

LONDON (Reuters)—Glamorgan climbed up to second place in the county cricket championship Friday, scoring a fine victory by an innings and 48 runs over Essex.

Champion Surrey moved into a clear lead of eight points in the table after their win in two days Thursday over Derbyshire. Hampshire, level with Surrey before the matches played no county match and dropped into third place.

From six games, Surrey has obtained 52 points, while Glamorgan has 44 from seven and Hampshire 40 from seven. Next comes Middlesex with 38, Gloucestershire with 36 and Northamptonshire with 30, all for seven matches.

Friday's final scores:

Somerset 319 and nine for no wicket, Middlesex 119 and 208. Somerset won by 10 wickets.

Gloucestershire 231 and 223 for eight declared, Combined Services 116 and 306. Gloucestershire won by 32 runs.

Oxford University 325 for five declared and 59, Hampshire 247 and 138 for five. Hampshire won by five wickets.

Worcestershire 70 and 204, Nottinghamshire 270 and seven for no wicket. Nottinghamshire won by 10 wickets.

Glamorgan 413, Essex 159 and 206. Glamorgan won by an innings and 48 runs.

Warwickshire 195 and 277 for five declared, Lancashire 278 and 59 for one. Match drawn.

Yorkshire 288 for six declared, Leicestershire 251, match drawn (neither side batted a second time).

Cambridge University 202 for nine declared and 150 for four declared, Northamptonshire 16 and 162 for six. Match drawn.

GAGNON TO DEFEND TITLE

QUEBEC (CP)—Fernando Gagnon, Canadian bantamweight boxing champion, will defend his title against Stan Almond of Vancouver at the Quebec Municipal Stadium June 22, it was announced Friday night.

Almond last week issued a challenge to Gagnon and the Quebecer decided to take it up for the first defence of his title in two years.

Promoter Paul Plamondon said he will have the fighters' signed contracts in hand Tuesday and will ask the Canadian Boxing Federation to sanction the 12-round bout.

Gagnon, 28, won the 118-pound crown from Eddy Petrin of Montreal, Aug. 26, 1946. He defended it three times: against Frankie Pucci, Toronto, May 17, 1948; Jackie Turner, Vancouver, Aug. 22, 1949; and Claude Meunier, Trois-Rivieres, Que., June 5, 1951.

TIGERS SHED PLAYERS

WATERLOO (CP)—Two players were released Friday by Waterloo Tigers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Dropped were Al Deluca of Detroit, described as a good fielder but a weak hitter, and veteran righthander Joe Yosuraj. The latter was leading pitcher in the Intercounty League in 1950 and 1951 but last season developed a sore arm. He has been ineffective since.

Two new Waterloo signers, pitcher Richard Sposato and Don Oberholzer, outfielder-pitcher, now are eligible to play and are expected to see action Monday night against Oshawa.

✦ ✦ ✦

BLAKE WILL COACH AGAIN

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP)—Hector (Toe) Blake, who announced his retirement as coach of Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Hockey League at the end of last season, has reconsidered and will coach the Braves again. Team president Arthur Vinet Friday night announced Blake has accepted a new contract.

✦ ✦ ✦

STAMPS SIGN FULLBACK

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary's football Stampeders announced Friday the signing of fullback John Henry Johnston to a contract. Johnston, a six-foot-one-inch, 215-pound Negro was one of the most sought-after gridders in the United States. After starring at St. Marys and Arizona, he was made the second draft choice of the NFL Pittsburgh Steelers.

HOMELY BUT FAST is this plywood Sea Sled designed and built by Carl Henry of Peterborough, shown above in the boat's stern seat. Despite its somewhat odd looks, the craft will plane up when powered by a five horsepower motor. Originally designed as a fisherman's boat, the Sea Sled has been picked up by outboard enthusiasts as a racing craft. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

City-Designed Plywood Boat Homely, Safe, Fast For Size

A small Peterborough plant is producing in limited quantity what is probably one of the homeliest, but one of the fastest and safest boats for its size on the market

It's a plywood craft with fir bulkheads, rubbing strips and keel-pieces. No hardwood is used in its construction.

Designed by Carl Henry with alterations made in the light of his father's (Victor Henry) experience, the boat's production is taking up more and more space and time as orders for it come to the plant.

Carl Henry, with Gordon Perry, operates a mill on north Aylmer St. that was established to make sash, storm doors and wood specialties.

Two years ago, Carl completed the design of his Sea Sled and began production. Last summer, the boat was entered in several races and did well in them, winning one particularly tough race for utility boats at Chemong regatta.

SIMPLE DESIGN

The boat Carl designed is a simple one. There are no tough curves to build into it, and the use of plywood and soft woods make it comparatively light for its length—13½ feet, 190 pounds.

There is very little difference in beam throughout the length of the craft; the bottom is flat and the bow is not pointed. The slight flare of the sides just aft of the deck is accomplished by dishing the bulkhead uprights slightly.

About two and a half feet in length, the deck is of grained plywood, with a foot-wide strip of rubber matting in the centre. Purpose of this is for ease in disembarking when there is no dock available; a passenger can walk off the deck onto shore with no difficulty.

The hull is quarter-inch plywood bonded with waterproof resin glue. The transom is of three-quarter-inch ply, with an extra thickness at the centre for outboard motor clamps to grip.

PLANES WITH 5 H.P.

As to its performance, Carl Henry says it is as fast or faster than any boat of its size, using similar motors. It will plane with a five-horsepower outboard and do 24 miles an hour with a 10-horsepower. That speed was double-checked against a car speedometer by running the boat beside the Chemong causeway.

Not a tippy boat, the Sea Sled will support a 240-pound man standing on the gunwale, says Carl.

Carl, who designed the boat, says: "I don't take all the credit for it. When I made the original design, I asked dad to take a look at it and he suggested a lot of changes."

The name of Henry in the boat building business is a well-known one in Lindsay and the country north of there. Victor Henry operated a boat business in that town for some years, and since he left there has worked in most boat factories in Peterborough.

TOGETHER AGAIN

Son Carl started in the boat business with his father shortly before the depression of the 30's began. Business was poor in those slack years and Carl went out on his own.

Together again, he and his father are building boats. The elder Henry is at present making a mold for a cedar strip craft, and has another mold in mind which he will build this fall.

The sash mill is turning more and more into a boat factory, and a boat factory with a good deal of experience to back it up. The Sea Sled is one example. Before long it may come out in a smaller, car-top model.

Pin-Up Boy In Ireland Is Great Horse Tulyar

By JAMES F. KING

DUBLIN (AP)—The new pin-up boy in Ireland is a horse.

"A day in the Life of Tulyar" is the rage of the Sunday supplements. What time does he get up in the morning? What does he eat—and drink? How does he behave?

And the easy-going four-year-old colt is regarded as virtually a national treasure.

The government has a heavy stake in the "wonder horse" who set a British record for winnings last year. He won seven big races, including the Derby at Epsom, St. Leger and the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes as Ascot.

COST $700,000

The Irish national stud has gambled $700,000 on Tulyar. Government critics called him a luxury the country can't afford—but government spokesmen defended the purchase as a good investment.

Tulyar was immediately retired from racing for breeding purposes. Horse breeding is big business in Ireland with the export trade in horses netting well over $8,000,000 a year.

Horse players, who regard Tulyar as just reaching his peak, were disappointed. His trainer,

Order Pirates To Leave Fence Alone

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Warren C. Giles, president of the National League, Friday ordered Pittsburgh Pirates to keep Greenberg Gardens intact for the balance of the 1953 baseball season.

The Pirates Thursday began removing the artificial barrier haven for home run hitters less than three hours after they peddled the National League home run king, Ralph Kiner, to Chicago Cubs in a 10-player swap.

Shortly after general manager Branch Rickey ordered the artificial barrier torn down, Giles asked the Bucs to withhold action until all clubs in the league could be polled.

In a telegram to Rickey Friday, Giles said an examination of the league's minutes in 1949 prohibits changing the limits of fences during the regular season.

The gardens were built in 1947 when Hank Greenberg, now general manager of Cleveland Indians, finished out his playing career with the Pirates. The artificial barrier cut the distance from home plate to the left field wall by 30 feet.

LUCIO CRISTIANI AND SISTERS CORKY AND HORTANS

THE CIRCUS IS COMING to Peterborough on June 17, when the King Bros. and Cristiani Combined Circus, one of the world's big amusement organizations, arrives. There will be 150 performers, and a street parade including camels and elephants will herald the show which is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Fairy Fantasy Opens Circus Sponsored By Kiwanis Club

The King Bros. and Cristiani Combined Circus, one of the world's big amusement organizations, will be in Peterborough on June 17.

More than 150 performers representing the best talent obtainable from the five continents of the world are to be seen with the big show this season.

As a prelude to the circus performance, a gloriously enchanting and stupendous spectacle entitled "La Persia," a gorgeous fantasy, is unfolded. To those who love fairy lore, it far exceeds in magnificence, brilliancy, gorgeousness and beauty the glories of any spectacle yet staged by this circus. There will be dancing girls; great companies of trained singers, orchestras of vast size, grand golden-toned organs and the crash of cymbals. Yet this colossal production which daily amazes thousands, is but one feature of the King Bros. and Cristiani Combined Circus.

The internationally famous Cristiani family of riders with Lucio, the celebrated comedian, come from Europe to thrill and amaze you, along with the Jordan Chamberty Troupe, aerialist, and Hugo Zacchinni, shot from the mouth of a cannon 220 feet and Cannestrelli, the juggling marvel. Clowns headed by Jo Jo Lewis, Brownie Gudath, Frank Slivers, Fred Yale, will furnish fun for the little folks. King Bros. and Cristiani troupe of dancing horses, ridden by feminine riders will be seen.

There are 600 people with the big show which recently returned to America after a tour of South America. The 150 performers represent eight foreign countries. Twenty-two tents covering 12 acres of ground are used to house the transient city which at night is transported from town to town upon two special convoys.

The clean business methods and the magnitude of this great traveling enterprise have always made the King Bros. and Cristiani Circus welcome visitors to this community. This marvel, super show of 1,000 wonders, represents an immense investment.

The performances will be given at 2:30 and 8 p.m. The doors will open an hour earlier to permit an inspection of the immense zoo or to enjoy a concert of popular and operatic music by Prof. Lee Hinckley's military band.

A spectacular street parade with trumpeting bands, tooting calliopes, cumbersome elephants and humping camels will take possession of the downtown streets at 11:30 a.m. It will be the first old time circus parade staged here in 20 years.

Killed By Truck

OSHAWA (CP)—Edward Shannon 4, was killed Friday night when a truck backed over a wagon with which he and another child were playing, police said. The other child was not severely hurt.

PARTING SHOT—Andrei Vishinsky, chief USSR delegate to the United Nations, cups his hand over his mouth for a few well-chosen words of farewell from the liner Queen Elizabeth in New York. Rumors for his return to Russia varied widely, from his wife's illness to the Kremlin's plan to reassign him.

Reds Begin New Propaganda Drive On Canadian Troops

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—The Communists have begun another propaganda drive on Canadian and other Commonwealth soldiers here.

The latest campaign resembles efforts last Christmas and again during April, when the Communists tried various "man-to-man" techniques.

It began May 23 and saw the enemy even hoist Canada's Red Ensign over their own forward positions, and make overtures toward an exchange of war dead.

As dawn lightened the valley of no man's land between Canadian and Communist positions, the enemy's propaganda displays were revealed ahead of the 3rd battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

In two positions, 600 yards away from the Canadians, were large five-foot white placards, each bearing one huge letter of the word "peace." A red flag waved above them in the morning breeze. Flanking on the left was a green flag, a yellow one on the right.

In another place similar placards spelled out "Be wise."

MESSAGE TO CANADIANS

About 7:15 a. m. a loudspeaker amplifier beamed a voice, addressing a message to the Canadians.

Capt. Jack Dehart of Calgary, a forward observation officer for the battery if 81st field regiment, RCA, supporting the Van Doos, heard the Communists saying:

"There are some corpses. We want you to come and get them and bury them as soon as possible. There are four conditions:

"1. You must carry white flags.

"2. You must not go beyond the place where the corpses are.

"3. You must not fire on us.

"4. You must come between 8 a. m. and noon.

"Canadian soldiers! Peace is the most precious thing in the world. . .

"Come down and we will have a pow-wow in the valley."

Two hours later the loudspeaker announced:

"We are coming out with a white flag to the river. Do not shoot."

Brig. Jean Allard, 25th Canadian ordered fire held. There was no intention of permitting a "pow-wow" with the Communists. But headquarters did want to see whether any Chinese actually would approach under a white flag, or whether any bodies would be produced.

Unfortunately the Canadians' silence was broken by a tank. Its crew maintained the order had not reached it. No Chinese came and so it is not known whether the move was a ruse, or whether they were put off by the thank fire.

As the Canadians waited, Maj. William Pearce of Petawawa, Ont., brigade public relations officer, went to a forward position with a photographer, to get pictures of the Chinese and their flags.

While studying the Communists "shop window" through binoculars, Pearce discovered the red flag was not merely red, it was Canada's Red Ensign.

That set headquarters theorizing.

The propaganda outburst might have been connected with Victoria Day. Such a move, however, would have been more obviously pointed up by the Communists in their messages, it was felt.

It is believed they merely wanted to emphasize that they knew they were facing Canadian troops and that their message was for them.

The program, with appropriate variations, has subsequently switched to other elements in the Commonwealth division.

Daily Worker True To Form On Coronation

BY DON COOK

(New York Herald Tribune News Service)

LONDON.—The voice of the London "Daily Worker" this coronation season has, in the midst of a press orgy of patriotic outpourings, remained shrill and true to the tenets of Marxism. In the daily "Worker's" view, the whole coronation affair has been nothing but an opiate administered by the ruling class to get the minds of the British people off their struggle for Socialism.

"Long live the people," the "Worker" proclaimed in an eight-column banner on coronation morning. It was with some distaste and reluctance that the "Worker" announced four months ago that it was going to cover the coronation as a news event, and it set to work getting the comrades in the proper frame of mind with an elevenpart series, "The Truth About the Coronation."

PEOPLE BAMBOOZLED

It fell to Harry Pollit, Communist party leader in Britain, to produce the story which led the paper on coronation day. He wrote:

"The 'great day' is here. For months, the preparations for the crowning of a young queen today have been made the occasion to confuse and bamboozle the people. They have been used to try to divert the people's thoughts from the struggle for higher wages, for ending imperialist adventure in Korea, Malaya and Africa; and to try to get them to look upon the Tory party as their party.

"But there are still millions of British citizens who have not been deceived or bamboozled. They have quietly watched what has been going on, and in such homes today they will be asking 'What good has it all done?' "

MARXIST ANALYSIS

The final article in the "Worker's" "truth" series was devoted to a Marxist analysis of the coronation ceremony, which, the article said, is designed to make class rule, through the monarchy, appear sacred.

"Monarchy is a particular historical form of class rule," the "Worker" said. "It has its roots in providing a justification for the ruling class. Its whole strength is drawn from class privileges. It is acclaimed and accepted by those magnates it has always represented. This therefore, is the real basis for the archaic ritual of the coronation service. Only a class that has something to hide needs to act like this. That is why Socialism, where there is no exploitation, has no need for monarchy."

CLASS STRUCTURE

On the day after the coronation, the "Worker" reported events as having "unconsciously showed up Britain's class structure."

"Great financial magnates and the nobility were in the Abbey; the well-to-do were in the expensive covered stands. The ordinary people stood weary and footsore, but cheerful, on the pavements. Because of the intensive press ballyhoo, members of the crowd who had endured a long wait were somewhat disappointed at the procession.

"It was not so grand as they had been led to expect."

The "Worker" liked the fact that on television, "for once there was news with no Americans visible."

The paper also proudly reported that it had sold 200,000 extra copies in the crowd on coronation day, adding "not to follow this up and win them as regular readers."

Falls Down Mountain

HAMILTON (CP)—Isobel Smith, 46, fell more than 100 feet down Hamilton mountain Friday night. She was brought to the top by police and firemen who worked an hour and was admitted to hospital with undetermined injuries. Police said she fell at a dark section of the mountain top in East Hamilton where there is no fence.

Fluid Milk Sales Up

TORONTO (CP)—More fluid milk was sold during March than in the same period a year ago, the Ontario agriculture department says in its monthly dairy report. Total wholesale and retail sales in March this year were 37,930,000 quarts at an average price of 21 cents, compared with 37,417,600 quarts at 20.9 cents in March, 1952.

Latvian Given Licence Despite Dispute

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Dr. Rota Snikeris, a Latvian refugee and centre of a long controversy on European and Canadian dental standards, has been licensed to practise here despite objections of the Newfoundland dental board.

Health Minister PM Forsey overruled the board in granting the permission to Mrs. Snikeris, wife of a Latvian engineer who came to Canada more than a year ago.

At one point in the dispute the board threatened to resign and the legislature quickly passed legislation which would have given Mr. Forsey power to assume all its functions.

The board said that European dentists coming to Canada usually require an additional two years' training before they are fully qualified to practise under the Canadian standard.

CLOSED SHOP

The government said there were far too few dentists in Newfoundland—one for each 15,000 persons. There were hints that the board might not be impartial and was trying to act like a trade union trying to enforce a closed shop.

The board quoted several prominent Canadian dental authorities to back his arguments. Among them:

Dr. J. Stanley Bagnall, dean of the Dalhousie law school in Halifax:

"They (European graduates) do not know our clinical methods and are still doing things which carry so grave a risk to the health of the individual that they have been banned in this country for a long time."

Dr. L. Gross of the Canadian Dental Association:

". . . It would not be fair to turn them loose on the public."

Dr. W. S. Hamilton, dean of the dental faculty, University of Alberta: "We have graduated four Latvians to date, and in each case it required four years' training."

HEART ATTACK FATAL

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jack Blight of Bothwell died Friday night shortly after suffering a heart attack while being driven to his home from Guelph, where he was a watchman with the Scott-Jackson Construction Co. Mr. Blight, about 60, suffered the seizure on No. 4 Highway.

Two Teachers Resign Norwood Staff

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Two resignations from the teaching staff of the Norwood District High School, both effective June 30, were received and accepted at a meeting of the board.

The teachers leaving the staff are Miss Constance Brummel and Miss Mary O'Brien

A letter was received from the Department of Education regarding a teaching permit for Mrs. W. L. Turpin stating that the board would receive further information on this matter.

A cheque for $45.92, a grant from the Department of National Defence, was received from Capt. T. Evans, Cadet Training Officer.

DOURO PUPILS

A reply was received from E. Carlow, clerk of the elementary school in Douro, disclaiming responsibility for the transportation of Douro township pupils to the high school at Norwood. The matter has been referred to the parents of the pupils.

The profit and loss statement for the cafeteria for May was as follows: Sales $444.90; purchases $279.95, goods on hand May 1, $173.21, cost of goods sold $318.16, net profit $125.91 bank balance, $374.68.

Principal Caskey's report for May was as follows: Enrolment, grade 9, 124; grade 10, 57; grade 11, 25; grade 12, 22; grade 13, 15, total 243. The average attendance was 227.5, the percentage to a perfect aggregate 93.44. Twenty-two pupils are going to register for farm service, Accounts totalling approximately $1,800 were passed.

GROUNDS GRADED

Trustee E. T. Buck, chairman of the property committee, said the grounds are almost completely graded. The old Pearce building has been removed and grounds levelled, presenting a much improved appearance from the fair grounds and the street and that he expected the hot water storage tank certificate to arrive in a few days.

(Mr. Buck also reported the boiler used to heat the school during the winter was found to have dirty and corroded tubes, which were being looked after. A flag mast has been erected and a flag purchased.

The record of the forming of the high school district and the erection of the new school has been put into pamphlet form to the number of 500. Secretary H. W. Roche was thanked by the board for the work he had done in connection with the pamphlet. Mr. Roche said he had been glad to do this work at the request of Mr. Buck who had been chairman for four years during the organization of the district and the building of the school.

Trustee K. Ross, chairman of the transportation committee reported that he, with Trustee C. McConnell, arranged for the transportation committee with bus drivers Robert Parcels and Robert Brooks to bring Belmont students from Oak Lake, South Lake, Round Lake and North school area into Norwood instead of transferring at Round Lake and Havelock as heretofore.

Mr. Parcels' mileage per day will be 90 miles at 20 cents a mile. Mr. Brooks will have 60 miles at 25 cents a mile. It is estimated that 10 pupils will travel in the Parcels' bus and 15 on the Brooks' bus.

Due to heavy financial requirements to cover maintenance and operation and as the government grants will not be available until October, it was decided to appeal to the municipalities within the district, who are collecting taxes now and at midsummer, to pay a portion of their levies to the board and thus save the taxpayers a considerable sum in interest charges.

FIRST TOUR—Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh wave to cheering crowds as they make their first public tour following the solemn Coronation Day. The royal couple rode through Aldwych and Soho en route to Northeast London.

Judge Rejects Request For Injunction

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, today rejected a request for an injunction to stop the Winnipeg Tribune from publishing a cash-giveaway contest called "Telequiz" in the daily newspaper.

The request for an injunction was made by Edward C. Sargent, an advertising executive from Owen Sound, who claims the Winnipeg sales promotion scheme is an infringement of his copyrighted contest called "Jumbo Jackpot."

Hearings by the court on the civil case are to come up later. Mr. Sargent, 37-year-old former Owen Sound mayor, has asked the court to set damages at a minimum of $25,000.

Mr. Sargent is charging infringement of copyright against the Southam Co., Tribune publishers; Fred Auger, Tribune editor; and Shop-Easy Stores and Jewel Stores, two Winnipeg retail food concerns.

Mr. Justice Thorson, in his comment to the court, said he believed that a copyright does not cover an idea, scheme or arrangement, but only the expression of that idea, scheme or arrangement.

He did not agree that a prima facie case had been made that there had been infringement of that expression.

Date for a court hearing on the civil charge will be set later when the defence has had an opportunity to file complete argument, Mr. Justice Thorson said.

RUN OVER, LIVES

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Nancy Lyles, 25, trapped on a trestle, flattened herself between the rails Friday as a passenger train thundered over her. She escaped with nothing more than a few scratches, and still clutched the paper bag containing her lunch which she was taking to work.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford
Former Governess to Her Majesty

© 1952 BY PRENTICE HALL INC. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

XXVIII

Queen Mary broke through much of the red tape which surrounded a woman of the Royal Family. Queen Elizabeth has followed in her grandmother's footsteps and gone a good deal further.

At the age of 16 she insisted on being allowed to join the ATS, and there obtained a valuable insight into the lives of other women, a knowledge she could never have picked up from a lifetime of tours and inspections.

From the first she has been interested in the problems which confront people outside palace walls. She has a deep concern for the underprivileged.

She hates to think of people suffering, or being denied sustenance or comfort.

Although as Queen she must remain above politics, it is certain that she will always keep an eye open for the rights of the individual.

Then, after those invaluable months in the Army, where for the first time the public read of a Princess lying on her back in oil-stained overalls, tinkering with the engine of a lorry, she married Prince Philip.

That was a love match comparable with any in fiction. It is a beautiful and wonderful thing that Queen Elizabeth should have found in the man she loves a new and refreshing source of contact with the people she will rule over.

The Duke of Edinburgh's life has not been led behind cloistered walls. He has lived always among men of action, whose thoughts and feelings he can translate to the Queen, giving her an insight she would never have been able to gather in any other way.

There is no doubt that the position of the Throne has undergone great development and expansion in the past 50 years. Britain's Royal Family have gone through some hard times in the history of the past few centuries. Never have they been so loved and so much part of their people's lives as they are today

* * *

When they visited South Africa on that triumphal tour of 1947, such was their charm that even the Republican critics who most keenly attacked them, were silenced by it and completely won over.

Queen Elizabeth has that natural dignity so necessary to a position which makes her the centre of all eyes wherever she goes, she has the charm and personality which make people warm to her as a person regardless of her rank, and she has a profound background knowledge about the meaning of her position in the world.

I often used to think, as I watched Princess Elizabeth leading a long line of dancers round the Palace ballrooms during those informal evening parties she so enjoyed, that this was an entirely new view of Royalty.

Not for her the distant dignity which makes the Throne a thing of awe, and sometimes terrifying. She prefers that human approach more in keeping with the times and her own modern temperament.

Queen Victoria loved to dance herself, and certainly did so with her beloved Prince Consort, but can you imagine her so throwing off the solemnity of her position as to lead a cheerful romp of that nature? I cannot. In every way Queen Elizabeth's nature proves her to be a Woman of Her Time.

She insisted that her husband should be allowed to rejoin the Navy and continue the career he loved rather than stay at home and help her with her manifold duties.

It would not be hard to visualize Queen Elizabeth as Mrs. Montbatten, an entertaining sort of person, easy to please, ready to laugh, invariably considerate of the feelings of others. I see her as an excellent housewife and mother. Whatever she does, she does well.

And then, with a humanity which warmed many hearts, she flew out to him as soon as she could to catch for a little while the delight any wife takes in her husband's presence.

All this places her in an entirely personal position in British hearts. No one can feel about her that she is just a figurehead. She is too alive, too warm, too vital ever to be thought of in that way.

There are many State duties on the highest level which the Queen has to perform. All State documents must be signed by her. It is part of the law of the land that no Statute passed by Parliament is legal until signed by the Sovereign.

* * *

And though the Queen cannot refuse to sign she will no doubt exercise the power of advice and suggestion so often used by her Royal ancestors.

Each sovereign in turn, from his permanent status and his long knowledge of affairs of State, commands a wide area of experience.

Crises have come and gone and our Kings and Queens throughout the years have known how to deal with them.

A distinguished South African said, after observing Princess Elizabeth throughout the Royal Family's tour of the dominion: "If there are still Queens when she comes to inherit the Throne, I think she will make the greatest one of all . . ."

And this, to me, is Elizabeth, the Queen of our time.

The End

Canada Asks Briton Run Naval Aviation

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is calling in another Briton to run her naval aviation.

It was announced Friday that Commodore Walter Leslie Mortimer Brown, DSO, OBE, DSC, a Royal Navy officer for 29 years, has been appointed assistant chief of naval staff (air).

That makes him boss of the navy's air arm, a job that has been entrusted to Britons since it was formed in the post-war years because of lack of such experience among Canadian officers.

He succeeds another RN officer, Commodore Lindsey Keighly-Peach, DSO, OBE.

Have 781,747 Presbyterians

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians who describe themselves as Presbyterians number 781,747, a report presented to the 79th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada said Friday.

The report added that, because many Presbyterians are now members of the United Church, there has been a drop of 48,850 from the census figure of 1941.

"After 1925, (when the United Church was formed) many United Church members and adherents continued to describe themselves as Presbyterians, thus adding to the total reported in the census.

"As the older generation passed away and a younger generation has given the census information, there has been an apparent increase in United Church member-adherents and an apparent decrease in Presbyterian member-adherents. What has actually occurred is a clarification of status. Neither element has varied to the extent suggested by census returns."

Outlines System For Overseas Mail

OTTAWA (CP)—Postal advice for Canadians sending mail to wives of servicemen abroad: Send your letters to them at civilian adresses.

The army said Friday only mail to the servicemen themselves is entitled to the lower rates and other privileges now in effect. Any mail to their families is not entitled to those benefits.

Plan Indoor Comfort Schools

TORONTO (CP)—The National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning Association will continue to hold a series of five-day indoor comfort schools across Canada.

C. B. Taylor, managing director of the association, said at the annual convention Friday schools held so far have proved successful. Their object is to bring contractors up to date on air conditioning and heating techniques.

Officials said the schools are part of the association's program to raise the level of air conditioning and heating work in Canada. Another part is the support of research at Queen's University.

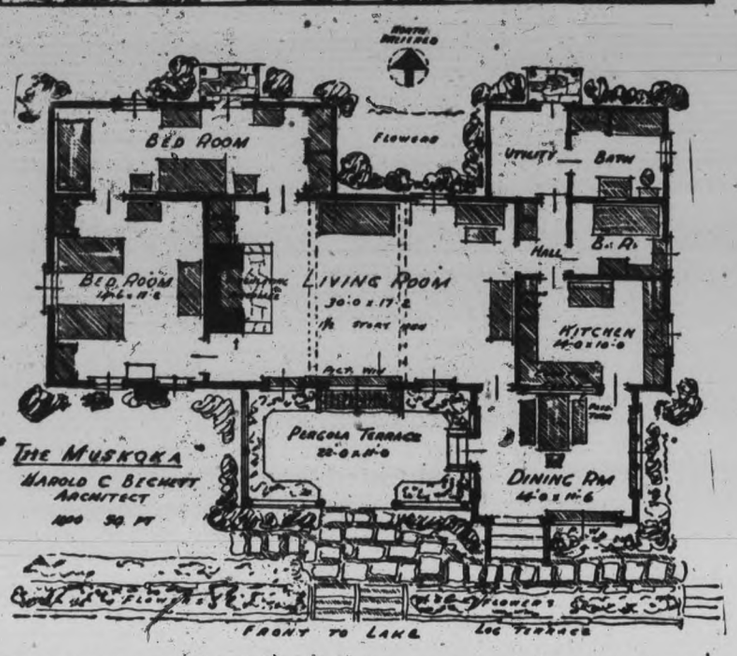
The entire executive was re-elected.

Officers include C. E. Israel, Woodstock and F. A. Sheldon, Preston, vice-president.

To Spend $350,000 On New Ferry, Docks

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario highways department announced Friday that more than $350,000 will be spent on a new ferry and docks at Adolphustown and Glenora on Highway 33, about 25 miles southeast of Belleville.

The department said work is already under way on the docks and tenders have been called on the 12-car ferry.



The double-ended ferry will be the second to operate the one-mile route across the Adolphus reach, which links Prince Edward county with the mainland. Powered by a 300-horsepower diesel motor, the ferry will measure 92 feet and will carry 70 passengers.

Choose Your Builder Wisely Important To Home Owner

THE MUSKOKA—When summer homes are located in north country, it is usual that they overlook a lake and in most cases there is a gradual ascent from the water line to the house site which permits an attractive landscaping development with artistic rustic terraces and an abundance of flowers which thrive in the brilliant sunshine and cool nights. The plan of the Muskoka is flexible. It features a large central living room with picture windows which would be shaded by the open timbers of a rustic cedar pergola. The back bedroom is conveniently arranged to provide access to the rear garden and also to carry logs through to the fireplace. Suggested exterior material is cedar shakes or log siding stained and varnished. This is another in the series of practical and artistic homes designed by Harold C. Beckett, architect, 52 Chatham St. W., Windsor, Ontario.

The selection of a builder is an important step in the process of becoming a home owner. With the right builder your headaches are at a minimum . . . so take the time to find a man or firm with a sound reputation.

There are several ways to choose a reputable, responsible, experienced builder:

(a) Your mortgage lending institution will usually have a very good idea of the calibre of the work done by local builders.

(b) If your city has a local association of home builders you can call the executive officer and inquire about builder members. Members of the National Association of Home Builders which has over 1,000 members in local associations, adhere to a strongly worded code of ethics which assures the public of high standards.

(c) Lumber yards and material dealers know the relative merits of a community's builders. If you can get one to talk about his customers, you will find a mine of information.

(d) Undoubtedly the best check of all is the number of satisfied customers for whom a builder has erected houses that have stood the test of years of useful life with low maintenance and repair costs.

SEE OTHER JOBS

Visit past projects erected by the builder. Talk with people for whom he has built. New owners are inclined to be critical of their builder, so kind words and apparent satisfaction speak volumes.

Seek a building firm which has an abundance of good, modern equipment, of mechanical tools that are time and labour savers. The care a builder gives to materials delivered to the job site and waiting for use tells much. Window frames and sash, interior doors, and kiln-dried lumber for trim should be stored under a roof.

Timbers and rough lumber should be stacked carefully to avoid the warping that inevitably results if it is left as it falls when carelessly tossed off a truck.

FEW POINTERS OFFERED

You will have a close relationship with your builder for months. Exercise the same care in getting along with him that you use in your regular business dealings. The following pointers will help:

(a) Don't expect more from him than your agreement calls for. You have the same right to expect him to carry his agreement to the letter that he has to look to you for the agreed payments—that, and nothing more.

(b) Assume that he is honest and capable, until proved otherwise.

(c) Don't expect the same progress on the work in bad weather as in good. Delays cost the builder money. He is undoubtedly as anxious to finish your house and move on to his next job as you are to move into the new home.

(d) Reduce all extras(outside the scope of the original plans) to writing, and clear them with the builder or his sales agent.

(e) Never complain, or attempt to issue instructions, to the builder's workmen or sub-contractors. They recognize only one boss, the builder, even though in the last analysis you are footing the bills.

(f) If you insist on making inspections, make them after working hours. By all means avoid interference with the work by too frequently conducting the whole family and a host of friends on sightseeing tours during the working day.

While the building operation may be a great adventure packed with emotional thrills for you, try to remember that it is routine, bread-and-butter business to the builders.

SABRE JET CRASHES

ST. CLEOPHAS, Que. (CP)—An RAF F-86 Sabre jet crashed Friday in a field between this town 60 miles northwest of Montreal and St. Felix de Valois, killing the pilot. RCAF officials said the name of the British pilot will not be released until next of kin have been notified.

MANASSAS MIXUP—The caboose of a freight train lies in a twisted heap on the nose of Diesel locomotive near Manassas, Va., following a crash in which the "Peach Queen" passenger train rammed into the standing freight. Two trainmen were killed, eight passengers injured.

Holdup Suspects Remanded To June 21

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Thomas Cahill, 29, and his 31-year-old wife, Charlotte, were remanded until June 21 when they appeared in court here Friday in connection with the daylight holdup of a Royal Bank of Canada branch at Portland, 26 miles northwest of here.

The couple did not enter a plea. Bail was set at $5,000 each.

Cahill is charged with armed robbery while his wife is charged as an accomplice. More than $4,000 of the loot was found in their home at Smiths Falls.

SENTENCED TO LIFE

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Etienne Michaud, 46, was sentenced Friday to life imprisonment for the hammer-slaying of his wife last March at Riviere des Prairies. At his trial Michaud said he acted in self-defence when his wife attacked him with a hammer. The jury returned a reduced verdict of manslaughter and recommended clemency.

Push Naziism Five Convicted

DORTMUND (Reuters)—A house painter and four other Germans were convicted today of heading a secret 40-man organization aimed at restoration of the Nazi regime. They were sentenced to prison terms ranging from six to 14 months. Two men were acquitted.

The tiny movement had established branches through the industrial Ruhr and was said to have had contacts with Fascist circles in Spain and Italy. The movement started with a benefit association of Nazis interned after the war.

Chief defendant was house-painter Emil Kritzler, 61, accused of seeking to promote the aims of another house-painter, Hitler. The court said the ideas of all five men on how to seize power in Germany were "obviously foggy."

Thousands Take Part In Mock Atom Bomb Attack

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—An imaginary atomic bomb exploded 1,700 feet above the city of Niagara Falls at 5:15 p.m. EDT Friday, setting off a civil defence drill involving thousands of U.S. and Canadian volunteers.

Fire and rescue units from Niagara, Genesee and Orleans counties in this country, and from Welland and Lincoln counties in Canada, poured into the presumably-stricken city.

M. Bradley Norton, Niagara Falls CD director, called the exercise "the first truly international civil defence movement in which Dominion and U.S. resources and manpower are pooled in a single operating unit, with international borders wiped away."

Official spectators included Val Peterson, federal CD administrator, and Gen. F. F. Worthington, Canadian CD chief.

Worthington declared that "preparedness, through a good civil defence organization, will have more effect to deter an enemy attack than anything else."

An emergency newspaper went to press under the "Niagara contract" an agreement among the newspaper and radio stations of the area executed a year ago. Under the agreement, the personnel of the papers and stations operate during such an emergency under the local CD director.

The emergency edition, a one page tabloid, was printed in St. Catharines, Ont., and was flown into Niagara Falls by the civil air patrol.

Still Surveying Tornado Damage

TORONTO (CP)—Tornado damage in southwestern Ontario still is being surveyed and when the picture is pieced together the Ontario government will be in a position to discuss with municipal organizations "such practical measures as may be necessary for rehabilitation," acting Premier George Doucett said Friday.

"In many instances, insurance will prove an ameliorating factor," he said.

So far, the province has given 15,000 man-hours of skilled labor, along with engineering service, to Lambton, Middlesex, Oxford and Perth counties, hit by the twister May 21.

For service to Sarnia and the townships of Sarnia, Warwick, East Williams, London, Downie, South Easthope, West Zorra and East Missouri, the highway department supplied 16 chain saw and lumbering operators, 20 heavy trucks with operators and crew of 15 each in some townships; six bulldozers; low bed floats and many small trucks and loaders.

Big Revenue

LONDON (CP)—J. A. Boyd-Carpenter, financial secretary to the treasury, told a questioner in Parliament that the estimated loss to the treasury if the tax on beer was reduced by a penny a pint would be about £25,000,000 a year.

New Bathroom Fixtures Far Cry From Old

In bygone years Americans spoke of their homes as having "five rooms(more or less), and a path." Then along came some ingenious fellow (or fellows) who dreamed up bathrooms, and the path moved into the home. Since then fellows of that stripe have come a long way on the slogan, "Build a Better Bathroom."

It would be well to look into what they've accomplished if you intend to modernize your present bathroom, or if you're building a new home and want to have "nothing but the best" in the bathroom.

Let's take a look at fixtures, using the bathtub and shower as the first examples.

Bathtubs are more compact, attractive and far safer than ever before. They are made in a variety of shapes— some are even square— in sizes from 42-by-31 inches to five feet by 30 inches, and may be fitted in corners or end walls. The better tubs have a raised edge on the side toward the wall to help prevent seepeage of water into the wall.

Showers of course, may be over the tub or in separate cabinets. Prefabricated shower cabinets are a coming thing because they are versatile; ideal for installation in bathrooms, attics, basements and garages in spaces as small as 32 inches square and 76 inches high.

There is something new in shower heads, too. They are nonclogging and adjustable to the spray you prefer. Mixing valves are improved and provide either thermostatic control of water temperature, one-valve mixing control, or a two-valve control for manually tempering the water.

Water closets are of three main types— the wash-down, the reverse trap and the siphon jet. The first mentioned is least expensive, while the latter costs most and is, naturally, the best. Most recent innovation in water closet design is the one-piece unit which can be placed away from a wall for cleaning ease.

Modern washbasins offer the maximum amount of usable space. The best ones have a large amount of flat space or built-in shelves. Like bathtubs, washbasins vary greatly in style and size, one of the more popular being D-shaped. Some basins are wall-hung, others have glass or chromium-plated legs.

Basins most preferred today have two valves— for hot and cold water— and one spout to permit tempering of water. The better faucets have light, finger-tip control action and improved valve mechanism for greater durability and precision. Good quality valves are well worth the slight extra price.

Designers have overhauled bathroom accessories, too. One convenient safety feature is the bathtub grab-bar to aid bathers out of the tub.

Medicine cabinets have grown up. One of the newest is the illuminated wing cabinet, which boasts indirect lighting concealed behind each wing in such a way that light shines through frosted portions of the wing mirrors. It gives perfect illumination from all angles.

The finest cabinets are made of seamless porcelean or seamless baked enemal trimmed with chromium-plated brass and have mirrored doors, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

WHEN OLD-TIMERS fondly reminisce that "those were the days," they aren't talking about the scene at left, above.

COUNTY COUNCIL MEET

Members of the equalization and assessment committee finished a number of meetings this week, to draw up the assessment for county purposes of the 1. townships and the three villages in Peterborough County. The assessment will be announced at the June session of the county council that begins next Wednesday, June 10.

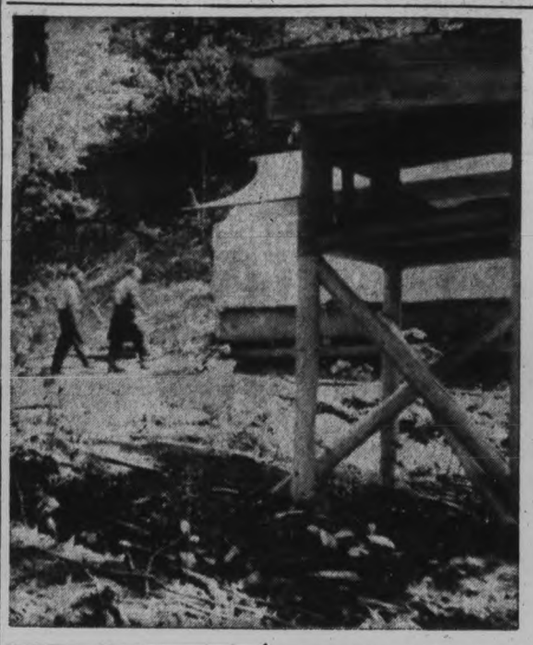
Market Offers New Vegetables

Radishes, cucumbers, asparagus and various bunches of other garden vegetables were the biggest sellers on the open market this morning, as local farmers and jobbers crowded the square with their trucks and stands crammed with home-grown articles.

Flowers were the second biggest seller, with boxes of pansies being sold on every jobber's stand. Another popular flower was lupins and bunches of mixed flowers selling for 50 cents.

Seventy-five-pound bags of certified potatoes were selling for $2.50 and table stock $2 a bag. Farmers were asking 60 cents for grade A oversize eggs and 55 cents for large. Bunches of onions and radishes were being sold for five cents. Golden brown maple syrup was selling for $5 a gallon, and was another big seller on the market.

Biggest buy to those who were interested were five milk-fed pigs being offered for $18 and several home made collapsible lounge chairs at $4.50.



May Change Name

MUNICH (AP)—A movement to change the name of Dachau, site of an infamous Nazi concentration camp, is reported under way today. The Munich Merkur says Dachau officials are once more considering a change and added: "It is unbearable that peaceful citizens of a small town should have to atone forever for the sins of other people."

HALIBURTON COUNTY'S FIRST MINE may be the outcome of a development program in Cardiff township, six miles west of the north end of Paudash lake. Diamond drilling a half-mile-long ridge containing two uraninite ore bodies has determined a 300-foot depth of ore. Engineers now plan to develop them from underground workings. Two workmen, upper left photo, are shown proceeding to the tent cookhouse. Garageman Garnet Burns of Peterborough, top right photo, was the original staker of the ground and, with citizen Bob Steele, did the first test trenching. Diamond-drill rig, lower photo, is one of the two working on the property at the present time. —(Nick Nickels Photos)

Haliburton Man Badly Hurt In Grader Crash

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Haliburton man narrowly escaped death late Friday afternoon when his jugular vein was nearly severed in a crash on the Haliburton-Tory Hill road.

Gordon Reynolds, owner of a Haliburton electrical store, is in Haliburton Red Cross outpost hospital in critical condition today. A passenger in Reynolds' truck, Christie Cowan, was unhurt.

Reynolds was driving towards Haliburton and when he came over the brow of a hill and rounded a curve, he was unable to avoid colliding with a slow-moving road grader going the same way.

ROLLED THREE TIMES

His panel truck rolled over three times and Reynolds' throat was badly cut by broken glass.

His helper, Cowan, was thrown about in the truck cab, but suffered only bruises. The truck is a complete wreck.

OPP Constables Al Hardy and Al Edwards of Minden detachment investigated.

Husband's Ashes Scattered At Derby

EPSOM, England (AP)—An unidentified woman scattered the ashes of her husband at the famous Tattenham Corner turn on the English Derby course today before the running of the big race.

In tears, she said it was his wish that the scattering of his ashes should take place at that spot on Derby morning. She would not disclose her name.

Uranium Mine Almost Certain In District, Drilling Shows

By BOB HATTON

Peterborough district will probably have an uranium mine. The people of Cardiff township are almost sure of it, and the resident engineer says cautiously "there is reasonable hope of making a mine." A year ago Garnet Burns made a chance discovery that has already resulted in the spending of tens of thousands of dollars and may fulfill the predictions and beliefs of prospectors and mineralogists who have been saying for years that the country north of Peterborough was rich in mineral wealth. Now diamond drills are probing more than half a mile of rocky ridges to determine the extent and depth of the urraium-bearing ore.

Directed by resident engineer Stewart Cameron Brown, a friendly, ruddy-faced mining engineer, 25 men, drillers and their helpers chiefly, are hunting down uraninite. The ore is impure uranium oxide, the crystal form of pitchblende, also known as U308. This is the same type of mineralization that produces much of the uranium in the Belgian Congo.

SIGNED AGREEMENT

The big news as far as mining interests are concerned is that Ventures Limited, through its uranium subsidiary, Charlebois Lake Uranium Limited, has signed an agreement with Tungsten Corporation of Canada Limited, which so far has been providing half of the finances and directing operations at the uranium find.

In an underwriting and option agreement, Ventures has undertaken to purchase 100,000 shares of Centre Lake stock at 50 cents a share, and has an option on the balance of the treasury stock (approximately 1,200,000 shares) at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.75 a share. If Ventures buys all the stock it has optioned, it will be paying Centre Lake Uranium Mines Ltd. $1,482,991.

Before very long, Centre Lake stock will be offered on the market.

Just how did this million-and-a-half-dollar project start? It began with a prospector who knew only about uranium and its ores from what he had read in books at the Peterborough Public Library. In an old book about minerals in the district, he read about giant sheets of mica being brought out from around the Paudash Lake district, located in the south-east corner of Haliburton County, about 62 miles north-east of Peterborough.

Burns, who had never had a real strike before, thought the forgotten report was worth looking into. He asked about the district, but could get only vague information. One of the farmers he asked was Howard Sarginson. And because Burns is also an enthusiastic fisherman, he asked about fishing. Sarginson told him that there were lake trout in Centre Lake about a mile to the north. He offered to take him along the bush road to the lake.

GEIGER READINGS

On the way, Burns noticed in the pink granite-type rock some black flecks that looked to him like fluorspar. From his reading he knew that fluorspar was often found with

Woman Hurt, Thrown From Taxicab

Housewife, 22, Suffers Broken Pelvis As Two Cars Collide

Thrown from a taxi that was in collision with another car at Murray and Water Streets early today, 22-year-old Mrs. Donald Westlake, 172 Antrim St., is in Civic Hospital with a broken pelvis and shoulder blade. Her condition

She was one of three people hospitalized in accidents on Friday and early today in the city.

Mrs. Westlake and her husband had been to the Coronation dance of the Canadian Scottish Club at the Empress Hotel and they were going home by taxi, shortly after 1 a.m., when the accident occurred. The taxi, driven by Fred Dyer, 42, of 605 St. Catherine Street, was travelling north on Water Street and was in collision with an eastbound passenger car driven by Albert E. Barber, 19, of 908 Danforth Avenue, Toronto.

Both vehicles received more than $300 damage.

The taxi, after the collision, continued north on Water Street, spun around and plunged into the shrubbery that surrounds the City Hall. Mrs. Westlake and the taxi driver were both thrown out on to the road.

DRIVER SHAKEN

Mrs. Westlake suffered a broken pelvis, broken shoulder blade, and brush burns and cuts on her right elbow. Mr. Dyer, the taxi driver, had the presence of mind to hang on to the steering wheel which broke the impact of his fall from the cab. He slid on his hip across the road, but was only shaken up and bruised.

Mrs. Westlake was thrown out of the cab, near the east curb of Water Street some 50 feet north of Murray Street. The spinning vehicle struck her as she was lying on the road. Part of her dress was caught on the front bumper and another piece of her dress was wound around the right front brake shoe and the axle.

She was taken to hospital by Nisbett ambulance. PC Sherman Keliele and Sgt. Gordon Trennum investigated the accident.

In magistrate's court today Lawrence O'Toole, 46, was remanded on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol. It was the aftermath of an accident at 1:32 a.m. today when he drove into a parked car on Simcoe Street in front of the Knights of Columbus Hall, owned by PC Louis Rodregue of 526 Bonaccord Street.

PASSENGER HURT

A passenger in the O'Toole car, David Grant, 45, of 634 Hawley Street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with cuts on his head, scrapes and bruises. He was treated by Dr. J. M. O'Brien.

O'Toole told city police that he was blinded by the headlights of an eastbound car as he was driving west on Simcoe and he ran into the rear of the Rodregue vehicle. About $150 damage was caused to each.

Late Friday afternoon Miss Eva Johnston, 32, of Crawford's Grove was crossing from east to west at the George Street-Charlotte Street intersection when she was knocked down and injured by a northbound motorcycle. William McIlmoyle, 18, turned left to pass another car when he came to the intersection and he struck Miss Johnston who was pushing her bicycle across the road against a red light.

She received injuries to her left leg below the knee and to her right leg, also below the knee.

A total of $1,150 damage was caused Friday when a truck and a car collided at the entrance to the CGE parking lot on Monaghan Road.

James D. Mitchell, 24, of RR 3, Peterborough, was driving his truck north and started to pass a car driven by William McKinlay, 59, of 570 Rose Avenue. McKinlay started to turn into the CGE parking lot and a collision occurred, causing $750 damage to the truck and $400 to the car. Neither man was injured.

Hurt In Korea

Pte. William D. Brokenshire of Fenelon Falls was reported injured in action a few days ago. He is 22 years old and joined the Korean forces a year ago arriving there in February. Before joining up he had worked with the hydro and railway in and around Fenelon Falls, his home town, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Brokenshire, live.

Strapped In Place Worker Hurt When Pole Falls

LINDSAY (ENS) — Twenty-one-year-old Kenneth Coulter, RR 1, Bobcaygeon, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury about 10.30 a.m. today when a hydro pole on which he was working broke and fell to the ground north of Cambray.

Coulter was repairing a hydro wire broken during Friday night's severe electrical storm when the pole broke at the base and fell, with Coulter strapped to the top cross-arm.

He was rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital here but his injuries are not expected to be serious.

Coulter and another hydro employee, Fulton Roddick, of Fenelon Falls, were repairing the damage to the line which had caused a black-out of six farms in the area since Friday night.

TENSION BREAKS POLE

Roddick was taking the broken wire to the ground when the second wire on the same side of the pole slipped from its clamp. The tension of the wire on the other side caused the pole to break at the base.

Coulter rode the pole to the ground but received only cracked ribs and a deep cut on his chin in the fall. He was treated by Dr. R. M. Parker before being removed to hospital.

According to Manley Yearwood, superintendent of the Fenelon Falls hydro station, who was at the scene shortly after the accident, Friday night's storm caused about $3,000 damage to transformers and wires in northern Victoria and Peterborough counties. Some farms in the immediate area of the accident are still without power.

Blast Rocks Plant, None Injured

Believe Spark Set Fire To Gasoline Used In Motor Tests

The plant of the Outboard, Marine and Manufacturing Co. was rocked by an explosion about 10 a.m. today. No-one was injured and damage was not extensive.

The heat of the explosion set off the automatic sprinkler which quelled the flames from the blast but firemen were almost an hour extinguishing embers in the ceiling and a partition in the power lawnmower section on the south side of the plant.

The explosion is presumed to have been caused by an electric spark which ignited gasoline vapor and a small quantity of gasoline near an electric motor used to pump gasoline from an outside subterranean storage tank into the plant where it is used to test motors.

DEFECT IN PUMP

Fire Chief Ralph Leonard said that the gasoline had escaped due to a defect in the pump, which would have to be torn down to locate the trouble.

No-one was nearer than 25 feet to the pump when the explosion occurred. Damage was confined to the motor and electrical equipment on a wall panel above it, charring the partition and a small area of floor.

A large quantity of water was released from the automatic sprinkler but it damaged only a few cartons. Workmen were busy sweeping up the water and drying off machinery and lawn mower parts soon after the explosion occurred.

Expected Brief Jail Term, Given One Month

LINDSAY (ENS).— A 23-year-old Bobcaygeon man who came to police court here Friday prepared to serve a short sentence and so had no money with him, faced a one-month term after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while impaired.

Derl Mooney, Irish-born truck driver, pleaded guilty to the charge after an accident last weekend, when his truck collided with a lighter truck on the centre bridge in Bobcaygeon.

Damage to the other vehicle owned by William Holton, was $6.75. Chief Wood of Bobcaygeon laid the charge against Mooney after investigating the accident.

Mooney came to court prepared to serve a short jail term on the charge. But Magistrate Gee explained that a $50.00 fine was the minimum for the impairment offence. The alternative was 30 days in jail. Mooney asked for extra time to pay the fine.

After court, he explained that he had heard some magistrates impose short jail sentences for the charge, and he would rather have served a short term than pay the $50 fine. He was given an extra week to raise the necessary funds.

SCENE OF AN EXPLOSION which rocked the Outboard, Marine and Manufacturing Co. plant about 10 a.m. today is shown being inspected by Fire Chief Ralph Leonard and Plant Manager Clarence Porter. The explosion, which charred the ceiling and a partition in the power lawnmower department of the plant occurred in an electric motor used to pump gasoline from an outside subterranean tank into the plant for testing motors. Woman Frozen 7 Hours In Anaesthesia

DENVER (AP)—Mrs. Constance Stark, 51, was "frozen" more than seven hours in what her doctors believe was the longest deep-freeze anaesthesia yet attempted.

They also said today they thought it may have been the first time the comparatively new method of anaesthesia had been used for other than a heart operation.

Mrs. Stark underwent the deep-freeze treatment Thursday for an operation to remove an abcessed portion of her liver.

Dr. Mordant Peck performed the six-hour long operation.

Profuse bleeding precluded ordinary procedure.

The doctor used deep-freeze anaesthesia to slow down blood flow and put the patient into a virtual state of suspended animation.

Mrs. Stark was given a pre-anaesthesia and packed in a tub of ice. Body temperature dropped in 45 minutes from 98·6 to 84 degrees. Respiratory organs ceased to function and breathing was maintained by pump. Blood pressure and pulse were imperceptible.

Dr. Peck removed a third of the liver with "very little bleeding." Afterwards Mrs. Stark was wrapped in blankets soaked in hot water. Her temperature returned to normal in about an hour.

Uranium Mine

uranium ore. He later contacted his friend and fellow prospector, Bob Steele, who had a geiger counter. Together the partners explored the country and got geiger readings, indicating some form of radio-active minerals in the rock.

They immediately staked claims on the crown land.

Together with local help, they began to trench. This form of rock exploration on the surface determines how far an ore body extends and in what direction. Three or four-foot wide strips 50 feet apart of rock are cleared of overburden and a shallow trench four or five feet deep is blasted out. Then geiger readings are made and recorded. Samples sent for chemic- of assay indicated uraninite.

A series of these trenches gives an indication of how large the ore body runs close to the surface. If the findings warrant, exploration then begins underground with diamond drills.

With the diamond drills samples of rock are removed from 150-foot depths and 300-foot depths. The two drills on the job are now exploring the 300-foot level.

So far what has been discovered is a series of vein dikes, as they are called, in a 600-foot wide section 2,800 feet long in two ridges. The drills searching into the rock at 200-foot intervals have reached the 300-foot level with indications that there is uraninite still at that depth.

AIR SURVEY

An aircraft survey of the neighboring land using a scintillometer has indicated more radio active mineral which geiger readings have confirmed for a mile and a half both to the north and to the south of the half mile zone now being drilled. Just to be on the safe side, Centre Lake has an option on the 100-acre farm of Howard Sarginson to the east and another 100 acres owned by Dr. S. S. Lumb of Bancroft to the south. Tungsten Corporation is negotiating to buy still another property adjoining Centre Lake.

But the next step at Centre Lake is to determine how best to mine the ore. Horizontal tunnel adit will be driven into the side of one of the ridges and will be blasted about 86 feet below the surface. Then branch tunnels, known as drifts, will be blasted out along the ore stricture to "open up the horizon". From this underground probing, Engineer Brown will work out how the ore will be mined.

At the mine a mechanical process will probably be set up to get rid of the basic feldspar in which the uraninite is found. The uraninite will be dissolved in nitric acid or an alkali solution, and "the juice" reverted to solids, sent to a refinery in Port Hope in concentrate form.

The company and the interested people of the district have to wait until the fall to see for sure whether or not this part of Ontario is to have a uranium mine.

ROBERT A. McRAE received his degree of Bachelor of Science in electrical engineering at University of Toronto convocation on Friday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ian F. McRae.

Merchants Win 4th In Row

LINDSAY (ENS) — Lindsay Merchants and Whitby divided 14 hits between them in last night's Lakeshore League game here but the locals made better use of their blows for a 5-0 win. It was Joe Lowery's first win as a pitcher this year and the team's fourth in a row, after dropping their first four starts.

Lowery held the visitors to seven scattered singles, struck out six and walked two in seven innings. He also led the winners at the plate, garnering a single and triple in three tries, and driving in a run.

Billenduke, Crawford and Davis shared the pitching duties for the losers. Merchants garnered five hits for three runs off starter Billenduke and the remainder off Davis in the final two innings they batted. Next to Lowery, Doug Loucks was best at the plate with a double and single. Stewart and Edger also had two-baggers. Guys and MacDonald with two hits each were best for the losers.

Front Seat Of Car Found In Flames

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Bernard O'Brien, 242 Victoria St., returned to his car about 8:40 Friday evening to find the front seat in flames.

While Mr. O'Brien tried to put out the fire, a friend called the volunteer fire department who extinguished the flames with chemicals before much damage was done. The car was parked in front of Bennett's funeral home, a mere half block from the fire hall.

Damage was confined to the wiring and front seat of the vehicle and was believed caused by a short circuit in the wiring.

Passed Bad Cheque; Gets Month In Jail

COBOURG (ENS) — Kenneth Clarke of Warkworth and Cobourg was sentenced to one month in jail for false pretences Friday.

He received five days additional on a drunk charge The evidence was taken a week ago and adjournment was made pending a check on his record

Clarke passed a bad $10 cheque on W. E. Tucker of Cobourg on April 4. Tucker said when the cheque was returned he took it up with the accused, who said he would make up the amount, but this was never done.

Prison Collapses

PUSAN (AP)—South Korea activated a combat police unit today in a stepped-up effort to smash operations of more than 1,000 die-hard Communist guerrillas in the sprawling Mt. Chiri area.

Trade Fair Nets $1,322 For Rotary Club

COBOURG (ENS)—The Rotary Club trade fair last week grossed $2,846 in its three-night run, of which $2,240 was for booth space.

Expenses cut the take down to a net of $1,322.96, an amount which the Rotary Club considers very satisfactory in view of the fact that it is the first real trade fair the club has ever put on. When the recreational centre was first built, the club staged a trade fair under very unfavorable conditions, such as bitterly cold weather and a dirt floor. This year it was held in mild weather and on the $10 000 floor, which was donated last year to the recreational centre by the Kinsmen Club.

Chairman Bob Holland has the task of making room for more booths at next year's trade fair, for which 30 booth spaces have already been booked.

Mr. Holland's report was warmly applauded at Friday's Rotary Club luncheon. He said special thanks were due Gordon Dunlop, George Turner, Orville Crabbe and Joe Patterson, for their outstanding service in putting the trade fair on.

Local Man Faces Traffic Charges

LINDSAY (ENS),—Harry Clark of RR 4 Peterborough, was remanded for two weeks in police court here Friday, when he appeared on three charges arising out of an accident which occurred May 30 on the Kinmount-Bancroft road.

Clark is alleged to have been the driver of the car which struck and knocked down Allan McNeely, a pedestrian, near Tory Hill. The car left the scene of the accident.

Clark is charged with drunk driving, careless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident, with intent to escape criminal or civil liability.

Wounded In Hand Brother Charged

LINDSAY (ENS). — A charge of Sunday hunting has been laid against a Little Britain youth following a hunting accident last weekend, in which his brother was shot through the left hand.

According to Lands and Forests Officer Fred Walton of Lindsay, the charge was laid against Edward Hill, RR 2, Little Britain, after his 22-calibre rifle had accidentally discharged while he and his three brothers were groundhog hunting last Sunday on their father's farm.

The bullet from the gun passed through his brother Joseph's shirt, grazing his stomach, and struck him in the left hand, splintering the bones of his hand and fingers. Joseph 16, was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital. His brother will appear on the charge next week in magistrate's court here.

Inspector Urges Pets Be Kept At Home

Humane Society Inspector Mr. B. Menzies issued a request that dog owners keep their pets confined, speaking at a meeting of the executive Thursday night.

Several fines and warnings have been handed out to pet owners in the city and county for allowing animals to run free.

President of the society Mr. S. R. Hamilton reported that improvements were underway at the Humane Society Shelter and Mr. Menzies stated that more than 100 stray dogs and cats had been cared for in the past month.

Miss June Fraser was elected publicity secretary to replace Miss H. Lytle. A new cap and uniform was ordered for the inspector and Mrs. W. A. Young read a bulletin concerning the practise of clipping dogs' ears.

A social meeting will be held at the home of Miss P. T. Denne, Chemong Park, the latter part of July.

Court Frees Two On Vag Charges

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Peterborough man, Richard McIntosh, and a companion Frank Owens of Hamilton, picked the wrong car to hitch-hike in last Wednesday, and appeared in Magistrate's Court here Friday, suspected of being accomplices of another Hamilton man in custody on a forging charge, and charged with vagrancy themselves.

According to Provincial Constable Craig of Beaverton, the two were in a panel truck which was stopped on Highway 7 east of Lindsay on his orders. Neither of the two could give a reasonable account of themselves, according to charge, and they had no the charge, and they had no money. They were arrested when found with John Manders, alias John Green, of Hamilton, who is charged with uttering a forged cheque for $467 on the account of a Woodville man. Manders is being defended by David Thomson of Lindsay.

In the involved case, it came out that Mr. McIntosh had recently been discharged from a military hospital at Kingston. He had gone to Hamilton where he picked up a friend, Owens and started for Peterborough, where his parents reside. Outside Toronto, they were picked up by Manders and John Richards of Hamilton in the panel truck. They were innocent they claimed of any knowledge of alleged crimes by Manders. Police admitted the story told by the boys was the same as that given at the time of their arrest. Magistrate Gee, in dismissing vagrancy charges against the two, warned the boys against taking rides with strangers.

Richards was found guilty of vagrancy. Although he was driving the truck for Manders, he had no work, and no money with him. He was fined $10 and costs of $2.50 or 10 days, which sentence said Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan, was the "next thing to a suspended sentence". Magistrate Gee replied, "The day I can please the Crown Attorney, the millennium will have arrived".

Manders while corroborating the stories of the other three, asked through his counsel for bail on the charges laid against him, and also for a remand for a week. Crown Attorney Jordan demanded $4,000 cash or $8,000 property bail be raised, and defence counsel Thompson objected strenuously. "Bail is set to assure the return of a prisoner for trial" he said. "This amount will make sure the accused doesn't even leave".

U.S. Man Offers Aid To Campbellford PUC

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — The Public Utilities Commission has accepted an offer from Charles U. Peeling to come from his home in Pennsylvania and give his services free of charge in dealing with the present power shortage.

Mr. Peeling, a former Campbellofrd resident, recently retired after a lifetime of power plant operation and power development work. He assisted in the original development of the town power plant at Crow Bay.

His offer to serve free of charge except for out-of-pocket expenses was unanimously accepted by the PUC. He was asked to come at his earliest convenience and advise the commission as to what policy to pursue.

The manager, Mr. Denyes, reported on a suggested contract with Ontario Hydro. He said he had contacted officials of Orillia where there was a similar situation some yearso ago. Orillia had spent $5,000 for advice and had finally been advised to buy from the HEPC.

To Visit Airmen

LONDON (CP)—Marilyn Reddick 19-year-old "Miss Canada," left London today for North Luffenham to entertain personnel of the RCAF's No. 1 fighter wing and attend a Coronation ball. The Agincourt, Ont., girl is scheduled to fly to France and Germany Sunday to visit Canadian servicemen.

B.C. To Use Alternative Voting System

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbians who go to the polls next Tuesday will for a second time vote in a general election under the alternative voting system.

First used in the 1952 election, the transferable system led to days of confusion and the final result was not known for 28 days after polling machinery of counting has been day.

It was 50 days before Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his minority Social Credit government, holding only 19 seats in the 48-seat legislature, took office. The CCF Opposition had 18 seats.

But this year, say election officials, things will be different. The geared to the new system and the counters have been trained to avoid the pitfalls of the first "trial."

Proponents, including Social Crediters, who saw their party in power at Victoria for seven months, call the system "simplicity in itself," but the opponents, particularly the CCF, have harsh names for it. If elected to office, the CCF is pledged to discard it before another election.

Under the alternative system the electors may mark their preferences for the various candidates on the ballots—1, 2, 3, 4, etc.

3-WEEK DELAY

It calls for completion of first-choice counts on election night. If the result is not decisive, a three-week delay is necessary under the B. C. Election Act before counting can be resumed. This is to allow for the distribution of absentee ballots in their proper ridings.

A candidate must have a clear majority. If the result is not decisive on the first count, a second count is conducted and then a third, and the same process is repeated until a candidate is elected. The lowest candidate is dropped during counting of "choices" and his ballots distributed among the others.

In the multi-member ridings of Vancouver and Victoria, voters receive a separate ballot for each division. If there are three seats in the riding, the electors will have three ballots, marked A, B and C. They are printed in distinctive colors.

ANOTHER PROBLEM

"Plumping" — voting for only one candidate—is another problem. The Social Crediters want their supporters to vote right down the line. The CCF favors plumping.

Political authorities warn that plumping is only successful if the voter backs the candidate who is going to win on the first count—the man who doesn't need any second choices.

Fred Hurley, chief electoral officer for BC, says plumping does not give a favorite candidate one bit of advantage.

"There is nothing gained," he warned the electors, "but you do deprive yourself, should your first choice be eliminated, of your privilege to further express your wishes in the continued counting, which may be necessary."

Only four candidates were elected on first choices in the June 12 election last year.

RESULTS IMPORTANT

The electors' vital question remains: when will we know the result?

Called the "marathon count" in 1952, it took 29 days, 18 hours and 43 minutes after the polls closed before the last candidate was elected.

For a bare working majority in the legislature, a government must command 25 seats.

A year ago only 68.53 per cent of the 793,073 eligible voters cast ballots. This year there are 740,207 registered voters.

Plant Operators Ask Pay Boost

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Power plant operators at this town's private power plant presented a petition for salary increases to $248 a month including cost-of-living bonuses.

A further request was that operators be given three weeks' holidays after 15 years' service with the commission.

Commissioner Newman pointed out that with the pension plan coming up the benefits received by workers would automatically be increased. Mayor Locke remarked that out of $90,000 revenue, salaries amounted to about $50,000.

Commissioner Newman suggested a 44-hour work week might be the answer. He said it was equivalent to an 11 per cent increase in hourly pay. The commissioner's suggestion was turned into a resolution which would be put to the men.

Pin-Up Boy

Marcus Marsh, called the colt's retirement a "victory of the politicians."

A build-up had been under way for Tulyar to race in the Coronation Cup in England this summer under the colors of the president of the Republic of Ireland against Queen Elizabeth's highly-regarded Gay Time.

Government sponsors of Tulyar took no chances with their prize, however—mindful of a possible defeat reducing stud fees for his services.

Tulyar, a handsome colt that stands 16 hands, is enjoying his new-found life of leisure at the Irish national stud.

Here's a typical "my diary" day for the $700,000 horse.

Up at dawn and ready for his morning feed at 6 a.m.

After a spell to digest his "breakfast" he is dressed over.

Next comes two hours of exercise in the open—walking, trotting and canters with long lunging rein.

Another grooming before noon—and lunch.

(Tulyar gets more primping than a debutante preparing for her coming out party.)

2:30 p.m.—On parade with young Paddy Sullivan in the saddle.

After a whirl, back to his box where he's rubbed down and cooled off.

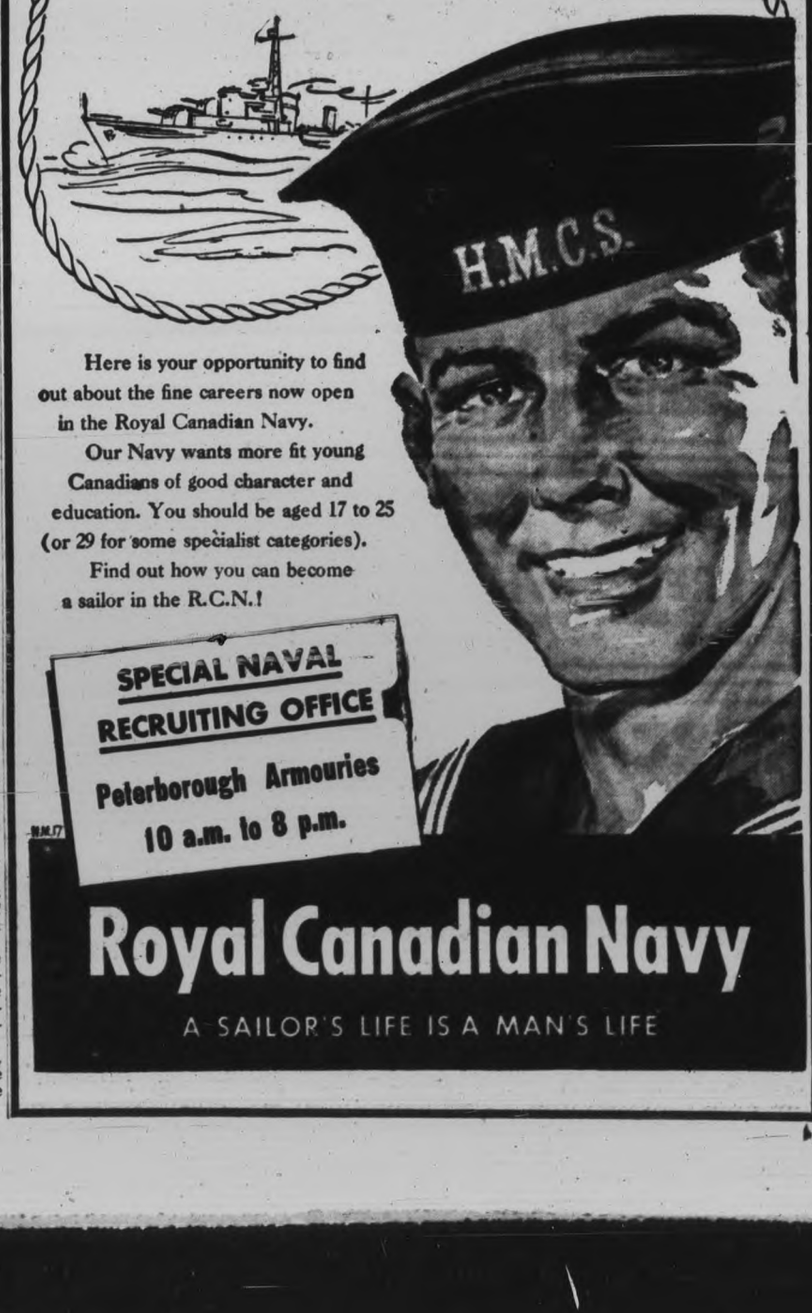
Come 5 p.m. and a treat—two bottles of stout with his feed mash.

Another dressing over for the night—and to "bed."

Preparing Tulyar for stud duties after his years as a racer takes the handling of experts.

Tulyar—for all his honors—is not temperamental in the least. He allows even a three-year-old boy to rub his neck and nose without showing the least agitation.

The Irish-bred colt, out of Tehran and Neocracy, got off to a slow start. At birth, he was just another foal to the long line of choicely-bred colts in the Aga Khan stud.



When some of the others were sent to Newmarket for race training, Tulyar was left behind. He joined them later and as a two-year-old won two races in six outings.

As a three-year-old however, Tulyar came into his own to be heralded a wonder horse—and one that retired still champion.

Communism Has Helped

Yugoslavia Has Unity Under Tito

This delayed despatch from Yugoslavia was written by I. Norman Smith for The Examiner prior to attending the Coronation in London. He spent several weeks visiting various centres in Yugoslavia, sending his stories by air mail.

By I. NORMAN SMITH

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (Delayed). —This city at the top of the Adriatic is my last port of call in Yugoslavia. I have put off until now—after four weeks in various part of the country—trying to write about the politics of the country, the government—about communism.

What I am going to write will annoy a lot of Canadians. Others will simply not believe it. That can't be helped.

To judge what is here now you must glance backward and realize that Yugoslavia was never a country but a group of six or more racial and religious states that suffered under either Turkish or Austrian rule for 500 years and was left by them a mass of prejudices and hates so that even the wars of foreign conquest were not so bloody and ghastly as the internal feuds they waged among themselves.

English people must remember that imperialism in the Balkans did not mean trusteeship or development. And the Yugoslav or Serbian monarchy that followed the fall of Austria in 1918 was hardly an enlightened parliamentary democracy either. Thus when Yugoslavia was over-run by Germans in just eight days, in 1941, nobody was greatly surprised.

RESISTANCE MOVEMENT

Nobody except the people, that is. And then, under a blacksmith's son named Josip Broz, there grew a broad resistance movement which fought in the villages and streets and mountains and by its virility won for itself a national loyalty and administration such as had never been known in Yugoslavia. Josip Broz, called Tito which was his code name, was a Communist from away back. But all manner of men fought for him and upon the day of liberation though most of the people in the country did not like the Communist form of government he forced on them they nevertheless admired him personally.

But that didn't matter too much, because the Communist government took over by force and cared not for opposition. It declared the monarchy at an end, developed the nation of Yugoslavia consisting of six republics: Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia, Macedonia, Montenegro and Bosnia. The government and constitution took the Soviet Russian pattern and Tito was boss.

It set out to unite the country by force. The Croats and Serbs must stop murdering each other, the rich must stop paying slave wages to the poor, farms should be more economically managed instead of in tiny lots by impoverished peasants, there should be development of Yugoslavia's mineral and power wealth so that the nation could become partially industrial, wages must be levelled out, religious beliefs and prejudices must be made secondary to national unity.

POLICE STATE

This meant communism because Tito, the boss, was a Communist and so were the men who fought with him at the top. And communism meant a police state and suppression of oppositions and freedoms, and of religions that tended to interfere in civil matters. There were the black days and deeds in Tito's rise to power. But even in the honeymoon with Moscow he wasn't quite the despot that Stalin was, nor did his government go to Russian extremes.

Moscow didn't like this and the two began to argue, over a period of two years. Suddenly, in 1948, the young upstart state of Yugoslavia told Soviet Imperialists the party was over. The world could hardly believe it, but within a week or so Tito and Stalin reserved for each other the rudest names, Yugoslavia was choked off from its main trade source behind the Curtain, and the halls of UN soon heard lurid revelations by Yugoslav delegates of what Russia was really like.

Partly because Tito now had to look elsewhere for friends and partly because his brand of communism had never been quite Stalin's and partly because Tito knew his people weren't Communists by nature, Yugoslavia now began to liberalize its regime. Opposition criticism was accepted, provided it was of method and not of principle, people could practise their religions provided the church as such, didn't demand land rights and special taxes and separate education and altar marriages in addition to legal marriages.

LIBERALIZATION GROWS

The liberalization has grown in speed and breadth until now, as I have reported in earlier articles, co-operative farms are being voluntarily disbanded, foreign investments, even by capitalists, are being encouraged, promotion in industry or government is not confined to Communists, social welfare schemes that had been great for propoganda but too great for the budget are being reduced, education is being pushed ahead almost feverishly and at no direct cost to the individual.

A parallel liberalization has gone on in international affairs. Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia have signed a five-year military pact, and as Greece and Turkey are members of NATO, that is coming close to the West. Tito has lunched with the Queen in Buckingham Palace. There is an almost daily exchange between Yugoslavia and other countries of military, financial, economic, cultural and other missions or experts. Yugoslavia is reaching out for the tourist trade and offering travel reduction and rates of the most alluring kind. And the U.S.A., Britain and France continue to send much aid.

Meanwhile there is no, repeat, NO, trade or dealing or travel or truck with Russia, and very little with Hungary, Rumanio, Bulgaria and none with Albania, all of which border Yugoslavia. Yugoslavia nurses the idea that it will show by example and assistance that the other satelite countries may themselves throw off the Soviet Imperialism one day, but no such development is expected for some time.

FACING WEST

In short, Yugoslavia today is facing West, but it has its guns facing East and 22 per cent of its meagre budget has to maintain those guns. It could perhaps zoom down on little Albania tomorrow and incorporate it, but Albania is in the Soviet family and probably the Soviet would reply not by fighting for unimportant Albania but by moving in on Iran. Presumably Tito and the West both know this and so Albania rests as she is.

The Westerner probably asks, about now, whether Tito is popular.

My guess is that if Tito held a free election next week his Communist Party would take a terrific beating. And if it could be on a personal basis for Tito himself he also would fail to get a majority of votes, though he would do better than the Communist Party for he is still greatly admired and his standing up to Stalin gave his character almost legendary proportions.

But in that election that we are considering holding next week, not one party would gain a majority and not one individual could out-poll Tito. A Serbian party might poll more votes than the Communist Party, for there are 7,000,000 Serbians in Yugoslavia's total population of 17,000,000. A Croatian party might poll more than the Communists, for there are 4,000 000 people in Croatia.

But the odds are that if any such party came in the others would quit the federation and you would have racial and religious war all over again. Italy, Russia, Hungary and Rumania would doubtless move in from the edges to claim their bits and pieces "to protect their minorities." A free election now would throw out Tito and break up Yugoslavia. On that point every foreign observer here seems agreed.

RECORD GOOD

Yet you can take it even further. Most observers agree that the Tito government, if it were not Communist, could be re-elected next week on the strength of its government record and what it has done for the country. That is, it has by force done a very great deal of good for Yugoslavia and for the people of Yugoslavia. It would not be voted out of office for what it has done in agriculture, industry, rebuilding, national unity, international affairs or commerce, but because it is Communist. Yet observers further agree that no parliamentary freely-elected government would have been able to do what Tito has done, for its parts would have been greater than its whole and the voice of complete freedom would have led to Babel and collapse. (Please remember we are speaking about Yugoslavia, not Canada.)

And so the Tito Communist government will remain in power in the foreseeable future, not thanks to any free elections but thanks to power itself. But one other thing will keep it in office: a grudging but widespread recognition that the country is on the move. The monarchists in opposition are a negligible force, so too the capitalists. The churches form a solid opposition, particularly the Roman Catholic Church, but Tito is finding a way to keep even them in control: by liberalising somewhat the act of worship but minimising ecclesiastical power as a group or institution. I shall write a separate article on the religious situation so let us leave the matter there for the moment.

CHANGING TOO

Tito's senior partners—and I have been able to talk with many of the most senior as well as with Tito himself—make no bones about the fact that they are in power and that the constitution comes next. But that too is changing. The Communists, as such—700,000 in 17,000,000—were given a dressing down last November by Tito and told to pay more attention to the country than to Communist theory. The new constitution which came into force last January makes Tito president of a Federal National Assembly which has three houses and the aim is that a cabinet and its sub committees will do the brunt of the work but upon authority and direction of the Assembly. When the Assembly is not in session there will be government by order in council.

Observers say this is a liberalization of the former method and they note a genuine effort to decentralize power so that the six republics will run their own show as much as possible. Likewise within federal matters much authority is to be given to councils of workers and farmers and producers right down the line. In a country whose six republics are so variant that the only thing they have in common is backwardness and a history of oppression—in such a country this takes some doing.

It is admitted that much of the starry-eyed planning breaks down and that in a state where the economy has to be forced there can really be no such thing as decentralizing authority to industry or agriculture. Plans grow like mushrooms and wither in the noon-day sun. But they know this themselves and they say that gradually they are finding the way, if by costly elimination. (A lovely example of the way these people cling to their rights and independence is the story that when Montenegrin soldiers number from the right the first says "one" and the second says very quickly "I am beside him" rather than admit he is in any way secondary. What a people to govern by free vote!)

GENERAL PICTURE

That is the general picture. I will take out of Rijeka tomorrow, heading towards Trieste — a Trieste which the Yugoslavs would love to have but which also belongs partly to the Italians and what the solution will be cannot yet be seen though it can't be perfect. For all Europe is full of things so dogged by history, by prejudice, by poverty, by imperialism, by ignorance that is difficult for Westerners with ample space, bounteous fortune and their industrial revolutions decades behind them, to understand that perfect solutions are often impossible.

Certainly communism isn't a perfect solution for Yugoslavia. First, because communism is communism — and that's reason enough. Second, because this is not a people to whom communism comes naturally. It is a bright, gay, energetic, proud, distinctive lot of human beings not fit to lie like peas in a pod.

But communism has done much for this country that in the circumstances could have been done only by communism or dictatorship. And Tito and his colleagues are showing every sign of liberalizing still further from the darker days of their beginning. Tito wants to perpetuate the break with Moscow imperialism and we owe him much for the consequence of that boldness. But we would be mistaken to think that he will jump from Soviet imperialism into the capitalistic pot. He knows splendid isolation won't work, but he will not let that knowledge force him to abandon his communist principles. He is ambitious and proud and possibly sees Yugoslavia as the start of a third force, one between capitalism and communism. He won't be bought.

CLOSER TO WEST

Surely it is clear that in the last five years Tito and his colleagues and country have moved by great strides closer to Western democracy. In some things they still have far to go, but it may be that will come later. In the meantime—right now—Yugoslavia is very much our ally in the cold war and from what I have seen of her people I hope that mere military "alliance" will be given a chance, by both of us, to grow into friendship and mutual understanding.

If we distrust them, and look down our noses and point only to their wrongs—which are still numerous—they'll think us not much different from the Turks, or the Russians. Little Yugoslavia doesn't like to be pushed around, even by gentlemen!

EVEREST EQUIPMENT—Designer Fred van Veen, of Ottawa, models the sleeping bag used by the British Alpine team that conquered Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain. Designed to keep out 50-below-zero cold, the 8½-pound bag is also part of the RCAF's Arctic survival kit used by northern fliers. The sleeping kit won Mr. van Veen one of this year's design merit awards given to Canadian industrial designers.

About 1878 agitation started for a water works system, and it was completed in the early eighties, but for many years many homes, still used the pump. Putting in the water pipes created a lot of employment. The large mains came from Scotland. Jim English was Fire Chief and there were a few paid firemen but it was mostly volunteers. If the fire bell rang at 1 a.m. nearly every male citizen would get up and assist at the fire.

Find 37 Cases Of Polio Among Soldiers

EDMONTON (CP)—Thirty-seven cases of polio among Canadian Army men and their dependents in the Yukon were confirmed Friday by western command headquarters.

Earlier, civilian sources had reported 75 cases including two deaths at Whitehorse, and about 15 cases at Dawson City.

Col. E. J. Young, command medical officer, said that some paralysis existed in 10 cases, and there had been one army death up to late Thursday. There were 26 "abortive" cases, along with eight cases with fever but not yet diagnosed as polio.

Two soldiers have been brought to Edmonton for treatment.

Two iron lungs, one each from medical supply depots at Vancouver and Edmonton, have been flown by the RCAF to the Whitehorse Military Hospital along with one portable respirator.

WILD WEST TOUCH

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—A proposed wild west touch for the Calgary Stampede July 16-18 is a bank holdup by a rodeo bullfighter who then will "shoot up" the downtown area while escaping on horseback.

Say Industrial Expansion Near-Record

TORONTO (CP)—Industrial expansion in Ontario this year will run close to the 1952 record the Ontario department of planning and development forecast today.

New industries, several of major importance, were being established by manufacturers from the United States and other foreign countries. Existing industries were expanding.

The department's trade and industry branch said in its annual review for 1952 that this province holds a commanding position in Canada's achievements to date and in the potential for the future.

In manufacturing, Ontario equalled the combined strength of the other nine provinces and contributed half the total for all Canada in value of goods produced, employment, payrolls, and capital investment.

RECORD PRODUCTION

In 1952, Ontario's 13,200 manufacturing industries hit a record production valued at $8,600,000. The labor force of 1,926,000 in civilian employment was the greatest ever, with 36 per cent engaged in manufacturing.

Capital expenditures by manufacturing industries in new plants and equipment were $492,000,000, about 55 per cent of the Canadian total.

A total of 126 new industries were formed in Ontario last year, compared with 92 in 1951. Some 600 new industries had been established in the province since the Second World War.

Lay Manslaughter Charge In Death

TORONTO (CP)—Police Friday night charged Arthur Hurd, 38, with manslaughter in the death earlier in the day of John Simpson, 60, street railway flagman.

Police said Simpson may have been pushed off the side of a truck and was crushed under the wheels as the vehicle started to move.

Cyril Cooper, 35, who police say was the driver of the truck, was held as a material witness.

Returned Missionary Speaker

Miss Greta Clark, returned missionary from China, was guest speaker at the annual meeting Thursday night of the Free Methodist Church WMS. Her message on how the Chinese Christian students are standing for Christ against the communists was most inspiring and informative. She also told of her close companionship with several of the Free Methodist missionaries who were there. Mr. J. W. Johnston, a missionary to China several years ago, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. Mrs. J. W. Johnston, president opened with "God Save the Queen." A ladies' trio of Mrs. G. H. Robinson, Mrs. K. B. Bauder and Mrs. H. Mack sang "Speed Thy Servants". The annual reports showed splendid gains in WMS membership, prayer partners, missionary tidings, subscriptions, reading certificates earned and JMS membership, making five points to shine on the six point star promotional poster, introduced as aims in the home base missionary work for the year. The Rev. K. B. Bauder took charge of installing the elected officers who were: president, Mrs. I. McNutt; second vice president and stewardship secretary, Mrs. G. H. Robinson; recording secretary, Mrs. G. Bullied; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clara Goodberry; treasurer, Mrs. H. Mack; literature agent, Mrs. D. Vansickle; JMS superintendent, Mrs. K. B. Bauder.

Modest Nun Has Interesting Nursing Life

REGINA (CP)—A Modest nun who helped to make hospital history in Western Canada is celebrating her 50th anniversary as a nurse. She is Sister Placide of the Regina Grey Nuns' Hospital.

Sister Placide now is in Montreal celebrating her golden jubilee with classmates at the mother house of her order, the General Hospital of the Grey Nuns. On her return she will resume duties as second floor supervisor of the Regina hospital.

A native of Norwood, Man., Sister Placide began the history-making part of her career in 1907 when she was sent to Saskatoon to help establish St. Paul's Hospital and walked straight into a typhoid epidemic.

BUILT ADDITION

The hospital building was just a private residence owned by a local doctor but, because of the epidemic, an immediate addition had to be built.

Sister Placide and her assistants did a marvelous job of fighting the epidemic. Not one person died from the typhoid.

The soft-spoken nurse sometimes tells of the inconveniences suffered by hospitals in the early days. They were always handicapped by a shortage of nurses and space, and absence of a laundry.

Sister Placide has served with several different hospitals in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. She has been in Regina since 1941.

Scouts And Cubs Enjoy Picnic

The Mother Auxiliary of No. 7 Scout Troop and Cub Pack entertained approximately 70 guests—cubs and scouts and their families at a picnic at Nicholls' Oval Friday evening.

Calling With Small Child Need Be No Great Problem

By NANCY CLEAVER

Quite a number of mothers of little children are puzzled by the problem of whether or not to try to pay a call accompanied by a small son or daughter. They feel their own need of getting away from home occasionally and seeing their friends, but they sometimes wonder if it is worth the nerve strain if "Junior" must go along, too.

Visiting with a healthy baby is no great problem. Usually he will sleep in his carriage during a short call or be content to amuse himself with a simple toy and look at strange surroundings.

A DIFERENT MATTER

But a visit with a small child is quite a different matter! It is his nature to be active; unless mother goes along with something to keep him occupied, the visit is apt to be very distracting. The small visitor is likely to touch breakable ornaments within reach. An impulsive child may even knock over a vase or a small lamp if his mother's careful eyes relax their watchful supervision for a minute.

It is the wise mother who equips herself with several toys for her child and gives him them to play with one at a time. The time during which a child can concentrate on a plaything is brief—and so a variety is a help.

A soft washable dolly dressed in bright colors is a favorite with both little girls and little boys—especially if small fingers can remove a little coat or hat and put them on and off the dolly. A linen picture book is another good choice with colored pictures of familiar objects. Small plastic or metal planes or trucks fascinate a small boy. Little girls love dolly dishes and inexpensive, unbreakable sets may now be purchased.

TRY CLOTHES PEGS

Things which interest a youngster are not limited to toys at the toy counter. A counle of dozen of new clothes pegs form building "logs". A child can become quite absorbed fitting them onto the top of a honey pail.

A little bag with a collection of cold cream and other little jars with tops, (not too small) or with large size colored wooden beads, or big buttons is also an excellent plaything for a inty tot.

When you receive an invitation to call with a son or daughter, perhaps you are fearful that your child's stomach may be upset by eating too much candy or rich cakes or cookies. Why not be frank with your hostess?

Just mention casually that Junior is still on a very simple diet. If you think wise, suggest that you would be glad to bring along some Arrowroot biscuits or whatever he has for his afternoon "snack". Tuck in his bib. His own unbreakable mug might not be a bad idea too, if there are no little folk in the home to which you have been invited. In the excitement of drinking milk in a strange place, it is very easy for tiny fingers to drop a cup and no mother wants to see her offspring breaking chinaware.

Visiting with "Junior" taxes a mother's ingenuity. It is not simple—but a little forethought in planning ahead and providing a small son or daughter with playthings makes it much less of a strain.

Calling gives mothers a change from the monotony of routine housework and enlarges th horizon of a little child's world. If the hostess is an understanding friend it is worth the extra effort it demands.

Rooster Gives Girl Chance To Start Flying

KINGSTON (CP)—It took a rooster to get Felicity Bennett, 23, her first flight, but now that she's Canada's seventh woman flying instructor she'll get all the air time she wants.

As an enterprising 12-year-old Felicity kept 50 chickens as a hobby. She gave a rooster to her aunt and returning the kindness, Aunty financed a 15-minute flight over Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Recently Felicity received her instructor's rating and took a job at the Kingston Flying Club

A native of Spencerville, 80 miles east of Kingston, Felicity and her sister, Connie, used to make model airplanes. The model building habit remained until she was 14.

TEACHER OF DEAF

For the last three years Felicity has been a teacher at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville, but she never lost her love of airplanes.

Quiet and soft-spoken, she planned originally on becoming an airline stewardess. However, she quickly grew out of that—she now stands five feet, 9½ inches in stocking feet.

In 1950, while home on holiday from the Belleville school, Felicity dropped in to Norman Rogers airport, "to see what was going on."

Then, after six hours of dual instruction she made her first solo flight.

The next step was a commercial pilot's licence. The necessity of getting more flying time took her on an air trip to Florida.

Added to this were hours spent on book study. Finally she successfully wrote examinations on meteorology, air frames and engines, radio aids to navigation, airmanship and navigation.

Last year Felicity took part in the St. Lawrence zone finals of the Webster Trophy competition.

Hair Beauty Plan Begins With Steaming

To put your hair in gleaming order, a beauty consultant suggests this plan for summer hair beauty.

Begin with steam treatments. This is a top glamor-giver and is guaranteed to put a soft shine in dry, lifeless hair. It will add manageability to your curls too, helping your sets to last longer.

This treatment follows the shampoo. After your hair has been thoroughly washed and rinsed clean in clear, warm water, towel dry it to remove the excess moisture. Then, add a tablespoon of special rinse to a cup of warm water. Pour this mixture slowly through the hair, working it in with your freeh hand. A steam towel is then applied. The steam from the towel really starts the rinse mixture to work!

STEAM TOWEL

To prepare a steam towel, take a large Turkish towel and fold it three times lengthwise. Holding the two ends of the towel, immerse it under the hot water faucet. Loop the towel around the faucet and wring it dry. Then wrap the towel turban-fashion around the head. When it cools, immerse it again in hot water. After three applications, rinse the hair in clear, warm water and set.

After three treatments, snip off the ends of your old permanent and give yourself a new one. Don't use a rinse directly after your pre-permanent shampoo. The only solution that should touch your hair at this point — after you've rinsed away every trace of suds with clear, lukewarm water—is the one waving lotion which has been formulated to give your type of hair the exact kind of curl it needs.

100 STROKES

Never miss your 100 strokes daily with a medium stiff hair brush. Keep your brush clean, a dirty brush puts dirt right back in your hair. Use long, sweeping strokes that stimulate the scalp and spread the natural oils the full length of the hair.

Follow a regular shampooing schedule. Oily hair usually needs washing every five days. Dry hair may need shampooing only once a week. Find the right time schedule for yourself and never miss your shampoo date.

Bride-To-Be Receives Gifts

BETHANY (ENS)—Mrs. T. S. Gault entertained at a community shower Thursday evening in honor of Miss Catherine Jarvis, whose marriage will take place in St. Paul's Anglican Church today. Mrs. Robert Sisson expressed the congratulations and good wishes of Bethany friends and with Mrs. Charles Reynolds assisted in opening the gifts as well as a china tea service.

Miss Jarvis expressed sincere thanks to everyone, especially Mrs. Gault for opening her home, and the committee, Mrs. Charles Reynolds, Mrs. Effie Morton, Mrs. Allan Gribble, Miss Lauro Morton and Mrs. R. Sisson, who had been in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. T. Jennings led in community singing and gave a humorous novelty number. Mrs. Wellington Fallis and Mrs. Ernest Lamb, accompanied by Mrs. Reg. Edmunds sang two duets.

Refreshments were served and the bride-to-be, who is a graduate of Wellesley Hospital in Toronto, spent a happy hour renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. And Mrs. Club Hold Annual Tea

Mauve and white streamers and beautiful bouquets of spring flowers provided an ideal setting in the primary room of St. James United Church Friday evening for the second annual Jack and Jill tea sponsored by the Mr. and Mrs. Club of that church.

The following members of the club executive were conveners for the tea: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murphy, president; Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Seabrook, secretary; and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Bell, treasurer.

The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a bouquet of red peonies and white 'mums. White tapers in crystal candelabras also decorated the table.

Pouring were Mr. Clarence Porter, Mr. Les Bristow, Mr. Roy Tully and Mr. Fred Parsons. The servers were all men members of the club. The ladies were in charge of the kitchen, the home bake, candy and novelty table and also provided a baby sitting service.

Background music for the tea was provided by Mr. Mel Wright and orchestra.

The flower arrangements were looked after by Mrs. Earl Church, Mrs. A. Saunders and Mrs. S. White. The ushers were Mrs. C. Porter, Mrs. D. Howarth, Mrs. R. Heard, Mrs. F. Parsons, Mrs. P. Mayhew and Mrs. L. McLaren.

Mr. Ernie Bell sold tickets at the door and tickets were taken by Mr. Seabrook and Mr. Sawyer White.

NEEDS TO BE SEALED

Cork flooring, in tile or carpet form, should be sealed with a penetrating floor sealer to prevent staining and protect the surface.

ST. ANNE'S SCHOOL

The Rev. C. J. Carroll of Norwood was the guest speaker at the meeting of the St. Anne's School Parent Teacher Association held Wednesday evening.

Mr. Carroll gave an interesting account of his trip to Panama, the West Indies and South America and showed slides.

The speaker was thanked by E. J. Boland, principal.

President F. Whaley was in charge of the meeting. An annual report of the year's activities was given by Mrs. E. Harrsion, secretary. The financial report was given by Mrs. J. Paquette. Mrs. W. Smith, social convenor, thanked her committee for their co-operation during the year.

The following slate of officers were elected: Gordon Burns, Girard Primeau, Charles Hartnell, Mrs. Albert Laton and Mrs. Frank McCarthy. The names on the slate were presented by Walter Smith, chairman of the nominating committee.

Lunch was served by Mrs. W. Smith and her committee. Servers were Mrs. J. Waters, Mrs. J. Shaughnessy, and Mrs. T. Brioux.

Wooden Shoes, Scarves May Be In New Fashions

TORONTO (CP)—Purple stockings, wooden shoes and golden scarves are competing for a place in Canada's fashion wardrobe.

Firms from many parts of the world have collected their best products and sent them to the sixth Canadian International Trade Fair here to woo the Canadian buyer.

Margaret van Der Boogaart brought the colored stockings from Berlin. The seven pastel shades on display include pink, blue and green—designed to harmonize with the evening's dress.

The stockings look like nylon but are made of perlon which, the exhibitor says, lasts much longer.

A black cocktail dress in the same booth attracted interest with its hand-painted roses on the skirt, and a filmy stole.

WOODEN SHOES

Wooden shoes with colorful leather tops came from Sweden. Carved to fit the shape of the foot and with a special recess for the big toe, the shoes are said to be both long-wearing and comfortable for casual wear.

India exhibited the golden evening scarves. Threads of pure gold are woven into delicate fabric in a variety of designs. Gold and silver embroidery on evening purses also featured the Indian display.

Newfoundland produced some unusual ideas in leather. Ladies shorts are made of turquoise suede leather and a full-length belted coat comes in red cowhide Sealskin coats were displayed in their natural color and one was dyed to resemble mink.

HARD TO TELL

What looked like a display of furs in one of the Belgian booths turned out to be "fur-pile"—a material made from wool that is almost indistinguishable from real fur. "Fur-pile" is lighter than fur but is considerably cheaper.

The material can be used as it is for fur-like coats or produced with a rubberized backing for sports wear.

Quebec was on hand with handwoven skirts with lines of metallic thread dorming a pattern about six inches above the hem. Handknitted sweaters completed the ensemble.

South Korean industry produced, among other things, rubber shoes shaped like small canoes and woven-straw slippers. The exhibitor recommended them for the beach or bath.

Beautiful evening sweaters appeared in one Austrian exhibit. One sweater, black with a high neck and three-quarter sleeves, featured heavy gold embroidery curving down from the shoulders.

Another, in white with a high neck and no sleeves, had a necklace and heavy medallion embroidered upon it.

Many of the exhibits are expected to be on sale soon in Canadian stores.

STRAIGHT AND SLICK SHEATH (left) has white background with all-over embroidery in mauve and blue. Since this is absolutely straight, it's for the girl with a very slim figure. Black cotton halter top (centre) is worn with three-tiered skirt in sheer chartreuse dimity. This is right for patio, terrace or end-of-the-day and into the evening. A pale blue fish-scale bodice (right) is used with full skirt in chartreuse for one-piece dress with stole. This is cotton broadcloth. Fish-scale motif is repeated on stole ends. There's a marked difference in skirt treatments, allowing each woman to pick the type best for her.

DOROTHY DIX:

Husband Lacking Courage Leaves Polio Victim, Child

DEAR MISS DIX: Four years ago, when I was 15, I married a very nice boy. In a year we had a son, and were very happy together. Two years ago I was stricken with polio. I was in the hospital more than a year and, shortly after I came home, my husband said he didn't love me any more, and left. My baby and I went to live with my mother. I suppose my husband can't be blamed for not wanting a wife in a wheelchair, but I still love him and miss him very much. Friend do come to see me, but I am lonely. In a few weeks I'll go back to the hospital again for an operation. I need friends so much; how can I meet people and have them like me?

W. T.

HEARTLESS COWARD

ANSWER: Your husband just didn't have the courage to face responsibities like a man. Being so very young when he married, he apparently believed that marriage was a romantic dream with no strings attached. Like a disillusioned child, he ran from his obligations to pursue his own ideas of fun. In time he'll learn how wrong he was, and let's hope it won't be too late.

You have the comfort and consolation of your son and your family. As you learn, in spite of your afflictions, to get around, mix with people outside your own home, and make a place for yourself in church, school and community life. You'll meet many fine persons whose affection for you will be motivated by admiration —not pity. When you get out of the hospital, find out just what you can do in these fields to be useful and help others. While you are in the hospital, talk with the nurses, the welfare worker, the representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. They may have suggestions for building your social life. You face a difficult future, but you have the courage to meet it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a 12-year-old girl friend who has me worried. I'm 14. She is very loud and unmannerly. She seldom stays in her own house during the day since her mother works nights and sleeps during the day. Consequently, the girl is on the streets, and is chased by all the boys. They take her for something she isn't, but may turn if someone doesn't take an interest in her.

ROBERTA C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since you seem to take a sincere interest in the girl —and it's a good thing someone does—why not enlist your mother's aid in improving the child? The girl is too young to be responsible for her own actions, and since she is being woefully neglected by her mother, some adult should step into the picture and help her. You mother or a sympathetic teacher, could do the job. See what you can do to enlist aid.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last summer I went with a certain boy, and since we saw each other quite often, I became tired of him and we broke off. Now I realize I was wrong, and that I love him very much. We meet on the street and say "Hi!" to each other, but that's all. I know he doesn't go steady, and neither do I. He's 18 and I'm 16.

JEANIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the boy is friendly when you meet him, and doesn't have a steady girl, the way is wide open for a renewal of friendship. There's no reason why you can't break the ice by inviting him to a party at your house or at a friend's, to a school dance, or perhaps to some entertainment for which you just happen to have tickets. If he still likes you, he's respond enthusiastically.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Should a widow wear her wedding ring? Some of my friends say no, and some say she should, unless she's looking for a second husband.

H. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Husband hunting or not, a widow wears her wedding ring until she remarries.

Of Interest to Women

Hears Talk On Cancer

KEENE (ENS)—Some 60 ladies and girls, including members of Westwood and Keene Women's Institutes and Keene Teens, held a joint meeting with the president of Keene WI, Mrs. Maloney, in the chair.

The program opened with the singing of the National Anthem and the Ode, followed by the Creed. The president welcomed the visitors.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Athletic Field committee, accepting the offer of the WI to assist in tree planting or in the amusement part of the park. Mrs. George Hawkes was appointed to look into the question of obtaining a children's slide.

An invitation was read from the Warsaw Women's Instiute for two delegates to be present on the occasion of their fiftieth anniversary, June 18. The district annual meeting at Trent River June 9 was discussed and five voting delegates are to be sent, preferably members of the executive or heads of standing committees.

The hobby basket sale to be held at the July meeting was left in charge of Mrs. Hugh McPhee, who will see that there are six items to be auctioned. The roll call was answered by "Accident prevention in the home."

The guest speaker, Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the Peterborough Branch, Canadian Cancer Society, was introduced by Mrs. Evelyn Anderson. Mrs. Holt outlined the work of the society, how they function and the assistance they are able to give to cancer sufferers through gifts, transportation to and from the Dunlop Clinic in Toronto and in other ways.

She also told several human interest stories and concluded by showing two films. Her assistant was Miss Allen from the film council. Mrs. Lloyd Wismer thanked Mrs. Holt and presented her with the gift of a cup and saucer.

Mrs. Cardwell president of Westwood WI, thanked Mrs. Holt and the Keene WI for invisting them. Miss Davidson conducted a contest entitled "Travelling in Canada." The prize was won by Mrs. Wismer.

A skit "Bryant's Three Wives," directed by Mrs. E. Birdsall, was enacted by Mary Wood, Mary Walsh, Grace Pacey and Grace Patterson. Seven members of the Keene Teens modeled the dresses they made during theier propect "Cottons Can Be Smart." Those taking part were Betty Easton, Carolie McNevan, Mariei Maloney, Joy Ellison, June McNevan, Mary Joe Doris and Mary Hall.

A social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by members of the Keene WI executive under the convenership of Mrs. Harold Mather.

First Impression Of Many People Over Telephone

Career girls, many of the people you know get their main impression of you over the telephone. Why not make a test to find out whether it's a charming impression?

If you want to know what your voice sounds like, put your hands behind your ears and cup them forward in your palms, curving the fingers in. Then read something aloud, preferably some naturalistic dialogue in a novel or play.

Listen for pitch, rhythm, breath control and signs of tension. If your voice is too high, you can, by thinking about it, give it greater depth. If it sounds monotonous, try breaking the pattern of the speech with slower and faster sentences. Give special emphasis to words and phrases that call for it.

Lift your voice at the end of a sentence whenever the sense allows you to. This makes it easier for people to hear your words and thus feel more like replying to you.

If your voice sounds breathy, try maintaining better posture as you speak. Then your voice will have the full strength of your diaphragm muscles behind it.

Speak as you exhale. If you practice by yourself, you'll get over any feeling of self-consciousness. Remember that you don't have to hurry when you talk and it will help you to speak out on the breath.

If you hear tightness, tension and flatness in your voice, let tight throat muscles relax.

Get Into Line In Your Walking

Do you have a woebegone walk or do you seem to face up to life?

A shuffling, spiritless walk, with your head drooping and your knees like water, can make worthless the time and money you've invested in clothes because the figure you bought them for isn't there any more. All your best beauty points are wasted when you don't move gracefully.

To get yourself into line, concentrate on your rib cage. Stand with feet together and take several deep, slow breaths, until you feel your waistline pulled up out of your stomach.

Then walk off with feet pointed straight ahead, moving your legs from the hips, and your chin at a right angle to your body. Pick up your foot very definitely before you set it down again to avoid any tendency to drag. Let your feet strike the ground very lightly, heels first.

As you walk, feel your head is touching the sky or that you are displaying a badge of honor on your chest or balancing a pail of water on your head. Any trick of this kind when borne in mind will do wonders to help you walk beautifully.

DRAPERY HINTS

If your ceilings are very low, hang draperies as high as possible and have them extend to the floor. Top off the unit with a cornice. Run your wallpaper or paint all the way to the ceiling.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

SOUR MILK SPICE PIE

Line a pie pan with rich pastry with high fluted edges. Mix together 1 cup seedless raisins, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon nutmeg (and if desired ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves), ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sour cream or milk, 1 beaten egg. Turn into unbaked shell. Now this may be topped with another crust or lattive crust or baked uncovered. Bake in oven of 425 degrees Fahr. to finish baking 20 or 25 minutes.

LETTER:....I read Male Cook's letter, so while I won't pretend I would always read your column if it was full of nothing but the value of correct food, I thought I would tell you a few of the things I have taken advantage of from your column: (a) With the very rare exception I no longer peel potatoes, but scrub them and boil in about an inch or less of water. However, I do scrub about 25c worth of potatos at once so that when I get nome from work I can just pop one in a saucepan without even taking off my coat. (b) I used to seldom eat oranges because they are so messy, but since reading in your column that one citrus fruit a day was a necessity, I try to keep a bag of oranges in a drawer at work — and most days I eat one. Weekends I often eat grapefruit. (c) I try to make a point of eating more lettuce and parsley than formerly. (d) The liquid from vegetables gets saved now—and I often keep a glass saucepan of home-made soup in my frig. so that I can pour the liquid right into the soup. (e) I have always liked bananas, but was glad to read that ripe ones are good for an underweight person after every meal (or something like that) as I often eat several a day and wondered if I ate too many.

Those are some of the things I have learned from your column, and I have wished sometime there was an easy-to-read book on the market which would outline the easy and nutritious rules of eating. I think so many people do things wrong because it is the quickest way — and because the rules involved are too difficult to locate. I myself do not care for long explanations, but probably because your "rules" were casually mentioned, I picked them up. One thing I find difficult to obtain is an appetizing whole wheat bread—either it is too dry (like sawdust) or else it is insipid, or appears to be made with molasses.

Well, perhaps I have made use of so few of your suggestions that this letter will not be encouragement, but I enjoyed your "Health hints" anyway and your easy recipes such as Mother's Day Cake. —Business Girl.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are a dear to write in this vein. While I receive more than my share of fan mail it is gratifying to know that some of my habit-changing suggestions take root. I think your idea of a dish in the refrigerator for the purpose of receiving vegetable liquor and other leftovers for soup purposes is ideal. It makes clearing up after dinner simpler too. Surely there are Health Bakeries in your city that make a 100 per cent whole wheat loaf. Don't give up on that for it is of first importance.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MARY: Forgive me for addressing you this way, but I do feel you are a personal friend to so many...your helpful hints and sense of humor give us a wonderful lift. I love your column, particularly your way of referring to Pete and Marianne. I have two boys, Dick 21, in his last year of university, and Bill 13. Their Dad died suddenly two years ago, so I am trying to play the part of both, and with God's help hope to succeed. Could you help me with a recipe for meat pie, with ground meat....mine are dry, and the meat seems hard....I refer to individual size.—Mabel R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I love to be called Mary. There are quite a few parallels between your family and mine, Mabel.

INDIVIDUAL MEAT PIES

(English Pastry): Sift together 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and cut into them ½ cup shortening. Dissolve another ½ cup shortening in ½ cup boiling water and add 2 teaspoons lemon juice and stir in 1 beaten egg yolk. Stir this into the flour mixture, then knead on board for 3 minutes. Line individual pie tins with this rolled-out dough. FILLING: Grind together ½ pound each raw beef and raw fresh pork and add 1 tablespoon grated onion, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ to ¾ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons dry breadcrumbs and ½ to ¾ cup water. Fill pastry-lined tins with this mixture two-thirds full, seal on tops, making hole in centre with skewer. Bake at 450 degrees Fahr. for 15 minutes, reduce heat to 375 degrees Fahr. for another 15 minutes.

REDUCERS, SIP BOUILLON OR CONSOMME

If you're trying to lose weight, keep canned bouillon or consomme on hand for a nutritious snack. To prepare as a hot beverage, mix with an equal amount of water; heat. Serve with a wedge of lemon if you like. One cup of either beverage equals about 30 or 40 calories; and it contributes protein. Doctors often include these as "free foods" on low calorie diets.

GETTING INTO CREVICES

You can clean crevices in carved furniture by using an orangewood stick or skewer wrapped in cotton.

FAMOUS 1902 CORONATION OF QUEEN ALEXANDRA SEES FIRST USE OF ACOUSTICON HEARING AID

SINCE 1902, when the lovely, deaf queen of Edward VII heard the impressive coronation ceremony on a bulky, awkward instrument, the world has seen a remarkable growth in the science of electrical hearing correction.

Today, many thousands have regained the joys of hearing through a remarkable Acousticon contact receiver that requires nothing in either ear. Middle ear deafness is corrected by this device which, when worn with the appropriate Acousticon, lets you hear even whispers without so-called "invisible" earpieces, pressure or background noise.

A tremendous advancement in just the last 6 months, is the new Acousticon all-transistor aid which eliminates the need for vacuum tubes and "B" batteries.

Most hearing problems can be corrected with comfort and clarity by one of the 7 different Acousticon models available.

The hearing aid that was started on the road to success at a Queen's coronation is guaranteed by the world's first and oldest manufacturer of electrical hearing aids. You hear better or pay nothing.

For further information send the coupon today. Prices as low as $69.50.

6—In Memoriam

FENN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Kathleen Fenn, who passed away June 7, 1945.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear mother, how we think of you.
Friends are friends if they are true;
We lost our best friend when we lost you
—Ever remembered by daughter, Marion.

In loving memory of George [illegible] who passed away three years ago today.
Some day we hope to meet again
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
—Sadly missed by his wife Alice and family.

RONCO—In loving memory of a dear father, Joseph Ronco, who passed away June 7, 1931.
Farewell, dear father, thy work is o'er,
Thy willing hands will toil no more;
A loving father, kind and true,
No one on earth we'll find like you.
—Sadly missed by his daughter Lucy and son-in-law George.

7—Card of Thanks

Hear Rumors Regency Act Will Be Changed

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Express today reports rumors that the government plans to alter a law under which Princess Margaret would be the sole possible regent in the event the Queen should die before her children come of age.

"Now there is a whisper in Whitehall that the government intends to alter the Regency Act," the Daily Express says. "The big question is whether this will mean shifting the burden of the regency responsibility from Princess Margaret to the Duke of Edinburgh."

Noting that under the present act a regent "must be of full age, 21, and able to succeed as sovereign," the featured article by Derek Marks, the paper's political correspondent, says if the Queen should die before her son, Prince Charles, is 18 "then Princess Margaret alone can become regent."

MORE STORIES

The Express article appears as the New York Daily News reports in a copyrighted story from London that Princess Margaret is in love with a divorced commoner, 39-year-old Peter Townsend.

Townsend, a wartime RAF hero, recently was appointed comptroller of the household of Queen Mother Elizabeth. He was divorced last November from his wife, whom he accused of adultery. They had two children.

Princess Margaret's name has been linked romantically by newspapers with a long succession of beaux, most of whom have since married. Only last Monday, the tabloid London Daily Mirror said the 22-year-

SD and Gs Hold 6th Reunion Of Historic Highland Unit

Sixth reunion of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders is taking place today in Peterborough. This will be the second reunion held in this city; the last one was in 1949.

Members will register Saturday afternoon and that evening at 6:30 attend a dinner. Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne will toast the 1st Battalion and Major Archie M. Hamilton will reply. The guest speaker will be Brigadier D. G. Cunningham, CBE, DSO.

More than 400 men are expected to march Sunday morning in the Memorial Day parade, led by the CGE Pipe Band.

Wreath laying ceremonies will begin in Confederation Park at 1.30 p.m. The 4th Anti-Tank Battery, the 32nd Light Anti-Aircraft Troop and the 3rd Field Park Company will also be on hand.

Executive responsible for this reunion are: Chairman, Major Kenneth Kingston, MBE; Capt. W. J. Curtis; Major J. E. Gillespie, MBE; Major R. S. Allen, Lt. John Campbell; CSM W. T. Westram; CSM L. C. Galley; RSM F. A. Lockhart, MM; Capt. W. A. Masters and Major C. E. Whatley.

The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders regiment, although not bearing the name Peterborough on their insignia, is considered by many to be a Peterborough unit. This acknowledgement probably stems from the fact that Peterborough men of the Prince of Wales Rangers formed headquarters company when the 1st Battalion was mobilized for overseas service on June 18, 1940.

GLENGARRY FENCIBLES

In the European campaign, local men proudly combined the cap badge "Glengarry Fencible" with the MacDonell of Glengarry crest, "The Raven on the Rocks," thus accepting as their own regiment this outfit whose history dates back to the American Revolution and the bitter years of the 18th Century when Scots were forced to leave their lands to make way for the increasing flocks of sheep necessary for the expanding wool market in England.

Regimental history begins in 1874 when disbanded officers and other ranks of the 84th (Royal Highland Emigrant Regiment), 1st Battalion (King's Royal) Regiment of New York, Sir John Johnson's Greens, and a corps of Butler's Rangers settled in the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. Here they fought as Loyalists, enduring the many hardships and privations which necessarily accompanied their political beliefs.

A permanent militia regiment of Loyalists was formed in 1796 by Lt. Col. John MacDonell called the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Volunteer Regiment of Foot. The 1st Battalion, raised farther west, did not exist until a few years later.

Economic dislocation in Scotland due to the increase in sheep for the wool markets, left hundreds of small farmers landless. The Rev. Alexander MacDonell, seeing the problem, persuaded the government to form the Glengarry men into a home defence unit called a "fencible regiment." This regiment volunteered for service in France, fought in Guernsey and then against a rebellion in Ireland.

After this interlude of action the regiment disbanded and the six-foot, four-inch priest, (later to become the first Bishop of Upper Canada), brought 600 men and their families to the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry in 1804.

Previous Scottish immigration to the area had been in 1786 when 500 Highlanders arrived led by another Rev. Alexander MacDonnell. Another group came out in 1792. In those days military service was more or less compulsory to all those between the ages of 18 and 50 according to the demands of European and American disturbances.

FORMED MILITIA UNITS

Settlers formed into militia units which eventually consolidated into regiments, one in each county. The records are imperfect around this date but it is known that in 1786 Col. Alastair Ronaldson Macdonnel, chief, commanded the Glengarry Fencibles and that in 1803, three regiments commanded by Col. Archibald Macdonnell of Stormont, Col. J. Alan Macdonell of Dundas, and Col. John Macdonell of Glengarry, existed, one in each county.

Col. John Macdonell of Akerbalder was originally of the 84th and later became MLA for Glengarry and first Speaker of the House.

During the war of 1812 six more regiments were brought into existence, which made a total of nine. In the spring of 1813 at least half of one battalion was given leave from duty so that they might sow the annual crop. In the fall the remaining half were sent out to harvest.

During the rebellion of 1837 two battalions were put on active service in Lower Canada to thwart rebellion as well as any attack from the U.S.A. Sir John Colborne wrote for two regiments of Glengarry Militia to report for from five to eight months' service in Lower Canada. During the winter the first regiment was stationed at St. Philippe, and the second at Napierville.

CARIRED FIELD GUN

A chronicler of the day writes that Sir John Colborne was "much impressed" while inspecting the ranks to see six-foot, seven-inch Lewis Grant carrying a three-pound field gun on his back.

In 1862 two rifle corps were called out in the United Counties. The first one was headed by Capt. Darby Bergin and the second was under the command of Capt. Donald A. Macdonald. This was the beginning of the Stormont and Glengarry Battalion. The same year the Department of Militia was formed and a 3rd Cornwall Infantry was formed with Capt. A. F. McIntyre commanding. Supplies were first loaned and then given to these outfits by the British government.

More than 10,000 militia were called up in 1866 due to the threatened raiding of Fenians along the border. Both companies did guard duty along the canal as well as at strategic points along the border.

At this time the rate of pay was similar to that of today as regards the ratio between commissioned officers and lower ranks. Privates received 25 cents per day while lieutenants drew $4.87 plus from 50 cents to $1 per day for subsistence.

Thirty years after this activity the Militia Department issued medals to all those who had been engaged in guarding the Canadian borders from the Fenians. By this time there were only 210 recipients. One of these, Sgt. James Pling Whitney of the Cornwall Infantry Company, later became Premier of Ontario.

Lt.-Col. Darby Bergin, MD, later to become an MP for the constituency, commanded the regiment from 1868 to 1886. After the North West Rebellion broke out he organized a medical department which was the forerunner of the RCAMC.

Lt.-Col. R. Smith, later a justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, took over command in 1907. He was succeeded by Lt.-Col, A. G. F. Macdonald.

Three days before the First World War broke out in August, 1914, the unit finished its summer camp training at Petawawa; the personnel then included 20 officers and 308 other ranks.

GUARDED CANALS

Under Capt. Macdonald the regiment was called out Sept. 1, for patrol duty along the St. Lawrence Canal. Locks from Morrisburg to Cornwall, and railway bridges at Cornwall to the U.S. border were guarded.

Many of the men, anxious for action, joined the C.E.F. for service abroad when the U.S.A. entered the war in 1917 and guard duty was no longer necessary.

A company of the 59th under Capt. J. M. Gray joined the 21st Battalion, C.E.F., 2nd Division in November, 1914. In December, 1915, the 154th Battalion was mobilized under Lt.-Col. Macdonald and the battalion went to Barrie-field camp with 1,258 of all ranks. The battalion went overseas as a unit and was stationed at Bramshott, Sandeling, Seaford and Whitney camps, but like many others it was never in action, but was broken up for reinforcements in 1917. Others joined the 156th Battalion which also was broken up.

In 1920 the regiment was reorganized as the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and they adopted the famous Macdonnel Glengarry tartan for their kilts.

From 1927-1939 the unit, a rural one, without armouries (and thus greatly restricted) met at summer camp, where they often went payless. However they persisted as an efficient unit, maintaining one of the best fighting traditions.

TOLD TO MOBILIZE

One June 18, 1940, the 1st Battalion was ordered to mobilize for service overseas as a unit of the 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade, 3rd Canadian Division. The C.O. was Lt.-Col. W. J. Franklin, MC, VD, now Sgt.-at-arms in the House of Commons, and second-in-command, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, MC, of Peterborough.

The HQ of the battalion was established in this city, giving residents a special claim. Composition of the battalion was as follows: HQ Company, Prince of Wales Rangers; No. 1 Company, Prince of Wales Own Regiment, mobilized at Kingston; No. 2 Company, Brockville Rifles, mobilized at Brockville; Nos. 3 and 4 Companies, Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Mobilized at Cornwall.

Lt.-Col. R. T. Hicks-Lyne served with the 15th Battalion, 48th Highlanders in World War 1 and with the Toronto Scottish and Prince of Wales Rangers in peacetime. He then took command when Lt.-Col. Franklin was proclaimed unfit medically for active service. Lt.-Col. Franklin had been wounded in the 1st World War. After leaving the 1st Battalion, he was transferred to the 2nd Reserve Battalion.

As of October 12, 1940, battalion officers were: Lt.-Col. Hicks-Lyne, MC; Majors J. Turnbull, ED, E. Cockburn, D. E. Lewis, A. R. Macnab, H. G. Mason; Captain and Adjutant J. G. Armstrong, and Capts. G. H. Christiansen, C. A. Beattie, A. E. Hall, R. F. Gray; Lts. M. E. Clarke, IO, A. F. Meiklejohn, (sig. officer), V. S. J. Richman, F. L. Fisher, J. P. MacNaughton (Capt. CM), A. M. Hamilton, R. S. Allin, H. Willis, F. W. Lander, H. A. Constabule, W. H. Rose, E. W. Whelpton, H. V. Cardwell, N. M. Gemmell, A. MacDonald, R. S. Wood (QM), 2nd Lts. K. N. Kingston, D. A. Scott, L. D. Foster, A. M. Irvine, E. W. Haley, R. E. Morden, J. B. McMartin, A. A. McMartin, A. C. Stewart and Lt. B. Fraser.

The battalion left Kingston in November and took up quarters at Lansdowne Park, in Ottawa.

NEW CAP BADGE

A new cap badge re-introduced tradition into the battalion, on January 16th, 1941. The legend 'Glengarry Fencibles' was inscribed on the badge which also bore the crown, the cross of St. Andrew, the MacDonald of Glengarry crest, "The Raven on the Rock", and the regimental motto in Gaelic, "Dileas Gu Bras", or "Faithful Unto Death".

Moved to training camp in Debert, units of the 3rd Canadian Division concentrated in two trains. The first one arriving was piped into camp by the SD and G pipe band and the second group by the Canadian Scottish.

July 19th, 1941, saw the regiment on a troop train heading from Debert to Halifax. On July 21, 1941, many of the Highlanders took their final look at Canada, as the transport moved away from dock. Then they entrained for Barossa barracks, Aldershot, for intensive training.

After a month and a half at Aldershot the unit was inspected by the King and Queen along with other units of the 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade. A few days later Cpl. Marshall and Piper Wishart played for Her Majesty at the opening of the Queen Elizabeth Club.

October 22nd, 1941 the unit left Barossa Barracks for a new station near Camberly. Then came field positions in the Middleton area.

Pte. Maracle, of "A" Company, was the first man killed when he accidentally stepped on a beach-mine, March 5, 1942. He had been with the "Glens" since mobilization. That same spring Capt. W. O. Vrooman, Canadian Dental Corps, died.

Lt.-Col. W. S. Rutherford, formerly GSO 1, 3rd Canadian Division, succeeded Lt. - Col. Hicks-Lyne, who was made officer in charge of records. In August, 1942, Lt.-Col. W. S. Rutherford was transferred from command of the SD and G Highlanders and his place was taken by Lt.-Col. M. S. Dunn, with Major G. H. Christiansen second in command. Then in December, Lt.-Col. Christiansen succeeded to the command.

GUARD SCOTS COAST

The Glengarrians were stationed as guards along the Scottish coast for a time and then in May the British took over the coastal areas and the Canadians concentrated their training in offensive tactics. Shortly before this time news had arrived that Capt. Graeme Faulkner, of "C" Company, had been killed in action in North Africa while training under actual operations.

The 3rd Division was chosen as the "attack division" for Europe and had come under the command of the 21st Army Group, the invasion force. Visits from the King and Gen. Eisenhower, together with a general tightening of security measures, indicated that the assault against Germanheld Europe was not far off.

At 3 p.m. on June 5, the Highlanders were informed that the invasion was on.

The initial beach-head was established shortly after noon, when, suported by a heavy smoke-screen laid down by destroyers, the battalion hit White Beach. The Nova Scotians received the brunt of the enemy counter-attack, but were soon relieved by the heavy fire of the flanking Glengarrians. Lt.-Col. Christiansen, seeing the badly mauled North Nova Scotians, gave the order to consolidate at Le Buissen.

ON TO CAEN

Next move was to the city of Caen which was being heavily bombed and which afforded little resistance. The surrounding villages, however, had been manned by a Hitler Youth division which resisted to the last in what amounted to trench warfare of the 1914-18 pattern.

The SD and G's were the first Canadians into the wrecked city of Caen. Major A. M. Hamilton, second in command, was wounded. Lt.-Col. Christiansen became temporary commander of the 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade and Gemmel, second in command, became CO of the Glens.

The River Orne was then crossed and the capture of Colombelles, Faubourg de Vaucelles and Hubes Folie, where a 10-day seige of bombs, strafing and rockets were weathered.

On the third anniversary of their landing in England, July 31, the Highlanders came out of the line for a rest near Bouanville. Since D-Day they had been in action constantly, never more than 1,000 yards from the enemy.

Lt.-Col. Christiansen was recalled to duty elsewhere and was replaced by Lt.-Col. Roger Crowley, of Ottawa.

Flame-throwers were brought into use in an armored charge across France made by the Canadian Army. In this sweep Louvigny, Trun, Rouen and Eu were all scenes of engagements. Major J. H. Peterson's company captured several hundred prisoners at Trun when they attempted to break out of a trap. Soldiers were captured by the enemy, then captured their own captors when overtaken by flanking forces.

The Glens drove on through Boulogne, Cap Gris Nez, where the long-range German guns were located, and then to Calais.

The capture of Breskins, which could control the sea approach to Antwerp, was one of the major victories of the Glens. By this time some of the men who had been wounded on D-Day were back with the unit. On October 11, D. Company stated that only seven ranks remained of their original number on D-Day.

CAPTURED, FREED

Major Braden was captured by the enemy and escorted to a German pillbox, only to be greeted by a group of Highlanders who had been doing a little capturing of their own in the meantime.

On August 5, Field Marshal Montgomery decorated Capt. Edward (Padre) Brain with the Military Cross and RSM F. H. Lockhart, CSM D. K. MacDonald and Sgt. L. Menzies with Military Medals.

From November 1944 to January 1945, the front was quiet with the general run of soldiering consisting of patrol and outpost duty.

A bizarre event in the Glens' history took place on January 13 when they battled a submarine. A number of midget subs had been spotted in the river Waal; one was destroyed the previous night by a combination of anti-tank and artillery fire. On the dawn of the 13th, one was spotted and all available fire power of the company was turned on it, but to no avail, the tiny sub escaped.

Riding in Buffaloes, the Glens struck out from Nijmegen for the northern tip of the line. Heavy fighting resulted in the capture of Keppeln, Udem, Tuschen Wald, Balberger Wald, Sensbeck and the clearing of the Hammerbruch feature.

One of the major captures was Udem which fell after an attack was launched in darkness. Complete surprise was effected and a bridge over an anti-tank ditch was captured before it could be destroyed. The enemy guns covering the ditch were taken before they fired a shot.

Lt.-Col. N. M. Gemmell, of Peterborough, took over command from Lt.-Col. Rowly while the unit was still at Udem and shortly afterwards Major J. G, Stothart, DSO, became second in command.

March 24 was the next action date when the unit, using amphibian vehicles, reached the east bank of the Rhine. Here they obtained a bridgehead and moved north parallel to the river. After some fighting the Highlanders left German territory and advanced into Holland, meeting strong opposition at Zutphen.

ZUTPHEN FALLS

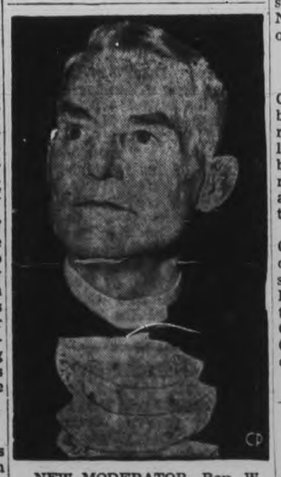
Zutphen, although strongly manned by candidates of a disbanded German NCO's school, cracked and was taken. Veenwouden and Luuwarden, two northeastern Dutch towns were entered and then the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division moved about 75 miles eastward into Germany, crossing the Eris river. The division captured Leu and was about to attack Aurich when it was announced on May 4 that the German forces in northwest Germany and the Netherlands had surrendered.

The Highlanders were just five miles south of Emden when the signal came: "The war on the 21st Army Group front will cease as of 0800 hours 5th of May, 1945."

The fighting was over for the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

After disarming the Emden garrison, the Glengarrians stayed only a short time in Germany and returned to Holland to concentrate in the Hilversum area. They arrived back in England November 10, 1945, and after a brief billeting in Aldershot sailed for Canada on the SS Queen Elizabeth, December 22.

A civic welcome was tendered them when they reached Cornwall on December 29, and then the men returne dto their homes.



In th words of the official history: "With the dispersal of members of the unit the final chapter in the colorful history of one of the finest Canadian battalions that ever went into battle was recorded."

WING TALK—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force Chief of Staff (left), and Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott testify before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on President Eisenhower's defence budget. Both men showed reluctance to back a proposed two billion dollar slash in Air Force money. But Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson was reported adamant in calling for a five billion dollar defence budget cut.

BLOSSOM QUEEN—Blue-eyed Patricia Matheson of Digby, N.S., is the new queen of the Annapolis valley apple blossom festival. Miss Matheson, 19, was crowned Annapolisa XXI following her selection from 11 beauties named as princesses by various apple centres.

NEW MODERATOR—Rev. W. A. Cameron of Woodville, Ont., a pioneer western missionary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, has been elected moderator of the 79th General Assembly. Dr. Cameron, at present general secretary of foreign missions, succeeds Rt. Rev. J. A. MacInnis of Orillia, Ont. Forty-two years ago he had his first mission 100 miles west of Saskatoon.

Drinking Figures Alarm United Church

HAMILTON (CP) — United Church heads expressed alarm Friday over what they called the "sky-rocketing consumption" of alcoholic beverages in Ontario.

They will ask the provincial government to refuse any more banquet permits for weddings and to enforce a 10:30 p.m. closing hour for all liquor outlets.

The recommendations were contained in a report from the evangelism and social service committee of the Hamilton conference of the United Church of Canada.

The committee said the amount of alcohol consumed in Ontario has risen out of proportion to the rise in population. In the 15 years up to 1949, the province's population increased to 27 per cent while consumption of hard liquor rose 300 per cent and use of beer by 533 per cent.

Quoting a New York survey that said each habitual drinker cost the city $3,000 annually, the report added:

"To this must be added the indirect costs of lost working time, accidents, broken homes, child delinquency and poverty."

Churches Honor Minister Before Leaving

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The Rev. Walton Tonge, Mrs. Tonge and their children were honored on Sunday by the congregation of Young's Point United Church when, following the afternoon service, they were presented with a table lamp and walnut living room table. Their children, Leslie, Murray and David, were presented with books.

The Tonge family left this week for London where Mr. Tonge has accepted the position of secretary of the Western Ontario division of the British and Foreign Bible Society. During their three and a half years in Lakefield, where Mr. Tonge was minister of the United Church, they have made many friends and their departure was sincerely regretted.

Mr. and Mrs. Tonge were guests of honor at a party, given by the cast of the play "Dead of Night," at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Grylls. Mr. Tonge was organizer of a dramatic group in the Young Adult Society during his ministry here and four three-act plays and a one-act play were produced under his direction, which netted the church over $1,500. He was presented with an "Oscar" for his ability on the stage and with a golf bag by the cast and their assistants.

MRS. TONGE HONORED

The CGIT group, of which Mrs. Tonge was the organizer, were hostesses at a party at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Richardson. Miss Anne Richardson is also a leader in the CGIT. Mrs. Tonge was given a green pottery flower bowl containing an attractive flower arrangement.

The Tonges were also guests of the Young Adult Society at a dinner party at D'Eyncourt Manor followed by a theatre party. During the evening they were given a table lamp. Mrs. Tonge was also presented with a floor lamp by the Missionary and Service Club and with an electric kettle by the Women's Association and the Women's Missionary Society.

The Sunday School, at a special service, made the presentation of golf clubs to Mr. Tonge for his leadership in the Sunday School and at the Summer Vacation School. The children were also presented with gifts.

The "Ding How" boys, a group organized by Mr. Tonge, paid a surprise visit to his house and he received a leather wallet containing a sum of money from them.

Many private parties were given for the Tonges.

WROTE BEST-SELLER—Suzanne Butler, 31-year-old Ottawa secretary finds writing "fun," especially after her first novel, "My Pride, My Folly," brought her fame and about $15,000. The book, about a 19th century Canadian heroine, is a best-seller in Canada and the United States. One-time Montreal school-teacher, Miss Butler spent five years on the book and says it takes most of a lifetime to write a best-seller.

Ottawa Secretary Assured Of $15,000 For New Book

OTTAWA (CP)—A pretty Ottawa secretary took five years to write a book, but it has netted her $15,000 and she considers her efforts well worth while.

Suzanne Butler is 31 and her book "My Pride, My Folly" is a first novel set in 19th-century Canada. Published in Canada by McClelland and Stewart, it has attained wide popularity and a book club (Doubleday Dollar) will distribute 300,000 in the United States.

That is what assures Miss Butler of $15,000, five times her annual salary as a secretary.

For two years while she was writing her book, Miss Butler worked as a teacher at a girls' school in Montreal; for three, she was secretary of the Association of Canadian Clubs in Ottawa.

SPARE-TIME RESEARCH

She did her research at night in McGill University. She wrote the later drafts of the book in her Ottawa apartment, setting it down in handwriting night after night.

She hoped somebody, some day, might read the book, that it might perhaps make $2,000. Negotiations with publishers fell through. The revisions went on.

Then one morning in May last year she received a letter from Little, Brown and Company, Boston, publishers. It said they would take the book.

"I felt drunk all day," Miss Butler says. "I just frittered round phoning people."

Miss Butler became the honored guest at cocktail parties. She was interviewed on TV and radio. The newspapers wanted to know all about it.

For although Miss Butler is not Canadian by birth—she lived her first 12 years in England and France—this is a book about Canadians and Canada.

AMUSING PUBLICITY

Miss Butler still has a fresh delight in her book and she can sit back far enough to be amused by the mechanics of publicity:

The cover, for instance, shows the book's leading character in a low-cut red dress. "I just can't remember her wearing even a red dress."

And that grave New York advertisement reading: "Many men wanted her, desiring her golden beauty or her golden dowry. But who would minister to her desperate need?"

Says Miss Butler: "I'm afraid some people are going to be disappointed. It's not a 'Forever Amber.'"

Now she has given up her job and is half-way through a new book on which she will work for the rest of the summer. She may travel in the fall, and some day she may marry. "But not yet: this writing game is too much fun."

TEACH SAFETY

KARACHI, Pakistan (CP)—The traffic safety campaign in Karachi included a series of lectures to school children on "road sense." In the first week more than 3,000 students and 120 teachers heard lectures by police traffic experts.

Scientists Find Way To Produce Low Grade Ores

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A group of scientists reported Friday their research has encouraged them to believe low-grade Saskatchewan uranium ores can be produced economically.

Reporting to the second session of the 36th annual conference of the Chemical Institute of Canada, I. J. O. Korchinski, G. A. Graig, E. B. Tinker, S. D. Cavers and A. B. Van Cleave, all of University of Saskatchewan, said it may be possible to "concentrate these uranium ores by flotation."

Flotation is an operation in which particles of one mineral are floated in water by means of air bubbles from a suspension of particles of two or more minerals in the water.

NO SUBSTITUTE

J. C. Macdonald of Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Ltd., Windsor, said rubber is almost the only basic raw material that has no substitute in the manufacture of automobiles.

Addressing the institute's rubber chemistry division, he said practically every steel item in the car was successfully substituted during the immediate post-war steel shortage.

The development of synthetic lubricants and alcohol fuels, Mr. Macdonald said, would make it possible to substitute for the major products of the petroleum industry but "we still have no satisfactory substitute for the rubber tire."

Cubs And Scouts Hold Annual Picnic

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The Cubs and Scouts held their annual picnic in the park with a large attendance present.

Following supper, races were held with the following results:

Girls, under 5 years—Sandra Nichols and Gladys Stockdale (tied); boys, under 5 years—Teddy Jakins, Paul Kennedy, Lenny Kennedy; girls, 6 to 7 years—Lynda Farrow, Lynda Leonard, Karen Kennedy; boys, 6 to 7 years — Roland Pierre, George Payton, David Lilley.

Cubs, 8 to 10 years—Jackie Brattain, Carl Hudson, Courtney Agnew; girls, 8 to 10 years—Betty Payton, Lois Farrow, Nancy Stockdale; cubs, 11 to 12 years—Douglas Sheppard, Elgin Johnston, Peter Burger; girls, 11 to 12—Donna Farrow, Sharon Johnston, Janice Kennedy.

Scouts, 12 to 16 years—Adrian Webb, Brydon Hill, Terry Coons; girls, 12 to 16—Patty Jakins, Diane Peters, Jennifer Last.

Wheelbarrow race, mother and son—Mrs. Clarence Coons and Terry, Mrs J. McConkey and Don, Mrs. D. Nichols and Elwood; three-legged race, father and son, J. McConkey and Don, M. Kingdon and Brydon and K. Jakins and Harry.

Three-legged race for parents—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Payton, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lilley, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Grant.

Following the races a huge beacon fire was lit and enjoyed by all.

Wreck At Crossing Whitby Man Hurt

EMO, Ont. (CP)—A Whitby man was slightly injured Thursday when his car was wrecked at a level crossing 20 miles west of here.

Police said Douglas Carpenter was taken to hospital for treatment to an injured shoulder but his condition was reported not serious. His car was reported by police to have stalled on the track. Emo is in northwestern Ontario some 100 miles west of Port Arthur.

Set Up New Brain Trust To Guard Northern Interests

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet has moved quietly to set up a new brain trust to protect Canada's northern interests and co-ordinate all future economic and military planning in the Arctic, it was learned Friday.

The new group, known as the advisory committee on northern development, is headed by Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young, deputy resources minister and Northwest Territories commissioner. Top military, science, financial and transport experts are included.

One of the committee's major responsibilities will be to dovetail Canada's military planning in the Arctic with that of the United States, making certain that all of Canada's rights are respected.

NEW DEFENCE ACTIVITIES

The committee may establish new areas of defence activities, begin surveying of uncharted coastal waters, plan for the allocation of Arctic shipping and new geological surveys and study ways of enhancing Arctic economic productivity.

Informants emphasized the importance of the committee with the possibility that the Arctic may be at the edge of an industrial boom, with new industries and new population speeding northward.

The committee was set up quietly about three months ago without announcement as the cabinet's chief adviser and mentor on northern affairs. Three monthly meetings already have been held.

Plan To Fight Drunk Driving

VANCOUVER (CP)—An all-out battle against drunken driving was announced Thursday by the world convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Holding their triennial conference here, the delegates from 32 countries passed a resolution urging national unions to request their governments to combat drunken driving with a three-point plan:

1. Compulsory education for teachers and pupils on the effect of alcohol on mental and physical powers of motorists.

2. Adoption of laws requiring chemical tests for those suspected of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

3. "To make it an offence for any driver of a motor car or mechanical vehicle or any pilot of an airplane to consume alcohol within 24 hours of going on duty and to make it an offence to sell liquor at airdromes, on board aircraft or on any public vehicle."

Government Seizes Savings Czech Workers In Uproar

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuters)—Even in a Communist country, with its iron-bound control of everything, robbing the workers of their accumulated savings can create an angry uproar.

That has just happened in Czechoslovakia, whose official press and radio this week admitted unrest inside the country.

The occasion is a currency reform carried out by the government, which abolished the old currency and introduced a new Czech crown, pegged to the Russian ruble.

For small sums, the government offered one new crown for every five old ones, but for sums above 300 crowns (about $7 at the old currency exchange rate) the rate was fixed at 50 old crowns for one new one. Thus the Czech equivalent of $5,000 became overnight $100. Those whose money was invested in state savings banks got a more favorable exchange rate.

ABOLISH RATIONING

The currency reform was linked with the abolition of all rationing of food, clothing and consumer goods and the establishment of a new state-controlled retail price system for all commodities.

The price of many industrial goods fell, but food prices remained high. One Prague newspaper commented that this reflected the fact that agricultural production still lags considerably behind industrial production.

One of the main declared aims of the Czech government was to wipe out accumulated capital in the hands of "speculators," black marketeers and "kulaks," the richer private farmers who have so far resisted collectivization of their land and livestock.

In fact the currency reform hit also the savings of the workers. Now, judging by the tone of comments in the state-controlled press and radio of Czechoslovakia, they are up in arms. During the last few days Prague radio has devoted many commentaries to the money reform and its consequences, seeking to prove that in the long run it will benefit the worker and the country's economy.

Say 30% Of Workers Organized By Unions

TORONTO (CP)—Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said Friday the trade union movement in Canada has succeeded in organizing only 30 per cent of eligible workers.

In an address to a conference of the United Mine Workers (Ind.), he said:

"We have a responsibility to bring the benefits of organization to those still outside of the trade union movement."

Rain Slows Seeding In Western Canada

Continuing rain throughout most of the three prairie provinces has been delaying seeding.

Weekly crop report of the CNR says: "It is doubtful whether wheat acreage will be completed, and this may result in an increase in flax in some areas, coarse grains in others, or in summer fallow due to the lateness of the season."

Seeding is nearly completed in Manitoba through Southern Saskatchewan where, in the north, the percentage is 90 to 95 completed, with early growth showing four inches above the ground.

About three-quarters of the wheat is in the ground in Alberta. In the Peace River country most of the seeding is finished.

North of Edmonton wheat is 85 per cent completed and 50 per cent of coarse grains. The west needs sunshine.

The 200th anniversary of the founding of Lunenburg, N.S., is being celebrated this summer.
